SIXTY-FOURTH YEAR

WILL OTHERS FOLLOW?

Sixty L. Yarber, supervisor of the 5th District, is making a significant start toward being one of the best supervisors this county has yet had on the five man board.

For the two months he has served, Mr. Yarber has published and paid personally, a monthly financial report for his district, which appears in the Belmont newspaper, the Belmont Tri-County News.

There is a state law, that says the supervisors must publish minutes of their meetings, such law being largely ignored by supervisors throughout the state—so much so that there is now before the Mississippi State Legislature a new bill, specifying a $500.00 fine for individual supervisor who fails to carry out this state law.

Mr. Yarber is to be commended, both for his interest and faithfulness to his district, as he made a promise in his campaigning to publish this report, and for his observance of a state law, that goes with his office. The Vidette congratulates Mr. Yarber and the fifth district in its selection of a supervisor.

The Adult Bible Class of the Iuka Methodist Church has inaugurated a splendid program for the next few months. Each Sunday morning a guest teacher presents the lesson to this group of adults, and such prominent men as Mr. Hal Anderson of Corinth, Mr. W. R. Nettles of Tishomingo, Mr. Bill Graham of Florence, are creating a renewed interest in this class. Watch announcements for dates of these speakers. Mr. Nettles is scheduled for this coming Sunday.

CATTLE GRUB

By Paul Keller, County Agent

Are you trying to save your part of the $300,000,000 annual loss from cattle grub? (Some call them wolves in cows' backs.) That is the estimate that the Dept. of Agriculture puts on cattle grub. Four or five grub holes in a hide makes it a second and cuts the price from $2.00 to $1.50. Then the loin must be trimmed to get the grub sign from the carcass. That cuts off the highest priced meat. The biggest loss is caused by slower gains and loss of milk production.

You can prevent this loss and now is the time to start. One pound of Derris Dust will treat about a dozen cattle one time. The treatment should be repeated in thirty days. Just dust the Derris Powder on the Cows back and kill the grubs that will annoy the cow and will soon hatch out a fly that will cause more annoyance and lay plenty more eggs. For more information ask at the County Agent's office.

Cotton planting time will soon be here and GOOD planting seed are scarce. Seed should be treated with Ceresan to protect the seed from fungous disease and to keep cotton from dying after it comes up. The Vocational Schools at Belmont and at Tishomingo have seed treating machines if you are near them or you can buy Ceresan and treat the seed at home.

The two main varieties of cotton recommended for this section are Stoneville 2-B and DPL. They are both good cottons and will produce well in the valleys or on the hills. The DPL may give a little better turn out at the gin but the Stoneville 2-B will produce more seed cotton per acre and make as much lint per acre and is wilt resistant.

There is a limited supply of Stoneville seed direct from the breeder. It is in sealed bags, with a purple tag. The first year seed will have a blue tag on it. Cotton is an open pollinated plant and variety gets mixed in a few years. A good way to get good seed is get seed direct from the breeder and then don't get the seed mixed at the gin. Several farmers who have bought breeder seed should arrange to gin one after another to prevent mixing at the gin. Those who buy breeder seed this year will have what is called first year seed next year.

YOUR LEGISLATURE

By Lewell E. Grisham

(Our editor received last week's column too late to publish it.)

Wednesday morning, February 18 the Senate passed a bill repealing the black-market tax. The same day the House defeated the local-option liquor bill; however, the next day the battle was fought again this time over a motion to reconsider. Among the many promises made by the wet forces was one to add an amendment to provide for a state-wide referendum, but again the dries said no. In spite of expected introductions of more liquor-bills, the wets have very little hope of any victory this session. The fight over the black market tax bill is expected to be more vicious in the House than it was in the Senate.

The bill, which would distribute the proceeds from the gasoline tax on the basis of miles of road maintained, brought objections from several supervisors and a few legislators; consequently, after many hearings, a substitute bill was written. The new bill provides for equal distribution of such tax to all the counties. In 1946 and 1947 Tishomingo County received $61,339 tax refund; if the proposed bill had been law our county would have received $90,769.70. This does not raise the gasoline tax. It merely changes the basis of distributing the proceeds.

The feud between veterans organizations over the bill, which affects the State Service Commission, has ended. The new substitute bill seems to be satisfactory to all concerned.

ANNOUNCE NEW PROGRAM FOR 4-H MEMBERS

"How can we best apply our leisure time?"

That query from farm youth throughout Mississippi has brought an answer in the form of a 4-H recreation and rural arts awards program. Designed to promote group action, the program promises to be a decided influence in developing community spirit.

Activities encouraged include 4H members forming outdoor or indoor sports teams, quartettes, orchestra bands; presenting one-act plays, or pageants, and hiking, camping or picnicing. In rural arts and crafts, members' handiwork in drawing, painting, carving, collecting leaves or some other hobby, may receive recognition at state exhibits.

A blue ribbon will be presented to each local 4-H Club determined by the county extension office as having conducted a recreational program worthy of an outstanding rating. A $25.00 cash award will be provided to each county naming a blue award group of 4-H Clubs, for the purchase of recreational equipment.

Individual efforts to get club members together in carrying the recreational activities will also receive recognition. Two 4-H'ers excelling in recreational leadership in each of the four extension sections will both receive an educational trip to the 1948 National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

All awards, in addition to funds for training clinics at which specialists will instruct local 4-H Club leaders in recreation and rural arts, are provided by U. S. Rubber Co. The leaders in turn will pass the instruction on to their club members.

County extension agents will furnish full information regarding this new program.

PLANTING FORESTS BY AIR . . . Forests are being planted by helicopter now. First job of this kind was undertaken recently by a west coast paper manufacturing company when 2,640 acres of the company's tree farms in Washington and Oregon were seeded from the air with five species of native forest trees.

