

"Mystery Farm" Of The Week

OWNER of the above farm can receive a beautiful 5x7 glossy print enlargement of this farm by identifying the farm as being his. Last week's mystery farm created a lot of calls to Vidette in Iuka and to Mrs. A. H. Barham in Belmont. It was correctly identified and you asked to turn to Frank's Dairy ad on an inside page to learn the owner's name. The aerial photographers who made this series of mystery farms said that "this was a beautiful farming farm" and this statement is being proven by the mystery farm pictures. To identify the picture as 2211 in Iuka or 2851 in Belmont. We'll try to print the names of those who correctly identified the farm.

Blue Bell Is Now Conducting Opinion Survey Amongst Employees In This Area

It is of general interest in the area that Blue Bell, Inc., is conducting one of the area's first opinion surveys. This survey is being conducted by an outside company for Blue Bell, this being Guy B. Arthur & Associates, Inc., whose headquarters are in Toccoa, Ga., and who are specialists in gauging employee attitudes.

Just this week opinion surveys have been conducted in all of the plants of Blue Bell in Miss., this being done by the outside company and the management of Blue Bell does not enter into it at all. It is entirely on a confidential basis with the employee, and thus allows the employee to speak his opinion whether it is good or bad toward the company.

Sgt. McMeans Wins Bronze Medal In Rifle Matches

Sergeant First Class Bobby J. McMeans, 24, whose wife, Mary, and mother, Mrs. Oleta M. Echols, live in Iuka, recently scored 95 points to win a National Rifle Association bronze medal in the Marine Corps cup match of the 1954 National Rifle Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Nearly 850 rifle enthusiasts from all segments of the Armed Forces, police officers from the entire country and civilian competitors are participating in the annual matches.

McMeans is a platoon sergeant with Company C of the Army's 196th Infantry Regiment in Alaska.

Questionnaires are prepared and given to each employee individually, and then the outside consultant company merely gives Blue Bell a summary of employee opinions in each department or plant.

It is interesting to note that a company such as Blue Bell is willing to spend the money to find out what the opinions of its employees are on many subjects, and specifically those relating to employee-employer relations.

It is further interesting to note that this company is not only taking an opinion survey, but plans to use the information gathered from such a survey in letting the opinions of its employees enter into the conduct of management.

This is just another step in the advancement of management, and it is hoped that with this and other steps in the area of scientific management, Blue Bell will continue to enjoy the close family relation with its employees that it has had during the several years of its existence in the state of Mississippi.

Mr. Francis chose for his subject, the "growth and development of labor organizations in this country."

The speaker compared the labor movement to a giant pendulum which began its swing to the right of center when the courts of the land in most all their decisions favored the employer. Then it swung to the left for the first time in history during the administration of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt under New Deal policies. The government and courts favored the employees. This came about with the passage of the Wagner Act, but a later Act, known as the Taft-Hartley law, places responsibility on both labor and capital, the speaker said, and it appears the pendulum is beginning to swing back more to center which would be beneficial to the economy of our country.

Iuka School Opens 1954-55 Session With Record Enrollment of 527 Pupils

The 1954-55 session of the Iuka Public School was officially opened at 8:15 Friday morning with a general assembly of the student body. Rev. Carmon Savell, pastor of the Iuka Baptist Church, gave a very interesting and inspirational talk.

All indications show that this session of school is going to break the attendance record of the Iuka School. So far the school has 546 pupils enrolled and more are expected to enroll as the first month of school gets underway.

During the 1953-54 session, there were 465 pupils to enroll the first month, but the highest peak reached during the year was only 466, which makes this year's enrolment have 80 more pupils than they had last year.

Registering in the first grade were 43 pupils; second, 45; third, 45; fourth, 38; fifth, 30; and in the sixth, 41 which make a total of 242 pupils in Grammar School. In Junior High there are 45 in the seventh and 43 in the eighth, making a total of 88. In High School there is a total of 197, with 52 in the ninth, 56 in the tenth, 55 in the eleventh and 34 in the twelfth.

The school cafeteria opened Wednesday morning and 411 plates were served to the students.

