Timber Stripping PROHIBITED By Law

TIMBER OWNERS MUST SAVE SEED TIMBER
STRIPPING OF LAND PROHIBITED BY LAW

LAW BEING ENFORCED IN COUNTY

CITIZENS URGED TO REPORT FOREST FIRES

Mr. J. W. "Jack" Frost, public relations officer of the Mississippi Forestry Service, is spending several days in Tishomingo County this week, accompanying Mr. M. E. Hill, area ranger, on an inspection of timber lands.

Mr. Frost is primarily interested in seeding of cut timber lands, and has been for several years, working in an educational capacity throughout the state. "We are encouraging timber owners to at least save seed", Mr. Frost stated in an interview with the press, "in order that the woods may re-forest themselves, since our unprecedented cutting of our timber lands."

"Timber is a natural resource, so seeding is not only imperative, but just good business", he continued. "Requirements for re-seeding are only four-ten inches trees to the acre", he said, "and since our forests have been squandered, we must protect our future growth".

Mr. Frost will be in the county monthly, in the interest of securing cooperation from the timber owners, in seeding timberlands, which is the purpose of senate bill no. 156, which was enacted in 1944, when the alarming condition of timberlands was presented to the State legislature.

Mr. M. E. Hill, who is the ranger for Tishomingo, Alcorn, and Prentiss Counties, is regularly touring the woodlands, making inspections on lands where timber is being cut. "We are beginning the enforcement of a law, which has been in effect for four years. We have been working from an educational standpoint during that time, but now feel that it is time to prosecute violators, who insist on stripping the woods, so that re-seeding is impossible", Mr. Hill explained that his work was broad enough to make it impossible to cover all the lands quickly, but "even though it takes us several months we will inspect each timber cutting practice in the county, checking violators. "When we rob our soil of its production, we have robbed ourselves of future incomes", Mr. Hill pointed out.

"It is the desire of our forestry service, to enforce Senate bill no. 156 in a constructive way, carrying out the full purpose of that bill, which is to institute "sound forestry practices", in the management of privately owned forest lands in Mississippi, to eliminate waste, inefficiency and wanton destruction of the forest lands in the harvesting of forest products and the utilization of forest lands. "The existing conditions are resulting in serious economic and social loss", reads a portion of section one of the bill.

In the interview, Mr. W. A. Rhodes Jr., patrolman for this county expressed appreciation for the cooperation of citizens in fire-fighting and said, "we have had the best cooperation of fire control since the inauguration of the forestry program". "Within fifteen days, our fire season begins, and we are urging county wide interest in preventing this waste of one of our most important resources", he said. "Any citizen discovering woods fires are asked to telephone, collect, the dispatcher at no. 3104 either day or night, or Mr. Rhodes at night, no. 194-J or Mr. Hill 3121. The forestry service will pay for these calls, so that they may more quickly begin efforts to extinguish every fire that threatens our woodlands.

Fair Observing First Birthday

Department Store In Celebration
Offers Large Array Of Fine
Bargains

In observance of the first anniversary of doing business in Corinth, The Fair department store on Cruise street, is offering a large array of bargains this weekend to the people of the Corinth and vicinity trade radius.

S. X. Phlieger, owner of the store, came to Corinth a year ago and purchased a stock of merchandise from Lawrenceburg, Tenn., interests and immediately set about to enlarge the stock, install new fixtures, contract for new, and nationally known lines of merchandise in order to meet the demands of an exacting public in this area for high-class merchandise.

Steadily the store has shown a marked improvement until today it is rated as one of the leading departments stores in this area. Mr. Phlieger and Mrs. Phlieger have labored long and consistently to provide much-wanted merchandise for their customers and in announcing the first birthday of their business in Corinth, state that they believe they can meet the demands of the most exacting customers from their well-stocked store.

The store has been re-arranged well-lighted and otherwise made over into a modern retail establishment which is attractive to prospective buyers.

Hire-the Handicapped Week

October 3-9, 1948

By Mayors of Tishomingo County
Whereas the nation, by act of Congress has set aside the first week of October of each year as a time for observance of "National Employ Physically Handicapped Week"; and

Whereas the State of Mississippi, by proclamation of Governor Fielding L. Wright, will again observe "Hire-the Handicapped Week" as part of the national campaign and as a period for emphasis on the year-around program promulgated in 1947; and

Whereas the citizens of Tishomingo County being aware of the importance of such a campaign to this county, realize fully the urgent need of rehabilitating and employing those of our fellow-citizens who have acquired physical handicaps; and

Whereas these two steps - Rehabilitation and employment are essential to the restoration of the physically handicapped to normal living; and

Whereas the Mississippi State Employment Service and the vocational rehabilitation services of all State and Federal agencies in Mississippi are bound to the accomplishment of these two steps;

Now, Therefore, We, mayors of Tishomingo County, do hereby set aside the week of Oct. 3-9 as "Hire-the-handicapped Week" and urge all local officials, all local employers, all local civic organizations, and all local citizens to cooperate with their local Mississippi State Employment Service and other agencies in this worthy campaign to find suitable jobs for the physically handicapped who, impartial surveys have shown, become superior employees when placed on jobs that utilize their abilities;

And further, we urge unemployed physically handicapped persons to register with the Mississippi State Employment Service which will refer to vocational rehabilitation agencies those who are in need of medical and/or vocational training prior to entering the labor market and to employers those who are ready for entry.