CANAL ZONE GETS JETS . . . U. S. air force's 36th fighter group, one of the defense units for the Panama Canal zone, has completed its conversion from the wartime P-47 aircraft to jet-propelled P-80 Shooting Stars. These P-80s are shown en route to their home station, Howard air force base in the canal zone, where they will become an integral part of the canal's defense system.

BIG JIM MEETS HIS MATCH . . . James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, governor of Alabama with aspirations toward the presidency, found a man his size when he entered the conference room for the closed session of the southern governors' conference. He was surpassed in physique by Capt. Reid Clifton of the Florida highway patrol, whose 305 pounds and 6 feet 6 inches overshadowed the Alabama governor's 250 pounds and 6 feet 8 inches.

HURDLES HIS OWN HANDICAP . . . Maimed war veterans at Vaughan hospital in Chicago watch with new hope as Walter Baskovich, who lost a leg when he was a child, gives amazing demonstration of high jumping. "If I can do it, so can you," Baskovich told the disabled vets. Show was presented by University of Chicago acrobat to illustrate how determination can overcome handicaps.

Town Bucks Black Market

THE hardy little town of International Falls, Minn.—coldest city in the U. S.—would rather buck 40-below temperatures than buy fuel oil on the black market. Hearing of the town's anti-inflation fortitude, President Truman, himself, promised to send an emergency cargo to the rescue—at regular prices.

International Falls almost straddles the Canadian border. A recent cold spell pushed the mercury out the bottom of the thermometer. Simultaneously, certain unscrupulous oil dealers brought in fresh supplies and jacked up their prices.

Rather than pay black market rates, many citizens closed their homes and doubled up with relatives and neighbors. One angry group threatened to overturn an incoming truck, and the nervous dealer started arming his trucks.

Other citizens wrote to their congressman, young ex-paratrooper John Blatnik, who in turn went to see the President. Mr. Truman promised immediate action.

Note—The oil industry willingly sent 10 tank cars to another Minnesota town, St. Cloud, which had less need than shivering International Falls. The reason: St. Cloud is in the district of powerful ways and means chairman Harold Knutson, who writes the taxes.

The Law Bows to Politics

THE department of justice is more sinister now than it has been at any other time in the life of the existing American people because it has no code but politics.

Cong. Fred A. Hartley of New Jersey, co-author of the Taft-Hartley labor emancipation law, remarked, with elfin delicacy, that he thought the department had been exceedingly lax in its preparation of the case against Jimmy Petrillo in Chicago. This was only one defeat in many which Hartley might view with deep suspicion.

The department is adept at losing cases in which political proteges of the Democratic party might be caught guilty. Its record of defeats is long, consistent and disgraceful.

Murderous, thieving unionizers who will become historic in the national gallery of rogues have walked out of court free in every important case, although the department of justice had proof of guilt that should have left no shadow of a doubt.

Prosecutions have been thrown; dangerous immigrants have been eased through the naturalization process; tax cases have been settled on percentages, and paroles and pardons have been arranged in a haphazard way.

Caution to Snowstorms

Within three years science will be able to bust up or detour snow and rainstorms from hitting big cities, Dr. Irving Langmuir of General Electric says. It will be possible to switch them to lightly populated areas. But, brother, what a howl will go up from the small town when it finds itself buried in a snowstorm transferred from a big burg!

We don't think the little community will take it lying down. Every village will have to perfect its own switcher-backer corps to rush into the skies and smack the storm right back where it came from.

This could result in a regular hockey game of the skies with snowstorms being swatted all over the heavens. It might require official referees and scorers to determine what kind of winter we had been through.

Dr. Langmuir says that experiences with dry ice pellets in producing artificial rain and snow have had behind them the idea of fighting storms, and that science is fairly close to discovering how to switch a storm from one spot to another.

Personally we do not wish Dr. Langmuir too much luck, and we warn the company that it is on the way to a boycott by all children, with a secondary boycott by lovers of "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" and Currier and Ives prints.

The kids are more or less disgusted with the grownups now. They really will get tough the day a right smart snowstorm is known to be headed for their own backyard and a lot of scientists pop into the air and see that it is transferred to Wappingers Falls or Moose Hollow.

WALTER SHEAD

'Directors' Fail to Plan

THE government of the United States is the biggest business in the United States. It costs more to operate, employs more people, provides more services and gives more for less money to every family in the nation than any other business.

If the board of United States Steel or General Motors would fix the cost of steel or lop off $1,000 from the price of an automobile without first finding out what it costs to make steel or to build a car, the stockholders would be the first to declare the directors were crazy and demand a new board.

Congress is the board of directors of the U. S. government. And without first finding out how much it's going to cost to run the government this year, the house has passed a tax reduction bill lopping off $6,500,000,000 in taxes, which is equivalent to cutting the price of the car. But do the stockholders declare the board is crazy?

The law says that congress "shall" first determine an overall cost of government by not later than February 15. When they do that, then they shall trim the services of government to fit the cloth or the cost.

If any other board of directors didn't set up a long-range policy of doing business they wouldn't last long with the stockholders, but in the biggest business in the world the board of directors plans nothing ahead except from year to year.

Good-By---With No Regrets

IT IS doubtful if England, of which country he still is a citizen, would welcome the deportation of Charles Chaplin by the United States. For more than a quarter century Chaplin has enjoyed the advantages this nation provides. He came to America from London, where he had picked up a precarious living from the small change patrons of London pubs and music halls had contributed for his clownish acts. In America he has won fame and fortune. Now, because he is peeved, he threatens to leave. If there is any way in which we Americans can speed his departure, we should like to know so it may be applied. He is welcome to return to the London pubs or to Russia.