New teachers added to the faculty this year are as follows: Miss Willie Ann Johnston, Junior High; Mr. Guy Bickerstaff, Social Studies in Junior and Senior High; Mrs. Edwin Harwell, Elementary School.

It is hoped that with the assistance of the band director, Zelfred Smith, a Glee Club will be organized with high school students participating.

The first football game will be played at Shannon this Friday night.

Darryl Francis Is Guest Speaker At Rotary Club

Darryl Francis, member of the Federal Reserve Board, Memphis, was guest speaker at the noon meeting of the Iuka Rotary Club held Wednesday in the Methodist church educational building.

Mr. Francis chose for his subject, the "growth and development of labor organizations in this country."

The speaker compared the labor movement to a giant pendulum which began its swing to the right of center when the courts of the land in most all their decisions favored the employer. Then it swung to the left for the first time in history during the administration of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt under New Deal policies. The government and courts favored the employees. This came about with the passage of the Wagner Act, but a later Act, known as the Taft-Hartley law, places responsibility on both labor and capital, the speaker said, and it appears the pendulum is beginning to swing back more to center which would be beneficial to the economy of our country.

Mr. Francis was introduced by R. A. McRee, Jr., who, with the cooperation of Mr. Spinks, secured Mr. Francis as Wednesday's guest speaker.

Senator Owens To Speak On Current School Issue

According to Supt. H. L. Shook, Senator George Owens of Pontotoc will address the teachers of the county Friday afternoon, September 3, at 2:00 o'clock on the proposed amendment to the state constitution which would give the legislature the right to abolish the public school system as a means of preserving segregation.

The meeting will be held at the Courthouse and all teachers and citizens of this county and area are urged to attend and hear Senator Owens as he discusses this important question.

WE SHOULD NOT ABANDON OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM, EDUCATOR SAYS. WAY CAN BE WORKED TO PREVENT INTEGRATION IN SCHOOLS

Editor's Note: The following article is a reprint of one written by Roebuck, superintendent of Schools, Aberdeen, Miss. Due to clarity and sound reasoning your editors considered it worthy printing. Therefore, we present it to you for your thought and derivation.)

BY A. H. ROEBUCK
Aberdeen School Superintendent
A great deal is being said and thought these days about the state of our schools. A recent visit in Jackson, which was attended by 75 to 100 Negro leaders by the Governor and his Educational Advisory Committee, showed plainly to the layman that what some people are saying and what they were doing and doing were different. It is not my purpose to increase just among people. The time has come, however, when each should assess the many factors involved very carefully, and act in good faith.

Bulwark in Development
The public school system has a bulwark in the development of our country. In various parts of the world, it has been shown just how much power there is in education, power in the right kind and power in the wrong kind.

In contrast, it has been shown very definitely that ignorance is a great blight on any person or people. Education is a continuous process and, like a worthy purpose, should be and can be pursued throughout life.

Study and experimentation have conquered many diseases, cured many wounds, provided many conveniences, and the more good education all of the people have the better conditions should be for all.

Ignorant Cannot Remain Free
Education is not something to be dreaded; education is something for which many have worked hard and sacrificed much. Many a parent or relative has seen the great advantages of education and have sacrificed greatly to bring it to pass in the lives of their off springs or guardians.

Thomas Jefferson said that an ignorant people cannot long remain free. An education, well rounded, that includes mental, social, physical, and spiritual aspects will make possible the fullest realization of the total personality.

Some people learn the art of self-education, which is wonderful. Formal education is best for the masses.

In our national constitution, education is not mentioned. Article ten of this Constitution reads as follows:

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

For these many years, therefore, education has been known as a state matter or a matter of the local people. The Federal government has maintained since about 1867 an Office of Education to diffuse useful information, to gather data, to print results of studies, etc. The Congress has seen fit to encourage education through land grants to colleges and universities, through the setting aside of sections of land in townships as a sacred trust for the benefit of youth, and through the establishing of vocational education programs.

Someone has said that the decisive factor in some future war might be the ability of America to feed herself and her allies. These efforts have been exerted by the national government, it is true, but the actual application of the laws have been in the hands of the states and the people.

