Burnsville School

Burnsville High School is back in the swing after twelve weeks of happy vacation from books to the cotton patch. School actually began July 17th, but we are just now getting over the excitement enough to tell about it. Everyone is thoroughly enjoying being back with schoolmates and faculty.

Friday, July 31st, the entire student body assembled in the hall to decide Who's Who this year. After the usual bickering, the vacancies were filled as follows:

Miss B. H. S., Martha Faye Robinson, Mr. B. H. S., Charles Barnes, Prettiest Girl, Billie Dean Bishop, Most Handsome boy, Gerald Parsons, Friendliest girl, Dianne Strickland, Friendliest boy, Billie Cutshall, Best dressed girl, Eugenia Fay Hicks, Best dressed boy, Odis Ferrell, Most popular girl, Sue Strickland, Most popular boy, Bobby Barnette.

Best girl athlete, Dorothy Kimbrough, Best boy athlete, Bobby Yarbrough, Wittiest girl, Juanita Helton, Wittiest boy, Troy South, Most versatile girl, Shirley Wiginton, Most versatile boy, Billie Alred, Most intellectual girl, Annie Highland, Most intellectual boy, Jimmie Rhodes, Freshest freshman, Jimmie Young, Sophisticated Sophomore, Doris Rhodes.

Jolliest Junior, Troy Hendrix, Most dignified senior, Louise Hodges, Reporter, Bertha Ann Wood, Most likely to succeed, Helen Burney, Teachers problem boy, Billie Borden, Teachers problem girl, Lila White, Most talented boy, Harold Scruggs, Most talented girl, Selby Jean Bonds, Flirtiest girl, Lillie Mae Bugg, Sisiest boy, Bobby Bonds.

We are all sorry that Mr. Cummings, one of our beloved teachers, (cross your fingers when you say that!) accidentally got his fingers in a brand new 20-inch fan. Two fingers resemble ground beef, according to Mr. Cummings, but he is still in school with minor effects. The fan wasn't damaged. I just wonder if Mr. Cummings can use his belt with his left hand.

As always, we have some professional hockey players. I have heard rumors that hickory tea stops the urge for playing this popular game. Is leather tea just as effective?

The flower of school romance is still blooming. Of course, some of the old blossoms have wilted, but there are new ones to take their place. A teacher once told me that puppy love was swell but that old dog love was pretty serious.

The Senior F. H. A. class was organized June 20th, 1953. These officers will serve for the entire school year. They were elected as follows:

President, Martha Robinson, Vice-President, Emogene Laird, Secretary, Loreda Sellers, Treasurer, Ruth Edwards, Parliamentarian, Linda South, Historian, Trudy Kenmore, Reporter, Loreda Sellers.

The following committee's were elected:

Refreshment Committee: Trudy Kenmore, Faynell Ledgewood, Bobby Arnold.

Activities Of Business Shows Gain In June

The Business Research Station's index to general business activity for the state gained some ground during June 1953, according to the current issue of the Mississippi Business Review, monthly publication of the Business Research Station of the School of Business and Industry at Mississippi State College.

The index rose approximately 18 points, starting the month at 365 per cent of the 1940 average and closing it at 383 per cent. The unadjusted data used in the direct comparison with June indicated a 6 per cent gain. All nine major indicators exceeded the level attained last June. The gains ranged from 3.6 per cent in sales tax collections to 9.6 per cent in the value of money orders issued.

The three severance taxes—oil, gas, and lumber—yielding less revenue for the state than during June 1952. Oil severance tax collections fell 1.2 per cent below the tax netted in June 1952.

This was the second consecutive month in which the timber severance tax continued downward. Timber severance taxes totaled $22,273 during June 1953, 23.8 per cent below the $29,243 collected during the previous month and 23.6 per cent below the collections a year ago.

The construction outlook continued good. The number of contracts awarded during June exceeded those of June last year by approximately $6,000,000.

One district, Jackson, reported less business activity than a year ago. This decrease was a rather small one, 2.8 per cent.