Sunday School Lessons

World Mission of Church
Lesson for February 29, 1948

JOHN WESLEY said, "The world is my parish." Many another Christian has entertained this great concept, and that is precisely what Jesus wants us to understand concerning the sweep and scope of his Kingdom.

Sunday's lesson brings us to consider three great passages—Acts 16:9, 10; Romans 10:8-15; Ephesians 3:8-12. Read these carefully, and you will feel the winds of God lifting up the flaps of the tent of your small habitation until you will catch glimpses of the far horizon.

CHURCH AROUND THE WORLD
"GO YE into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation," said Jesus, Mark 16:15. There is no backyard definition of the mission of the church in these great words of Jesus. Just as Paul was summoned to cross over into Europe with the Gospel, so are we commanded to make Christ known to all lands. He loves everybody.

"Jesus loves the little children,
All the children of the world;
Yellow, brown, or black, or white,
They are precious in his sight,
Jesus loves the little children of the world."

REACHING THE WORLD
JUST as Paul went from one land to another, so may every Christian boy and girl do. Each church can reach out hands of blessing to all the world.

How? Through our gifts. Our gifts for missions, joined with the gifts of all the other members of our local church, joined with the gifts of many other churches, go out in multiplied blessing through the missionaries to make Christ known around the world.

How? Through our prayers. As we pray for the redemption of the world, we fortify the missionaries—teachers, doctors, preachers—in all the parts of the world.

How? Through our sympathetic understanding of the conditions under which people live in other lands. Just now we are giving clothes and food to help the stricken peoples of the war-ravaged lands. These gifts of material things bear their message of our Christian concern for all who suffer. Thus we are extending the reach of our individual lives and the reach of our churches to the ends of the earth.

PUBLISHING SALVATION
"HOW beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth glad tidings, that publisheth peace... that publisheth salvation," Isaiah 52:7.

The world mission of the church is here pictured in the exquisite language of the ancient prophet, with which words we may link the declaration of the great apostle, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," Romans 8:13.

Publishing salvation is the chief task of the church of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the objects of this universal message are the souls of all men. There is universal need, and here is the adequate and available answer.

See how this conception of the world mission of the church brings into focus the one hope for civilization. The only voice that carries across the barriers of this troubled world is the voice of salvation through Jesus Christ. Let that word be sounded in any spot on this earth, and some waiting heart will be lifted up.

THE UNSEARCHABLE RICHES
AND what are we to say about the message we have to publish? Paul puts it well in Ephesians 3:8-12, when he declares:

"Unto me, who am less than the least of all the saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ."

In another place we read about the "unspeakable gift of God," II Corinthians 9:15. The message, then, is one of unsearchable riches, and unspeakable gift.

In this message is healing for the peoples of the earth. If the true mission of the church is understood and voiced in all of the ways by which the Gospel may today be given to the world, we shall see the fulfillment of the dreams of the prophets, and the angels about the throne of God will shout for joy.

As Paul changed his course in the long ago, heeding the Macedonian call, so may we today find ourselves turning about in our response to the Holy Spirit's leading; but let us not be afraid so long as we are sincerely seeking to publish glad tidings to all men.

THE FICTION CORNER

THE RUG
By VIRGINIA SULLIVAN TOMLINSON

I KNEW the Farraday family before it happened. I knew them first when I was nine and Ellen Farraday was eight and in my class at school.

There were two other Farraday children; Skippy, the baby, who was five, and Dora, seventeen, just entering business school. Dora was engaged to marry Danny Wright, who ran the service-station in town. Mr. Farraday was branch manager of our local bank. "Such a nice, quiet man," people said. "If only that wife of his were not such a fool."

I didn't think Mrs. Farraday was a fool. I liked her. The sprawling old Farraday house, with its sagging porch, was always in need of repair, the shabby living-room would be cluttered and dishes unwashed, but Mrs. Farraday was never too busy to plan games for rainy afternoons or picnics in summer in their rickety old car. She was little and quick and dark, with rather kittenish ways; always thinking up something new and "exciting"—like the dress she designed for Dora that won the prize in the Easter parade.

There was nothing I loved more than going over to the Farraday house whenever I had the chance. Saturday mornings they always had pancakes; Sundays they had sausages and Boston baked beans and applesauce in a blue glass dish. And they had laughter. A great deal of laughter—except when Aunt Abbey came to call.

Aunt Abbey was Mr. Farraday's aunt, a very rich, very unpleasant old lady who lived in an imposing granite house at the end of town. It was no secret that she disapproved bitterly of the entire Farraday family. Why she visited them nobody knew, unless it was because, of all her relatives, they refused to be impressed by her money or upset by her caustic tongue. They merely accepted her, all but Mrs. Farraday, who seemed to like having Aunt Abbey around. Curiously enough, it was of Mrs. Farraday herself that Aunt Abbey most bitterly disapproved.

"My nephew's wife isn't fooling me," she'd say. "Always pretending to be so gay. What's she got to be happy about, I'd like to know? If my nephew had married a sensible woman, he'd have amounted to something by now."

"I declare," my mother said, "it gives me the creeps, the way that old lady looks at Mrs. Farraday. I believe she really hates her."

"She hates them all," my father said, "because they've got what she never had. The Farradays have contentment. All Aunt Abbey has is money, and when she's gone they'll have that, too."

Only they didn't. Because when Aunt Abbey died the year Ellen Farraday was nine, she left them no money at all. Her entire estate went to charity, with one exception. She left Mrs. Farraday a rug. It was an Oriental rug, exceptionally large and lovely; golden in color, satiny to the touch, starred with dusty pink flowers.

"It's a shame," people said, "when those children need money so. But of course they can sell the rug. It's valuable and Orientals are in vogue." Then a dealer offered Mrs. Farraday $25,000 for her rug. The town rejoiced for the Farradays. This meant college for the children and money to fix up the old house. But, to the amazement of everyone, Mrs. Farraday stubbornly refused to sell. She had always admired that rug, she said. She'd been as surprised as anyone when Aunt Abbey had left it to her. She had always thought Aunt Abbey disliked her; all those unkind remarks she used to make. But now she was grateful for the rug and meant to keep it.