And we further urge all employees to place all their job orders with the Mississippi State Employment Service so that disabled veterans and other handicapped workers may be given an opportunity to prove their value in productive and self-respecting jobs.

BENEFIT BOX SUPPER

The horse and mule population on American farms has steadily declined since 1935, while the number of tractors has increased just as steadily during the same period. More than three million tractors now in use on the nation's farms represent a 186 per cent increase since 1935. This is just another factor in the ever-increasing use of oil products to produce more food.

POPULAR MISSISSIPPI COAST COMING BACK BIGGER, BETTER

The Mississippi Gulf Coast, popular summer playground for Mississippians and a winter spa for northern and eastern tourists, is building back bigger and better less than a year after the hurricane which struck with devastating force last October.

The 75-mile Mississippi coastal area, which has been variously described as "The Silver Strand" and "America's Riviera", has enjoyed an excellent summer tourist season, according to Coast hotel men, despite "off-season business" reported at other resort areas in the nation.

The scars of the storm have been almost completely removed and modern restaurants, freshly painted and decorated hotels and tourists courts, service stations and a new double lane highway near Biloxi give promise for a "bigger and better" Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Proposed plans for construction of a 200-foot wide sand beach along the Coast to protect the world's longest step-type seawall is expected to provide needed bathing facilities which most Coast citizens believe will make Mississippi's seacoast area one of the most popular vacation areas in the United States. Sand for this project would be pumped from offshore, which at the same time will deepen the swimming area and eliminate the necessity for piers now jutting out to deep water.

Construction of a 300-foot sand beach between Gulfport and Biloxi by pumping sand from off shore would deepen water and provide better swimming facilities for the coast. This picture shows how shallow water is several hundred feet off shore.

The recently organized Gulf Coast Council, composed of representatives of the "seven cities by the sea", is currently conducting an advertising and promotion program designed to attract both tourists and industries.

And individual cities are working to attract their share of the lucrative tourist business, which is expected to increase following improvements now underway.

The importance of the Gulf Coast as a vacationland has been evident to natives since Pierre le Moyne d'Iberville established the first colony near what is now Biloxi in 1699.

New Orleans people as early as 1800 were coming to the Mississippi Gulf Coast to escape the yellow fever epidemics so prevalent in those days. Long before the War between the States, wealthy planters from upper Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama made their summer homes on the Coast because it was cooler than on their upland plantations. But only in recent years have northern and eastern tourists discovered it, probably because of the absence of paved highways before then.

This is a familiar scene along the Gulf Coast, where weekly regattas are held over the Biloxi course, considered one of the finest in the world. The sheltered waters of the Mississippi Coast area give sailing enthusiasts the advantage of comparatively calm waters.

There are many factors which contribute toward making the Mississippi Coast a popular resort.

One of its outstanding advantages is the fact that vegetation along the water's edge is profuse and green the year-around, instead of withered and sea shrunk, and thus offers inviting sites for summer homes which line the Gulf from Bay St. Louis to Ocean Springs.

U. S. 90, the Old Spanish Trail, which follows the water's edge, passes through the oldest white settlements in the lower Mississippi River Valley, and here the visitor may find the color and tone of the Old World and the Old South.

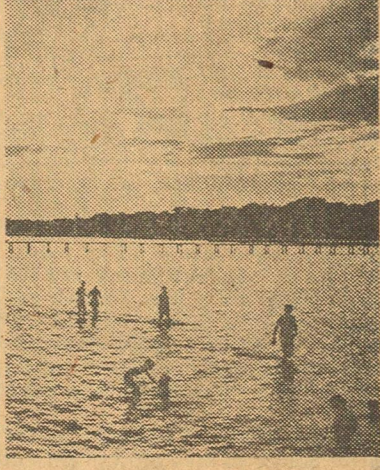

Chandeleur Islands might well be considered the Coast's most valuable piece of real estate, according to authorities. For this broken sand strip, 23 miles long, runs north and south at right angles to Mississippi's offshore islands, and thus makes Chandeleur Sound a happy grazing ground for migratory fish.

Enormous schools of kingfish, Spanish mackerel, lemon fish, crevalle, bonito, dolphin, tarpon and others funnel north in the spring to the Mississippi Coast through this inviting Chandeleur Sound corridor. As a result Mississippi's shores offer excellent salt water fishing from May to early November.

In addition to its many natural advantages, here the traveler may find the most excellent seafood available in the South, and modern hotel and tourist court accommodations to fit any pocketbook.

Sailing, boating, golfing, horseback riding and any other type of seaside recreation one might expect to find in the most luxurious resort can be enjoyed on Mississippi's Gulf Coast.

For complete relaxation, the Gulf Coast is hard to beat. This peaceful scene, taken from the broad veranda of one of the Coast's modern hotels, is typical of the restful atmosphere to be found along Mississippi's Riviera.

Every hotel, tourist court and home along the Coast has its private pier where visitors and residents alike spend a greater part of their waking hours.

THE restraint shown by the people of the southern tier under the deliberate goading of Henry Wallace is a reproach to the manners of the rabble of the cities up North.

The southern people, contrary to the slanders of a small element of envious inferiors in the City of New York, are, day by day, the politest that we have. Their superficial manners are pretty and almost fearsome as they mask an alacrity to fight for cause, and their patience is seen to be majestic under dire provocation.

