

The entire cottonseed oil industry of the South swings 100 per cent behind the war effort with the lifting of a WPB suspension order against one Enterprise, Alabama firm. Four-fifths of our linters are now going into explosives.

Douglas Porteous, Southeastern priorities chief, calls this record "a tribute to the patriotism and intelligence of Southern businessmen."

No Lumber
We're not building a wooden horse to use against Nazi tanks, nor passing wooden nickels to Japan, but the Army, Navy and Merchant Marine badly need wood in shipyards and for new barracks and depots. So WPB has frozen lumber in the hands of producers.

This halts deliveries by many small dealers in the south, for a producer is defined as anyone who cuts or saws lumber. Southern pine must be conserved for victory.

Get a Palm Leaf
We'll make it hot for Hitler this summer by taking our heat with a grin. No more electric fan or air conditioning units may be manufactured if intended solely for personal comfort.

WPB is making things even hotter by banning installations of air conditioning equipment in hotels, restaurants, and other public places. The metals which went into $17,500,000 worth of such equipment in the last part of 1941 will no longer go to cool the fevered brow—they'll be making a fire under the Axis.

Canned Peaches
More than the original five-pounds-per-person amount of sugar will be available for home canning, the OPA announces: We can get one pound for every four quarts of fruit by applying to the local rationing board for a special canning permit. This will save millions of peaches and other fruits for use on the home front.

Bad news for "junior"—A few more lawn mowers will be made than originally announced!

Typists and stenographers are needed by war agencies. About 1000 a week are being hired for Government work in Washington, and there's a shortage of nimble-fingered workers.

RANKIN PROTESTS DELAY OF PARITY CHECKS
Washington, D. C. May 22.—In response to protests of Representative John Rankin against the delay in the issuance of cotton parity payment checks and agricultural conservation payment checks to farmers, Fred S. Wallace, Chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Agency, assured the Mississippi Congressman that these checks will be placed in the hands of farmers "at the earliest possible date."

The assurance that the delivery of these checks "will be speeded up in every possible way" was given by Mr. Wallace in a letter to Representative Rankin, which reads as follows: Agricultural Adj. Agency Washington, D. C. May 16, 1942 Hon. J. E. Rankin House of Representatives Dear Mr. Rankin: This acknowledges your letter of May 7, in which you urge that everything possible be done in order to expedite the issuance of farm payments to Mississippi producers. Prior to 1941 cotton parity payments in Mississippi were made separately during the fall of the year. In 1941, upon the recommendation of the Mississippi State Agricultural Conservation Committee, the applications for parity payments and for agricultural conservation

BLUE MT. COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT STARTS MAY 30

Blue Mountain, Miss., May 22.—The commencement activities at Blue Mountain College will begin this year Saturday, May 30, with alumnae and senior day. At 10:00 a. m., the alumnae business session will begin with Mrs. D. C. Simmons, Jackson, national president, presiding. At the same time the junior alumnae organization will hold its business meeting with Miss Frances Fraser, Memphis, Tenn., national junior president, presiding. After the separate sessions, the two groups will meet together at 11:30 a. m. for a memorial to Mother Berry and Mrs. Ray, followed by luncheon at 12:00 noon honoring the classes of 1892 and 1937. At 2:00 p. m. there will be an open alumnae meeting with Dr. Susan B. Riley Associate Professor of English, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., as the principal speaker. At 8:00 p. m. a program by the fine arts department of the college will conclude the day.

Sunday, May 31, at 11:00 a. m. Dr. Webb Brame, pastor First Baptist Church, Yazoo City, will preach the baccalaureate sermon.

Monday, June 1, at 10:00 a. m. the 69th annual commencement of the college will take place in the Modena Lowrey Berry Auditorium with Dr. Guy T. Gillespie, president Belhaven College at the speaker. Following Dr. Gillespie, President Lawrence T. Lowrey will award degrees.

INDEEES GET AUTOMATIC FURLOUGH

Fourteen Days Permitted

An automatic fourteen day furlough permitting inductees to return to their homes to complete business and other personal affairs is to be given following induction, Major Lawrence W. Long, acting state director of the Selective Service System, has announced.

Under the new procedure, which replaces the present system of granting inductees ten-day furloughs, as soon as an inducted man has been qualified at the induction station and accepted by the armed forces, he will be relieved from active service and allowed to return home for the 14-day period at government expenses.

"If an inductee wishes to immediately enter upon his military duty following induction and not take advantage of the furlough which is granted without any sort of investigation by the Local Board, he may do so," Major Long explained.

"This new policy is designed to alleviate the hardship imposed upon inducted men who do not know whether they will payments were combined into one application. It, therefore, became necessary to check complete performance with the conservation program before the payment representing the amount earned under the conservation program and parity payment could be issued.

Payment under these applications were somewhat delayed by work in both the county and state offices in connection with the production of crops needed for the war effort and by work in connection with cotton crop insurance. This work, however, has been completed at the present time and payments to producers in Mississippi are being certified by the State office as rapidly as possible. For your information, our records indicate that as of May 10 approximately 85.8 per cent of the applications had been certified for payment by the Mississippi State Office and these payments will be completed at the earliest possible date.

Sincerely yours,
Fred S. Wallace
Chief, Agricultural

ROGERS DEPT. STORE

WILL CLOSE WEDNESDAYS

12:00 Noon, Beginning June 3

This year Rogers Department Store will close on Wednesday afternoons, instead of Thursdays, as has been their custom in the past to close on Thursday afternoons.

The store will close on Wednesday at 12:00 noon through the summer months of June, July and August, beginning the first Wednesday in June, which is the 3rd.

be accepted for military service until they have completed their physical examination by the armed forces at the induction station," the director said.

Upon expiration of the 14-day furlough period, the reservist will be ordered to active duty with the armed forces. The army will furnish transportation, meals and lodging of such reservist enroute to the city in which the local board is located and from that point to the reception center.

"Many of the disadvantages of the present system will be eliminated in the new procedure," Major Long said. "Every man who wishes to return to his home will be given the opportunity to do so without being required to establish his reasons for returning. Investigation and recommendation by the local board is no longer necessary. Reservists will be released from active service at the induction station instead of the reception center."

EASTLAND APPOINTS CAMPAIGN MANAGER

(Statement of Joseph E. Brown, Campaign Manager for Jim Eastland, Candidate for United States Senator in the August 25th Democratic Primary.)

ERNEST P. HOWELL REPORTED MISSING

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Howell, Baldwin, Miss., R-1, received word a few days ago from U. S. Marine Commandant that their son, Private First Class Ernest P. Howell, while in the line of duty was reported missing. It is hoped that word will soon be had from him personally that he is o. k.

To date several that have been reported missing have been heard from, this being only one of the things of war that affords such anxiety to parents and loved ones.

Ernest P. Howell is a nephew of one of The Vidette's correspondents, Mrs. Myrtle H. Hamilton.

ate in the approaching August primary. At the same time, I filed the required affidavits as manager of Mr. Eastland's campaign.