The increased volume of business activity over June 1952 in the other fifteen districts was as follows: Gulfport-Biloxi, 5.7 per cent; Clarksdale, 4.8 per cent; Columbus, 14.9 per cent; Corinth, 14.8 per cent; Greenwood, 15.5 per cent; Greenwood, 8.5 per cent; Hattiesburg, 6.7 per cent; Laurel, 4.3 per cent; McComb, 8.6 per cent; Memphis, 4.4 per cent; Meridian, 4.6 per cent; Natchez, 2.8 per cent; Pascagoula, 13.8 per cent; Tupelo, 12.5 per cent; and Vicksburg, 11.3 per cent.

Mr. W. R. Nettles of Tishomingo, county chairman of the cancer campaign fund drive is slowly getting his organizations in the various communities to work on the campaign.

Last week on Thursday night the Tishomingo Lions club sponsored a show at the Tishomingo theatre, the proceeds going to the cancer fund. The Belmont Lions club is also working and sponsoring the campaign in the Fifth district.

At the regular meeting of the Iuka Lions Monday night, Paul Edmondson gave a brief talk on the services of the Cancer unit in Tishomingo county and discussed plans for the drive in Iuka.

Last year, this county sent 57 returnees to the clinics at Columbus and Memphis at a cost of $75 each, and 11 new cases at a cost of $209.00 each. The financing for these clinics comes from money contributed by all the counties into the Mississippi cancer society during the cancer drives. Of this amount 20 percent is returned to the counties to be used in giving local aid such as furnishing medicines and transportation to needy.

The following Iuka Lions were appointed to work the business district during the coming week: Sam Daniel, Bill Jones, George Page, M. H. Woods, and C. E. Edmondson, Jr.

The following ladies have been appointed by Mrs. C. D. Davis, chairman of the Iuka area, to work the residential district: Mrs. Joe W. Thompson, Mrs. Mary Burns, Mrs. Talmadge Jourdan and Mrs. Aline Jourdan. Eva Ford will have charge of the colored district.

HOME AGENT NOTES

By
IMOGENE BYNUM

In a recent column on summer time meals, we mentioned waffle corn bread, but didn't explain about it, other than it is made in your waffle iron. Perhaps you are in the number that would like to know more about the details of this crisp, tasty bread that you make without having to heat the oven.

Waffle Corn Bread

Make cornbread in your usual way, but add a little more fat to it. This insures a crisp waffle. Place a tablespoon of cornbread batter in each waffle section.

A good recipe for cornbread is: ¾ cup corn meal, ¼ cup flour, (or, if you like, use 1 cup cornmeal), 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 beaten egg, 1 cup thick sour milk, ¼ teaspoon soda and 2 tablespoons melted shortening.

Beat the egg. Add the milk and the melted shortening. Sift dry ingredients, add liquid to them, beat well.

Picnic Kabobs

Kabobs—a meal on a stick, are accepted backyard or picnic fare.

To make, use a metal skewer or a long green stick. On it place alternate layers of uncooked meat—beef, lamb, ham, bacon, frankfurters—and a piece of tomato wedges, potato, onion. Leave small space between each piece of food if you want it to be well done.

Broil the kabob over coals, turning frequently until well done. Pre-boil potatoes for faster cooking. Small pieces of bacon make the kabob juicy and tender.

For variety combine ham, pineapple wedges, mushroom caps, quartered onion, tomato wedges, pieces of green pepper, coated with French dressing for flavor change.

You can eat the kabob right from the skewer or slide it off into a large roll.

Vacation Packing

One of the biggest and most dreaded jobs of a vacation for most of us is the packing and deciding what to pack.

The first rule for good packing and fresh, uncrushed clothes and a well-dressed look is "take all the clothing you'll really need, but leave the "extras" at home."

The well planned wardrobe for traveling includes clothing that is prepared for the unpredictable weather, is comfortable and versatile. Simple clothes that can be used for many occasions are good insurance for well dressed vacations.

Wrinkle shedding fabrics are a must, as is clothing that defies dirt. Natural grays or medium beiges, either as solid colors or as a background for prints hide soil and look appropriate on either warm or cool days. One dark color and one bright color that will look well with the basic color will add variety and spice without extra sets of accessories.