Since the narrow living room at the Farradays was too small for the rug, Mr. Farraday was persuaded to sell the home and rent a house with larger rooms. Their old stuff looked pretty shabby against the rug, so with the money from the sale of the home they bought new furniture. And after awhile, because of the friends they acquired in the new surroundings, the Farradays bought a new car, too.

I saw less of Ellen now, except at school. Gradually my visits to the Farradays had ceased, partly because my mother disapproved of Dora Farraday's new friends. Dora had always been a sweet, docile little thing, ambitious to get along. Now she had given up business school. She had even broken off her engagement to Danny Wright. Dora had a new beau now; one she'd met through her "crowd." Nobody liked him, but he was rich and he gave Dora a good time. He had a weak, handsome face and a loud scoffing laugh. I'd see them together as I walked home from school, dashing around town in his rakish car or going into Van's Place for drinks. People felt sorry for Danny Wright. He'd been so crazy about Dora, and always so glad to have Skippy and Ellen around.

DORA's new beau didn't like children. He objected to Skippy trailing her about. Skippy was six now, very spoiled and rather a nuisance; but it seemed hardly fair to blame Dora entirely for what happened at the Elks' picnic that year. Everyone Elks' picnic that year. Everyone said, though, that it was Dora's fault. She'd taken Skippy to the picnic, hadn't she? She should not have gone off with that beau of hers, leaving the child alone by the lake.

My father was one of the men who took Skippy's little body out of the water that night. My mother saw with Mrs. Farraday when she brought him home. Dora Farraday didn't come home at all. She sent a telegram. It arrived just as they were bringing Skippy's body into the house. Dora had left Skippy alone by the lake to elope to New York with her new beau.

Ellen continued at school; she had always been very quiet. And after awhile, Mrs. Farraday went about the town again, holding her head very high, smiling her fixed, gay smile. Only Mr. Farraday seemed changed. He aged visibly that year. Nobody was surprised when the cold he caught just before Christmas turned into pneumonia. The doctors said that he just hadn't the will to live.

Dora came home when her father died. Mrs. Farraday sent her the money. Dora's husband had left her and Dora had been working in New York, clerking in a store. People thought that perhaps she'd stay home now, since her mother needed her, but nobody really expected she would. Danny Wright was married now, to one of Dora's former classmates, a plain little girl with adoring eyes. They came to Mr. Farraday's funeral, sitting closely together in the church. The week after the funeral Dora went back to her job in New York, and the day after she left Mrs. Farraday came to see my father about selling her rug to pay her bills.

She'd taken Skippy to the picnic, hadn't she? She should not have gone off with that beau of hers, leaving the child alone by the lake.

My father did his best; but this was a depression year—and nobody had money now for Oriental rugs. The five thousand dollars he finally got from a dealer barely paid for Mr. Farraday's funeral and for Mrs. Farraday's debts. Mrs. Farraday got a job at the hotel. Her salary included room and board, so that Ellen could live with her, too.

It was storming hard the day they moved down there. We left them alone and drove home through the snow-covered town, passing the old Farraday house on the way. Nobody lived in it now. Tears crowded behind my lids as we drove slowly by.

"They were happy in that house," my father said. "A great pity they ever moved out of it. If Aunt Abbey knew what she was doing when she made that will, then she must be laughing now in her grave."

"My mother spoke suddenly. 'That's it!' she exclaimed. 'She did know what she was doing. And I'm surprised that I never thought of it before.'"

"What do you mean?" My father stared at her. Her voice had sounded strange.

"She knew exactly what she was doing!" my mother said. "And wherever she is—she probably is laughing! Aunt Abbey knew that Mrs. Farraday would never be able to resist living up to that rug!"

Cities Grant Pay Increases
To Help Meet Rising Costs

Scores of cities are granting pay raises to municipal employees to help them meet increased living costs. In Cleveland the mayor agreed to grant pay raises to municipal employees which will cost the city $1,100,000 this year. Fire and police personnel received a $240 a year increase, plus six new holidays to be added to annual furloughs.

White collar employees of Cleveland will get a $180 annual raise if they make less than $3,000 a year. Their increase will be 6.5 per cent if they make more than $3,000 annually.

Pittsburgh councilmen earmarked $1,200,000 for municipal pay raises. Biggest pay boosts went to employees receiving $2,000 a year or less.

Chicago's record city budget for 1948 includes pay increases of 8.5 per cent for municipal employees earning less than $5,000 a year, plus raises averaging $300 a year for higher paid employees.

In Omaha, all city employees have been given a flat $15 per month wage boost. The increase will affect approximately 1,260 workers. New York City boosted the salaries of 42 top city officials. The action added $86,000 to this year's payroll.

SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Home Loans Tightened

A total of 540,000 World War II veterans were able to buy homes during 1947 under the G.I. law as compared to 410,000 in 1946, a total of 1,056,711 homes purchased since the law was enacted.

Reviewing the past year's loan transactions VA finds that the average home bought by veterans in 1947 carried a price tag of $7,300. Four of every 10 paid more than $8,000 and one in 20 paid $12,000 or more for his home.

Out of the total of homes purchased, however, only about 160,000 were for newly constructed homes, averaging $8,200 each. Of the total home loan mortgages totalling well above six billion dollars, nearly half of which is guaranteed or insured by VA, claims paid to date on defaults total slightly more than a million dollars.