We have also formally opened our state headquarters at 116 Roach Street, across from the Tower Building, and we are at home to our many friends and supporters. We want them to come by and visit us and make themselves at home.

In the very near future, Mr. Eastland is to begin speaking over the state, and plans to visit every section. He will do his utmost to see personally as many voters as it is humanly possible for him to do.

We will conduct the campaign on a high plane. We will not indulge in personalities or political manipulations which would reflect improperly upon the high office involved in this race.

Mr. Eastland is the candidate of all the people, and with their support we are assured that victory is certain for us on August 25th.

I solicit the support of all the voters, and I am confident that we will be riding to victory with the winner.

SOLDIER FOR SENATOR CLUB ANNOUNCED

Roland B. Wall Campaign Manager Invites Membership

Inaugurating a new idea in Mississippi political races, Jim Cassidy of Brookhaven, state campaign manager for Roland B. Wall, today issued an invitation to the voters of the state to "Join the Roland B. Wall—Soldier for Senator" club.

The invitation gave Mississippians an opportunity to put their money and their vote on Roland B. Wall, "The Soldier Candidate" for the United States Senate from Mississippi, and asked them to "Join hand with 'Soldier-for-Senator' Wall, who spent two years in France with the AEF in World War number one, and help him fight now for Democracy in Mississippi." The invitation continued: "Do away with machine politics and dictatorship. He will not kneel to any dictator, foreign or native! Help make him Mississippi's two-fisted, non-political Senator."

In an advertising appearing in every newspaper in Mississippi, a membership coupon makes it easy for Mississippians to "Join the Soldier for Senator Club" and in joining, they authorize Campaign Manager Cassidy to "Kick politics out and to make Roland Wall our political, Soldier-Senator in this hour of crisis."

The invitation also stresses the fact that "Too little and too late is the result of pension-loving, X-gasoline-ration-card politicians" and closes with the Wall campaign slogan: "Send a Soldier to Senate."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Released Diplomats, Newspaper Men Tell Inside Stories of Axis Unrest; Armored AEF Arrives in Ireland; WPB Cancels War Plant Construction

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"Sorry, No Gas"—just a sign of the times in eastern seaboard states since gas rationing went into effect. A sharp curtailment in automobile travel is the direct result of Axis submarine activity against U. S. coastal shipping trade.

'INSIDE' STORIES: Of Axis Internees

Inside stories of conditions in Axis nations were related by diplomats and newspaper men who arrived in Lisbon, Portugal, after five months of internment in Germany and Italy. United States and Axis internees were exchanged in Lisbon.

Correspondents were unanimous in their belief that Germany will gamble everything on an all-out drive this spring. To meet this showdown, Hitler is reported to have prepared 300 army divisions. Of these, 210 divisions have been assigned to the Russian front.

Competent observers in Berlin predict that Germany must "shoot the works" this summer and that the fortunes of war will turn definitely against the Nazis unless the all-out drive is successful.

Hitler's declaration of war upon the United States was termed the biggest blunder of his career. The German people did not expect it—even after Japan attacked the United States. Germany's older generation remembered all too well that the U. S. helped decide World War I.

Italy's war against this country is exceedingly unpopular with the people, according to interned correspondents. The Italians dislike the Germans and care nothing for the Japanese.

Mussolini, too, is unpopular with his people. King Victor Emmanuel lost much of the respect that was his when war was declared in his name. But observers were agreed that a revolution is doomed to failure unless it has the support of the army. The army still is loyal to the throne.

CONSTRUCTION CUT: Production Stressed

Behind the War Production board's decision to cancel contracts for war plants which cannot be completed and in production by mid-1943 lies two major considerations:

A severe shortage of raw materials.

Belief that spring and summer developments may bring a turning point in the war.

Construction will be stepped up on facilities such as synthetic rubber and aviation gasoline plants and will be cut down on such projects as new steel plants.

Because of the raw material shortage, the WPB had decided to concentrate available supplies on arms and munitions production rather than on the plants in which they are manufactured.

Officials explained that the WPB has determined to produce 60,000 planes, 45,000 tanks, and eight million tons of shipping in 1942. They will deal with the increased program for 1943 when that time arrives.

AIRLINES: War Footing

At President Roosevelt's direction the war department placed domestic airlines on a wartime footing by ordering the transfer to the army air forces of a substantial proportion of available flight equipment for operation by army personnel; by having the airlines convert approximately 70 ships into cargo carriers which they will operate for the Air Service command; and by giving emergency military missions priority on the remaining 70 ships to be owned and operated by the airlines.

BRIGHT LIGHTS: And Shipping Losses

Because dim-out regulations in New York were held "unsatisfactory" by the army, drastic new regulations will affect the lives of the city's millions.

Acting with the approval of the army and navy, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia ordered a program which for the first time will screen all floodlighting in railroad yards, manufacturing plants, docks, shipyards and terminals.

RE-ENFORCEMENTS: Land in Ireland

Shipload upon shipload of United States soldiers, fully equipped for mechanical warfare, have arrived in Northern Ireland to bolster the already large American garrison there.

Enthusiasm was at high pitch in Britain. One military observer pointed out that the arrival of thousands of American soldiers in Ulster allows planning for offensive operations on the continent "on a scale of at least 20 divisions or 300,000 men."

The U. S. communique stated: "British Isles: The war department today announced the arrival of additional United States army troops. The number is substantially larger than previous contingents and includes tank units."

The debarkation was carried out swiftly and secretly. Secluded bases already had been prepared for the men.

RUSSIA: Kharkov and Kerch

For some time Hitler's objective on the southern flank of his eastern front had been clear. He wanted badly the oil that the Caucasian area could give him. His much-feared "spring offensive" shaped up that as the mud of Russia's Crimea began to dry.

With overwhelming numbers he swept the Russians before him on his march across the Kerch peninsula. Then from Berlin came the report that the fighting in this area had ended and that the Russian troops had been "annihilated." But Moscow even later reported that in the town of Kerch itself there was still street fighting and that the defenders were hanging tenaciously on to their foothold at the eastern tip of the Crimea.

It was near Kharkov, further north, though, that the Russians claimed their greatest successes. The Kerch peninsula might be lost to the Germans but Nazi defenses around Kharkov had taken a terrific pounding from the Soviet artillery, tanks, planes and infantry.

One report said that the Russians in a "new push" had taken 300 towns, slain 12,000 Nazis, captured 1,200 additional soldiers and had destroyed 400 tanks.

In the Kharkov battle, Russian Marshal Timoshenko seemed to have taken the Nazis by surprise. The Soviet high command reported that the Germans first fled in panic before the onslaught of Russian planes battering their lines at altitudes as low as 70 feet. Then the Nazis rallied and the fighting gained a new peak of ferocity.

RAISE: For the Shipbuilders

Payable in war bonds, a wage increase averaging eight cents an hour went to the workers in the major shipbuilding yards throughout the nation. This announcement was made after a 21-day conference in Chicago of private shipbuilders, union officials and government representatives. Five hundred thousand workers throughout the country were affected by the wage increase. President Roosevelt had requested the War Bond raise as an aid to checking inflation and at the same time allow shipbuilders to meet increased living costs.