As you begin to pack, I hope you don't find that musty smell in your suitcase that so often accumulates from the last time you used them till you took them off the closet shelf. If you do be sure it does not happen again: Unwrap a bar of toilet soap and put it in your suitcase and you won't be bothered by that musty smell next time you take a trip.

For neater, more convenient packing, wrap caps of spillables with cellophane tape and put the breakables in a plastic bag. Put tooth brush and toothpaste, soap, wash cloth, and cosmetics in one plastic bag. You can carry this bag into the bath room when you arrive and leave it there until time to repack.

Pack layers, putting bulky items on the bottom of the bag. Put underclothes, accessories and blouses, dresses and nightwear on top.

If you will pin blouses to cardboard such as laundries put in shirts, they will keep their shape. Fold sweater sleeves and roll them to prevent ridges. Use tissue paper in shoulders and folds of dresses and suits.

"NOT BY BREAD ALONE"

(Editor's Note: Following is the speech made at Tishomingo State park on Tuesday night, July 28, before the Belmont Lions club by Paul Flowers, noted columnist of the Commercial Appeal.)

Many years ago, long before our own ancestors knew the arts of writing, a Persian poet complained:

Myself when young did eagerly frequent Doctor and Saint, and heard great argument about it and about: but Evermore Came out by the same door wherein I went.

The theme I shall try to develop this evening is that the final answer to the problem of the universe is an elusive one; I suspect that our Creator never intended for us to understand all. But I shall seek to examine man's course down the ages of time, to find what reassurance there may be (comfort scorned of devils) in the fact that vexing as our problems may be in this helter-skelter age, other generations as far back as the record goes have had their problems too.

I am perfectly aware, and no doubt you are several paragraphs ahead of me right now, that a man suffering from ulcers, an ingrowing toenail, or from excessive taxation finds little comfort in the fact that other ages endured the black death, monotony in food, and mud. For whatever consolation it offers, I remind you that man has never, since he first appeared on this planet, been free from vexations and trials; once sabre-toothed tigers ate his babies, today pool weevils destroy his cotton. Man forever has been destined to struggle against his environment, against the elements, against hunger, against plague, against the depredations of his fellow man; as far back as we go in human history we find some force, now popularly known as the anti-Christ, conspiring against freedom and security and peace. I remind you of this for what it may be worth.

And then, as I reflect on our own times, say the first half of the Twentieth Century, I become aware that our generation has witnessed more change, more shocking change, more profound change in manner of living, than all generations put together before us.

Within our own memory the planet on which we live has shrunk to a thousandth of the dimensions familiar to our fathers; once it was sensational that a person should go around the world in 90 days. Now, we do it in half that many hours. Time and space have come into new relationships, "facts" we knew as children have been crowded aside by new learning, and the impact has been rough on all of us.

Through the ministrations of science we have found our lives profoundly changed by the gadgets, conveniences, time-and-labor saving devices far beyond the imaginations of our sires. The atom, once the indivisible unit of matter, not only has been split into energy, but also has been put to work, so far mostly for purposes of destruction. No longer, except in rare instances, do we hear of people being born, married, or dying in their homes. The faithful horse, almost one of the family with a name and a personality, today is practically a museum piece, his place taken by an impersonal device which thrives on high octane fuel.

We have electronic machines to keep books, other electronic machines to take dictation in business offices, electronic devices to open our doors; an electric eye warns mother when baby stirs in its crib, and thanks to modern science, baby may feed out of a collapsible plastic bottle, with milk processed months ago and preserved by some new miracle of science.

Children's examinations in school are graded by electric eye devices; in many places working people are identified by numbers rather than names; an electric gadget traps us when we speed over the highways and man's word in court is worthless against testimony of a spool of magnetic tape. The shirt you wear may be made out of plastic instead of your beloved cotton fiber; vitamin pills provide body-sustaining elements which our food seems to lack; everybody is surrounded by labor and time saving devices, yet everybody I know is working to exhaustion and no one has time to sit on the front porch in a rocking chair and think.

