Iuka To Have One-Half Of One Per Cent Additional Sales Tax For Next 17 Months

Designated To End December 31st, 1957; Went Into Effect Monday

The mayor and Board of Aldermen of the Town of Iuka, in a separate move to solve the problem of finances of the town, passed Monday afternoon a resolution to put into effect a one-half of one per cent additional tax on all taxable merchandise sold within the town of Iuka.

The resolution came as a result of a meeting of the Town Council held on Monday afternoon. The council, consisting of the mayor and five aldermen, was notified of the impending move to put into effect the tax.

The resolution was published in four issues of The Vidette, and would go into effect on Monday, August 1st, providing a petition containing the names of not less than 20 per cent of the qualified voters of the Town was not filed before the Board by August first. A petition was presented to the Board but it lacked a few names having the required number to call an election. Therefore the tax was declared official and all merchants are to collect it accordingly.

At the meeting Monday afternoon practically all retail businesses of the Town were represented. After the assembly was called to order by J. C. Jourdan, Jr., made a short talk in which he advocated and endorsed the tax providing it was to be imposed for only 17 months. All citizens present agreed to this arrangement and upon a motion made by alderman Gene Wadley and seconded by alderman

E. E. Murrah, the council voted unanimously to accept the proposition as presented. Aldermen present and voting were Eugene Wadley, E. E. Murrah, and Joe W. Thompson.

Mayor John H. Allen presided. Reading the Town Council says, for imposing the tax is to furnish necessary utilities for the shoe factory plant and to aid in paving and maintaining the streets of the Town. About 18 months ago several of the streets of the town were paved and are now badly in need of repair. Officials say that it might be possible to add other services for residents if collection of the sales tax comes up to expectations. We "might even be able to lower the ad valorem tax rate," Mayor John H. Allen stated.

(Next week a table showing proper tax collections at the 3 1/2% rate will be published.)

Local Boy Receives Commendation

W. E. Anglin, 346-78-56, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anglin, R-3, has received a commendation for performance during a Small Pilotless Aircraft firing conducted aboard "Hancock" on March 1.

Performance of the crew of Mount 33, of which Eural is a member attended a rate of fire of fifty rounds per gun per minute, and expended the full allowance of ammunition without a casualty. "Your efforts at loading drills and previous firing were essential in fostering a spirit of teamwork and coordinating the crew into a smoothly functioning team," said his commanding officer. "Your interest and initiative provided inspiration to those men serving with you and was in keeping with the highest traditions of the U. S. Naval Service," he further added. This outstanding performance merited the "Hancock" a banner.

BIG TURNOUT IN FIRST PRIMARY

Coleman, Johnson In Run-off For Gov.; Marlar And Wilson For Sheriff; Long And Scruggs For Supt. Of Education

Possibly the biggest vote ever recorded in Tishomingo county was polled in Tuesday's first primary election. Voting commenced at 8 a.m. and was continuous throughout the day in all the heavy voting boxes, early morning and late evening voters having to stand in line. All ballots were cast in an orderly fashion with no disruptions of any kind being reported.

As nearly as can be determined approximately 5100 people cast ballots with 5,090 being cast in the Tax Assessor's race and 5,081 being cast in the sheriff's race.

According to incomplete and unofficial returns, Marlar and Wilson will be the contestants in the sheriff's race with Long and Scruggs being left in for superintendent of education. Duncan and Daugherty will be in the run-off for representative with Duncan completing the first primary with a huge margin over Daugherty.

Circuit Clerk Alver Belue and Mrs. Arah Ivy are in the same spot now as they were in the 1951 second primary. Belue came out of this year's First Primary with a big margin over Mrs. Ivy, their votes being 1739 for Belue with 974 for Mrs. Ivy.

Bishop and Vinson are left in the race for Tax Assessor, Bishop having 1144 votes in this first election to Vinson's 989. Rhine has a better than 2-to-1 majority over incumbent County Prosecuting Attorney J. D. Finch, their votes being Rhine 3258 and Finch 1607.

In the Third Supervisor's district, it is reported that incumbent O. L. Wade was an easy winner over his two opponents Crane and Robinson. Figures for these men were unavailable.

In the Fourth District, Luncford Stormont was selected, home free, over his two opponents, Hardin and Loveless.

In the Fifth District incomplete returns gave Dock Montgomery 230 votes, Moore 289, South 423 and Sparks 190. (These figures are incomplete and their correctness cannot be vouched for.)

In the race for State Senator from the 37th Senatorial District which is comprised of Tishomingo, Alcorn and Prentiss counties, D. F. Lambert, Jr., of Belmont, is number two man with an incomplete return of 3948 votes; Burns is leading Lambert by only 58 votes. The other two contenders for this office, Chaffin and Guntharp, are away down the line.

In the five-candidate race for governor, Paul Johnson led Tishomingo county as he did the entire state in the county vote, according to our latest UP information is 105,149. Closest to Johnson in the county and over the state is J. P. Coleman, his county vote being 1330 and his state-wide tally being 95,173. Wright, Barnett and Cain are third, fourth and fifth place holders respectively with Wright having 83,895 votes, Barnett 81,176 votes and Cain, the lone woman candidate, having 20,617 votes.

The table on this page shows the incomplete and unofficial returns of the county.