Boom Towns Struggle With Labor Influx

War Industries Tax Normal Facilities in Smaller U. S. Cities.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

In the turbulent economic wake of conversion and war production, a thousand patriotic towns and villages anxiously seek answers today to a multitude of new problems concerned with accommodating Uncle Sam's mobile armies of war workers.

There isn't anything spectacular about these problems that are keeping village presidents up nights and putting furrows in the brows of town councils and boards. They're as commonplace as dishwater, hospital beds, school desks or fire engines. But their solution is very important indeed in the nation's fight to smash the Axis.

Populations Doubled.

Things aren't the way they were before Pearl Harbor in these thousand towns. All-out war production has turned scores of them literally overnight into 1942 versions of boom areas. Crossroads hamlets have had their populations doubled between one sunup and the next.

War boom towns in Illinois, Michigan, Alabama, Washington, Ohio, California, have had to figure and plan as they never did before to provide the most meager housing, transportation, health and educational facilities for in-migrants needed to man the new machines of war. Even large industrial centers have felt the pinch of providing decent accommodations on the home front for the new legions who are taking their places behind the men behind U. S. guns.

From 5,000,000 workers directly employed on war production as of last December 7, the number has risen to more than 8,500,000 today and minimum requirements by the end of 1942 are expected by federal officials to exceed 15,000,000.

American towns and villages are daily demonstrating that they are more than willing to do their part in the all-out effort to produce the tools for victory for the United Nations. But the doing often is beyond the means of an individual locality, and the problems are complex and many.

Serious Medical Problems.

In a Michigan town, medical authorities recently warned that an epidemic of tuberculosis was breeding in the very heart of the suburban factory district, 10 miles from a huge bomber plant. A report on overcrowding in the area stated that "more than 4,000 patients, 450 of them tubercular, are jammed into hospital space designed for 2,500." Officials pointed out that added to the danger from this source is a lack of suitable sanitary facilities for the mushroom community.

The authorities of an Illinois village suddenly awoke to the fact that many of their wells no longer reached the water table in that area, due to the emergency drilling of numerous other wells by war production plants surrounding the village site on three sides; a village in Minnesota found that the increased number of war workers and their families moving into the community necessitated the hiring of another teacher, a part-time janitor and the purchasing of new supplies of books and other equipment.

All-out war production has brought living conditions such as these in a midwestern town to hundreds of communities from coast to coast. Many trailer communities lack proper sanitary facilities and a large number of them try to accommodate too many trailers for the space.

'Top-Kicks' Trained in Eight-Week School

WASHINGTON.—A school which prepares soldiers for the exacting job of top sergeant in the American army has won its chevrons at the Signal Corps Replacement Training center at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Within an eight-week period, this school transforms soldiers into "top-kicks" able to cope with the endlessly varied problems of administration, supply, and company leadership which will face them in the

'Grand Hotel'—1942 Emergency Model

Because of insufficient living accommodations, these weary workers in a small Virginia town are forced to sleep around the stove of a general store. This condition exists in many other crowded defense areas.

In a Pennsylvania town, jammed with war workers, a pumper and fire fighting equipment were required immediately to reduce the hazard of a possible general conflagration; a Kentucky hamlet had to arrange for an extension of its sewerage facilities or suffer the consequences; a Colorado town, a Wisconsin city, and a Texas county were confronted with the need for new schools at once.

The patriotism and morale of these workers are high, but so are their American standards of living. For their families, these war workers ask for livable quarters, good water and sanitary facilities; there must be classrooms for their children, recreation, beds in hospitals for them when they fall sick.

Congress has recognized both the needs of the mobile armies engaged in war production, and the problems of the localities affected through the enactment of the Amended Lanham act. In the hands of the Federal Works agency the legislators have placed a great part of the job of keeping ahead of the vast community requirements of these industrial legions of Joneses, Cohens, Murphys and Kozlowskis.

Title 2 of the Amended Lanham act provides that in any area or locality where an acute shortage of public works or equipment for public works necessary to the health, safety or welfare of persons engaged in national defense exists or impends, FWA is authorized, with the approval of the President, to relieve such shortage. This authorization is conditioned on evidence that the necessary works or services could not "otherwise be obtained when needed, or could not be provided without the imposition of an increased excessive tax burden, or an unusual or excessive increase in the debt limit of the taxing or borrowing authority."

Need for Construction.

Assistant FWA Administrator Baird Snyder, acting for Administrator Philip B. Fleming, has pointed out that: "Inseparable from the lives of modern industrial workers and their families—for transportation, education, health and recreation—are prosaic roads, sewers, schools, hospitals and many other types of public construction."

War as an industrial process, says Mr. Snyder, means that community facilities have to be built not only to accommodate expanded armed forces, but to take care of the mobile and increasingly numerous armies of war workers.

Without such construction, those who have studied the problem declare, the efficiency of industry would be seriously impaired and labor would float from one town to another in fruitless search for decent living conditions. In the last four months, FWA has quickened the pace of work in response to imperative war needs. Today, throughout the nation, this federal agency is building or ready to build all the war works that can be provided with $300,000,000 worth of federal funds plus whatever local contributions are available.

A great deal of red tape has been cut in FWA since war was declared. The Man with the shears in the Great Lakes region and Middle West, for instance, is Markley Shaw, former assistant to the director of the old FWA defense housing division, who casts as personal representative of the administrator.

Full-Scale Wartime Basis.

"Public works are now being handled on a full-scale wartime basis," explained Mr. Shaw, whose headquarters are in Chicago. "My instructions are to let nothing stand in the way of prompt, efficient development of war projects. Under new regulations no federal funds will be allotted for the construction of a permanent building under the war public works program, if a temporary or semi-permanent one will suffice. This applies even though the applicant proposes to contribute the full amount of the difference."

"Except where a structure is an addition to an existing facility, negotiations will be opened on the basis of simplified standard plans of the Federal Works agency. Elimination of all building material beyond absolute necessity in war public works construction recently has been ordered throughout the nation, and this step is expected materially to reduce the use of critical war materials as well as to free man-hours of labor for other war production."

Assistant Administrator Snyder has listed the following types of projects directly attributable to war activities as eligible for federal allotment of funds: Schools, hospitals, health centers, detention hospitals, fire department buildings and certain equipment except radio equipment, recreation buildings, water and sewer facilities, and maintenance and operation of schools and hospitals where necessary.

In recent months, the Federal Works agency has built or contracted to build scores of community facilities in every section of the nation where production wheels turn. The U. S. Public Health Service, in co-operation with the state departments of health, is intensifying the application of general health plans in strategic localities.

Co-operating in the general plan to assist individual localities and provide living facilities for war workers is the National Housing agency, which is building thousands of houses and dormitories.