The conduct of these maligned but superior citizens in the presence of the drooling mountebank who howled for war but cowered in Washington while sapling boys from the high school campus were mangled overseas, was an honor to their civilization.

In a comparable situation in the Bronx, the intruder would have been beaten to death but for the strong intervention of the New York police. And they would have saved him only to suffer the bigotry of some Pilate who would have stretched an ear to the mob outside and packed him off to prison for inciting riot.

The fact that Wallace is a candidate for president should not be a shield. If a man shall run for president as an advocate of some vilest and religious sense of a given community, the importance of the office will intensify the opposition.

IN HIS SOUTHERN CAMPAIGN, BUBBLEHEAD HAS IGNORED THE ISSUE OF TREASON THROUGH COMMUNISM AND ADVOCATED OUTRAGEOUS VIOLATIONS OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS OF THE STATES AND THEIR CITIZENS AND OF LOCAL SENSIBILITIES AND CUSTOM.

For ulterior reasons, principally treason or a milder form of treason amounting to a lingering, disappointed faith in Russia and in Roosevelt, Wallace commands a minor following in a few eastern cities and, of course, in Hollywood. The southern people, of purer citizenship and incomparably finer loyalty, might have been understood, though not so readily pardoned, had some angry gang tumbled the cops aside and lynched him.

The worst they did, however, was to throw a few eggs and tomatoes and even this harmless protest was the expression of only a few exuberant crackers arbitrarily classified as trash.

The custom of throwing eggs and garden truck at persons who appeal for public favor has dwindled in the years since the Cherry Sisters coyly strung a net from the proscenium, but it was standard practice not so long ago, and never harmful.

No record exists of the death of any Hamlet or candidate from stoning with eggs, cabbage or tomatoes. They were eloquent but harmless. This was sound, native American custom.

The pop bottle, on the other hand, is a deadly missile notorious in the major league cities all of which lie in the northeast quarter of the country. There were episodes in St. Louis, Detroit and Brooklyn, the last-named a stronghold of the Wallace adherence, so dangerous that the baseball industry was obliged to issue paper cups.

THE RUDE NOTE WHICH IS MADE BY THE PURSING OF THE LIPS AND A VIOLENT EXHALATION IS A CULTURAL AND POLITICAL REFINEMENT KNOWN THE WORLD AROUND AS THE BRONX CHEER.

For a comparison let it be agreed that the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, a "nationalist" and, on information and belief, a candidate, like Wallace, for president of the United States, were to venture similarly into the centers of the strongest emotional opposition.

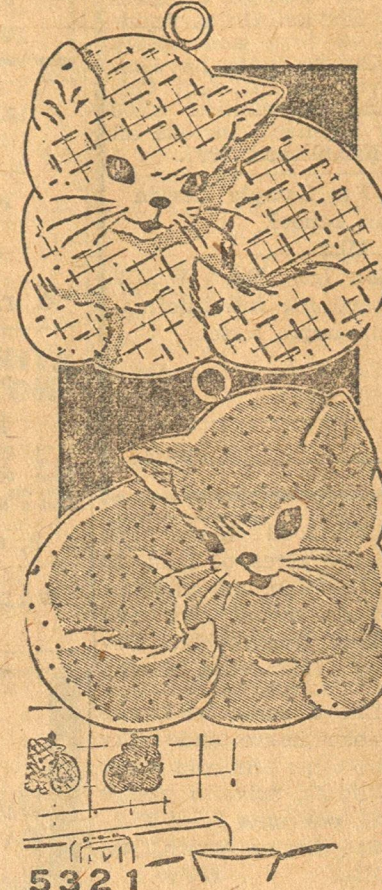

Parson Smith is an orator of enormous gas and effrontery and, like Wallace, he delights to stir them up. He is said to be a Jew-baiter. His distrust of most any other people seems almost as wild, and he is a frantic enemy of communism.

His arguments and assertions would be no more unreasonable or untruthful than Bubblehead's have been.

Yet if he did try to emulate Wallace here the steady, highly civilized northern people would riot and might burn down most of a couple of big cities. Not to put a pretty look upon it, Smith would be lynched for trying to exercise his constitutional right to speak his mind.

Farmers' Exports
Nearly all of the farmers who operate the more than 150,000 farms in Kansas grow one or more crops for export and benefit directly from foreign trade, according to a United States State Department report.

The report cites Cuba's importance as a purchaser of this country's farm and other products and comments that under the stimulus of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements program, Cuba's imports of wheat flour from the United States increased from $2,935,000 in 1933 to $5,383,000 in 1938, or about 83 per cent.