From federal reserve bank sources, however, indications are that veterans are being caught in a general credit tightening and that fewer and fewer 100 per cent loans are being made by the banks and other lenders. According to the banks, the reason is that many veterans regard these 100 per cent loans on which they make no down payment as rent, not buying, and since they have no equity to protect, they let their monthly payments lag. Banks therefore are planning to make veterans put up more cash.

Questions and Answers

This column is indebted to T/Sgt. H. E. Slaughter, public information officer of the army and air force recruiting station at Baton Rouge, La., for directing our attention to an error in a recent column. We had informed an Orlando, Fla., wife that her husband, who had reenlisted in the army, was not entitled to a G.I. loan in order to buy a home.

The facts are that any member of the armed services who has been separated, even for only a matter of hours, is in status by Veterans' administration as a veteran and entitled to all the privileges and benefits of the G.I. bill even if he reenlists in any branch of the service. So to Mrs. G. G. T., at Orlando, your husband who has reenlisted in the army for two years, is entitled to make application for a G.I. loan for purchase of a home.

Q. I am the widow of a World War II veteran. I have one little daughter, age six. I have been unable to take care of her and she has been living with friends of mine a short distance from the town in which I live. I believe the child is entitled to a pension for the death of my husband, but am wondering if I can collect this pension since she does not live with me. Can you advise me?—Mrs. H. G., Mineral Wells, Tex.

A. Yes, the child is entitled to pension payments. These payments may be made either to you or to the persons who have custody of the child, preferably the latter if they are to continue the child's care. Suggest you get in touch with your nearest VA Office, or the office you contacted for your own widow's pension.

Q. Will the subsistence allowances now being paid to veterans taking educational courses under the G.I. bill be increased by this congress?—K. L. McK., Rocky Mount, N. C.

A. As this is written, all indications are that subsistence allowances will be increased, since a bill for this purpose has been passed by both houses and will soon go to the president for signature.

Q. My wife and I are homesteading a claim near here. I am a veteran of World War II with three and a half years service. My question is, am I entitled to a guaranteed or insured loan under the G.I. bill on my claim here?—J. J. T., Butte, Mont.

A. It would depend upon the purpose of your loan. Loans may be guaranteed or insured under the G.I. bill to a homesteader if the loan is for operating capital for purchase of farm equipment or machinery, and all ordinary farming or business purposes. However loans for construction purposes including construction to a farm house or other buildings are not available until the veteran acquires such title as will enable him to give a valid first lien on the realty.

Q. I am a veteran of four and half years. Was discharged in July of 1945. Would I be eligible to take music under the G.I. bill of rights? I'm unmarried, but support my mother.—D. A., Wells, Nev.

A. Yes, music can be taken under the G.I. bill provided the approved schools in your area list music in their curriculum. Suggest you get in touch with Veterans' administration regional office at Reno to secure a list of approved schools in your area. Then all you need do is to check the list for the school offering the music courses which you want.

Household
Hints

For a larger and fluffier omelet, add hot instead of cold water when beating the egg yolks.

Protect your rubbers from oil and soil. Oil causes blistering, and soil will cause rubber articles to chip and crack and lose their resilient strength. Clean well after using.

Keep acid foods, such as tomatoes, lemons and vinegar off the porcelain enamel of a range or refrigerator. They cause stains that won't come off.

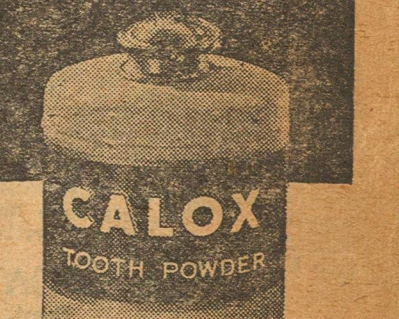

When washing windows during the winter put a small quantity of ammonia or vinegar into the water. This helps to keep the water from freezing on the glass.

When laundering lace collars, sew the collars on white muslin. This will help keep them in shape.

Fix a towel rack on the back of baby's high chair, on which you can keep such handy items as a damp wash cloth, a bib and a towel.

Keep on hand: Percolator tops, electric fuses, an assortment of corks, waxed paper, paper napkins, a box of tacks, an extra can opener, extra light bulbs, a ball of twine, bicycle tape.

Do not put woolen blankets through a wringer when washing them. Place in thick turkish towels first, then pass through wringer. Avoid changing temperature of water from hot to cold, only tepid water must be used. Dry blankets indoors on flat surface after stretching to size.

CEMETERY NEEDS NEW SPONSOR

Numerous friends of the late Mrs. W. O. Jackson, who thru many years, gave so fully of her time energy and ability to the care of Oak Grove cemetery are concerned over the need of another public spirited young woman who will take over this worthy project and continue the effective work of Mrs. Jackson.

During her illness, when a group of friends were praising
Mrs. Jackson for her untiring efforts in beautifying the cemetery, her reply was "Who'll take my place?" One of those present, who prefers to remain anonymous, wrote the following verses, in the hope that it would stir some Iuka lady to feel called to take up this work and continue to keep the cemetery as beautiful as Mrs. Jackson has made and minister to those who must use the spot for burial of their loved ones. The Vidette adds its own plea for a volunteer to step into this civic place, and take on the duties so beautifully filled by Mrs. Jackson. The poem follows:
Who'll take her place?
As the years go by?
The work must go on,
Will you or I?
A neglected spot that place of rest,
Where many loved ones lie;
She gave it beauty, she did not fail
Will you or I?
Willing always, did she ever tire?
Bright flowers she placed for low and high,
With her away, who'll carry on?
Will you or I?
Now she is there, shall we keep it bright?
Lest we forget or do not try,
Let this remind—she did her best
Will you or I?

