Poultry and Corn Show Saturday, Oct. 20, 1951

The 4-H Poultry Club boys of Tishomingo, county are planning a Poultry Show on Saturday, October 20, 1951, at 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The show will be held in the Dexter building next door to the health department.

Last spring Sears Robuck and company gave 1,000 top quality chicks to be placed with ten 4-H club members. Each member received 100 chicks. The members to receive the chicks were selected by Mr. T. K. Marlin, who was assistant county agent. The 4-H club members agreed to grow the chicks and return 15 pullets in October and these pullets were to be shown and then sold at auction. The money received from the sale of these pullets is to be used to buy chicks for ten more boys and girls next year.

The chicks furnished by Sears Robuck and company are of the New Hampshire Reds variety, one of the best breeds produced today. Some of the pullets to be shown are already laying eggs. This is a wonderful opportunity for anyone interested in obtaining a good strain of chickens for their flock to make good purchases at their own price. The auction is to be held at one o'clock Saturday afternoon.

VETERANS OWE LEGION A DEBT

Veterans of World War II have established an enviable reputation as good risks under the loan provisions of the G. I. Bill of Rights. They pay their obligations and on time!

But there is one big debt that millions of them have overlooked! Perhaps they have never thought of it! Perhaps it has never been called to their attention! But it is a debt of gratitude which they owe nevertheless.

The veterans of World War II and of the Korean conflict are the beneficiaries of the most generous readjustment and rehabilitation provisions ever made by any Nation anywhere, anytime! Just look:

13,201,829 World War II veterans drew mustering out pay! 10,644,495 got terminal leave pay! 8,216,034 drew unemployment compensation! 7,499,013 got schooling or on-the-job training under the G. I. Bill! 2,480,490 got loans to buy homes! 140,523 got loans to enter a business of their own! And 61,319 got loans to purchase farms!

In addition uncounted thousands got the finest medical care, pensions and allowances for their dependents!

Many veterans have accepted one or more of these benefits as a natural function of the government in looking after their needs.

But these benefits, these rights and these privileges didn't just happen! They had to be fought for and labored for, bitterly and unceasingly by somebody. That somebody was and is the American Legion!

It has always stood on the firing line of veterans' legislation as the kindly and unselfish grandfather of all men and women who wore the Nation's fighting uniform in time of war.

War veterans who have benefited as a result of The American Legion's loyal efforts in their behalf, should be appreciative and join your nearest American Legion Post.

The least an eligible veteran who has received a college education or bought a home or drawn an unemployment check under the provisions of the G. I. Bill can do is to show his appreciation to the American Legion by becoming its member.

Without the American Legion he would not have had all these advantages!

Join and capitalize the "G.I." in Legion for a stronger and more secure America!

Direct VA Loans Again Available

Under the provisions of Public Law 139, 82nd Congress, the Veterans Administration is again authorized to make certain direct loans to World War II veterans in Mississippi. A direct loan may now be made to an eligible World War II veteran, not to exceed $10,000.00, in those areas where 4 per cent money is not available from lending institutions. These particular loans are available only for the purchase of existing dwellings; the construction of non-farm homes; the improvement of farm homes or the construction of farm homes.

Direct business loans or direct loans for the purchase of farms cannot be made by the VA. Direct loans under this Law are not available in Biloxi, Gulfport, Jackson, Meridian or Vicksburg, or their environs.

In those areas where the Prudential Life Insurance Company is making 4 per cent loans, the VA will not grant a direct loan unless the veterans applicant has a letter from the Prudential Life Insurance Company refusing to make the loan.

If the applicant has at any time in the past used any part of a loan guaranty for any purpose he will not be eligible for a direct loan at this time.

$1,146,000.00 was originally allocated to the VA in Mississippi to be used for these direct loans. Of this amount approximately $600,000.00 remains and is available.

Application forms for direct loans are not provided for general distribution. Each interested veteran should write directly to the Loan Guaranty Division, Veterans Administration Center, Jackson, Mississippi, for the necessary application blanks.

Remember—direct loans from the VA are available for World War II veterans only. World War I veterans and Korean veterans are not eligible.