Tea Table Chatter

BY TINA

Tina turns thoughtfully to the typewriter today, mind meandering over myriad pleasant moments of the past week—highlights of course being the "big party" The Commercial Appeal and its brilliant, goodlooking and gracious editor, Frank Ahlgren put on for "country editors—from the moment of our arrival, C.A. personnel hovered around with note books, flash bulbs and newspapered paraphernalia, that made us not only feel at home, but gave us the thrill of being the interviewed and photographed, instead of the man at work—and of COURSE I was startled when that photographer flashed us, from right down at the floor—wait until you have YOUR picture taken at such a time! We preened with pride and some sort of "now the table is turned" emotion, when we found ourselves right up there in Monday's issue of the South's greatest newspaper—Tina was most thrilled over the more than "how-do-you-do" visit with Paul Flowers, Greenhouse columnist on the paper—found him a great big, pleasant, boyish man, who makes no attempt to display all the ability, philosophy, and wholesomeness, which one finds in his column—Incidentally, his book reviews in Sunday's paper are among the best and most readable found anywhere—"Parson" Teague is another C. A. writer who captivated Tina with his mental agility, sharp but kindly humor, and ease in private conversation—Sitting with such notables as Gov. McCord, Mayor Pleasants, Rep. Cliff Davis, Commissioner Hale and many others, Tina thought most of Mr. Ahlgren and his top-ranking editorship—does one so much good to see the man who is right at the head of the list, in one's chosen field—The fair was wonderful—Tina hadn't been to that fair since 1921, just before moving to Florida—It has grown amazingly, and exhibits were the finest—The Women's building provided us with refreshments, a style show, good music, and in the "hobbies" booth, two collections of little cups that thrilled this collector, and put right beside them, Tina's cups would glow without apology—The luncheon and supper were events of enthusiastic enjoyment—Newspapers in this area are fortunate to have this annual opportunity, not only to be guest of such fine entertainment, and broaden one's acquaintance in the field—Enroute we stopped off at Collierville, where Tina satisfied a several year old desire to meet Jean Anderson, daughter of the publisher of the Collierville Herald, Tom Anderson, who is stepping into literary fame already, and she is just a wisp of a girl, fresh out of college—writing two columns for their paper, she covers a lot of ground, and does it well! One of the tributes to her ability came last month, when she was guest columnist for Paul Flowers, her column getting mention in papers all over this area—It was a big day, a fine fair, a choice group, and a time to file away in the memory—Now here's news of the folks you know—Across the table at the Peabody lunch, was Edgar Bailey, one time student of Iuka Normal, and a director of the Tri-state fair for thirty eight years!—He was a darling, and Tina and Mr. Bailey had such fun during that meal, talking Iuka—I suspect that back there, he was a gallant and good looking lad, and when he talked of Laura Hammerly (Copeland) there was a brightness in his eyes, that told Tina lots! I told him how pretty she is now, and he told me how pretty she used to be!—In the mail comes such a nice letter from Mr. Elam R. Smith way up in Portland, Ore., and he talks of old friends—the Morgan family, and their youth together—Wished he might have been at the INI reunion, where he also attended—he mentions Talmadge Reid, and says he'd like to have a card from all the "old school mates"—I'll bet they come along, Mr. Smith—Hazel Todd, who lives in Atlanta, is recuperating from an appendectomy, and doing fine—D. S. Daugherty is remaining in the Vet's hospital in Memphis, for further treatment—we're all so happy that L. D. didn't lose that arm—David Kimberly has re-entered the Army Air Corps and O. C. Nelson has done the same thing. Can't give you locations yet, but will soon—And now if you'll pardon me, I'll slip quietly from the tea table, and just as quietly sit down in front of that open fire at our house, pick up the needle point and laboriously, and with determination, continue to work minute squares in what seems an endless area, but we'll serve the tea hot next week, and with gorgeous fall leaves painting our world in the brilliant hues of October, we'll chatter about the world's biggest interest, you and me!

MISSISSIPPI PUBLIC HEALTH PROGRAM UNDER WORLD OBSERVATION

The public health program in Mississippi is considered one of the outstanding in the nation not only by leaders in the United States but also by foreign countries. This is indicated by the large number of health workers from other countries who are sent to Mississippi to observe the public health program in action. From June 1 to August 30 of this year, seven foreign physicians were given an orientation to public health in this state. Colombia, the Dominican Republic ment'll take care of you" idea has permeated the land. This in face of the fact that in a free, democratic nation, the government has never had any money and never will have any money not first provided by the people themselves back home.

It is still a fundamental fact that a man's success is largely determined by his own efforts. This principle was rather well implied in the answer an old Negro gave to a white friend passing by who, looking over into the garden which the old Negro had made on what had once been a rather dilapidated corner lot in the city, said, "Mose, that sure is a fine garden you and the Lord have over there." "Yes suh, boss, it sho is," Mose replied. "But," he added reflectively, "you ought'a seen it when the Lord had 'it by hisself."

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER
by W. F. Bond, Commissioner

Every day brings a good many letters from our Congressmen and the Governor's office from persons wanting help from the welfare department. While these officials are in sympathy with all citizens in need of assistance and have done everything they could to provide the funds to help the needy aged, needy blind and needy children, they have absolutely no authority under Federal and State laws in determining who shall get help.

All applications have to be made to the county welfare office of the county in which the applicant lives, a visit has to be made to the home of the applicant, and all of the records in the case brought before the county welfare board of the county for consideration at its regular monthly meeting.

and Manila were represented in this group. County health departments cooperating with the State Board of Health in this training program were Coahoma Rankin, Sunflower and Forrest. The following physicians were in the state: Dr. Jose Gutierrez, Columbia; Dr. Jacob Antonio Alvarez, Dominican Republic; Dr. Rosita Sison, Manila; Dr. Trinidad Gomez, Manila; Dr. Catalina Garcia, Manila; Dr. Prudencia B. Calubaquib, Manila; and Dr. Fernando Francisco.

They returned to their respective countries on August 30.