The South has had a tremendous task of establishing and maintaining an effective public school system. If all the money that has been spent on education in the State of Mississippi had been spent on the education of white children, the average expenditure per child in average daily attendance would have been far too low.

We have risen from the status of a defeated, humiliated and impoverished people in 1865 to that of a people well on their way.

In spite of outside interference in racial matters, our people have a splendid record of getting along well together. There are untold instances of abiding friendship between members of the races.

It would not be a good thing for any white person to gloat over the fact of his race or make things more difficult for members of another race.

Maintain Integrity of Races
But there is no way to eliminate racial characteristics except, maybe, to establish a mongrel race which no one would respect.

It is far better to maintain the integrity of the races, to improve the people who compose them, and to think of the welfare of all the people.

There are those who seem to believe that to eliminate the word segregation would be a signal for ushering in a new day in human relations. I think that would be true but in quite a different sense. It would bring about untold unpleasantness, much ill-will and countless injuries. It will be far better to continue to have separate schools for the races. I do not think the opposite of this would bring any real happiness to the members of the colored race; it would make the majority of Mississippians, the white people, very unhappy.

If our schools were integrated, where would integration stop? If integration begins, where will it stop? These are soul-searching questions which we need to study just now. It would be one thing for members of the races to mix in certain classes, if that was all there was to it.

But, would that be the case? It is one thing for the members of a church of one race to invite members of another race to their services, and it's quite another thing for members of one race to barge in on the congregation of another race. That would be a poor way of upholding the letter and spirit of the law.

Each Race Has Rights
It occurs to me that the people of each race have rights and privileges. That means that the members of the white race have rights and privileges, in their homes, in their churches, in their schools, in their places of entertainment and in their places of business. Anyone who would come into one of these places uninvited or with an unkind motive would be rude, indeed.

It is incumbent upon our State and our people to provide as adequate educational facilities as the economy can afford. This should be continuously done after the best studies possible have been made.

Need Better Schools
There should not have to be so much said about separate schools but more about good schools for all the children of the State. By improving the schools along the same plan now in existence, Negro teachers will be assured positions.

This will not only be an economic factor for the Negro race to consider, but it should be a morale builder among the teachers and families. These are only a very few of the reasons why the white teacher should be considered.

be better than others. That will result from economic as well as other factors. But Mississippi needs the best that an improving Negro teaching profession can produce.

Ask Cooperation, Good Will

Should we abandon our public school system? No; there will be a way worked out to prevent that. It might be the part of wisdom to think deeply and talk sparingly about plans which others outside the realm of our common interests would study and thwart.

I would remind the members of the Negro teaching that, at heart, the white teacher and your friends are coming to come.

A BRAND NEW ELECTRIC WATER SYSTEM GIVEN AWAY

FRIDAY, SEPT. 24 ^{3:00}_{P.M.} AT TISHOMINGO COUNTY FAIR!

Here's the chance of a lifetime . . . the opportunity you've been waiting for. Some lucky member of Tishomingo County Electric Power Association is going to win a new electric water system valued at $300.

And it's absolutely Free!

But that isn't all you'll win if you're the lucky member. Your water system will be installed for you. Men from your power association and the county health department—men who are experts in their field—will plan your water system so that it will fulfill all your needs for running water. And they'll make sure that your water system will meet the sanitation requirements set forth by health department officials.

Just think of it! Your own water system right on your farm. You'll be free forever from the drudgery of pumping and carrying water. You'll have all the water you need—water for the kitchen, bath, laundry, barn—right at your fingertips.

This once in a lifetime chance is made possible through the cooperation of your Power Association, the County Health Department, and the water system dealers whose names are listed at the bottom of this page.

No Strings Attached-Nothing To Buy Just Follow These Simple Rules:

It's easy. You have just as good a chance to win as anyone else. Follow these simple directions:

1. Fill out the card questionnaire that you got from your Power Association. It was mailed to you on September 1; if you haven't already received it, you will very soon.
2. Return the completed card to your Power Association on or before September 15, 1954. Any card received later than September 15 will not be included in the drawing. Drawing will be held and prize awarded at 3:00 p.m. on September 24 at the Tishomingo County Fair. You do not have to be present to win.
3. The winner must supply an adequate water supply that can be made to conform to the Health Department standards.
4. Members using or having access to public water service are not eligible for participation.
5. The equipment must be installed in the Tishomingo County E. P. A. service area.

