SEVENTY FIRST YEAR

VIDETTE VARIETIES

VIDETTE is 71 years old week. In actuality the paper much older but was under names before it was given name of "The Vidette" by Granville Dudley's father...
twenty-one years, the paper,
with its various editors and writers, has chronicled the births, deaths, marriages, political events and other happenings of the county and surrounding area in columns. It has been the most constant weekly visitor in many, of the homes and we know nothing is always looked forward to by its great number of readers... It is read both widely and not only by "paid readers" but also by those who "steal" the paper. It goes through newspaper clipping
files in New York, Chicago, San Francisco... It is possibly the only item produced in the county that goes each week literally all over the world—
never a former Tishomingo contains a file located there you find "The Vidette"! And the constant increase of subscribers it is becoming more desirable as it grows older. In fact, as far as we determine, "The Vidette" is the oldest continuously operated newspaper in this county.

in J. D. Finch's bala-

Birth Certificates Required Of All Students For Next Session Of School

It is required by House Bill 15, Special Session of the Legislature, year 1953, that all public school students in the state contain proof of their age "as verified by birth certificate."

This law went into effect July 1 of this year, and of course will be in effect when all schools open for the next session.

For nearly thirty years the State Board of Health has furnished free of charge to practically every mother a birth certificate of her child shortly after the birth was registered. If mothers have kept these certificates, they may be shown to the teachers at the beginning of school. Perhaps some children have already entered their birth certificates to prove age at school. It will not be necessary to show birth certificates to the school each year.

If a child has not proven his or her age to the teacher with a birth certificate and has no birth record to show the teachers; then the parents must apply to the State Board of Health for a certificate of birth for this purpose.

The Tishomingo County Health department with offices both in Iuka and Belmont have these applications for birth certificates free of charge.

All parents of children who do not have birth certificates are urged to file application at once so the child will have the necessary records at the beginning of the school session.

Attempt Being Made To Re-Activate Golden Municipal Government

A number of public spirited citizens of the Golden community are attempting to re-activate the town government of that community that has been non-existent since 1941. In that year the mayor and some of the aldermen moved away, it is reported and the citizens lost interest in their government and it slowly passed into oblivion.

However in the past few weeks a number of efforts have been made toward reviving the community government. Click Clark has been secured as an attorney to conduct the legal affairs of the town and a list of names of citizens to serve as aldermen and mayor have been forwarded to Jackson for official appointment by the governor to act in a temporary capacity until an election can be held to publicly select officers.

Those names sent by the attorney for appointment by the Governor are: for Mayor, Dr. Raymond U. Shook; for Aldermen, Kyle Bostick, Gene Moore, Claude Rouse, Steve South, and Hollis Long.

Seventy Eight Acres And Security

By Hiram A. Jones
Work Unit Conservationist SCS
Cotton, cows, hens and sows skillfully managed on a 78 acre typical Tishomingo County farm are producing a good income and security to Mr. Leon Blunt and his wife.

Mr. Blunt's farm is located about one mile east of the Tish-omingo High School. Most of the 78 acres is too steep for continuous cultivation, and has been planted to close growing small grain and pasture crops. Use has been made of sericea lespedeza for both hay and pasture, Fescue and Lodina clover was seeded in a wet area along a drain in the pasture, this with rye grass and Crimson clover planted on the steeper hill land furnished grazing from late fall until the sericea in bermuda grass can be grazed in the spring.

Mr. Blunt has planted his 4.2 acres of cotton and 1.8 acres of truck patches on upland having the least slope. All but about one acre of his corn is planted in a small branch bottom.

Like all other farmers of the county, his pasture and crops suffered from the drought, but excellent land-use and the fact that he had used good judgment in planting drought resisting crops on dry hill land prevented any great loss from the drought.
"I grow oats on my hill land for grain because there is always enough moisture to produce oats on land that is too risky to plant to corn," said Mr. Blunt. He feeds both corn and oats to his mules and cows and corn and supplement to his hogs.