THE NATIONAL JOY SMOKE

Washington, D. C.
WON'T BE LONG NOW
Macon Reed, ex-Washington newsman, now a private in the army, has this to say about the new military machines which Uncle Sam is so swiftly whipping into shape:
"How is it to be in the army? There is a breath-taking exhilaration in swinging across a parade ground and seeing and feeling the other columns moving in the effortless, smooth, free march step of the American army—marching, marching, marching to heaven knows where. At such a moment, and only at such a moment, one gets a flash perception of the true strength of America, a boundless sweep of irresistible power—and I chuckle to myself and think 'What is everybody in Washington in such a fret and worry about?' Mandalay? Lashio? Trifles, boys, mere trifles. We heard the news of their fall with a yawn and got on with our work. Just wait till we get started. It won't be long now!"

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER THE WAR?
At six one morning, Henry Wallace woke up and began thinking about the speech he was going to make in New York. Ideas kept tumbling into his mind. Quietly, so as not to disturb the dictaphone, he reached for the dictaphone and began speaking into it.
He dictated to the length of one cylinder. Mrs. Wallace still slept.
Next morning, he woke again at six, and did the same thing. On the third morning, he woke at 3:30. This time, he dictated the remainder of the speech, which ran to 3,000 words. Mrs. Wallace slept on.
The vice president still had two weeks to spare before the speaking engagement, but the thoughts had been simmering in his mind, and he wanted to get them down. He wanted to say—not in words hurriedly thrown together on the way to New York—what he felt about fighting the war to a finish, then making a peace that will stick.

People's Revolution.
The general applause to that speech is still reverberating in Washington. Because it was one of the most important speeches of the war. Titled, "The Price of Free World Victory," it was a forecast of world freedom after victory.
Wallace has turned out more words than any other member of the Roosevelt family, including the President. But none of his words have been more significant than this speech before the Free World association in which he said: "Everywhere the common people are on the march."

It included words of dire warning to Hitler, and also words full of meaning to the future of imperialists, such as: "No nation will have the God-given right to exploit other nations." "The march of freedom of the past 150 years has been a long-drawn-out people's revolution."
But especially significant were the words: "Those who write the peace must think of the whole world. There can be no privileged peoples."

ENEMY ALIENS
Some significant things are going on behind-the-scenes in the justice department. With the savagery of a commando attack, Attorney General Biddle has now launched an offensive against all enemy agents in the U. S. A., has given the green light to Big G-Man Hoover to move wherever he wants.

This came after Biddle had been prodded by the White House for dawdling. Now, however, he has gathered large dossiers of sensational and incontestable evidence, and it looks as if several U. S. Fascists would end up behind the bars.
Biggest problem Biddle now faces is German and Italian nationals along the Atlantic seaboard. Army brasshats have been demanding that everyone born in Germany or Italy and still unnaturalized be moved west of the Allegheny mountains. However, this would mean a mass trek numbering perhaps a million. And along the Pacific coast, even the movement of 100,000 Japanese proved a terrific headache.

Therefore Biddle is working on the policy of picking out the dangerous groups among Germans and Italians, but leaving those whose loyalty seems OK. Many of them are oldsters who left Europe before the days of dictators. Many even have sons in the U. S. army. However, the job of sorting the loyal from the disloyal is going to be one of the toughest jobs the justice department ever faced.

MERRY-GO-ROUND
U. S. farmers are doing so well that government credit agencies report taking in more money in mortgage payments than they are lending out. Also, many farmers are building up reserve funds against debts in the post-war period.
The marine corps has quietly abandoned its high-powered drive to recruit star athletes. Reason: Many of them didn't measure up to the high physical standards required of marines; had flat feet, bad knees, enlarged hearts.

THE HONEYMOON

By JOSEPH McCORD

W.N.U. Service

THE STORY SO FAR: Larry Cutter startled pretty Jacqueline (Jack) Anthony, public stenographer at the Hotel Rayne, by telling her she can realize her globe-trotting ambitions by marrying him. Before their marriage, they

When Virgie Blake returned after her illness, she made prompt discovery of Larry's return and plied Jacqueline with eager questions. Receiving little information or encouragement, she had not reverted to the subject again.
But today, when Jacqueline saw her bearing down excitedly on the office, she knew instinctively what her friend was going to talk about and prepared to meet it with a show of indifference.

Virgie closed the door behind her and bent over the desk. Her black eyes were wide, her red lips parted. "My dear!" she burst out in a stage whisper. "Guess what?"
"I'm sure I don't know," Jacqueline ventured casually.
"Mrs. Cutter's here!"

This was too much for Jacqueline's composure. Her own eyes widened. She gave a little gasp.

"Who?"
"Mrs. Cutter . . . the old ball and chain herself! And, of all things . . . She's a dizzy blonde! You could have knocked me over!"

"But . . . but how do you know?" Larry's wife managed with a supreme effort.

"Listen, dearie. I saw them just now on the mezzanine. And that isn't all. I got in on an old-time family battle! Was she telling him where to head in? I'll say she was. I heard her tell him she was fed up with everything. She looked it, too! She's that sort of a dame. Can you feature it?"

"Not quite," was the truthful answer.

"Well . . ." Virgie straightened up. She wished that she might add more details, but none suggested themselves. Then she noticed Jacqueline sitting motionless, eyes downcast, staring at the keyboard of her typewriter. Virgie's eyes narrowed shrewdly.

"Jack," she began in a low voice, "that didn't hit you, did it?"
"Of course not." The stenographer's hand fumbled in the open desk for a sheet of paper. Mechanically she inserted it into the machine. If only Virgie would leave her.

Instead, Miss Blake's hand came out and rested lightly on a small shoulder.

"Sorry, dear. That's me every time. Forget it."
"It's all right," Jacqueline's smile proved it.

As Virgie left the office, the stenographer's fingers tapped swiftly on the keys, faltered. Her hands dropped into her lap. The words she had written were blurred. The whole world seemed rocking crazily.

Virgie was wrong. She had to be, unless . . . Oh, no. She was wrong! That couldn't have been Larry's wife.

"I'm Larry's wife," Jacqueline found herself whispering. She could not have told why, but she knew that she was clinging to that. Clinging desperately. For the first time. But . . . there was an insistent pounding in her ears. Larry's own words. "You're the only woman. Only woman . . . Only woman."

But she wasn't the only woman. Jacqueline shivered slightly. There was another woman. With Larry now. Come to find him, to quarrel with him . . . in public.
"A dizzy blonde."

When Larry Cutter stopped at Jacqueline's office door the next afternoon, it needed but one glance from those dark blue eyes to confirm his worst fears.

That cigar woman had seen and reported. No telling what kind of story she had concocted. And the worst of it was, he could not utter a word in his own defense. Nothing to do but take it. He swallowed an oath and walked into the little room with as genuine a smile as he could muster.

"Well, Miss Anthony, I'm checking out." He felt that the expression was singularly appropriate. "Bag and baggage."

Jacqueline looked at him and said nothing.

"Jack . . ." he exclaimed impulsively, then got himself in hand. "I guess there's nothing to say this time . . . except good-by."

"Good-by, Mr. Cutter."