The impact of all these things has left a mark on human personality and I shall not even hint that the result has been altogether unfavorable. So far as luxury goes, we live in a fantastic world utterly beyond reach of the wildest imagination of a Jules Verne or even a Mother Shipton. Our age of technology has provided material comfort that even surpasses our own fondest dreams; the common laborer today can have better clothing, more balanced diet, cleaner surroundings, more education than the wealthiest prince and potentate 100 years ago; the penniless tramp can see more of the world now than was available to Marco Polo or Alexander the Great.

Spectator sports and amusements have made it possible for untold millions to be entertained without turning a hand; we can sit in an airconditioned room in our own homes and witness the coronation of a queen thousands of miles away; unless we are eager beavers we do not need to read, for some babblers on the radio will tell us all about what's going on in the world, give us synopsis of the latest novels and plays; hired hands produce our music for us and sing our songs; it is possible even to worship God by remote control without the bother of putting on clothes and going to church.

I am happy to report that in spite of all this nonparticipation in living, some 17,000,000 Americans annually buy fishing licenses and spend much time on lakes and streams; more than 11,000,000 millions swing clubs at small balls on golf courses all over this land, people who are not satisfied with vicarious sports. Smaller groups participate in dramatics in Little Theatres, play in orchestras, sing in choirs, or discuss world affairs in public forum programs.

Yet it seems to me that things are out of balance as between activity and passivity in affairs of living; far too many of us, I suspect, are willing to sit back and let somebody else do our living for us.

Thus I fear that our gadget era in this age of technology might threaten to rob us of a precious heritage which gave strength and character to other generations; can you conceive of existence wherein the many let the few taste all the triumphs of performances and accomplishment?

But there is another factor we must face. Our technological age has transformed the life of each one of us from a relatively simple matter into a highly complex one. Transportation and communication provide manifold contacts; our fathers were concerned immediately only with individual, family, and community problems; we today, as a consequence of the new relationship of time and distance, must be concerned not only with what happens in Tishomingo County, but also at Jackson, in the National Capitol, and even in Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Argentina.

The effect of all this multiplies confusion and frustration. The thing is too big for most of us to comprehend; the global problem is the problem of each man, woman and child on the planet today. Crisis follow on crisis, and wars spring up in places we never heard of before; social and economic problems mount one on the other in devastating succession, and there is no place to hide.

Thus we find ourselves faced by problems we do not know how to solve, and we dare not, even if we could, turn the other way even for a moment.

All of this has burned deep marks into human personality; is it any wonder that the prevalence of problem alcoholism among American farm wives has reached appalling proportions? Is it any wonder that our hospitals for treatment of mentally ill patients are overcrowded, and that the urgent matter of mental hygiene now absorbs the attention of several major life insurance companies?

All these things I mention to remind you of the impact modern life has wrought on each of us. We have come so far in so short a time; and there is such an incongruous mixture of the old and the new that we have to spread our emotional natures over so many ages.

So out of all this comes confusion and maybe frustration, and the universal yearning to flee to some Shangri-La, Utopia or Erewhon where life is simpler and more understandable.

But the picture is far from dark. We have been warned, by wise men of many ages, against becoming the slaves of any system we set up. A woman, in the Nineteenth Century, foresaw things which were to come to pass, and she told the story now familiar to all, of the Doctor Frankenstein who created a monster, which in turn destroyed its creator. It seems to me that Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley almost uttered prophecy in that fable; she saw the threat. The greatest Teacher of them all reminded us that the Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath; can we not paraphrase that and say that all other God-given things were to be the servants of man, and not man to be servant of creation?

Our problem then is to guarantee that man's personality, his individuality, his dignity, all the attributes which remind us that we are created in God's own image, must never be sacrificed on the altar of mechanical, social, political or economic expediency.

And here is where I turn from jeremiaids and utterance of dire things to balance the books and recognize, with great pride and eternal hope, the vaster and more ponderous realities which give us such aid and comfort in this trying hour.

You remember the ancient legend of Pandora and her box, how she loosed upon herself and her fellows the swarms of plague, sorrow and suffering, and then, at the last moment, clamped the lid on the box, preserving the one thing able to overcome all evil . . . Hope.