MARINES SEEKING QUALIFIED MEN FOR QUOTA

Tupelo, Miss. 16 Sept. - The Marines are still looking for well qualified young men for volunteer enlistments for 3 or 4 years according to M. Sgt. T. G. Shepperd, Non-Commissioned Officer in Charge of the Marine Recruiting Station here in Tupelo.

In an interview today, M. Sgt. Shepperd said that, although the Marine Corps quota is small when contrasted with the quotas of the other services, the Marines are still depending upon voluntary enlistments to keep the Corps at its authorized peace time strength.

"Our smaller quota allows us to maintain very high standards for enlistment," M. Sgt. Shepperd said. "When the quota for one month is filled, we build up a waiting list for the next month."

M. Sgt. Shepperd added that the selective service act has resulted in a large number of high type young men applying for enlistment. As a result, the Marines are accepting only the best.

HIGHWAY PATROL ENFORCE
DIMMING OF LIGHTS

Colonel T. B. Birdsong states that while a number of arrests have been made for people who fail to dim lights, we are getting a lot of complaints that a number of our motorists are failing to dim their lights on meeting another car. Says Birdsong further, "I can see no reason why any motorist would fail to dim his lights upon meeting another vehicle, both from the standpoint of his own safety and that of others. This is a very dangerous practice and must be stopped."

"I also ask that all cars have two headlights and one tail light and that all commercial vehicles have the necessary lighting equipment; also each person requested to see that they have good brakes and good steering gear, and a good windshield wiper on their vehicle.

"We have had a number of serious accidents recently caused by people failing to dim their lights and also we find a number of cars on the highways where the beam of the headlights is on the dimmer regardless of whether the dimmer switch is on or not, ask and urge that all drivers check their lights and see that they are in good working condition."

Instructions are going out all patrolmen to put special emphasis on this violation.

1948 MISSISSIPPI ALABAMA FAIR AND DAIRY SHOW BIGGEST IN HISTORY

Television Display To Be Featured At Tupelo, Oct. 5 - 9

Tupelo, Miss. The 41st exposition of the Mississippi-Alabama Fair and Dairy Show which begins on October 5 will be "tops" in entertainment and exhibits, J. M. (Ikey) Savery, president of the Fair Association, said today.

A highlight of the five-day exposition will be Tupelo's and Mississippi's first television display, a $100,000 mobile unit that will permit visitors to the exhibit to view and hear on the television screen all the color and noise of the other shows and exhibits. A visitor to the television exhibit may "tour" the entire Fair grounds via the video screen.

Almost all of the exhibit spaces have been taken and apparently a record breaking number of entries are due in the community booths, Home demonstration, 4-H Club, culinary, floral commercial and other exhibits.

DAIRY SHOW IS TOPS

There will be more than 500 entries in the State Dairy Shows both Junior and Open, making this the largest show of its kind in the United States. The Beef Show will include all breeds of national importance, and the Swine Show, which includes the State Duroc Jersey Sow and Auction, will surpass all previous swine shows held in Mississippi. Over 150 entries have already been received. Entries in the livestock show to date already exceed past records. The poultry show will be so large that additional room and more coops are being acquired.

Nearly every known make of implement and tractor will be shown by the manufacturers and local dealers. The Tennessee Valley Authority will present an electrical display. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will occupy one whole side of the Agriculture Building, together with the U. S. Department of Commerce.

BIG REVUE BOOKED

In front of the three grandstands, seating almost 10,000, Ernie Young's State Fair Revue will perform. This grandstand show is by far the largest and most elaborate ever to visit Tu

North America needs more waterfowl - for more hunters - fast. We could add 20 million birds to our supply of winged game at once claims Lt. Col. Ed Russenholt, well known waterfowl authority. That is, we could add 20 million birds if we could make up our minds to shoot coot - and like it.

The coot, or whitebill, mud duck or moor hen (we are discussing the American coot, Fulica americana, not the big sea ducks), whatever name you know it by, is an outcast among waterfowl. Nobody likes him, man or bird. We'll admit he is a villainous old varmint.

But believe it or not, to "shoot the coot" takes about as nice timing and swing as any other winged target; and he's good eating. Many hunters compare the meat with that of the finest duck.

The whitebill is readily identified in the field. About as big as a medium sized duck, the coot sits on the water, not in it as a duck does. The bird is an even, dark slate gray color with the head and neck darkening to almost black. It has white under-tail coverts, and the familiar white bill.

White bills inhabit marshes and open waters over a big chunk of North America. The nest is a haphazard affair of grass, reeds and rushes, usually built off the ground. Eggs are buff-colored, sprinkled with brown spots. Eight to a dozen make up the clutch.

The young are very hardy, a big percentage seem to survive the predation, drought and fire which destroys such tremendous numbers of ducks and geese. In late fall the birds migrate slowly down south moving almost wholly at night. The U. S.

pelo. It will consists of a troupe of about 100 people including 20 beautiful girls in the chorus special dancers, singers, comedians, specialty acts, thrill acts, revolving stage, beautiful scenery and its own orchestra.

ON THE MIDWAY

Hennies Brothers Shows will provide the Midway entertainment. This carnival is one of the three biggest in the business traveling on 50 railroad cars with more than 40 new and modern rides and shows, with special prices prevailing on Children's Day, Wednesday, October 6.

Fish and Wildlife Service estimates there are 20 million of them on this continent. These 20 million birds will promptly become gunners' meat if hunters will learn the simple, easy methods of preparing whitebill.