Negro Minstrel To Be Presented By Lions Club Fri. Night Oct. 19

UNITED NATIONS WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

The Thursday Club is to observe United Nations Week by having Mrs. Minor R. Nixon, United Nations Chairman, at Community Level, as guest speaker at their meeting on October 25. Mrs. Sam Kimberley, Jr., is the Club's U. N. Chairman and is in charge of the program. Mrs. J. H. Allen, Club president, urges all members to be present for this important meeting, which is to be in the home of Mrs. L. F. Carmichael.

In the 8th century B. C., Isaiah prophesied that "Nation shall not lift up sword against Nation!"

In the 6th century B. C. the Council of Greek City-States preserved peace through interstate cooperation.

In the 11th, 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th centuries A. D., there were plans for compulsory arbitration of political disputes, for a World Republic, a World State ruled by a law and "therefore at peace", and an International Parliament.

In the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries there were plans for a Congress of Christian and non-Christian people, a triennial parliament in Europe, a European Union for perpetual peace including arbitration and disarmament, a Congress and a Court of Nations, and the first Hague Conference.

In the 20th century we came to the League of Nations and the World Court of 1920 and then the United Nations in 1945. United States membership in the two former agencies never materialized, but to the United Nations, born in the suffering and destruction of a shooting war, our government is giving full support in many ways.

The American people in 1945 gave enthusiastic support to the foundation of the United Nations in the hope that by united effort the nations might build the kind of world we want to live in. The American people know well that only by cooperation of the free nations can there be any hope of freedom and security.

In six years of hard experience in a world society that is neither at war nor at peace, most of the members of the United Nations have woven these purposes into the very texture of their national policies. In the United Nations the members have differences of opinion as to how best to reach the goals of the organization. They also have the means to iron out their differences and to make their agreement hold good by powerful sanctions of common opinion.

The United Nations represents a decision, a solemn majority decision of the Nations of the World, to settle all future disputes peacefully, to prevent the unjustified use of force and to promote the welfare and freedom of all peoples.

Your heart would have become strongly warmed had you seen the 600 men and women entering a temporary Meditation Room, in the unfinished United Nations Secretariat building in New York City throughout the day Friday, Feb. 9, 1951.

It was inspiring to see through the glass doors of this United Nations Prayer Room-for-a-day. Men and women devotedly in prayer. Some knelt, some sat with bowed heads, a few stood. Many read their Bible or devotional book. One devout follower of an Indian faith sat in meditation on the floor. Seven men and women of another Eastern faith recited their prayers on rugs spread for their convenience.

Into the meditation room on this World Day of Prayer came Hindus, Moslems, Quakers, Anglicans, Greek Orthodox and Roman Catholics, Sisters of the Order of St. Margaret, and other religious societies, Jews, Christian Scientists, Latter Day Saints and Christians of every well-known Protestant denomination. Also there came Salvation Army officers, representatives of Babai Camps Farthest Out Unity and other groups.

We are often told that we cannot expect the nations of the world to get together until men and women of faith do. There is great truth in this.

This prayer effort can and must go on. Men and women of faith will see that it does. What tools, then, do we Christians have with which to work constructively toward the peace which "passeth all understanding?"

First, a tenderized conscience which drives us to pray for wisdom, courage and strength so we may become "inlands of calm confidence in a world of turmoil."

Second, a sense of urgency characterized by Jesus as He steadfastly set His face toward Jerusalem.

Third, a sense of companionship in a great venture of faith. God wills peace, there can be no doubt about this.

Prayer for the United Nations

Almighty God, we pray thee to guide thy Holy Spirit in Council and the assembly of the United Nations. Give them a right judgment in all things, and the will to seek not only the welfare of their own people, but the greater good of the security and peace and unity of all mankind, that so thy kingdom may be advanced in the earth, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

BY THE STILL WATERS

Stockwater dams, constructed under the Agricultural Conservation Program, are helping ranchers to make better use of their rangeland. There is less erosion around limited watering places and greater production because more of the range can be used. Better distribution of livestock helps improve the protective cover that conserves both soil and moisture.