This story reminds me that the ancients knew all the vexations and tribulations that hound man through life in all ages; but the ancients, close to God and the sea and the stars and deserts and soil, repeated in other words what Jesus of Nazareth was to say with such comforting effect centuries later, "The Kingdom of Heaven is within you;" what the Persian poet was to repeat, "I Myself am Heaven and Hell."

And how do we preserve the Kingdom of Heaven within ourselves? How shall I make sure that I myself shall be heaven, not hell?

It seems to me that we must keep forever before us the reminder that all these things we have contrived must always be our servants, never our masters. I know, and you know, that so much of modern man's destiny on this planet today seems to be a desperate effort to dig his way out from under mountains of paper; both business and government are committed to the seven-copy ritual in every relationship of life; it is not possible to open the morning's mail without being confronted with a new questionnaire from Washington or Wall Street probing into our most intimate lives; people even have to listen to speeches committed to paper by other people. Sometimes I suspect that there is no God but paper; that we consider the record more important than the act; that we shall not be content until we shall have ground up the last tree into pulp, to bear in multiplicity the account of our most trivial activities.

But with all of this, life is a pretty good thing. You have demonstrated that in Tishomingo County. You have witnessed year after year this transition in agriculture, in commerce, in industry, and finance, and despite all the shock or change, you have kept your eyes fixed on the deathless values; the traditional charm and sanctuary of your homes, and your schools, and your churches, and your health center, and your library, and maybe a new hospital, and your devotion to the arts; your dreams for your children, and your love of flowers; your ability to adapt yourselves to the demands of this complex, confusion era. By your very devotion to these things you proclaim that the monster shall never destroy Frankenstein; by your consecration to ancient values and virtues, of honor and integrity and kindness and courage, you are living testimonials to the ancient creed which forever proclaims that man is created in the image of God, and that whatever else comes or goes, Hope springs eternal.

To fortify my own serene conviction of the truth of this, I turn ever so frequently to a passage written by a neighbor of yours in this delta of the Mississippi River, the late William Alexander Percy of Greenville; poet, philosopher, man of great compassion and tenderness and understanding. It appears in a chapter in "Lanterns On the Le-and Socialism are over and forgotten as completely as slavery and the old South, that same headstrong human heart will be clamoring for the old things 't wept for in Eden . . . love and a chance to be noble, laughter and a chance to adore something, someone, somewhere . . . That is good enough to be my creed for living in this era of wonderment and perplexity and confusion and frustration. It reaffirms that men cannot, and does not, live by bread alone; so long as that headstrong human heart clamors for the same things it wept for in Eden, . . . love and a chance to be noble, laugh-

Farmers Change Land Use Slowly

By

"Brother Jones if you will come on around here you can see where the bream nested and you can see some of the fish themselves, I think," said Mr. B. O. White of Holcut, Mississippi.

Emory, my youngest son, had run ahead of us and at that moment a frog croaked and plunged into the water, he shrieked with delight and stopped short to watch a little turtle swimming in the shallow water.

Mr. White looked at me and smiled, "He is having a good time," he said. "Why Jones I wouldn't take a pretty for this pond. I enjoy coming down every day or two just to watch the fish and now my cows have all the good, cool, clean water they need."

Stock ponds were placed high on the list of things needed by farmers of Tishomingo County by the Soil Conservation Service District Commissioners of the Tennessee River Soil Conservation District. It was under the direction and by request of these Soil Conservation District Commissioners that Mr. White's farm pond, as well as farm ponds for 135 other farmers of Tishomingo County have been constructed during the past two years.

Mr. White and I sat down in the shade near the water line and looked out across the rippling water of his pond. Naturally our conversation concerned farming and soil conservation. I felt a little blue about the slow progress we were making in actual land-use. Mr. White, always the true friend, and wanting to encourage me said, "Brother Jones, soil saving and soul saving are a lot alike, even when its your own soul or own soil to be saved, it is human nature to put it off. I think everybody wants to go to Heaven and really mean to go if they can, and I think everybody is interested in saving their soil and really intend to get around to doing it at some later time. Right now the farmers are more interested in getting a rain or getting their cotton dusted so as to kill the weevil than they are in doing the things they need to do to save their soil from slowly washing off."