Don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity. Fill out your card questionnaire now—today—and mail it to your Power Association. Remember, you must return the completed card on or before September 15, 1954, to be eligible to win the installed water system.

What A Water System On Your Farm Will Mean To You And Your Family

In the kitchen:

Running water in your kitchen will save you hours of drudgery each day. Plenty of water at your fingertips . . . water for washing dishes, cleaning, cooking. Your kitchen work will go faster . . . You'll have more time to do the things you want to do.

In the laundry:

It takes lots of water to do your laundry . . . carrying water for your washings is a back-breaking job. With running water you don't have to carry water. There's plenty of water on hand . . . just turn a tap and the water's there.

In the bath:

A farm water system makes it possible for you to have an indoor bathroom. This means more sanitary living on the farm . . . better health for you and your family.

In the barn:

Profitable farming requires lots of water . . . livestock need plenty of water if they are to put on the weight that means more profit to you. With a farm water system, you're sure that there'll be all the water needed . . . and you won't have to spend hours laboriously pumping and carrying it.

Outside:

There are literally hundreds of uses for water outside the home. Running water for your garden raises production as much as 50 percent . . . means bigger and better vegetables. A farm water system supplies you with all the water you need for all purposes.

BURNSVILLE P. T. A. MEETING HELD

The Parent Teachers Association of the Burnsville district was held the third Friday night in August at the high school.

Mr. Roy Adams directed the song service after which Mrs. Jack Robinson gave an inspiring devotional.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Lawrence Elledge.

Mr. Russell Bonds, president, brought out the "question box" which was prepared at the meeting one month ago. The questions were read by Mr. Bonds and anyone who cared to discuss them.

Some of the questions were: How can a child be taught the value of money? How can we get more children to eat in the lunch room? Should a mother go with her child on his first day of school?

Locomotive bells and school bells both ring for your youngsters

When you hear locomotive bells along the Illinois Central, they are ringing for your schools and the education of your children.

The freight hauled behind the clanging engine bells helps your community build schools, buy books and pay teachers. Last year the Illinois Central paid more than $47 million in taxes, nearly twice the railroad's total profits. A considerable share of these taxes went to support schools in communities along the railroad.

Taxes are not the sole contribution of the Illinois Central to education. Thousands of Illinois Central people take an active personal part in local school affairs. Many serve on school boards and participate in school activities. All bear their fair share of individual school taxes.

The Illinois Central is proud to share in the progress of education for our young people. It is one of the many ways in which we are privileged to earn the right to your continued friendship and patronage.

HISTORIC CHURCHES TELL PART RELIGION HAS PLAYED IN STATE

Evidence of Mississippi's religious life for the more than two-and-a-half centuries since the first Catholic mass was said at Fort Adams near Woodville in 1682 can be traced today not only in the history books but through scores of still existent church buildings which date as far back as the early 1800's.

Religion has played an important part in the colorful history of the state and its people since the late 16th century. Robert Cavalier de la Salle sailed down the Mississippi River and took possession of Louisiana in the name of King Louis XIV of France. Much of the history of religion in Mississippi since that eventful year of 1682 can be found today in the numerous historic churches which are located in almost every section of the state.

Many of these sacred edifices reflect not only the architecture of the era in which they were built but give an insight into the customs and the way of life of their congregations down through the years.

Their histories combine both legend and fact into an interesting, entertaining, and enlightening series of anecdotes which can be more thoroughly appreciated by the reader who visits them.

Time and the elements have taken their toll but many today are as sound as the reasons which prompted their builders. Possibly the oldest building of any denomination, however, is the Baptist Church of Woodville, whose congregation met secretly in the Bethel community as early as 1806. Meetings were held there because Roman Catholicism was the state religion of the Spaniards.

With the same determination that left their mark on the state's agriculture, these new settlers from the eastern states, who were of Tory caste, drove the wedge of Protestantism into the almost solidly Catholic society.