Larry hesitated, then turned on his heel and left.

Jacqueline never knew how she managed to get through the balance of the afternoon. There were few customers and her head ached so that she could not read. She had that she could not read. She had that she could not read. There a vacant smile on her face. There was but one thing she wanted . . . a chance to go home. To throw herself down on the bed and let the tears come.

Jacqueline was terribly anxious to leave the office that night, but just as she was preparing to go, Lieutenant Staples walked in the door. He helped himself to a seat and grinned amiably at his hostess.

"Want to hear a good joke, Miss Anthony?"

"I'd love to," Jacqueline placed her hand to her lips to assure herself that the smile was still there, self that the smile was still there. This one's on me. You know signed a contract providing that Jacqueline may continue her present mode of living for six months, after which she could tear up the contract. Larry offered no explanation when she warned that a detective was watching him.

that fellow Cutter we were talking about one day?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, early this afternoon I wandered into the bar here. I had another guy on my mind, another racket entirely. I was sizing up the mob along the mahogany when somebody taps me on the shoulder. It was young Cutter."

"Was it?"

"No less. He gives me a pleasant smile. 'Looking for me, were you?' he asks. 'I tried to act dumber than usual and tells him he's got the wrong number. I don't know him. 'Says you,' he laughs. 'You been tagging after me pretty steady, Lieutenant. So I thought maybe I could save you some trouble. I'm pulling out today for good. You might pass the word along anywhere it'll do you some good.' Cool, wasn't he?"

"Very."

"And all the time, I thought I was doing a nice job of playin' shadow."

Jacqueline nodded vacantly. Her heart skipped a beat as Staples paused.

"That sure was a good one on me," the detective continued. "I knew you'd get a smile out of it, too. Well, I guess he's gone, all right. So's my weekly retainer. They told me at the garage he'd been in there asking questions about the roads to Jacqueline was thinking of the movie she went to see . . . on her wedding day.

the Windy City. But I'm not interested. Well, so long."

Jacqueline found herself breathing again.

After her coveted spell of weeping, she forced herself to take stock of the situation. For once there was no momentous decision to make. Larry was gone. Vince was gone. She was back where she had started.

Perhaps fate had played enough with her.

The days dragged along wearily, each one bringing the same routine. There was but one bright spot . . . business seemed to be picking up. If the spurt lasted, there was a hope for Jacqueline that it would not be too long before she could square her final account with Larry. Not quite the final one, either.

She dreaded that. Not because of the idea of that last, and legal, separation, but the certainty that it could not be accomplished without the usual legal formalities and publicity. The neighbor state might let people into wedlock without any fanfare of trumpets, but it was too much to hope that the dissolving process would be like that. What would it be? Charges of desertion, incompatibility . . . or worse? Time enough to worry over that. The unknown blonde, perhaps.

Vince wrote occasionally from the farm. His letters were like himself, vague and erratic.

Jacqueline was given to understand that he was feeling very well now, and was hard at work. His enthusiasm in the new invention had not lagged, apparently. He said nothing about working for Larry, save that the latter had insisted he learn how to drive the roadster. Vince liked that. He was becoming an accomplished chauffeur, he admitted.

And then, one September day, Vincent Anthony strolled into the lobby of the Rayne.

Jacqueline scarcely recognized her father when she discovered him smiling at her from the doorway. He looked so much better than when she last saw him. His grizzly hair and small moustache were neatly trimmed. He wore a natty blue suit and carried a gray hat obviously new, in his hand. A healthy tan browned his cheeks.

"Why, Vince! Come in!" his daughter laughed . . . for the first time in weeks, it seemed to her. "I scarcely know you. I thought you were one of my millionaire customers!"

When her father, Vince Anthony, became ill, Larry invited him into the country. One afternoon Larry had a long talk in the hotel lobby with a woman in his employ.

Now continue with the story.

Vince grinned almost sheepishly and helped himself to a chair.

"I've been fixing up a little," he admitted. "About time."

"But where did you come from? I'm so thrilled I hardly know what to say. You're going to stay for a while, aren't you?"

"I came down from the farm," Vince admitted.

"Oh," Jacqueline's smile faded. It brought everything back.

"Yes, I had to come down on business for Larry."

"How is . . . Larry?" She had to ask that.

"I don't know. He's been sticking pretty close to the place, but he don't act the way he used to. He's got something on his mind . . . always brooding. He worries me. I bet he's lost about fifteen pounds. Maybe you've noticed it."

"I haven't seen him, Vince."

"No? I rather figured he'd been down here on some of his trips. Though he didn't say so, and I never asked. Did you have a quarrel with him, Skipper?"

"Of course not."

"I didn't know. He's coming down here late tonight sometime. I'm going to meet him."

"But you're not going right back, are you?"

"Not sure." Vince looked uncomfortable. He acted as if he had said rather more than he intended.

"Then you'll have dinner with me. We'll eat down in the cafeteria so we won't have to waste time getting a meal."

After he had gone Jacqueline realized for the first time how she had missed him. It seemed so good to see him again. And he looked so well. If only he wouldn't insist upon talking about Larry too much. It still hurt . . . almost like seeing him.

And Larry was coming to the city tonight!

CHAPTER XII

The news that Larry was returning to the city that night left Jacqueline vaguely uneasy. What was he going to do . . . and Vince? Vince had looked so ill at ease after he admitted he was to meet Larry late at night.

She would try to find out something about that before the evening was over. Enough to assure herself that everything was all right as far as Vince was concerned.

It was nearly dinnertime before Vince returned to the hotel. He was in a talkative mood, but Jacqueline could not escape from a growing conviction that he was attempting to keep their conversation in his own hands to a great extent. Several times she referred to his trip down to the city and, very promptly, he changed the topic.

Vince was more than willing to speak of his invention. But with an air of delighted secrecy.

"Shall we walk out to the apartment?" she asked when they had finished their dinner. "It is not very far."

Vince hesitated. "I don't know. We've got plenty of time. What do you say to a movie? I haven't seen one I don't know when."

"Whatever you like, dear. There are several houses near here."

Jacqueline was thinking of the movie she went to see . . . on her wedding day. She wanted to go then to avoid conversation with Larry. She wondered if Vince, possibly, was not using the same device. Perhaps not.

But her vague discomfort increased when her father selected a film of the gangster type. It proved to deal with the activities of a super sleuth, matching his cunning against the underworld. To Jacqueline, it was unpleasantly suggestive and she tried to pay as little attention to it as possible.

There was a time when Jacqueline herself would have absorbed such perils with shameless interest, but not tonight. She and Vince might have traded places, in a way. He seemed so utterly irresponsible now, in need of guidance. And she never had felt so old.

Later, in the Courtland street apartment, Vince's glances wandered to the little clock on the mantelpiece.

Finally, when he buttoned his coat with a suggestive air, the girl could endure her suspense no longer. She must learn something about this night's excursion before she allowed Vince to get away from her.

"What time is your appointment with Larry?" she asked, trying to make the tone of her voice casual.

"Oh . . . late."