Where do you want it?

Newest easy! That derrick and rig may weigh as much as a million pounds. Let's see... No, you just can't plunk it down in the back yard, either. Besides that, if someone delivered an oil well to your front door there would be a matter of spot cash payment to consider. That well carries a C. O. D. tag of, say, $50,000!

That's generally considered a minimum. Cost of drilling an oil well in Mississippi ranges from $50,000 to $200,000 or more. Some producing wells never pay out the cost of drilling. Others are dry holes and never pay a penny. Gulf has drilled 126 dry holes in Mississippi, and the cost of these non-producers represents a large part of the $17,500,000 deficit which Gulf carries on its books for its Mississippi operations.

That $17,500,000 which Gulf has spent in Mississippi beyond its income from oil and gas production represents an expenditure which only a company of Gulf's experience and resources can handle. But more than that, it represents a risk that only a company which has confidence, faith, and a long-term interest in the prosperity of Mississippi would dare to take!

Gulf has that confidence and interest in Mississippi. It has spent over $75,000,000 in payrolls, taxes, purchases, lease and royalty payments and other items necessary to the proper development of Mississippi's oil and gas resources. Today it is one of Mississippi's major industrial organizations and its family of over 7,000 persons joins other far-sighted Mississippians in building a better, more prosperous life for all.

State Dept. of Public Welfare

The welfare department in addition to its regular duties is required by law to perform certain special services, one of which is to cooperate with the Governor, Parole Board and the Superintendent of the State Penitentiary in the matter of prisoners being considered for release under the new parole law. The facts about a would-be employer of a parolee are submitted to the Parole Board for its consideration, indeterminate whether or not such applicant meets the qualifications one should have who is to employ a parolee. Every parolee is required to visit once a month either the sheriff or the county welfare agent of the county to report on how he is getting along for encouragement and advice in his effort to become a good citizen again. The parolee's family and friends are interviewed before he leaves the penitentiary so that he will receive a cordial welcome when he returns home. In fact, everything possible is done to encourage those who have made a mistake to succeed as they attempt to travel the come-back train. A report on every parolee comes to the State Welfare office every month. In August 1951 there were 510 state parolees under supervision and 159 from other states under interstate agreement. It is safe to say that penitentiary affairs are better today from every standpoint than they have been at any time in the past.

Frozen Fruits And Vegetables

Ceiling price regulations for the 1951 packs of frozen fruits and vegetables have been issued by the Office of Price Stabilization to establish equitable ceilings in this comparatively new food field.

Their effect, OPS said, will be slightly higher ceilings at the consumer level, although ceilings for some major frozen vegetables will reflect processing economies that have been made since 1948, the base year used in determining ceilings.

The regulations, CPR 81 for frozen fruits and berries, are similar in many respects to regulations for the canned fruits and vegetable industries. They become effective October 25, 1951, or on an earlier date a packer may select.

Ceiling Rates For Warehouses

The procedure under which warehouses licensed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture may establish their ceiling rates or obtain adjustment of their rates has been simplified by a Supplementary Regulation to CPR 34, effective October 15, 1951.

Until now such warehouses have been required to establish their rates or obtain adjustment of their rates under CPR 34 OPS regulation covering warehouses licensed under the U. S. Warehouse Act.

Under the new Supplementary Regulation, warehouses subject to control by the Department of Agriculture upon obtaining approval by that Department of their proposed rates under the charges. If those rates are not disapproved by OPS, they will become the ceiling rates for such warehouses.

Other Recent Amendments

OPS announces the following amendment to ceiling price regulations: Individuals manufacturing items in their home and whose sales amount to one thousand dollars or less each calendar month are no longer subject to price control. The items concerned however, must be made for the individuals own account without the aid of hired employees. This action was taken in Amendment 10 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation and becomes effective October 13, 1951.

Sales of used machine tools and used machine tools extras have been placed under a new separate ceiling price regulation. This action is covered by OPR 80, effective October 13, 1951.