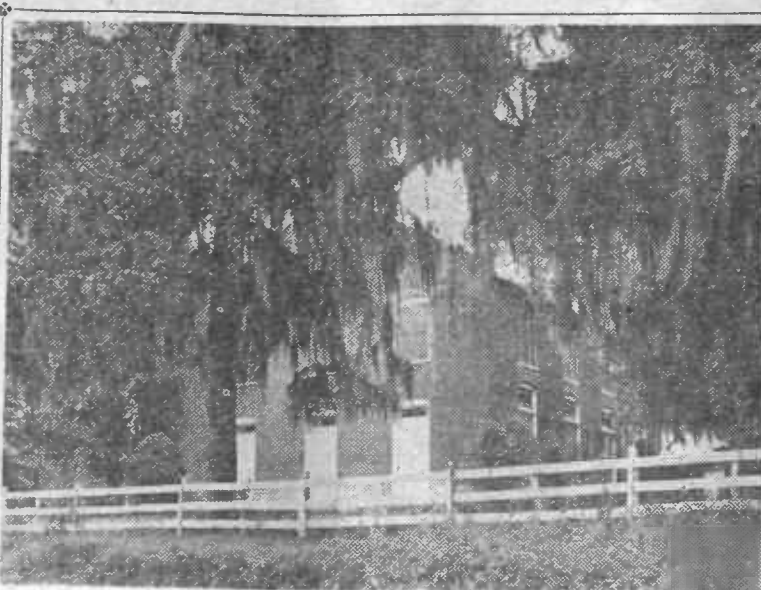

By 1779, however, British rule gave way to Spanish dominion, and once again Catholicism became the official religion of the territory. Lenient civil laws, however, attracted more and more Anglo-Saxon Protestants who found a common cause in their opposition to Spain's rigid religious laws.

Under militant preachers in secret meetings Mississippi once more made the transition from Catholicism to Protestantism. Out of this came the first Baptist Church which not only superseded the authority of the Catholic Church, but which laid the framework for the introduction of other sects.

The first Methodist Church followed at Washington in 1799; the first Presbyterian Church was organized in Jefferson County in 1804, and so on down the line, with Episcopalians, Christians, Lutheran and Jewish churches following.

Members of the Catholic faith were almost destitute of spiritual attention until 1837 when Pope Gregory XVI established a new diocese to embrace Mississippi, making Natchez its cathedral city. Priests were sent to administer to the Irish Catholics at Paulding, Bassfield, and to families along the Coast. The work among negroes on the Coast was outstanding and the church set up at Bay St. Louis the first seminary in America to train Negro boys for the priesthood.

A great migration followed the admission of Mississippi into the Union and with it religious doctrines were transplanted from one section of the country to another. The Episcopal church flourished first along the Mississippi River among wealthy planters and slave owners, later moving northward into the upper Delta.

The Methodist Church of Woodville, built in 1824, is probably the oldest of its denomination in Mississippi. Methodism rapidly spread throughout the state after this church was built.

After organizing their first church, the Presbyterians were reinforced by families from the Carolinas and they grew so fast that the Mississippi Presbytery was formed in 1816.

Baptists had a particularly strong appeal among the independent farmers who settled in the Pine Woods of Southern Mississippi and here they gained a foothold.

Methodists, close on the heels of Baptists in numbers, rapidly spread their churches throughout the state. Next came the Christian church, established near Jackson first in 1838. The last to organize a church in Mississippi's antebellum period were the Lutherans who came from South Carolina to Sallis in 1840, establishing the New Hope Congregation Church in 1846.

Following the Civil War, urban population grew and with the rise of towns came a large influx of Jewish people. The state's first synagogue was founded at Woodville in 1866.

War Marks

Many of Mississippi's historic old churches bear the mark of war. The Presbyterian Church at Rodney, now a ghost town on the Mississippi River between Vicksburg and Natchez, was shelled by Federal gunboats and bears the marks of cannon balls. Because of changes in the river's course, this once important port is now three miles inland.

Old Bethel Presbyterian Church south of Port Gibson, built in 1820, was riddled by bullets pumped into its belfry by irreverent soldiers of General Grant's army en route to Vicksburg.