At the present time he has 3

head of grown and 11 head of young cattle, 80 laying hens, 2 cows and some hogs he will butcher for home use. He has just sold this pig crop for a price ranging from $45.00 to nearly $50.00 each. He has money jingling in his pockets while a great many other Tishomingo County farmers are wondering how on earth they can make ends meet.

As a land-use planning technician for the USDA Soil Conservation Service, I looked over this farm with a critical eye. I did suggest that a small area of hill land now in corn should be put to some other use. It was suggested that oats be planted on it rather than corn. It was further suggested that a vegetated waterway be established to stop erosion occurring in a local area, but his woodland is where he needs to turn his attention. Blackjack are smothering out the young pine now on the land and some system of thinning and cutting the pine should be worked out. Mr. Blunt said he would be glad to follow suggestions made by Mr. Busby, Area Forester.

I would like to make it clear that the only work the Soil Conservation Service Technicians have done on this farm to date, was to survey and supervise the construction of a farm pond. Unfortunately this pond leaks. Of course, Mr. Blunt is to be commended for following and maintaining a land-use program second to none in the county and it is paying dividends now and will continue to pay dividends because the system he is using is conserving both water and topsoil.
What Leon is doing can be done
by any farmer in Tishomingo County. Who was the guiding hand in pointing out to Mr.
Blunt the principles of good land-

1953 WAS A BANNER YEAR FOR RURAL TELEPHONES IN STATE

Over 100 Major Projects Add Well-Distributed Farm-To-Market Lines

Jackson—Rural telephone expansion in Mississippi reached one of its peak years in 1953, according to representatives of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, who report the completion of approximately 100 major rural telephone projects in a well distributed pattern serving rural areas throughout the length and breadth of the State.

J. M. Phillips, Southern Bell's Mississippi Manager, states that the unusual activities of their Rural Development department last year resulted in a net gain of more than 5600 rural customers.

"The big construction job cost the telephone company more than 2 1/2 million dollars," Mr. Phillips said, "requiring us to state out over 1200 miles of new pole lines in the rural areas of the State and to erect thousands of poles to receive a mileage of wire and wire in cable which would more than stretch across this continent."

At Gillsburg in January, approximately 800 citizens of the town and the rich dairy area surrounding it attended ceremonies placing new rural telephone facilities in service there. This was a 116,000 dollar job to serve about 200 new rural telephone customers in Amite and Pike counties in the extreme Southern part of the State.

Among the last of the rural telephone projects to be completed during 1953, was one at Burnsville, on the extreme northern border of Mississippi, where facilities to serve approximately 125 new rural customers were placed in service.

In the interval between these celebrations the big parade of new projects moved on, the spotlight shifting north to south and east to west throughout the 50 or more counties where rural telephone facilities were extended and improved during the past 12 months.

A few of the many other places spotlighted during the year due to rural telephone activity were:

In Lauderdale County, a project was put in service along Highway 45 South of Meridian to furnish rural telephones for 125 additional families and business places.

At Houston, in Chickasaw County, to serve 125 new rural customers in the Trebloc, Buena Vista and McCord area.

In Pearl River County a project extending eastward from Picaune serves approximately 200 new customers.

At Saltillo, in Lee County, about 250 new rural subscribers in town and in the Birmingham Ridge Road area received new telephones. This project, along with one serving approximately 75 customers west of Baldwyn and others completed previously, gave Lee County one of the most complete rural telephone systems in the State.

In the southwest section of Neshoba County, 175 new rural customers were added to the exchange at Philadelphia.

In the area surrounding Wiggins in Stone County dial operation replaced magneto and 150 new rural customers were added.

Other places in the spotlight during the year, due to one phase or another of rural telephone activity were: Louisville, in Winston County; Brandon, in Rankin County; Lowndes County's principal city, Columbus; and the Jones County communities of Moselle and Estabulchie.