A further extension of automatic in-line pricing at retail for several groups of consumer goods including pianos, radios, housewares, electrical appliances, luggage and sporting goods is covered by Amendment 10 in Ceiling Price regulation 7. This amendment applies to retailers handling new categories of specified articles not included on their pricing charts. In-line pricing permits these retailers to apply mark-ups derived from comparable categories already listed on

4-H Soil Conservation Projects For 1952

State College, Miss.—Now is the time to begin planning to enter one of the two 4-H Soil conservation projects for 1952, Charlie Ashford, Extension soil conservationist, advised Mississippi 4-H Club members.

The projects are divided into two classifications; one for boys and girls over 14 years old and one for younger club members, he said. This is to prevent the younger boys and girls from having to compete with older youth.

These Soil and Water Conservation projects are advanced in nature and require close cooperation with parents, he pointed out.

Awards to winners in Soil and Water Conservation projects include gold and silver medals; all expense paid trips to state 4-H Club roundup; $25 savings bonds; watches; all expense trips to National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago; and the top prize, a $300 scholarship.

Some of the objectives of the projects are to teach young people to love and protect the soil; to successfully conserve soil and water; to help carry out soil and water conservation plans worked out for his particular farm and to become a solid citizen who will protect the soil and water resources, Mr. Ashford stated.

To those 4-H Club members interested in carrying the Soil and Water Conservation project during 1952, the soil conservationist suggested that they see the local county agent or assistant agent for details.

An amendment to Ceiling Price Regulation 30 gives machinery manufacturers who have not already filed their computations an alternate method of computing materials cost adjustments. This new Ament is effective October 13, 1951.

The list of vegetables covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 55 has been expanded to include practically all canned vegetables and their products. The amendment to OPR 55 is effective October 20, 1951.

In amendment to Ceiling Price Regulation 22 applying to converters, finishers, dyers and throwsters, OPS has added yarns and fabrics made from natural or synthetic fiber or filament to the list of manufacturing materials for which the change in net cost may be calculated up to March 15, 1951.

Operators of business establishments in Mississippi needing information relative to OPS ceiling price regulation should contact the Mississippi District Office in Jackson. The office is located in the Field Furniture Company building at 126 East Amite Street. The telephone number is 5-9351.

Residents Cautioned On Packages Sent Abroad

Tishomingo countians this week received their yearly caution from the United States Department of Commerce not to send gift packages abroad without first familiarizing themselves with the regulations of other countries on the importation of such goods.

The warning came as residents of the county began looking around for Christmas gifts for relatives and friends abroad.

According to Merrill C. Lofton, Commerce Department regional director in Atlanta, just about every country in the world has some kind of regulation on the importation of goods, whether it be Christmas gifts or commercial shipments.

For example, gift packages sent to the Netherlands must not contain more than 1,000 cigarettes. In shipping to Italy, if you label your package "pacco familiare gratuito" it will go duty-free and without the necessity of obtaining an import license. Customs duties and taxes are levied on all articles sent as gifts to the Soviet zone of Germany and Soviet sector of Berlin. "Hundreds of residents in the Southeast including, no doubt, many in Tishomingo county will be shipping packages abroad again this Christmas, and it would be advisable for them first to get in touch with the nearest field office of the U. S. Department of Commerce and ask for regulations covering the shipment of gift packages to these countries. Otherwise, their packages may be held up."

YOU are the one to make the choice as to farmers being organized. No on doubts that we are living in an age of organization. The answer is YES. The time is long past since the question is whether we organize or not and have organized representation.

In this day and age it is a settled fact that farmers are going to be represented. They may be represented by Government agencies and this would not be satisfactory because farmers can't slow down, sit down, or work out because their farm is their livelihood and their life investment and it is a small factory that is owned, operated and managed by the farmer. Once he starts a crop he can't stop until it is harvested or he will be loser. The farmer could be represented by self appointed business groups or political spokesmen and this would not be satisfactory. The only satisfactory and the sound way for farmers to be represented is to organize finance and operate their own organization. This takes money and it takes members who are interested in their own welfare.