A church of the same faith at Holly Springs was in the process of being dedicated when Federal troops arrived in 1861, using the lower floor for a stable.

Another Presbyterian church used as a hospital for Confederate wounded during the war is located at Enterprise.

One of the oldest Episcopal churches west of the Alleghenies is St. Paul's at Woodville, erected in 1824. Little changed by time, this beautiful old church contains massive chandeliers from an old monastery, an original carved altar and an imported English organ which is still in use.

In 1862 the congregation forwarded the church bell to General Beauregard to be melted into cannon, "hoping that its gentle tones, that have so often called us to the House of God, may be transmuted into war's resounding rhyme to repel the ruthless invader from the beautiful land God, in his goodness, has given us."

Another church with a significant bell is St. Mary's Cathedral at Natchez, erected by Catholics in 1841, a beautiful shrine of Gothic design, altars of Carrara marble and a 3,000 pound bell made by Giovanni Lucenti and given to St. Mary's by Prince Alex Torlonia of Rome in 1849. The Princess Torlonia, the story goes, threw her wedding ring into molten metal as the bell was cast.

More familiar to the passerby is the Presbyterian Church of Port Gibson, built in 1829 on what is now Church street, a tree-shaded avenue containing probably the greatest number of houses of worship in such a small area.

The steeple of this magnificent structure is surmounted by an enormous galvanneal iron hand with a forefinger pointing heavenward. Chandeliers in the church were a gift from the owners of the steamboat Robert E. Lee, which in 1870 won the race with the Natchez in the most celebrated event of its kind in the history of Mississippi River packets.

The century-old Chapel Of The Cross" at Annandale, 10 miles north of Jackson, was built by the widow of a Scotch immigrant who pioneered to Madison county in 1820.

Helen Johnstone, the beautiful daughter of the widow, met and fell in love with Henry Crew Vick, son of the founder of Vicksburg. After a long and happy courtship, the couple finally set the date for their wedding on May 21, 1859, the ceremony to be held in the Chapel Of The Cross.

Four days before the wedding, young Vick became involved in an argument in New Orleans and was challenged to a duel. Despite a promise he had made to Helen never to kill a man, Henry was on the dueling ground at the appointed hour.

In the grey dawn Helen's lover paced off the count, turned and fired his shot into the air over his opponent's head, thereby keeping a promise to his sweetheart which cost him his life.

Vick's body was returned to a saddened Annandale for burial in the graveyard of the Chapel. Legend has it that the Bride of Annandale to this day visits the grave of her lover in the lonely churchyard at the Chapel Of The Cross.

Many of these churches offered comfort to the leaders of the day in trying times.

Such was the Church of the Redeemer at Biloxi, a beautiful ivy-covered Episcopal worshiping place built in 1890. Here Jefferson Davis and his family attended services while living at Beauvoir, last home of the only Confederate president.

The growth of cities and the development of rapid modes of travel have resulted in many drastic changes in the physical appearance of Mississippi churches. But "breathes there the man, with soul so dead" who could fail to feel a certain awe and reverence upon entering a church which has withstood the test of time, and war and suffering.

County Taxpayers To Save $14,266

The Mississippi Economic Council today estimated that state taxpayers will save $33-120,000 through cuts which congress made in appropriations for the fiscal year 1955 below those approved for 1954.

The MEC arrived at the figure by applying an economic index which shows the state to pay .48 of the total federal tax bill. The economic index is furnished by the Washington research office of the Council of State Chambers of Commerce, of which the MEC is a member.

Applying the county economic index adopted by the state legisla- ture to determine each county's tax-paying ability in relation to the state, Tishomingo County rep- resents .4 per cent of the state's tax paying ability. Using this in- dex, county taxpayers will save $14,266 because of reductions in federal spending.

Percentage-wise the House did better in making cuts than the Senate, according to the analysis. Exclusive of permanent appro- priations, the House cut $3 billion, or 6.06 percent, from re- quests, totaling $49.5 billion. The Senate cut $1.8 billion off re- quests for $49.7 billion.

News of the Tishomingo Baptist Churches.