Extension and improvement of rural telephone facilities were made also in Tate County, around Senatobia, around Winona in Montgomery County; in the Scott County area around Forest; and at Dundee, where around 100 residents of Tunica County received new rural telephones, completing coverage of the Southern half of the County. Since most of the county had already been covered, completion of the Dundee project gave the county nearly 100 per cent telephone service.

Quitman County saw additional rural telephone activity around Marks, as did the Marshall County area surrounding Slayden; and 100 new rural customers were added in the farming area adjacent to the Alcorn County center of Corinth.

Late in the summer, new rural telephone facilities were placed in service at Loyd Star. At a cost of approximately 100,000 dollars, service was supplied for some 156 additional farm families in this area, which is near Brookhaven.

A few weeks later a rural telephone celebration was held at Knoxville in Walthall County. This event, attended by some 500 people, marked the completion of the final project in a series of jobs which boosted the total number of rural subscribers connected to the Tylertown exchange from 12 to more than 300 since 1945.

November saw the completion of a 175,000 dollar project to serve over 375 new rural telephone customers in the vicinity of Bogue Chitto, where a rural dial switching unit was placed in service. This equipment, which is of a type that has been extremely useful in extending telephone service throughout Mississippi's farming areas, is the connecting point for service in that area.

The dial switching unit at Bogue Chitto was one of four such units installed in Mississippi within four weeks late last fall, and is one of twenty of its kind to be placed in service in the State since December 1949.

Already approved for installation as part of Southern Bell's rural improvement schedule for 1954 at locations in Mississippi are three additional dial switching units. They will be installed in connection with rural telephone projects at Lorman, near Port Gibson; Roxie, near Fayette and at Smithdale, out of McComb. Still other units are planned for use with other rural expansion projects at other locations in Mississippi.

The projects mentioned here and many others are part of Southern Bell's plan for continued expansion of rural telephone facilities in the State. This statewide expansion job has cost the telephone company in Mississippi over 15 million dollars since 1945 and has increased the number of telephones in our rural areas from 8335 on December 31, 1945 to over 41,000 today.

can be made to eligible operators of family type farms. The main purpose is to enable farmers to make adjustments and improvements in their farms and home plans which will result in efficient farm and home operations.

Mr. Woods states that loans may be made to buy livestock, farm machinery, home equipment, feed, seed, lime and fertilizer. Under certain conditions funds may be included in the loan to refinance debts secured by liens on livestock and farm equipment.

The amount of the loan depends upon the need as determined by the farmer's plan of operation, Mr. Woods said. Loans can be made to run from one to seven years. The number of years allowed for repayment depends upon the amount of income expected each year and the purpose for which the money is advanced.

Additional funds have been made available, he said, to lend through the next year to farmers to operate, buy, enlarge, or improve farms. A large portion of the money loaned in this county during the past 12 months has been to veterans and other young farm families who are establishing better farm setups. Their greatest needs were for adequate credit and some help in developing sound systems of farming and adopting efficient farm management practices. No loans were made to farmers who were able to obtain the financing they needed from other local lenders.

Applications for operating loans should be made to the Farmers Home Administration office located at the Co-op Building in Iuka.

SCOTTY PARRISH, 10 year old lad from Tishomingo is confined in Baptist Hospital with 60 per cent of his body covered in third-degree burns, because he didn't want his Aunt Emma's house to burn down. Scotty was seriously burned while attempting to build a fire in his great-aunt's kitchen stove. Igniting a bucket of nearby fuel oil Scotty picked the bucket up and ran for the yard to keep his aunt's house from burning. The screen door on the back porch was latched, and Scotty hit it head on. The blazing oil splashed over his body. This was on May 14 and since then he has been putting up a brave fight for his life, aided by his trust in God and the knowledge that he saved his aunt's house. Swathed in bandages from his neck to his thighs, he submits uncomplainingly to a painful routine of penicillin shots, blood transfusions, and twice-a-week skin grafts. Scotty and his brother, Bobby, 7, make their home with their grandmother, Mrs. Stella Parrish, in Tishomingo. Shown at Scotty's bedside is his aunt, Mrs. Jules Gipson, his everyday companion.