The choice as to which method farmers will take is being made very day and will continue to be made in the years ahead. One of our biggest jobs in Farm Bureau is to get our neighbors to stop and study this matter over and to appreciate the value of Farm Bureau as a powerful influence for the good of the farmer. Many folks don't stop to think that all the benefits that farmers have gotten through legislation didn't just happen. Some one had to study and plan and ask the help of Congress and our State Legislature to get farmers a fair show with other groups.

Farmers need organization at all levels of activity. First of all the individual farm family and

During the last twelve months, over one hundred girls in Mississippi suddenly found themselves in serious trouble and in need of a friend. In a situation of this kind, some fall victims of quack or unreliable doctors, some feel that they have reached the end of the road and take their own lives, and some go to questionable institutions where their babies are sometimes, so it is said, sold at a profit.

All of this is unnecessary. Such girls should get in touch with the county welfare office of the county in which they live or with the state welfare office at Jackson, either by visit or letter which will be held in confidence. There is a safe, sane, humane and best way out for there are reliable institutions ready to give every needed service.

its farm operations need to be organized to enable the farmers to deal with problems beyond their individual farms. Many farm problems can be dealt with on a county basis. It is in the county where the farms get together in their Farm Bureau for the purpose of making decisions on what the Farm Bureau programs in the county will be and for making recommendations to the State and National Farm Bureau.

The State Farm Bureau encourages large memberships and strong county Farm Bureaus to help deal with state problems. If we are to strengthen the state Governments, we must have a strong state Farm Bureau to help solve state problems rather than send our problem to Washington to be solved.

On the National level the American Farm Bureau is a Federation of state Farm Bureaus working together to assure a voice for farmers in National affairs. The Farm Bureau is very democratic and is run by and for its members and the voice of the member can be heard.

REMEMBER, that only the voice of the organized is heard. The groups from which we buy are organized. The groups to whom we sell are organized. Legislation is influenced by the organized. The nation is run by those who are organized.

HOME AGENT NOTES

By Imogene Bynum

There's a fad going the rounds that will take some of the pain out of finding a run in your nylons. Just turn them into a corsage to perk up the lapel of your winter suit or the neckline of a dress or blouse.

You will find other uses for these corsages too. Christmas is not too far off. A nylon corsage would make a welcome, useful and attractive gift.

Nylon Corsage

Materials Needed to make nylon corsages are old nylon hose, color remover various colors of dye, copper screen wire, old scissors, floral tape and a corsage pin.

To Make The Corsage, first, remove the color from old hose with color remover. Some hose come out of the color remover in beautiful tones; others will need to be dyed to be attractive.

Cut an 8-inch square of copper wire and crisscross it with the nylon hose. Use crinkled wire for making petal and leaves and straight wire for wrapping petals and leaves.

Holding one end of crinkled wire in one hand, with other hand make petal-shaped loop 1 to 2 inches in height. Wrap end of wire tightly at base of loop.

Cut the nylon in 3-inch squares. Pull square tightly over the petal shaped loop. Twist the plain wire around the base of the petal to hold the nylon in place. Trim off excess nylon below, then continue to twist the wire to make stem wire of desired length. Cut off excess. Five petals will be needed for each blossom you make.

Make the center for the blossom by rolling a tiny piece of nylon between thumb and forefinger. Pull a larger piece of nylon over the ball and wrap it with wire at the base. Place the center at the base of one petal. Arrange the other petals around it. Wire all of the petals together. Wrap the base and stem of the flower with florist tape.

Make leaves exactly the way you make a single petal, except that the shape of the loop in the wire is more oblong and the color is green. Buds are similar to leaves, except the colors are same as the flowers. Arrange the blossoms, leaves and buds as desired. Wire together to hold in place. Cover with florist tape and twist end.

Tension Screening

There is a new type of ready-made screens available now, called "tension screens." There are usually of aluminum. They are put up and made taut by securing them at the top with wing-type fasteners at the bottom. They are not fastened at the sides and may easily be loosened and pushed out for window-washing. These screens are perhaps a little expensive but probably not much more than having good screens made.

When buying electric equipment look for the UL label of the Underwriters Laboratory on both electrical equipment and cords. This label shows that the article has been tested and passed as safe.