R. B. PATTERSON, Missionary.

P. O. Box 314, Phone 3261, Iuka

Rev. Martin J. Gilbert, Rural Secretary for Mississippi Baptist Convention Board, Jackson, Miss., will be the featured speaker at the monthly meeting of the Tishomingo County Baptist Association in their regular session at New Prospect Baptist Church on Tuesday evening, September 7, at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. Gilbert has served in this capacity for the past ten years, and more, and is vitally interested in the growth and development of our rural churches in Mississippi. It is hoped that all of our churches will be well represented at this, the last monthly meeting before our regular annual meeting of the Association in October.

Immediately following this monthly meeting is the time for the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association.

Missionary Patterson, who is directing the Schools of Missions program in the Association, October 24-29, is calling a meeting of the General Committee of the S. O. M. to meet at the close of the Tuesday evening Program. This committee is composed of the following leaders: Associational Moderator, Sunday School Superintendent, Training Union director, W. M. U. President, Music Director, and State Board Member.

The planning meeting for the Schools of Missions was held at the Iuka Baptist Church on last Friday evening. A goodly number of people responded to the call for the church leaders. The following churches were represented: Iuka, Highland, New Liberty, Burnsville, Mt. Moriah, Oldham, New Prospect, S. Cross Roads, and Golden. In addition to the general committee, the following committees are being asked to serve in the capacities indicated by their names: Committee on Books and Classes—Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, Miss Cleo Moore and Mrs. L. V. Edwards; Committee on Entertainment—The W. M. U. of the Iuka Baptist Church; Publicity Committee—Rev. C. A. Savell, Mr. Ferrell Skinner and Mr. Frank Shoffner; Transportation Committee—The Brotherhood of the Iuka Baptist Church, under the leadership of the President, Mr. Monroe Robinson; Treasurer—Mrs. Paul Skinner.

Rev. J. R. Davis, pastor of the New Albany, Miss., Baptist Church, will assist Rev. C. A. Savell in a revival at the Iuka Baptist Church beginning September 2. Rev. Davis is a very gifted speaker and is serving as the Presiding officer of the Mississippi State Board of Missions.

Rev. James Brown preached in a revival in Marshall County last week and next week he will assist Rev. Lauren Locke at the North Cross Roads Church in a series of services.

Rev. Odes Puckett preached for the revival in Rev. W. A. Hamilton's church last week in Alabama. A good report comes on the results.

Rev. and Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Paul Skinner, and Miss Cleo Moore represented Tishomingo Association at the State Sunday School Planning meeting this week in the First Baptist Church at Jackson, Mississippi.

At the annual Home-coming services at New Salem Baptist Church last Sunday a building fund was started to erect some Sunday School rooms for the growing church. Congratulations to the church and pastor on this forward step. Rev. Odes Puckett is serving this historic church and is leading out in a fine way to greater things ahead. "Dinner on the ground" and singing in the afternoon concluded the program of the day which was attended by many out-of-community visitors as well as a host of local church members.

tion of razing Pasture normal growth of pasture plants. On many pastures that would, with average rainfall, furnish ample grazing, it is becoming difficult for livestock to obtain enough to eat. Overgrazing is one of the greatest enemies to the establishment and maintenance of a good permanent pasture. This is a fact that all farmers and agricultural workers agree on, but in about the same breath they will say, but what can be done about it? A farmer has a pasture and livestock. When it stays dry for weeks and weeks, nothing grows, not even pasture grasses. The livestock eat all the plants there are in sight down to the bare ground, and still it doesn't rain so there you are. Sure this true and accurately describes the situation on most farms, but not on all farms in the county. To be specific, it is not true on L. E. Skinner's farm nor is it entirely true on Charlie Daugherty's farm. These men realize what might happen and planted part of their land to star millet for temporary grazing, this millet has helped Mr. Daugherty and has been a life saver for Mr. L. E. Skinner. By having the millet for his cattle to graze Mr. Skinner can shut them off the Dallis and lespedeza pasture to preserve it from becoming overgrazed. That is, he can prevent it from being overgrazed for the time being.