Safety Check-Up On Farms In Miss. Urged During Farm Safety Week

A safety check-up on every farm in Mississippi this week, July 25-31, which is the eleventh National Farm Safety Week, is urged by M. S. Shaw, associate director of the Agricultural Extension Service and chairman of the State Farm Safety Committee.

"Finding and removing many of the worst dangers often found on farms and in farm homes does not cost anything or take much time. But this effort may save a life, serious injury or loss of property," Mr. Shaw declared. "Even if there is a little expense involved in correcting a dangerous situation, this is a small item compared to the possible loss if nothing is done."

While practicing safety should become a daily habit on the farm and in the home, this week is the time for every family to take a little time out to study safety and plan how to do something about it, the chairman explained.

The number of fatal accidents to farm workers is greater than in any other occupation in the United States, according to the National Safety Council, co-sponsor with the U. S. Department of Agriculture of National Farm Safety Week. Serious injuries on farms are nearly 85 times as many as the fatalities.

Governor Hugh White recently issued a proclamation urging Mississippi farm residents and all others interested in rural life to actively observe National Farm Safety week. He endorsed the motto for the week, "Farm to Live and Live to Farm."

Four main classes of accidents involving members of farm families are being actively campaigned against by the State Farm Safety Committee, on which are represented all agricultural agencies and most groups interested in better rural living. Mr. Shaw suggested these main accident causes as the basis for simple farm and home safety surveys.

1. Falls lead the list of mishaps both in the home and around the farm.

Ways of preventing falls in the home include using a step ladder instead of a chair when climbing to reach a high cabinet or to hang curtains. Provide stairways with handrails. Avoid scatter rugs on slippery floors. Make certain that stairways are well lighted and free of toys and other objects. Provide a nonslip mat for the tub or shower.

Help prevent falls around the farm by keeping all ladders in good repair. Look for and fix any holes in a loft or other floor. Remove tools or rubbish from walkways where such objects might trip someone.

Cover any abandoned or uncovered wells or cisterns before someone falls in.

2. Carelessness with farm machinery results in many fatalities and serious injuries.

Many children are killed while riding on, playing on or driving tractors. One-third of all fatal tractor accidents reported in the nation involve persons under 20 years of age. One tractor fatality in 10 is a child under five years of age.

Never allow a small child on mobile farm equipment. The "extra rider" on a tractor sometimes becomes a fatality. Once equipment is attached to a tractor there should be no one on it but the driver.

Always keep safety shields in place when operating farm machinery. Stop the machine when making an adjustment or trying to clear a stoppage.

3. Storage and use of flammable liquids is the third main hazard being campaigned against in Mississippi.

Prevention here includes not using coal oil to kindle fires, and exercising extreme care in doing home dry cleaning. Never smoke when handling tractor or other fuel.

Grounding a rubber tired tractor is a good practice to help prevent the fuel from being ignited by static electricity. This can easily be done by firmly attaching one end of a short chain or metal cable to a low point on the metal of the tractor, allowing the free end to drag on the ground.

To further help prevent fire, a general clean-up of rubbish in the attic or anywhere else in or around the home or farm buildings is urged. Also check electrical wiring and equipment for safety.

4. Movement of farm vehicles and machinery on the highways is the fourth major danger.

Proper reflectors should be placed on the rear of all trailers or other equipment to be moved at night along either highways or any road where automobiles are likely to approach from behind.

Just as for all citizens, members of farm families should know and observe motor vehicle traffic rules. Courtesy by drivers is particularly stressed.

Motor vehicles are responsible for the greatest number of accidents to farm people. This accounts for nearly one-fourth of all deaths and injuries that occur on rural highways.

Dr. W. B. Selah, Pastor, Galloway Memorial Methodist Church, Jackson, Miss., speaks on the Methodist series of the Protestant Hour August 1st and 8th. He has chosen for his subjects for these two Sunday radio programs "Puddles or Sunsets?" and "The Neglected Commandment."