"How late?"

"Well, I don't have to meet him until about twelve. But I thought I'd start a little early, you know."

"Where are you going to meet him?"

"In a little restaurant where he eats sometimes." Vince was becoming more and more uncomfortable under this direct examination.

THOUGHTS ON THE MINUTE MAN
The Minute Man was a minute-man regardless of hours.

He was ready to fight any minute and nothing less than five years was considered over-time.

He came into being at Bunker Hill (which was not a golf course) and at Lexington (which was not a sedan).

He would have thought he was being mollycoddled if all he had been asked to give up was comfortable transportation and the two lumps of sugar in his coffee.

The Minute Man would have thought himself a Five-Minute Egg if he felt it necessary for his government to mention his war obligations every time there was any mention of indigestion tablets, beer, whisky, cigars and toothpastes.

Rationing was such a self-cultivated habit with him, even in time of peace, that in time of war he regarded it as impeding the national effort if he admitted he had an appetite for fresh meat.

The Minute Man wasn't so called because he watched the minute hand on a clock; when his country was in peril he didn't even watch the hour hand!

The one tool he kept at hand at all times was his rifle, and he was his own night and day shift.

His life was so hazardous that he thought saving his scalp was more important than saving money; and he would have been a little sickened by the thought that he would be recorded as doing his part if he merely bought war bonds.

The Minute Man thought the minutes important. And the only price he fixed on them was in terms of life and death.

In time of war he thought his rights fully protected if, at the end of every minute, he still had his gun and could replenish his powder.

The Minute Man never dreamed of 30-minute radio programs to arouse his patriotism; to have listened to a 15-minute air appeal to his Americanism every few hours would have made him feel insulted.

The Minute Man wanted his news straight and his battle reports undiluted; and the one thing his government never had to ask was, "Shall we tell him now or do you think it would upset him?"

The Minute Man was a man every minute.

He won against incredible odds after years of heroism.

He made secure a great nation for nearly two centuries.

MIKE AND MEYER
No leering, fetid jests did they employ—
They used no jokes from smoking room or pit.

And yet down through the years they brought us joy
By cleverness and decency and wit.

Theirs was no search for situations vile—

No gags dug from the sewers of Broadway—

Clean, wholesome comedy, such was their style
And they would have been out of place today.

Farewell to Mike, farewell to Meyer, too!
To them we bow and gladly give great thanks,

For they were comics to traditions true,
Who never dug for laughs beneath wet planks!

states that Mississippi has attained her goal in every phase of the Food-for-Freedom Program with one exception, that of the production of peanuts.

Mississippians everywhere should be proud of the efforts and accomplishments of more than 80,000 boys and girls who are taking an active part in every phase of the Food-for-Freedom Program, which includes the increase of farm commodities, victory gardens, repair of farm machinery, increase of farm labor, purchase of bonds and stamps, collection of scrap, canning and preserv-

WOOD—LOMENICK

Sunday afternoon, May 24th at 2:00 in the Methodist Church a beautiful wedding was solemnized in the presence of a host of relatives and close friends.

Miss Urcle Wood became the bride of Mr. Clarence Lomenick in a most impressive ceremony said by Rev. E. G. Mohler.

Miss Barbara Johnston presided at the organ, playing "Ave Maria," after which she accompanied Miss Louise Smith as she sang I Love You Truly.

Under the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the bride entered with her sister, Miss Clara Wood. She was attired in a blue-bird blue two-piece suit of Miami cloth, military braid trimmings, and gold necklace worn by her mother in her wedding twenty-seven years ago. Her heart-shaped netite bonnett was white lace with dainty veil of blue, with white suede gloves and shoes. Her corsage was white carnations with baby breath and fern. She carried a white leather Bible decorated with white satin ribbon knotted to hold valley lillies.

Miss Clara Wood, the maid of honor, wore an oyster white and turf tan spun linen. Her corsage was of bronze gladiolas and fern. Miss Johnston wore white chiffon with corsage of sweet peas. Miss Smith wore navy triple sheer with corsage of sweet peas. The bride's mother, Mrs. C. F. Wood, wore a frock of R.A.F. blue with accessories of white.

The groom entered from the vestry with his best man, Mr. Armstead Haines.

The organist used Schubert's Recessional and Bagner's March. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for the Gulf Coast. They will be at home in Jackson, Miss., after June 1st.

Mr. Lomenick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lomenick of Iuka. He is employed with the Shelby Electric Co., Jackson.

Miss Wood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wood of Iuka. She has been employed as secretary to the County Superintendent of Education.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 31

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15:1-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not my will, but thine, be done.—Luke 22:42.

Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the night between Thursday and Friday as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday.

The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him.

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14:32-34).

This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. But now His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins.

As Krummacker says: "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he filled the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5).

We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

Pilate was convinced of His innocence, but because of the pressure by Jewish leaders he was in a difficult position. He was afraid to follow his convictions, feeling that it was more expedient to yield to the will of the populace. So he lost his great opportunity to write his name large among the heroes of history.

Many there are who follow in Pilate's steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fearing the comments of friends or the possible loss of earthly advantage, they let Him be crucified afresh by their unbelief.

The Jewish leaders and those whom they had misled hated Jesus with a malicious hatred which made them relentless in their determination to destroy Him. Now they had their quarry at bay and they were determined to close in for "the kill."

They have their present day counterpart in those who have so long rejected Christ that they have become embittered against Him.

Refreshments for the Class of '42!
(See Recipes Below.)

Commencement Time

There's a last-minute flurry of hair brushing and straightening of ties as Jane and Billy get ready for their graduation exercises. Yes, this is really the year the children are getting through with school. It's hard to believe, isn't it? It seems like just yesterday that they started school!

Your role is that of sitting back and beaming at their accomplishments, but, just as important, providing the children with a party and refreshments after commencement.

Simplest way of taking care of refreshments is setting up a table in the porch or dining room. Then fill this with assorted breads and cold cuts, add a few relishes for good measure, and you have the makings of a successful party. The informality of this setting will please the children, and at the same time relieve you of extra serving. Let the children help themselves and take their own time about it, for there will be plenty of conversation to go with refreshment time.

Provide white, whole wheat and rye bread so there will be variety from which to choose. It's smart to have this already sliced for the youngsters and it looks better on the table.

The meat platter provides an attractive assortment of sandwich filler. Arrange in clockwise fashion, the following: chicken pattie, cooked tongue, meat loaf and liverwurst. You can let the imagination of your guests run freely with making their own sandwiches, but in case they run out of ideas, you might suggest some of these:

Chicken pattie and boiled ham with sweet pickle relish and lettuce on whole wheat bread.
Meat loaf with tomato ketchup on white bread.
Liverwurst and chicken loaf on whole wheat bread.
Tongue and sliced cucumbers with horseradish and mustard on rye bread.