Note: The Home Agent will be out of the County the week of October 22-27 attending Annual Agents Meeting at State College.

WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN JR. DAIRYMAN PROJECT

Thomas Hassell, 12 first; Lynda Kay Long, 9, second; and James C. Wimberley, 16 third, are the top winners of the 1951 Junior Dairyman project competition sponsored by the Kraft Foods Company plant at Booneville, Miss. The winners received cash prizes, certificates of recognition from John H. Kraft, chairman of the board of the Kraft Foods Company, and were guests of the company at the Mid-South Fair in Memphis recently.

In announcing the results of this year's competition, R. H. Cox, Kraft plant manager at Booneville, reported that the Booneville Junior Dairyman not only earned $3,533.81 from the sale of milk, but that their work has been an inspiration to other youths in the region to join the Junior Dairyman project next year.

"Our Junior Dairyman have made outstanding progress this year and each of them has advanced a long way toward becoming successful dairymen," Cox said. "We, of the Kraft plant in Booneville, know that their work will be a real contribution to the building of a sound dairy industry for the future of the Booneville area."

These youths own their cows, provide their own feed, deliver milk to the Kraft plant at Booneville in their own cans, and have thus made a successful start towards dairy farming through their own initiative and efforts.

"Junior Dairyman," Cox said, "will be our future dairymen as they learn the methods that make for success in any business."

Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Hassell of Route 3, Baldwin; Lynda Kay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Long of Route 1, Slatton; and James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wimberley of Route 3, Rienzi.

P.M.A. OFFERS ASSISTANCE TO TISHOMINGO COUNTY FARMERS ON LIVESTOCK WATER PONDS

By E. N. Allen.

County Administrative Officer Approximately 30 Stockwater Ponds have already been constructed under the 1951 Agricultural Conservation Program by Tishomingo County farmers which will be a big help in the increase of meat and other livestock products to meet the Defense Needs, says Mack Sanders, Chairman of the County P.M.A. Committee.

With more watering places Tishomingo County farmers are able to make better use of their pastures, checking over-grazing near watering places while other parts of the pasture are hardly used at all.

Better distribution of livestock on the pasture has resulted in the production of more feed. The feed produced is used more economically and at the same time there is greater protection for the top soil.

Through the construction of Livestock Water Ponds, farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program have been able to make better use of their pastures and have actually increased the production of beef and dairy cattle to meet current needs. At the same time they are protecting and improving their pasture land for increased production in the future.

If you are in need of a livestock pond, on your farm, we urge you to contact the County P.M.A. Office at one and put in your application. We may not get to build every farmer a pond this fall but we can get to it by spring, so let us know about your needs.

Home-Coming Game

At Miss. State Oct. 27

State College, Miss.—Homecoming this year centers around the game with Alabama here on October 27th. Advance ticket sales indicate a capacity attendance of 34,000.

Presentation of the Homecoming Queen and her court, the annual pajama-clad freshman cake race, displays by the campus organizations, the annual alumni barbecue and meeting of present and past alumni district presidents, and the colorful half-time performance by the Maroon and the Crimson Tide bands provide additional attractions.

The homecoming queen will be chosen and crowned at a beauty review October 18. She is to be selected from local co-eds sponsored by campus organizations. October 16 has been set as the deadline for entering the queen contest.

Cheerleaders are planning a pep rally Friday night on the eve of the game, and have invited Dr. John M. Gallalee, president of the University of Alabama, to address the students at the rally.

ODK, honorary leadership fraternity, will supervise the preparation and judging of the program campus displays. A theme for the displays is to be chosen this week by a committee consisting of Tommy C. Crook of Becker, president of the Student Association; Bill Johnson of Starkville, editor of the 1951 Revue; and Jean Ulmer of Brookhaven, editor of the Reflector.

The two sororities, Chi Omega and Zeta Tau Alpha will supervise the registration of homecoming alumni. The Colonels Club will serve as a welcoming committee.

Scabbard and Blade is planning a salute to the flag just before the kick-off. Alpha Phi Omega, honorary Boy Scouts fraternity, and Blue Key will take care of decorations.