DR. W. B. SELAH

Music for these programs features the Galloway Memorial Methodist Church congregation and choirs under the direction of Maurice Thompson and Leland Byler with Mary Sigman at the organ.

Dr. Selah, for nine years pastor at Galloway Memorial Church, is a former pastor at St. Luke's Church, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; St. John's Church, Memphis, Tennessee and churches in Missouri.

These programs for the Methodist series of the Protestant Hour were recorded in Jackson, Miss., with the remote recording facilities of the Protestant Radio center with Ward Adams as producer and announcer.

Following the Methodist Series will be heard the Presbyterian, U. S. A. Series featuring Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, Maryville, Tennessee, on August 15th.

TISHOMINGO

Church Activity:

The Baptist Sunday School Association held a mass meeting at the church on Sunday afternoon. A very interesting program was given with members from the various churches participating. A duet arrangement by Brother and Mrs. James Brown was especially enjoyed.

Miscellaneous:

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Holley and Anna Carol of Sheffield have been in and out of town on business and pleasure several times within the last two weeks.

Hershel Dean Blount was with relatives over the week end. The Vernon Blount family still live near Corinth.

Mrs. Omer Twitty is pronounced better, however, her condition is still critical.

Mrs. Stella Parrish has returned home from the hospital.

Two young men of the community—Jett Patterson and Adis Deaton—have also been "hospitalized" recently. Both are able to be out again.

Corporal James Lee Short, stationed in Germany, writes that he and Manley Snodgrass's son are together. These "boys from home" are a great comfort to each other on foreign soil.

Congratulations go to our neighbor, Mrs. Mamie McAlister of Paden on her publication of a book of poems. Those of us who knew that inner character of hers was fine and would inevitably find a way of self-expression.

Sympathy of Town:

To the T. E. Finch family in their great loss.

To the Henry Marlars in their sorrow due to the death of his mother.

To Dr. and Mrs. Cosby in their sorrow and disappointment.

"Mississippi's C is a Challenge"

Mississippi is growing fast in a way economically, industrially and agriculturally. This growth has brought an unprecedented demand for telephone service which has been a challenge to Southern Bell.

We have met this challenge with more telephone growth in the past 8 years than during the first 64 years in Mississippi. We have filled 96 percent of all the applications for new telephones received since January 1, 1946—more than doubling the total number of customers in the state and more than quadrupling our rural telephone subscribers.

Since 1945, this expansion has cost over 82 million dollars of investment money. To provide further needed expansion, we must secure still more money from investors. To get people to furnish this money we must make a fair profit on money invested in telephone property.

New dial equipment in many new central offices has been placed in service throughout the State.

"I Take Full Responsibility for Mississippi's Cotton Acreage Allotment!"
~JIM EASTLAND

"Last fall the Republican Secretary of Agriculture announced a drastic cutback in cotton acreage. The national allotment was cut to less than 18,000,000 acres, and Mississippi's acreage was cut to 1,759,641.

"This acreage would have meant a great hardship on our cotton farmers. Many would have faced bankruptcy.

"Because of my seniority and membership on the Senate Agriculture Committee, I was appointed to a three-man subcommittee to write a bill to ease this hardship.

"Remember we were fighting a Republican majority. The Senate presiding officer and majority leader are from California.

"In spite of the cards stacked against us, let's see how Mississippi came out.

"The bill we recommended—known as Public Law 290—gave Mississippi an additional 320,000 acres over that original allotment last fall.

"In 1952, California planted 1,400,000 acres of cotton, and her allotment this year is 900,000. Arizona planted 627,000 acres and her allotment is 400,000. Mississippi in 1952 planted 2,400,000 acres and our allotment this year is nearly 2,100,000 acres.

"Who got the best of this deal? The acreage reduction in California, Arizona, and New Mexico on a percentage basis was more than double that of Mississippi. Mississippi and Arkansas took the lowest acreage reductions of any cotton growing states.