First, don't try to pluck whitebill. Just split the skin along the breastbone. Peel it back. Make sure all fat goes off with the hide. Take out the breast and legs-and you've got the meat. You can soak the meat in soda or salt water, but it isn't necessary. Skinned coot has no strong or unpleasant odor. Roll the meat in flour or crumbs, place in a frying pan with bacon fat or lard, cover the pan, and cook. There are, of course, many fancy recipes for preparing the meat; but plain or fancy, a platter of delicious whitebill is food fit for the gods of hunting.

Facts on Old Folks Home

There are a good many old people who when they are no longer able to take care of themselves find that they are really not welcome in any home of their relatives or former friends. Several years ago the good women of Jackson and other persons about over the state established a home for homeless old women here in Jackson. Today there are 80 old women enjoying the last years of their lives in the Old Ladies' Home.

The old men were not quite so fortunate. However with the cooperation of civic clubs, Board of Supervisors, churches, Sunday Schools, and other organizations and private individuals there is now a beautiful, commodious home for homeless old men near Madison in Madison County, with 83 residents.

These institutions are private, organizations working under a charter from the state. They are supported largely by persons who feel that they are their brother's keeper and who try to do something about it.

DR. MITCHELL GREET'S LARGEST MISS. STUDENT ENROLLMENT

State College, Miss. - Greeting the largest student body ever enrolled at any college in Mississippi, Dr. Fred T. Mitchell, president of Mississippi State College, spoke at the first student assembly of the year here this week.

"As Mississippi State begins its 69th year of operation, the college is doing its best to provide its students with a strong faculty, with adequate classroom libraries, and laboratories; with a good program of student activities and recreation, and with abundant opportunities for spiritual guidance and religious life," President Mitchell said.

He predicted that construction would begin on the new million-dollar library before January, and on the new gymnasium about the same date. He discussed the delays encountered in completing the golf course because of difficulties in obtaining water pipe and peat moss. He said that the contractors had agreed to have at least three sections of the new east-side stadium ready for use in time for the Alabama game, and the rest of it by the end of the year. Approximately 36,000 seats will be available at Scott Field when this east section of the stadium is completed.

President Mitchell commented on the tough football schedule facing the Maroons, and on the relocation of the dairy, the poultry, and the hog farms. He said that plans are progressing on the new animal husbandry and agricultural engineering buildings. He expressed hope that a way could soon be found to build an annex to the Engineering Building.

He complimented Peyton Alexander of Hattiesburg, president of the student Association, for establishing a Student Association office in the main dormitory, and pledged him the cooperation of the administration in improving the student government set-up.

Although none were in use in 1941, by 1947 there were 10,000 self-propelled combines in operation on American farms. These combines were one of the many innovations during the war years that have made the farm a major factor in today's ever growing use of oil.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Indian Troops Invade Hyderabad, Endanger Country's Shaky Peace; Russia Confuses Crisis in Berlin

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

INVASION: Hyderabad

Events in India were a far cry from the days when Mohandas Gandhi's philosophy of passive diplomacy prevailed among the affairs of that sub-continent.

Indian troops, strongly supported by armored units, had invaded the princely state of Hyderabad (see map) whose Moslem ruler—called the Nizam—had refused to join with the other Indian dominions even though Hyderabad's population is predominantly Hindu.

THAT WAS THE whole story. The Nizam and his small, compact Moslem court would not agree to follow the other Indian princely states in acceding to the Dominion of India which was established last year.

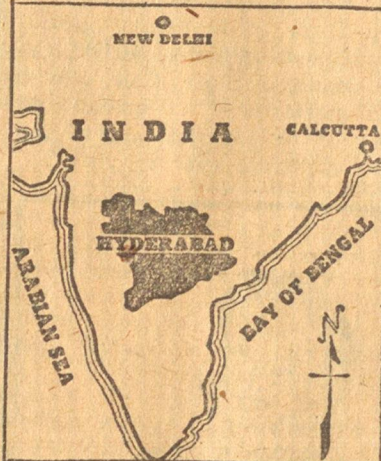

The Nizam, often called the richest man in the world, and the only surviving heir of the great Mogul empire, wanted to rule an independent Hyderabad.

Whether he could have succeeded in doing that, even if the dominion government had not opened hostilities against him, is questionable. Hyderabad is completely landlocked and has no access to the sea except by courtesy of the states surrounding it. All of its imports and exports, therefore, must pass through India.

WHILE HYDERABAD might profess its independence as a state, chances are that the economic and political conditions of actual independence never could be achieved.

Can India's invasion of Hyderabad be justified? Not too easily, if at all. It was not a matter of sending a police force into the state to quell internal disorders. It was, apparently, a deliberate act of aggression and as such should go before the U. N. security council for judgment.

From a practical standpoint there was not only no need for the invasion but there is an actual danger involved. There are no linguistic or racial differences between Hyderabad's Hindus and the Hindus of adjacent states. The boundaries of Hyderabad are arbitrary and historical, not dependent upon the geography of the vicinity.

INDIA MIGHT well have refrained from pushing the issue for a year or two, pending a peaceful settlement.

The potential danger lies in two phases of the situation:

1. THE HYDERABAD war might prove to be the factor that will precipitate violent conflict between Hindu and Moslem Pakistan, whose more or less peaceful relations now are strained and uneasy.