For five weeks approximately 40 head of cattle have spent most of their time grazing star millet in an eleven acre field on the L. E. Skinner farm, this gives the Dallis grass, lespedeza, and legumes in his permanent pastures an opportunity to recuperate and grow what little it can during this hot dry weather.

Why should a technician of the USDA Soil Conservation Service be interested in temporary grazing crops like star millet? The answer is the use of such crops is a means to more adequate protection of our land from water erosion. The one thing the Commissioners of the Tennessee River Soil Conservation District stresses most is the necessity of keeping a good cover of sod, small grain or forestry on the more sloping and steep land of the county.

An overgrazed pasture is not an adequate cover for sloping hill land. In fact, about as much soil will be washed from an acre of overgrazed pasture as from a cultivated field of cotton or corn. Any pasture sod high enough and thick enough to break the force of the raindrops will prevent to a very large extent the danger of erosion, and nearly twice as much of the water falling on the land will soak into the soil. We are in great need of more water in the soil. The most practical way we have of getting more water into our soil is to keep it covered with good pasture, small grain, or pines which will bring the farmer an income while protecting the land from erosion, and storing much needed water in the subsoil. Star millet properly used will help accomplish these things insofar as permanent pastures are concerned.

Meeting Of The Alumni Reunion At Oakland

The Alumni Association of the Old Oakland Normal Institute in Itawamba county held its annual reunion on Sunday, August 29.

Members of the old student body and their friends began arriving around ten a.m. and by noon a goodly number were present. There followed two hours of handshaking and reminiscing of the dear days of the long ago. Laughter and tears were mingled as we recalled old familiar faces and the incidents we shared together in the days beyond recall.

At noon a picnic lunch was spread under the old campus oaks that, too, like the members of the association, are fast diminishing.

They were called together at one o'clock by the ringing of the old bell that has been in use for seventy-five years. The tones seemed very much the same except for a slight crack that marred the well-remembered sound.

The afternoon session was called to order by the president of the association, Hon. J. A. Cunningham, Sr. of Booneville, Miss. After a brief business session a memorial service was held in memory of the late Prof. J. T. Holley, Co-founder of the institution who recently died at his home in Stigler, Oklahoma at the advanced age of 94.

Mr. Cunningham gave the memorial address. He spoke very feelingly of our love and appreciation for the great work of the Holley brothers in establishing and continuing the school over a long period of years; of their vision and fortitude in the struggle against great odds. They gave of themselves in time, strength, and material possessions that others might enjoy a richer, fuller and a more abundant life. Although a marble stone has been erected on the campus to their memory. The everlasting memorial was written in the hearts and minds of the boys and girls who sat at their feet and learned the great lesson of honor, self-sacrifice and our obligation to build such a true foundation that those who come after us may continue to build.

One feature of the memorial service was the tolling of the old bell in Mr. Holley's memory recalling to our minds the fact that he always did this when there was a death in the surrounding community.

There followed a short memorial service for those of the association who had fallen from the ranks since we met: Jack Bolding, John Williams and Jerry Harris of Red Bay, Ala., Mrs. Vona Grady Senter, Veroda, Miss, Mrs. Sophie Pitts Graham of Fulton and Elmer Little of Birmingham, Alabama.

The distinguished columnist, Paul Flowers of the Commercial Appeal, Memphis, was present and spoke of the good work done by the founders of the institute and commended the association for keeping alive the memories and fellowships of the past by holding our annual reunion.

Members of the association were present from Hamilton, Vernon and Red Bay, Alabama, Golden, Belmont, Tishomingo, Tremont, Mooreville, Fulton, Rienzi, Booneville, Brookville, in Mississippi; Hammond, La. and Memphis, Tennessee.

Coming from the greatest distance was Oscar Waldrep from Hammond, La. One family had a 100% attendance, the family of Dr. Noonan Waldrep of Tishomingo. He, one brother and three sisters were present. One lady had not seen the place in more than fifty years.

Before the closing prayer, the Alumni voted to change the date of the meeting to the 3rd Sunday in October.

After the last good-bys were said and we were taking our leave the oldest member present, Mr. Fayette Graham of Fulton said, "I'll see you again next year. I'm just 86 but I'll be back." Here's hoping he makes it.