"Furthermore, the acreage reduction of Mississippi this year was much lower than average reductions of other Southern States. Senator Kerr of Oklahoma said on the floor of the Senate that he wished the farmers of his state were as well off as Mississippi farmers under this bill.

"I am proud of the work I did in getting this increase. I take full responsibility for your 1954 acreage allotment.

"You may find out anything you want to know about your acreage at your county ASC office. Their records are open to the public."

THIS INCREASED ACREAGE WILL MEAN $50,000,000 IN 1954 TO MISSISSIPPI FARMERS

Re-Elect EASTLAND August 24

APPROVED BY ARTHUR SULLIVAN, CAMPAIGN MANAGER

The Eastland Sub-Committee bill was supported by Senator John Stennis and every other southern Senator.

It was also supported by every member of the Mississippi Congressional delegation — Representatives Jamie Whitten, Arthur Winstead, John Bell Williams, Thomas G. Abernethy, W. M. Colmer, and Frank Smith.

Congressman Abernethy, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, recommended the bill to his committee and urged its passage on the floor.

Materials Bring Farmhouse Back to Life

Leftovers in the Refrigerator Little dabs of "this and that" that are just "too good to throw away" have a habit of getting into refrigerators. They take up valuable space and are so easy to get pushed back and forgotten—only to make themselves known when they get "too old" to use.

The best thing is to route leftovers directly to the garbage or to the cat or dog, unless you are sure they can and will be promptly used.

During the first half of August is the time to plant Irish potatoes, rutabagas, pole snap beans, and is the last call for tomato plants or suckers.

After August 15 to the end of the month, is the time to plant bush snap beans, lettuce, parsley, mustard, cabbage, kale, Chinese cabbage, turnips and tendergreens.

Anytime during August you can plant beets, carrots, chard and collards.

New Fabric Washing Garments made of such fabrics as nylon, orlon and dacron—of electro-static fabrics—should be washed separately from those of any other color or those that are very dirty.

White or pastel electro-static fabrics tend to pick up dirt and color from other garments as they are being washed or dry cleaned. The result will be gray-white, garments, or garments tinged with color.

Even a label may cause trouble. Check dresses, shirts and other garments and remove labels before you launder the garment.

Silking Corn To remove the silks from sweet corn, use a vegetable brush instead of pulling off each strand with your fingers. To hold an ear of corn steady for cutting off the kernels, stick it on the sharp end of a nail driven through a cutting board.

If you prepare corn in quantity for freezing or canning, it may pay to use one of the corn cutters especially for the purpose.

Tomatoes—Fresh or Canned Hardly anything is better on a hot summer day than cold tomatoes—sliced, cut-up in salad, stuffed, or washed, salted and eaten out of hand like an apple.

One of these good-sized, vine-ripened tomatoes will furnish about half of your daily quota of vitamin C, as well as a generous amount of the required vitamin A.

Raw and fresh, they furnish the most food value. To retain the most of this food value, it is best to peel and cut them quickly just before serving.

Put any surplus tomatoes you have up for winter use. Those jars of tomato juice, catsup, chili, relishes and canned tomatoes will look inviting on your pantry shelves, and will add taste appeal and food value to winter meals.

★ Figures On E And H Bonds For June

Mr. R. A. McRee, Jr., Chairman of the Tishomingo County Savings Bonds Committee, has released the following figures on sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds for the month of June, and total sales — January through June, 1954. During June county sales were $12,581; January through June $76,531, which gives the county 61.2% of its 1954 quota.

Figures for the state showed Mississippi as having a good record for June, $2,355,636, giving total sales of $15,839,988 for January thru June, or 49.8% of 1954 quota. This is 13.3% increase over same period of 1953, and 43.2% above 1952 when we counted J and K Bond sales.

Savings Bonds sales have been very much on the increase for the past two years. People are realizing the importance of having their savings in something safe, available if needed, and earn a good return. Savings Bonds meet these requirements.