By TINA

"A man is not without honor, save in his own home"—Tina's brilliant son Walter, took the opportunity this week to say, "Mother I too saw a robin, just outside the door—it froze to death!" which was the family's way of ribbing me about that last week's "spring song"—Tina precedes the actual season at least a month every year—Last spring, when the wild azaleas were rioting in their prolific bloom, Tom Akers came down, wandered through a select wooded section where they were at their best and because he had nothing else, tore up his handkerchief and marked several choice plants...last week, Tom came down again from Memphis, and got those plants for his home use!—Transplanted Tishomingo beauty, to give pleasure to a transplanted Tishomingo citizen.In the mail bag comes a letter with renewal from Mattheus Rutledge out in San Antonio, and he says he has had recent letters from Fannie Joel and Elmer Walker who now live in Sheffield, Lillian Lifsey of Florence and Mrs. White Smith of Sheffield—says also that he is attending Opera, "Rigoletti, Tannhauser and Madame Butterfly"—and enjoying Rose Bampton and other Met stars—Madame Butterfly is one of the Operas to be given in Memphis this season.... STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

Released by WNU Features.

By INEZ GERHARD

MOTION picture fans whose memories go way, way back are going to take especial interest in one of the most dramatic scenes in the RKO-released "Joan of Arc." The faces of some of the judges in the trial sequence will be so familiar to them that they may concentrate on trying to place the men instead of on watching Ingrid Bergman's performance. To save them the trouble — those well-remembered faces belong to James Kirkwood, Herbert Rawlinson, Matt More, Stewart Holmes and Alan Napier.

While overseas during the war Bob Hope was fascinated by the act of a USO trouper, Billy Romano, who inflated and kneaded toy balloons into animal shapes. Meeting him recently in Hollywood, Bob asked him to a party, had him perform; guests went away and talked, and a prominent game manufacturer made a deal with him. Who says Hollywood gossip does no good!

Raymond Burr was driving to the studio to be killed in a duel with Errol Flynn, in "The Adventures of Don Juan." His car was sideswiped by a truck, on a steep road; it was caught and somewhat crushed by a telephone pole, which saved it from hurtling down an embankment. Having been saved from sudden, real death, Burr kept his date with an imitation.

Sports fans will love RKO's "Sports Coverage," a short subject showing how sports news is rushed to the public. Joe Williams, the sports columnist, is featured, covering his beat. The film includes Red Barber and Clem McCarthy (who, with Andre Baruch, are the narrators) and other sports writers and photographers, also Willie Turnesa, Gus Lesnevich and Mel Ott.

M-G-M's "The Search" is the first feature picture to be photographed in American zone of occupied Germany; most of the exteriors were filmed in and around Nuremberg, Munich, Würzburg and Frankfurt. A large cast, mainly non-professional, supports Montgomery Clift. Aline McMahon, Wendell Corey and Jarmila Novotna, leading star of the Metropolitan Opera company.

The U. S. department of immigration is negotiating with United States Pictures and Warner Bros. for 50 16 mm. prints of "My Girl Tisa," for use in Americanism classes prior to examinations for citizenship. Lilli Palmer and Sam Wanamaker star.

"Make Believe Ballroom" will reach the screen, via Columbia Pictures, as an entertainment cavalcade, with six-top name bands and six headline vocalists. Bob Faye, Danny Kaye's brother-in-law, is writing the screenplay.

Every Sunday night Fanny Brice gives a dinner party, and secretly records her guests' conversations; she edits the recording, using her "Baby Snooks" voice for the narration, then invites her guests to come and hear the recordings.

Cathy Lewis and Marie Wilson, co-stars of "My Friend Irma," both include the "new look" in their wardrobes, but at show time they work in dresses with the old one. They say it's superstition—but admit the old one's more becoming!

The Hollywood Brown Derby is taking down caricatures of some of the celebrities whose likenesses have adorned its walls and putting up newer stars—Cathy and Elliott Lewis among them.

ODDS AND ENDS—Top winner of the "Dr. Christian" award gets $2,000 and a three-month contract with Michael Curtiz Publications. . . . Ben Gage, announcer of the "Danny Thomas Show," is commuting between Hollywood and Chicago, where his wife, Esther Williams, is making personal appearances. . . . Hoagy Carmichael's front door bell plays "Stardust," on rhymes; ring at the back door and you hear "Georgia on My Mind." . . . The state department has selected Bea Wain and Andre Baruch to record a series of programs on American life; "Mr. and Mrs. Music" will transcribe their impressions in seven languages.

Oh, Was It?

AN ENGLISHMAN was conversing with the clerk in the Ambassador hotel. "Here's a riddle," said the clerk. "My mother gave birth to a child. It was neither my brother nor my sister. Who was it?"

Englishman: "I can't guess."
Clerk: "It was I."
Englishman: "Ha, Ha, Very clever. I must remember that."
The Englishman then told the story at his club. Said he: "Here's a riddle, old top. My mother gave birth to a child, and it was neither my brother nor my sister. Who was it? You can't guess? Do you give up?"

"Yes."
"Ha, ha! It was the clerk at the Ambassador hotel."

A Long Jaunt

When the revenuers burst from the bushes, the gangling hillbilly began running with such speed that the lawmen stood in slack-jawed awe and watched him disappear.

Long after the revenue men had left, he still had not returned to his cabin. Hours became days and his friends were worrying.

At last, on the fifth day, he stumbled in, a sorry sight. He was bearded and fatigued, and his clothes were spattered with mud.

"Where you been, Ed?" someone asked.

He sighed wearily.
"I been comin' back," he said.

UNFAIR TACTICS

Judge—How does your wife irritate you?

Husband—Why, she keeps saying "I'll have you hauled up before that bald-headed old reprobate judge and see what he'll do with you!"

Judge—Prisoner discharged.

Oriental Ritual

Once when the distinguished Dr. Hu Shih was China's ambassador to the United States he received from a certain stuffy Washington dowager an invitation to dinner. Assuming what she fondly conceived to be the oriental manner, she wrote him thus: "O sage and honorable sir, will you deign to honor our humble abode with your most august presence. . . ." and so on for several hundred words.