Balance the sandwich spread with a salad of some kind. If the youngsters are boys, they will go for slices of tomato on lettuce. For girls or a mixed group, a molded fruit salad will be tops:

Pineapple Carrot Salad Ring. (Serves 6 to 8)

1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup water
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup sliced pineapple
4 to 5 grated carrots (raw)
Lettuce or endive
Mayonnaise or french dressing
Heat water and pour over gelatin. Add cold pineapple juice and set aside to cool. Add grated carrot and pineapple cut in tidbits. Place in individual molds or a large ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Let jelly, then turn out on a bed of crisp lettuce or endive, and serve with dressing. If a large mold

Lynn Says:

Did you know that it is perfectly proper to wash the American flag? Of course, you know it is disrespectful to display a badly soiled one, but perhaps you were a bit worried about trying to wash it.

A recent survey made by professional laundries reveals that flags made of woolen material should be washed and rinsed as other woollens: squeeze the flag through rich suds whipped up with a mild soap and warm, softened water of not more than 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Rinse in two or three changes of lukewarm, soft water.

Cotton flags should be rubbed lightly, but only lukewarm soft water should be used for the suds. Both wool and cotton flags should be air-dried.

Textile experts at professional laundries also point out that flags raised outdoors naturally deteriorate more quickly than those displayed indoors. If a flag launders well, its service period is increased with frequent washing.

This Week's Menu

Commencement Refreshments

*Recipes Given

is used, the outside may be garnished with fruit such as sliced oranges, pineapple, and apricots.

No party is complete without confections of some kind because there are moments when you actually want to nibble on something sweet. Here is a recipe featuring dried fruits noted for their high sugar content. They're easy to fix and full of taste.

*Fruit Dreams. (Makes 60 squares)

1 14-ounce package pitted dates
1/4 pound nutmeats
1/4 pound figs
1/4 pound apricots
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon orange juice

Put dates, nutmeats, figs and apricots through the meat grinder. Knead orange rind and juice into the mixture. Roll with a rolling pin into a square sheet 1/4 inch thick. Cut in squares and dip into powdered sugar.

If your sugar ration does not extend to making cool drinks with sugar, here is a lemonade made with honey. To make a really "partified" drink, add a scoop of lemon, orange, raspberry or pineapple sherbet for the lemonade. Use carbonated water instead of plain and garnish with berries or fresh cherries.

*Honey Lemonade. (Makes 1 serving)

1 lemon
1 to 3 tablespoons honey
1 cup water
Extract the juice from the lemon and add the honey. To this add cold water and ice to chill. Serve this in individual glasses with a slice of lemon on the rim of each glass. Or, if you prefer using a punch bowl, set the drink in that (increasing the recipe to take care of as many people as you are having), and let blobs of sherbet float on top of the lemonade.

Cake 'n' ice cream have high rating among the younger set, so for this occasion I would suggest the following cake:

*Chocolate Covered Sugarless Cake.
2 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
2 1/4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs, unbeaten
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream shortening with orange rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add 1/4 of the flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well after at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch pans in a moderate (375-degree) oven 30 minutes or until done. Cover with:

Chocolate Chip Frosting.

Place cake layers on a baking sheet, having one layer top side down. Cover tops with semi-sweet chocolate chips, using 2 packages. Heat in a moderate (350-degree) oven 6 minutes or until chips are just softened. (The cake may be frosted while warm. Heat only 3 minutes.) Remove from oven. Spread softened chips over bottom layer, letting chocolate run down sides. Arrange top layer and spread as before. Then spread sides evenly.

Farm Topics

Farm Acreage Yield Increase Is Needed

Conservation of Soil Must Still Be Practiced

Greater emphasis on increasing yields to the acre to meet wartime production goals is urged by the wartime committee on conservation at the New York state college of agriculture.

This is recommended in place of expanding tilled land acreage "which should be the last resort," the committee said. Other recommendations include:

Any necessary expansion of acreage for clean-tilled crops should be first on land least subject to soil and water losses.

All agricultural leaders and workers should encourage and help farmers to plant all sloping land on the contour.

Greater use should be made of existing demonstration farms in connection with small community meetings and to show results of various crop practices.

Efforts should be made to have all new sloping orchards and vineyards planted on the contour.

A rough, trashy tillage type of cultivation should be encouraged in sod orchards which will be broken as a source of nitrogen.

Farmers should be encouraged to practice conservation to prevent a recurrence of the tremendous waste of soil resources that occurred in World War I.

The committee making these recommendations consists of agronomists, economists, pomologists, agricultural engineers, and soil conservationists at the college.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By FLORENCE C. WEED

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Sugar Beets

Napoleon might be called the father of the sugar beet industry since he fostered the research by which chemists learned how to extract sugar from beets. In our western states, it is an important cash crop, valued at 63 million dollars annually.

The chief product is refined beet sugar which competes with cane sugar. This infant beet sugar industry has received some government protection through the Sugar Act of 1937 which requires that 23 per cent of our national requirement of sugar shall be the beet sugar variety.

By-products of the industry have not been widely developed. Wet beet pulp from the factories is converted into animal feed and the green beet tops are fed to livestock.

Beet molasses is not palatable as cane molasses is, so it is subjected to the "Steffen process" which recovers a great part of the sugar with the aid of finely ground lime. Molasses which has not been treated, is sold for cattle feed and for the manufacture of yeast and alcohol. Experiments are soon to be made to find ways of utilizing beet pulp as a base in fermentation industries and as a source of pectin and some other acids.

The main beet-producing states in order of their importance are Colorado, California, Nebraska, Michigan, Utah, Wyoming and Montana. Midwest states which have some beet-growing sections are Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and North and South Dakota.

About 80 factories are being operated to produce the 1,500,000 tons of beet sugar used in this country.

Roof Laying Faults

Faults in laying metal roofs and use of improper paints to protect them after being laid will cause trouble or unnecessary expense later on farm buildings.

Many metal roofs on farm buildings are laid over slats. G. R. Shier, specialist in agricultural engineering, Ohio State university, says that only corrugated metal has enough stiffness to be laid over slats without courting trouble. Other metal roofing should be placed over solid sheathing.

All types of metal roofing should be nailed every eight inches along the side lap even when the spacing of the sheets makes it necessary to insert short strips to provide places for nailing. It is almost impossible to lay metal roofs which will not leak on nearly flat-topped sheds attached to barns.

Tree Tobacco Insecticide

The possibility that tree tobacco, now a worthless weed in the arid sections of Mexico and southwestern United States, may become a valuable cash crop is seen by United States scientists who have extracted from it anabasine, a valuable insecticide. The product was not discovered in the tree-tobacco plant until 1935, although it had been produced synthetically and found in an Asiatic plant six years earlier than the first test in the U. S.

The problem of what to send a service man has been solved by the men themselves. Tobacco tops the list of gifts service men prefer from the folks back home, according to numerous surveys. If you have a friend or relative in the armed forces—Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard—who smokes a pipe, or rolls his own, a pound of his favorite tobacco is very much in order. A big favorite with many service men is Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco. Local dealers now are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for the men in the service.—Adv.

Navy School at G.E.

Just one evidence of the cooperation between the armed services and our vast industrial army—a school for submarine electricians conducted at one General Electric factory.