"They need the rain now or the weevils must be stopped this week, these are immediate needs—soil saving or soul saving is something they think they can do later."

"Now, Brother Jones, that is the way I see it. But I hear people talk more about saving their land than I used to hear, and these stock ponds are a great deal of help in getting more land in pasture, where, heretofore, there has been no water. The ditches being cut are opening up new land for crops and more of the hill land can be put back to trees, pasture or sod crops. The farmers will gradually make better use of their land. It will be slow, but just keep working at the job and it might surprise all of us what can be accomplished."

Emory ran up with a frog he had caught. I told Mr. White he had a nice pond and that I had enjoyed the evening, but we must be going.

On the way home that Sunday afternoon, I thought about what this farmer had said and felt better.

The Straight And Narrow Path

The straight and narrow path can lead to trouble!

Seventy-seven per cent of the fatal motor vehicle accidents last year occurred on straight roads, according to the 1953 edition of "Accident Facts," the National Council's statistical yearbook. Unfavorable road conditions, such as a wet, muddy, snowy or icy surface, are reported in only one out of five fatal accidents.

HOLCUT SCHOOL

The ninth grade class of the Holcut High School met July 31st and elected their officers for 1953. They are as follows:

President, Harold Dean Wade, Vice-President, Billy Wayne Studdard, Secretary, Glenda Enlow, Treasurer, Eunell Lambert, Sponsor, Mrs. Blunt, Reporter, Joan Howie.

Success is never an accident—it comes to the man who does his work a little better than it needs to be done.

Christian's Fight

Lesson for August 9, 1953

"It's a bonny fight," were the last words of a sermon by Rev. Andrew K. Rule, "don't ye want to get in it?" Reverend gentlemen do not always present Christianity in such vigorous terms. One hears more often something to this effect: "It's a water-tight Ark; don't you want to be pulled aboard?" or "It's a wonderful school; don't you want to register?" or "It's a fine laundry; drop in and get clean!" or "It's a great hospital; don't you want some treatment?" Well, of course Christianity can be presented in all these ways. But A. K. Rule being (by Dr. Foreman way of New Zealand) a Scotsman, he would present Christianity in terms of what all Celts dearly love—a fight. This is not an original idea. Paul had it long ago. That Apostle spoke of the Christian life as one that has to be lived in battle, as we would say. He even spoke of it as a prize-fight (1 Cor. 9). At the end of his life he referred to all of it as a "good fight."

The Nearest Enemy

God himself is presented in the Bible as a battling God. The Greeks might think of him as serene above the sky, untroubled and untroubled; but the saints who wrote the Bible knew God as one who has a fight on his hands and who wages unceasing war on a persistent enemy. Not that the issue is in doubt. The great message of the Bible is that God will win. But meanwhile, the fight is on. The Christian is one who has enlisted in the army of God. God's enemies are his enemies. So far as this world is concerned (we have no present concern with any other) our enemies, and God's, are all those forces which tear down and destroy God's purposes, everything that tears and destroys humankind. Now the Christian is bound to fight everything in public and in private life which weakens and corrupts man; but the nearest enemy to every Christian is—himself. It is not true that a man is his own best friend; but it is true that he is his own worst enemy. A man can do himself more harm than any one else can do him. Many a man has lost the outer battle because he never won the fight with himself.

Fight Against Surrender

There are two opposite ways in which we have to battle with ourselves. These correspond to two kinds of temperament, and yet perhaps no man is entirely free from the need to fight on both these fronts. One is the fight with the drifter in us, the tendency to dream, to drift, to float with the tide, to let other people make all our decisions for us. We are surrounded by a pagan society, and it is not easy to maintain a higher standard. We haven't the energy to "back" popular opinion. It takes a great deal of energy, it calls for a fighting heart, to make headway against the tide of "everybody says," "everybody does." The Christian who knows the harm which alcohol does to personality, the Christian who wants to live a clean life in this or in other ways, will in many places have to be "made of sterner stuff" than most people are. It is the person who has won a victory over himself who is best able to help others.