The following day she received the telegraphic reply: "Can do. Hu Shih."

Dangerous Pep Talk

A mother was in a midtown dime store with her five-year-old son and put him on a slot weighing and soothsaying machine. The card that came out gave his weight as 48 pounds and bore the following appraisal of his character: "You have an indomitable will power, enabling you to overcome in triumph many trying circumstances." The little fellow's been raising heck ever since.

Proof Positive

A certain man's friends thought he was dead. However, when he was revived he said he knew he was not dead because his feet were cold and he was hungry.

"How did those facts make you think you were still alive?" asked one of the curious.

"Well, it's this way. I know that if I was in heaven I wouldn't be hungry and if I was in the other place my feet wouldn't be cold.

Misinterpreted

THE movie was crowded and the young couple had to take separate seats. But the girl was trying to remedy the situation. Noticing a mild-looking little man seated next to her, it occurred to her he might be persuaded to trade seats with her boy friend.

So she leaned over and whispered, "Pardon me, are you alone?" No answer. Once more she repeated the question—a little louder.

At that the little man stirred slightly and, still keeping his eyes on the screen, murmured between clenched teeth: "Not so loud—my whole family's sittin' over here."

Unique Distinction

Young Bob is just now passing through that youthful stage of life when there seems to be no end of fun belonging to a secret society. And the more numerous the officers and the more high-sounding their titles the better he likes it.

The other day Bob was reading off the list of officers in his latest club, when his father interrupted to inquire, "Well, son, what office did you get?"

"Something special, father," the boy replied, "this time I'm the member!"

It Looked That Way

He loved fishing so much that he thought everyone else ought to love it. In his zeal he took a novice with him on a fishing trip, furnishing all the tackle. The expert settled the novice in a likely spot and then began fishing not far away. In a little while the novice called:

"How much do those red and green things cost?"

"You mean the float?" the expert replied. "Oh, about a dime I guess."

"Well," said the novice, "I owe you a dime; mine has sunk."

Supreme Test

A man answering an ad for a chauffeur's job was being examined by the car owner. He was asked if he had traveled much in other states.

"Yes, sir," replied the prospective chauffeur.

"All right," said the car owner, handing him a road map, "let me see you fold it."

SUCCESS STORY

Annual 4-H Week Will Stress Farm and Home Improvements

WNU Features.

Based on the old but proved premise of learning by doing, rural girls and boys receive training in the rudiments of good leadership and good citizenship. The girls also learn how to cook, sew and run a home. The boys learn how to be good farmers. That is the story of 1,700,000 farm boys and girls in 4-H clubs.

In 74,000 4-H clubs covering every state and territory, these boys and girls will tackle man-sized jobs during National 4-H Club Week, March 1 to 7. That's the week they have set aside to launch another year of farm, home and community improvement projects and demonstrations. They'll ask neighboring boys and girls to join in and help them carry out their "make the best better" motto.

The 4-Hs, standing for the pledge of Head, Heart, Hands and Health for their clubs, their community and their country, set in a four-leaf clover, has grown to be a respected symbol of the 11,000,000 former 4-H club members, their leaders and friends.

The 4-H club program is unique in that it is entirely voluntary, educational and locally run. Each club under guidance of a local voluntary leader elects its own officers, holds its own meetings and plans its own "learn by doing" and community improvement projects.

Expert Guidance.

Responsibility for helping the clubs organize and operate as well as providing good farming and homemaking advice on the various projects rests with the cooperative extension service, the educational arm of the U. S. department of agriculture and the state agricultural or land-grant colleges. The extension service, in cooperation with county governing bodies, employs county agricultural, home demonstration and 4-H agents. These agents carry on educational work with farm youth through 4-H clubs in much the same way they help adult farmers and farm women keep attuned to better farming practices growing out of scientific research and local experience.

The 4-H story is demonstrated in the experience of Donald Stoten, 20-year-old Carthage, Ind., boy. After 21 years of club projects he is ready to start farming with a fine herd of Angus and Jersey cattle, Hampshire hogs and Southdown sheep. During that time he has helped his dad expand their farm from 72 to 450 acres.

Another typical 4-H story is that of Lavona Thorndyke, 18-year-old Lambert, Okla., girl, who received this year's presidential award for girls. After her father's death and brothers' enlistment in the army, she and her mother took over operation of their 480-acre farm. Her 4-H projects in clothing, home improvement, food preparation, canning and gardening helped her carry almost full responsibility for the home as well as meal planning and cooking for the harvest and other hired help.

Thousands of other boys and girls are doing practical things in the world. Kenneth Bosley's 4-H tree has grown into a well-spect machine shop where he can T farm machinery. A

TISHOMINGO IMPROVEMENT

75 per cent time in handling them. Kenneth is 18 and lives at Sparks, Md.

The first project for many 4-H boys is raising a calf. That calf and seven years 4-H work in dairying has produced for Dewey G. Harwood Jr., 19, of New London, N. C., a herd of 38 fine Guernsey cattle. He's now leading other boys and girls as president of the state 4-H council.

Safety is a favored project in the 4-H clubs. Many an accident has been avoided by some safety-conscious club member removing hazards. Roger Kaufman, 19, of Delmont, S. D., during the past year personally checked 100 farms as the basis for a county-wide report demonstrating the most common fire and accident hazards.

Four-H boys demonstrate better methods of growing crops. Last year in their projects club members grew about 200,000 acres of corn, nearly 100,000 acres of home vegetable gardens, 44,000 acres of cotton and similar acreage of many other crops.

Aid Food Program.