2. IT IS A BLOW to the British Commonwealth, to which both India and Pakistan still belong. With the Russians acting the way they are, any disturbance of the delicate balance of power that still prevails in the East could bring still another catastrophe down upon the world.

RUSSIANS:

Fantastic

Not even the most starry-eyed Pollyanna could deny that the U. S.-Soviet fracas over Berlin was downright fantastic and getting more so every day.

The whole thing simply had stopped making sense, even to many of the diplomats who were embroiled in the situation.

WHAT CHANCE was there for any logical kind of peace when, even while western diplomats were in Moscow attempting to work out a formula with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, the Russians in Berlin were inciting riots, kidnapping western sector policemen and firing on American planes engaged in the air-lift?

One complication was being piled on top of another, with the ensuing result that any possibility of a peace-

The Last Mogul

Sir Mir Osman Ali Khan, sometimes called the richest man in the world, is the Nizam of Hyderabad, land-locked princely state in India which was attacked by India's dominion troops.

ful solution was getting buried deeper and deeper.

That all this confusion was being fostered deliberately by the Soviets was quite evident. Their purpose for so doing was more obscure.

THE RUSSIANS want full control of Berlin, taking that as their immediate objective. Ultimately they want to force American occupation troops completely out of Germany, after which Russia could take over the great German industrial potential, including the inestimably valuable Ruhr section.

However, there might be still another reason for this display of Soviet diplomatic aggression which was planned almost a year ago to erupt this fall.

The Russians might be trying to harass the western nations to the point where the entire Berlin issue will be dumped in the lap of the United Nations. Once the crisis comes under U. N. jurisdiction the Russians might plan to use the inevitable squabble as a pretext for resigning from the world organization and taking their satellite states with them.

THE EAST-WEST split into two opposing power spheres then would be complete. Moreover, the U. N. itself probably would be reduced to total impotency in guiding international affairs.

And the question of whether the Soviet Union is entertaining motives like these might be answered by the end of the year. For the western nations were determined that if they didn't get some satisfaction from Moscow soon they would arraign Russia before the United Nations this fall.

COTTON:

Lift Dat Bale

With the largest cotton crop since 1937 being harvested this year, Uncle Sam is making ready to stage a comeback in the cotton buying business.

Of the 15,219,000 bales to come off the land, the cotton trade estimates that about a third will go into storage under federal loan.

TWENTY-ONE MILLION people in the United States depend on cotton for their livelihood, and the fate of the cotton crop, therefore, is not only a personal but a national concern.

The federal government is coming into the picture because cotton prices are coming down. They have reached 31.04 cents a pound, which is pretty close to the support floor of 30.74 cents.

Here's what happens:

WHEN THE COTTON grower hauls his crop to the warehouse he gets a receipt for it, and then he either sells the cotton at the market price or accepts the government's standing offer to lend him money on it.

If he chooses to accept the loan, he is paid 30.74 cents a pound on the average—the exact price depending on the kind and quality of the cotton.

Then he is free, for one year, to sell the cotton for more money, provided the price goes up. If he doesn't sell it within a year the government becomes owner of the crop.

PROBABLE EFFECT of this operation will be to keep a lot of cotton off the market this year, thus preventing the price from dropping through the support floor. Also, it will result in the government's ending the year with several million bales of cotton on its hands.

Russia Is Well Supplied With Manpower

Russia and the Soviet satellites are appallingly well supplied with manpower for military purposes, according to official estimates in Washington.

In Soviet Russia alone there exists a tremendous reservoir of able-bodied men for land armies. Best estimates indicate the existence of 175 divisions of Russian ground force and security troops, embodying a total of three million men and including about 400,000 MVD security troops.

Eight Soviet satellite states are reputed to be able to muster a total of about 100 divisions of 1,121,600 men. That makes a grand total of 4,121,600 soldiers in 274 divisions, many of whom are deployed at or near the point at which war conceivably could start.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: We have just emptied the last gallon from our 50-gallon range-oil drum, and the drum seems to be full of rust. Is there any way to clean this out before we have it refilled?

ANSWER: I believe the lower inside part of the drum has probably corroded. If you do not wish to buy a new one, you might consider having the lower part cut out and a new piece welded on. After opening up the drum it can be cleaned out thoroughly before welding on the new piece.

QUESTION: I have a pair of wrought iron candlesticks. I have just removed a coat of shiny black enamel from them. Now what is the correct, dull black paint or finish to use on them?

ANSWER: First wipe with benzine to remove all traces of whatever kind of remover you used to take off the old finish. Be careful of fire when using benzine. Finish the pieces with a flat black paint intended for metal surfaces; the better stocked paint stores sell this paint.

Higher starting pay coupled with an unprecedented demand for college graduates by business and industry, disavow any popular belief that the market value of a college degree has been on a downgrade, reports John P. Kirwood believes that this demand for college-trained personnel will continue for at least three years—and probably longer—despite the increasing size of each new graduating class.

MISSISSIPPI

OIL AND GAS Views

by Jack Hancock

Since Mississippi's new five-member State Oil and Gas Board was authorized, appointed and organized in the last few months, it has become recognized as one of the outstanding groups of conservation executives. All of its members are drawn from business within the state, and "started from scratch" in the job of laying down and then enforcing, rules for "the prevention of waste," and for the discovery and orderly production of the state's newest source of wealth. Most of these five are well known throughout the state; each is well known as a leader in his own area. In order that you may know their background, here is a quick sketch of each.