Fight for Control

There is another kind of inner battle: the fight against our own wills. The other battle was against our lack of will; this is against will itself. We are not born or made in such a way that we can do whatever we feel like doing and always be right. Indeed if we follow our natural inclinations we may end by being oftener wrong than right. And just as some temperaments lean to laziness and don't-care, so other temperaments lean too far the other way. If some people are like putty, others are like gasoline vapor, likely to explode any minute. It may be temper, it may be sex, it may be in any of its countless forms. We can put it this way: There is in some of us all the time, and in all of us some of the time, the urge to shove every one else and everything else out of the way and make I WANT the rule of action.

Hamilton reports a good revival meeting at N. Cross Roads last week.

Rey. Lamar Booth is in Tennessee in a revival meeting at the Gasden Baptist Church.

Rev. J. W. Kitchens is being assisted at Burnsville by your Missionary.

We will be in a revival meeting at Paden beginning Sunday, August 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Last week we were in Itawamba County with Rev. M. V. Owings at the Liberty Grove Baptist Church. The church was encouraged to go forward under the leadership of the Undershepherd of Christ. Brother Owings is doing a great work at this place.

A very successful Vacation Bible School was conducted last week at the Oldham Baptist Church by Brother Lamar Booth.

Misses Lillian Aldridge and Sue Griffin are with the Oldham Baptist Church this week in a week of study course work for the Training Union. We have heard good reports from the good work they did at Burnsville last week. They have been a great blessing to those churches where they have served. Next week is still open to any church that would desire their services. They came to be with us in this area for five weeks, but, thus far, we have been able only to secure places of service for them for four weeks. Unless some church will have them next week (Aug. 9-15) we will have to let them go home. Please let your Missionary know at once if you would like to have these consecrated young ladies to help you in your Training Union work in your church.

The First Baptist Training Union Associational Rally will be on Sunday afternoon, August 16, at the Burnsville Baptist Church at 2:30 o'clock. All B. T. U'ers and others are cordially invited to attend.

The Stewardship Committee of the Tishomingo Association, composed of the following members: G. G. Bickerstaff, Miss Cleo Moore, Rev. R. Buchanan, B. L. Pruitt, Rev. Edgar Agee, and Rev. W. C. Hamilton, is being called to meet at the home of the Chairman, Mrs. A. H. Montgomery at her home in Burnsville on Thursday, August 6, at 8:30 p.m. This is an important meeting and all members are urged to be present. Plans need to be made for preparatory steps for the Stewardship week in October.

It is still time to have that Vacation Bible School in your church or community. Do not let the summer go by without it. Your boys and girls need to have it and your church needs to minister to them in this field of Bible teaching.

Mr. E. C. Williams, State Sunday School Secretary, is enlisting the workers for our Sunday School Enlargement Campaign, August 31-September 3. Please let us have your commitment notice as soon as possible. We believe that 100% of our churches should be in this great effort to build up our Sunday Schools. To date the following churches have responded to the call: Iuka, Burnsville, New Liberty, Tishomingo, Mt. Vernon, New Prospect, Oldham, and Ebenezer.

Remember the following facts about the Sunday School Enlargement Campaign:

1. We are asking that each church have one worker who will teach a Sunday School Study

LOOK HOO'S THERE—These two Michigan screech owls give each other the eye in no uncertain terms. The fluffy little birds are misnamed, according to bird experts, who say their cry is a series of clear, tremulous and plaintive notes rather than a screech.

Course.

2. The classes will be at night and the worker will stay on the church field.

3. A census will be taken, where and when needed.

4. These workers are, for the most part, busy pastors who will come to us to help us. They offer this service to us freely.

5. The churches are asked to take up a free-will offering to help defray their traveling expense.

6. Brother E. C. Williams will direct the campaign.

7. The first meeting will be on Monday afternoon, August 31, at the First Baptist Church, Iuka, Mississippi.

8. We request that representatives from the participating churches be there to meet your worker and direct him to his evening meal and appointment for that night.