Four-H club girls last year canned more than 15,000,000 quarts of food. Norene Dupy, 18, of Red Rock, Okla., in eight years of club work canned 4,565 jars of vegetables, meats and fruit. Last year she raised all the vegetables she canned in her two-acre garden.

Nearly 500,000 girls find the 4-H clothing projects useful and interesting. In them they develop skills in making, remodeling and mending garments. They also learn how to buy suitable materials, how to adapt designs, how to care for their wardrobe, how to make and use a clothing budget.

Jewell Ellis, 19, of Gravel Switch, Ky., in nine years of club work has designed, made or made over 348 garments for herself and family. Jane Conzemius, 19, of Cannon Falls, Minn., a 4-H'er for ten years, has 468 garments to her credit. She also has made 60 household articles and has served a club of younger girls as clothing project leader.

Gardening Is Popular.

Each year a half-million or more 4-H boys and girls take over the home garden as their 4-H project. They learn how to plan a garden to produce the vegetables needed for a well-balanced diet for their family, what varieties are best adapted to their localities, how to fertilize and cultivate, how to combat diseases and insect pests, and, often, how to prepare any surplus vegetables for selling.

Geneva Smith, 17, of Patmos, Ark., in her six years of 4-H work has supplied the family of 11 with an ample supply of fresh and canned vegetables and had some left over for sale. Harold Rupert Jr., 18, of Pueblo, Colo., in his eight years of club work has raised 13 acres of garden.

Food preparation attracts 4-H members of all ages, girls and also boys, especially boys who have a liking for work in woodland areas and other outdoor activities. Last year 365,000 girls and 5,000 boys chose food preparation as a 4-H project. Their work ranged from preparation of one kind of dish all the way up to planning, preparing and serving complete, nutritionally well-balanced meals.

Catherine Wilson, 17, of Cranbury, N. J., has specialized in food preparation projects for seven years. During this time she has prepared and served more than 1,000 balanced meals for her family of eight, including 50 dozen biscuits and many cakes and pies.

Saving the Soil.

Realizing that soil conservation is an important matter to everybody, 4-H members have demonstrated keen interest in studying methods that will save and build up soil. Typical soil conservation work is that of Jim Kludas, 18, of Cherokee, Iowa, who took as his 4-H project the elimination of erosion on his father's 160-acre farm, now described as a model of soil conservation practices. He began contouring in 1943, then constructed nine grass waterways and dams to prevent washing. A gully control also was started. A series of dykes was built and 400 willows were planted.

Health, one of the 4-Hs in the 4-H symbol, is something for which all members strive, both for themselves and also for their communities. Tommie June Streeter, 16, of Bryceland, La., has carried on mosquito control work which won her recognition in her parish and state.

Practically every homemaking, farming or rural community activity is represented in 4-H projects.

Guidposts to Program.

Much discussion during 4-H Club Week in the local 4-H clubs will evolve around ten guideposts. Developed and agreed upon soon after V-J Day by club leaders representing all the states, the ten guideposts form the basis for the long-time 4-H program. They show the basic objectives of this rural youth educational movement and serve as the basis for building local 4-H programs:

1. Developing talents for greater usefulness.
2. Joining with friends for work, fun and fellowship.
3. Learning to live in a changing world.
4. Choosing a way to earn a living.
5. Producing food and fiber for home and market.
6. Creating better homes for better living.
7. Conserving nature's resources for security and happiness.
8. Building health for a strong America.
9. Sharing responsibilities for community improvement.
10. Serving as citizens for maintaining world peace.

Out of these guideposts each year comes a theme for major 4-H discussion and work. The theme for 1948 is "creating better homes today for a more responsible citizenship tomorrow." It is out of the application of such themes and guideposts to every-day living of thousands of farm boys and girls that 4-H club work succeeds.

it typifies the sort of service good business provides for its customers—The Fran Theatre in Tish, advertised the picture "Magic Town" for Feb. 23-24—only to be notified that it had to be cancelled, due to no extra print—back and forth went communications, another picture was ordered, advertising was changed but somehow, in the rush, the ad was not cancelled in The Vidette—when Mr. Walden saw The Vidette show program, he got in touch with officials all over again, and insisted that he must have that picture!—and he got it!! Calls across the U. S. a change in the Tishomingo advertising, and a thousand other little details was involved to give the Waldens a few sleepless nights but the advertised picture was shown Monday and Tuesday of this week.—That sounds like service to Tina—and speaking of service, Phillips & Yates has added a service that will appeal to Iuka women—they have a polisher for rental service—how much back breaking that will ease for the housewife—they're also getting in the waxes which will sell at a very moderate price, and those things feed the liquid wax right to the floors—Tina has her order in for the first one!.....Several years ago, when Tina and the editor slipped up to Lookout mountain for a few days rest, we met an attractive young English woman, who was attached to some official, stationed in Washington.—This week after three years of silence, a postal card, with a London post mark arrived with this message "Daphne and Martin Davis announce with pleasure that they have found a flat, and they would be glad if you would make a note of the address"—so we know that our delightful friend has married since returning home, and even has a place to live!.....A note from Ida Mohler who is now recuperating from that critical illness at the homes of her daughters, and will go to Macon, Ga., soon to visit a sister—she has resigned her work at Methodist Hospital, and will take time out to get well, and strong.....Helen and "Bulldog" Nelson (since last Tuesday) really pulled a quickie—up to Memphis with Chanky and Nat Chambers they suddenly decided to just run over to Hernando and have that ceremony performed—When Nat tells you about the soft afternoon sun shining thru those stained windows in the Methodist church, you'll want to shed a tear too, as she did—'twas a sweet and beautiful ceremony.....And now, Tina turns to the entertaining task of keeping house on the two-hour-a day basis, but what fun it is—even cooking again, and these sentimental men think it the best food ever—just because they still think Tina loveliest in a crisp cotton frock with a frilly apron.....