James McClure of Sardis, an attorney, is chairman of the board. He was one of the three members appointed by Governor Wright, getting a six year term. Born in 1894, Jim attended upstate schools and Millsaps College, then went to Ole Miss for his A. B. and L. B. degrees—and has been one of the University's strongest boosters ever since. After serving in the First World War, he began his mother was a native of Attala County. Mr. Will was born in Florida; his mother, while a student at the old Lewis school in Oxford met Charles Leonard from Memphis and married him. They moved to Florida, but when Will was five years old, his father died and his mother returned to Kosciusko with her three sons and taught in the city schools there for 30 years—every man now in business there can lay claim to having been taught by her. After Will completed school, he went at once into business for himself—44 years ago; his store celebrated its 44th anniversary last month, as the oldest business in town continuously under the same management, the W. C. Leonard and Co. Department Store. In addition to being president of the store, he finds time to be a director in the Merchants and Farmers Bank, the Central Mississippi Wholesale Grocery Co., Kosciusko Warehouse and Co., Kosciusko Building and Loan Association. He is an elder in the Presbyterian Church, vice-president of the Rotary Club, past president of the Kosciusko Chamber of Commerce, law practice in Charleston, but two years later he moved to Sardis and has practiced there ever since. He is a past president of the University of Mississippi Alumni Association, and has served as a member of the board of trustees of higher learning—better known as the college board, which governs all state-owned colleges. He is vice-president of The Bank of Sardis, member of the Methodist Church, Kappa Alpha fraternity and the Masonic Lodge. An acknowledged leader and accomplished executive, he was the unanimous choice of the board for chairman, and his fairness in handling hearings before the board is already gaining state-wide recognition.

Hugh White of Columbia, who says "put me down as a lumberman," was appointed by Governor Wright for a four year term. Born at McComb in 1881, he graduated from St. Thomas Hall at Holly Springs, and attended Ole Miss. When his family moved to Columbia, he became interested in civic affairs there—as well as a flock of varied business enterprises—and served several terms as mayor. He became interested in finding jobs for families of woodsmen the timber was cut out, and through this started the program to "Balance Agriculture With Industry" in Mississippi. After notable success in his own area, he was elected governor (1936-40) and inaugurated the BAWI program on the state level—and is serving as a member of the governing board. Although he dropped out of state affairs, officially, after his term as governor, he was unanimously elected to the legislature from Marion County for the 1944-48 term. In addition to serving on the BAWI (now the A. and I.) Board, he serves also on the State Building Commission, which he also inaugurated as governor, and currently is known as the "balance wheel" of this set-up which will spend $26,000,000 for buildings and repairs and improvements at state owned institutions in the next two years. For personal activity, he still runs a lumber mill and several lumber yards and looks after business holdings in Columbia, where his home is one of South Mississippi's show places. He finds time to serve on the board of trustees of Belhaven College, is an active Presbyterian, a Mason, Rotarian and member of Delta Psi fraternity. He was awarded a Doctor of Laws degree by Southwest University at Memphis in 1934, and has quite a collection of other honorary awards and trophies.

HUGH WHITE

Vice Chairman of the Board is W. C. Leonard, Kosciusko, who is known to most of central Mississippi as "Mr. Will." Although his trustee of French Camp Academy—and understandingly was awarded the "Outstanding Citizen" trophy in 1944 for Community service. On the national level, he is a vice-president of the American Retailers Association, has served on the Democratic Executive Committee and is currently a member of the steering committee of the States' Rights Democratic organization. If "Mr. Will" takes his new board duties in stride, you can easily understand how he would. Incidentally, Governor Wright appointed him to serve a two-year term.

William H. (Billy) Maynard of Clarksdale was appointed to a four year term by Attorney General Greek L. Rice, under whom he served as assistant attorney general from 1933 to 1937. Billy was born in Clarksdale in 1905; after attending public schools there he received his A. B. and L. B. degrees from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., and has practiced law in Clarksdale continuously since 1928, except for the period when he moved to Jackson to serve in the attorney general's office. He has been for several years city attorney of the city of Clarksdale. Billy is a member of the board of stewards of the Methodist Church and an active Mason.

Walter G. Johnson, Jr., of Jackson, is the youngest member of the board, and is fast becoming one of the state's outstanding young business men through his efforts as general manager and co-owner of the Jackson Daily News. He was appointed to the board by Lieutenant Governor Sam Lumpkin for a four year term. He was born in Jackson in 1918; after attending public schools, he attended Staunton (Va.) Military Academy; Braden School in New York City and Ole Miss, going then into the Army Air Corps at the start of the recent war. As one of the early fighter pilots, he put in 18 months of action in the South Pacific, and when sent home for a "rest period" and a commission teaching fledgling pilots, he volunteered for more action when the European invasion started. After six months of intensive fighting, he was shot down and spent 13 months as a German prisoner of war. Immediately upon his return from the Army, he became associated with the Daily News, of which his father was one of the founders and business manager; Walter served as assistant manager during the long and finally fatal illness of his father and then took over as general manager. He is active in Jackson civic and veterans' affairs, a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity and of the Baptist Church, and has served as a member of the Mississippi Aeronautics Commission.