1. Electricity is vital to the running of every submarine. It does an amazing variety of important jobs, from turning the propeller to cooking the coffee.

2. For that reason, there must be well-trained electricians on every underwater craft. At this school, Navy electricians attend classes taught by G-E engineers.

3. and go out into the shops where they watch workmen construct the same kind of electric equipment that will some day be put in their charge.

4. This is but one proof of the thorough training which the U.S. Navy gives its men, so that the vital equipment of war will always be ready for action.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

USO REPORTS ON PAST YEAR'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Did An Outstanding Emergency Service

How the USO has spent and is spending the $14,365,161.31 contributed to its 1941 campaign by the American people is told in reports now in the mails to more than 5,000 United Service Organizations, Inc. local committees throughout the country.

In a "Report to Our Friends," signed by six of its national leaders, USO tells what it has done to carry out its original program. The statement points out that USO's program "was designed to serve the spiritual, recreational, welfare and social needs of the men and women in the armed forces and the camp areas, and, in overburdened communities, of workers in vital war industries, particularly women and girls."

In doing this job, the report says, USO has added to its club activities six important services requested by the War and Navy Departments which were in neither the original program nor the budget.

Mississippi's USO War Fund Campaign begins May 11th. Every citizen will be given an opportunity to help USO carry on its vital and splendid work among the boys in uniform. Contact your local USO committee, offer your services and your money to this essential wartime effort.

In reporting on USO's performance, it is pointed out that USO now has 407 clubhouses and 163 other smaller units in operation in contrast to the 339 service clubs called for in its original program.

"These 570 units were located in 257 communities in 43 states within our continental limits," the report says. "In sub-arctic Alaska and in the great sub-tropics are from Hawaii through the Panama Canal and the Caribbean bases to Bermuda, USO is operating 10 club houses and foresees substantial future need."

It is noted that the need for USO service was so urgent that its leaders were unwilling to wait for the government to erect buildings or for the public to provide funds to meet the emergency. Before a dollar was raised USO was in operation and expanding in rented, borrowed and donated quarters. The USO now, however, has 137 clubs operating in government-built quarters and 70 more are being constructed by the government.

WOMEN HAVE VITAL USO JOB

The United Service Organizations (USO) today announce appointment of Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, who served as Chairman of the New York Women's Division of United China Relief, as National Vice-Chairman for USO's second national campaign, beginning May 11, and Chairman of the National Women's Committee.

Mississippi's USO War Fund Campaign, beginning May 11, to reach a $130,000 quota finds four Mississippi women on the State USO Executive Committee. They will enlist thousands of additional women in Mississippi's USO Campaign. They are: Mrs. Tom Bailey, Meridian; Mrs. J. K. Avent, Grenada; Mrs. A. B. Butts, Oxford; and Miss Mary Francis Lacey, Jackson. In addition, two of the state's campaign districts are proud to have women chairmen.

The appointment was made by Prescott S. Bush, national campaign chairman, at the USO national headquarters in the Empire State Building.

"USO is fortunate in securing the trained leadership of Mrs. Moore," Mr. Bush said today. "She will help organize American women in some 6,000 communities. These groups will raise the funds needed to continue the recreational and morale-supporting service being given America's fighting men and the forces behind the lines in 257 cities and towns in the United States, its territorial possessions and island bases."

DRIED MILK SHORTAGE LOOMS

Scientists Have Substitute That's Better.

With dried skim milk becoming increasingly hard to get, where are poultry and livestock feed manufacturers to obtain ample flavin (Vitamin G) for their rations?

It is universally recognized that flavin (Vitamin G) is essential for growing chicks and animals, and for the feeding of unhatched and unborn young. It has been shown that hens fed rations low in this essential substance lay eggs that hatch poorly. Chicks fed a starter entirely lacking in flavin (Vitamin G) develop a crow-headed appearance. Young chicks and animals fed rations low in this vitamin grow slowly.

Manufacturers Need Vitamin G

But where are feed manufacturers to obtain the amount of flavin (Vitamin G) they need for their feeds? Ingredients such as the grains, grain by-products, meat scraps, and fish meal are relatively low in flavin (Vitamin G). Alfalfa leaf meal, both the sun-cured and the dehydrated, contains a suitable amount of flavin (Vitamin G), but its overuse runs up the fibre content. What feed manufacturers want is a concentrated source of flavin (Vitamin G) low in fibre.

American Scientists Were Prepared

It almost seems that American scientists had an intuition that our farmers would some day urgently need a flavin (Vitamin G) concentrate to replace milk by-products for their rations. For they have already made possible a concentrated Vitamin G source low in fibre, that is five times more potent in Vitamin G than either dried skim milk or dried buttermilk, called Puri-Flave. Manufacturers using this ingredient have little to fear from the shortage of dried milk products. Their customers are insured against disappointments that come from feeding rations deficient in flavin (Vitamin G).

MERIT AWARDS GIVEN BY F. S. A.

Soldiers on the farm front, whose plows are playing an important part in the War of Survival, will be given merit awards by the Farm Security Administration for distinguished service in the Food-For-Freedom campaign, Hugh T. Ferrell, FSA Supervisor, said.

Certificates will be awarded low-income farm families working with Farm Security when they have reached the Food-For-Freedom goals set up in the 1942 farm and home plans. Presentation of the awards will be made this fall.

"To reach the Food-For-Freedom goals, the farm families will find it necessary to make every hour and every acre produce the largest possible amount of food and fiber," Mr. Ferrell pointed out. "The families have set high goals when one considers their handicaps. The awards will be the Department of Agriculture's recognition for service under difficulty."

The merit award is an impressive certificate, signed by C. B. Baldwin, national FSA administrator, and A. D. Stewart, regional FSA director. It carries President's Roosevelt's war objectives, which read:

"Our own objectives are clear; the objective of smashing the militarism imposed by war lords upon their enslaved peoples—the objective of liberating the subjugated nations—the object of establishing and securing freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want, and freedom from fear everywhere in the world."

Families who receive merit award certificates will meet nine general food production goals, he said. The goals are:

(1) Garden: Raise all vegetables the family needs for a continuous supply of fresh vegetables and a surplus for the full budget of canned and dried products.

(2) Dairy products: Increase milk production over usual practice by improved feeding and management. Have at least two cows per family.

(3) Poultry and eggs: Increase number of eggs per hen by better breeds, feeding, and management. At least 10 laying hens per person. Not less than 50 to 75 per family.

(4) Pork and lard: Produce all lard needed for home use. Hogs grown to at least 175 pounds, dressed weight. Have at least one sow per family.

(5) Beef: One animal per family for home use, weighing approximately 200 pounds.

(6) Syrup: Produce syrup from sorghum or sugar cane for home use and a surplus for sale.

(7) Irish Potatoes: Increase 25 per cent in all areas suited to production.

(8) Feed: Produce enough grain and roughage to obtain maximum growth and production of all livestock on the farm.

(9) Peanuts: Increase peanut production to maximum by better cultural practices.