For further information, see your Missionary.

Let us pray for this effort to increase our Sunday School attendance in our Association and thus help to make Every Missionary Baptist a Baptist Missionary.

KISS OF HAPPINESS—These two Polish pilots, who flew Soviet MIGS from behind the Iron Curtain, greet each other joyfully at New York's Idlewild Airport where they were reunited. Guests of the U. S. Air Force, they are Franciszek Jarewski, left, 21, first Polish flier to make the flight, and Zdzislaw Jazwinski, 22, the He's putting out a fire we started 123 years ago!

THE 8,000-mile Southern is now the largest railway system in the country to be 100 per cent Dieselized. We've "pulled the fire" on our last steam locomotive.

In effect, this fire was started back in 1830—when history-making "Best Friend of Charleston," on a railroad that is now part of the Southern Railway System, became the first steam locomotive to run in regularly scheduled service in America.

Down through the years since 1830, the colorful steam locomotives paced the progress of the South, serving well until they, too, had to step aside for progress.

Today we are serving the South with a fleet of 880 powerful Diesel locomotive units costing $123½ million. This huge sum—which we will be "paying off" for years to come—marks our faith in the future of the South, and underscores our determination to bring to all in the South a great new kind of railroading—modern, streamlined, better than ever.

Do not forget to get your laying house in order before housing your replacement pullets. This includes a thorough cleaning and disinfecting. Don't attempt to disinfect the house without first cleaning it of all organic matter. This organic matter will counteract the effect of the disinfectant.

Make sure that you have a clean, deep litter on the floors—nine inches of litter is not too much. Plenty of nesting room and roosting space is vital. Have one nest for each four or five hens. Allow at least nine inches of roost space per bird and have the roost poles at least 13 inches apart.

Do not house young pullets with old hens. The old hens may transmit some disease to the pullets and they may keep the pullets away from the feed trough.

It is not too late to worry about proper care of the birds due in hot weather. Make sure that your poultry house has plenty of ventilation—this means ventilation at floor level and in the roof as well as ordinary window space.

Water is a must. Chickens use lots of water. Four four-foot waterers for each 150 hens is none too many. Keep plenty of feed in front of the hens at all times.

However, with cool weather rapidly approaching, you had better be making plans now to close the house up for the winter.

A cow producing 5,000 pounds of milk per year pays the dairyman less than 50 cents an hour for his labor. A cow producing 7,500 pounds per year will pay $1.00 for labor at only slightly higher feed and management costs.

Low producers are not profitable, so cull them from your herd. However, make sure that you cull only those animals that have low production rates because of inherent characteristics. Check on your feeding and dairy herd management. Many cows are low producers because of poor feeding and care.

August Management. Clip weeds and bushes on all pastures. If needed, lime all permanent pastures. Order basic slag, phosphate, potash or mixed fertilizer for fall pasture application.

Fallow some land for early planting to winter grazing. Send in some soil samples on all land to be fertilized this fall. After cattle have grazed the best growth, clip Sudan and Millet to six inches high. Study your pastures to prevent overgrazing.

Check the silo and get it ready for filling. Cut corn for silage when it is in the "heavy dent" stage. Clip all good pastures not needed for grazing and stack or bale for winter feeding. Cut soybeans for hay when the first

For the Wesleyan Service Guild Week-End a program of interest to Guilders is planned—this includes message and fellowship with Miss Lillian Johnson, Division Secretary of Guild work.

Inspirational messages, study courses, workshops, clinics and more will fill the week for the School of Missions, August 17-21. The impact of the 1953 conference on World Missions will be shared with the entire membership of the school through the platform hour.

Outstanding instructions will teach the four study courses: Mrs. R. R. Priddy, The Life and Task of the Church Around the World; Miss Lydia E. Gerhart, the course on Spanish speaking Mexicans; Hon. Henry Edmunds, Alcohol and Christian Responsibility; and Jeremiah, Rev. E. M. Sharp. Inspirational speaker; Dr. H. E. Finger, president of Millsaps College.