Congressman Abernethy Returning Home After Adjournment Of Congress

BY

Congressman Abernethy Capitol Hill is folding up. Congressmen and Senators are preparing to head home. When the last bell rings they will scatter like rabbits from a fired brush heap. This place then will be as dull as a forgotten cemetery.

My family returned to our home in Okolona weeks ago. In their absence I have occupied our house here alone. You can imagine what the place resembles. It doesn't look too tidy after a five week's accumulation of dust, old newspapers, trash, egg shells and dirty inens. Housekeeping just isn't my line. And, take it from me, batching is a poor way to live. I like scrambled eggs, but after eating them every day for weeks they cease to be appetizing, especially with burned toast. Now I don't care if I never see another egg. I'll be so glad to get back to Okolona, rejoin my wife and children, have a real "square" meal and breathe some good old Mississippi fresh air.

My plans? Well, I don't have any particularly. I'm just going home, will do some fishing probably, and then get around to see the folks. So, I'll be seeing many of you soon.

During adjournment business will be transacted as usual at my office. It will remain open every day. A competent staff will remain on duty to handle your letters and inquiries.

This has been a pretty good session of Congress. Naturally, the Republicans don't think so and will criticize. But, they overlook the fact that the last time we had a Republican Congress the Puerto Ricans tried to kill every one of us. For a few minutes I thought they had. Not one single shot has been fired at this Democratic Congress. That alone is some evidence of the profound satisfaction with which our service has been received. I see in the papers where Ike told a group of Republicans the other day that they have a good chance to take over all branches of this government and hold on forever. May the Lord forbid! Measured against what happened in the last Republican Congress, if that should ever come to pass we may all be killed.

I have enjoyed bringing you this occasional News Letter throughout the year. I hope it has brought you sidelights not otherwise available from the press and radio. I'll be back with it next January. In the meantime, I hope to see you.

S. W. Cox, Iuka, Rt. 1, is planning to make two bales of cotton per acre on eleven acres. Mr. Cox had his soil tested at the Soil Testing Laboratory, State College, Mississippi, and followed the recommendations explicitly. They were 1½ tons limestone, 600 pound 8-8-8 and 66 pounds nitrogen per acre. A complete cotton insect control program is now being carried out. At the present time, all indications are that this goal will be reached.

Deanie Clark, 4-H Club and FF-A Member of Tishomingo High School, is carrying out one of the best cotton poisoning schedules of his community. He also has a cotton demonstration that proves side balls should be 25 to 30 days old before the defoliant is applied.

You should make your plans now and line up the equipment and defoliant material.

Calcium cyanamide dust has been widely used in the past as a defoliant, but several spray materials will also give good results.

The dust must be applied in late afternoon or early morning when the air is still.

Sprays can be applied when there is a slight breeze.

Irish potato planting time is here. Recommended planting date for fall Irish potatoes is August 1-10.

There is still time to plant tomato suckers—these can be sent through August 15. This deadline also applies to planting pole snap beans, pole lima beans, rutabaga and Chinese cabbage.

Some recommendations for fall plantings are: Use Shogoin turnips for early plantings they are lice resistant, later use Seven-top. Soak beet and chard seed overnight before planting.

County Cotton Insect Report

The boll weevil situation is reaching the critical stage, especially in old cotton. First and second generation weevils are hatching out and migrating time is almost upon us. Fleahoppers are continuing to cause damage to very young squares.

Do not stop poisoning because cotton is large. Much more cotton will be saved by insecticide application than poisoning equipment

Visiting Around:
Mrs. Tom Felker has joined her husband in Oregon.
Monroe Culp was injured in a power saw one day last week.
Tom Kennedy has returned from a two weeks visit with his daughter, Mrs. Veatrice Offitt in Baltimore.
The Herbert Malone family of the Tri-Cities were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Paden.
Among those who are home from the hospital are Mrs. Vardie Blunt, Clovis Smith and Ruel Cornelius.
Mrs. Guy Bickerstaff was rush- ed to a hospital this week end suffering from food poisoning. She is making satisfactory progress.
Clebun Hodgins is in Corinth hospital where he has undergone surgery. He is improving.
Mrs. Rhine Smith, a former resi- dent of our community, recently had a serious operation in a Mem- phis hospital. She has been re- moved to a Shreveport hospital for observation. Her brother-in-law is a practicing physician in Shreve- port.
Relatives and friends of Sidney Finch have been much concern- ed over his critical condition. He is a patient in the Booneville hos- pital.
Wayne Champion, who has never walked, is a patient in a Mem- phis hospital. This is not an un- usual happening to Wayne for he has spent much of his 15 years in bed. What is unusual though, is the good news that now he may be helped by surgery. He was born with a spinal deformity and mus- cular contractions of his hips. Wayne likes to model clay and read comics; both are necessary pastimes for him. A shower of cards, comics, clay, money or any appropriate gift would be deeply appreciated by this cheerful youngster, who lost his mother when a tiny lad. "The March Of Progress" Has Been Aided Greatly By Good Roads During The Twentieth Century

By ROY C. ADAMS

When you ride along the highways on business or pleasure do you think of how much planning, study, the many tests that have been made before and during the construction and the man hours consumed in the building of our highways? That smooth, dustless, blacktop surface, that near white paving and that sturdy, beautiful bridge that meets your eye or the eye of your fellow traveler does not reveal the entire story. A major part of the cost of these highways is underneath that smooth riding surface for these roads were not constructed on a "hit or miss" process.

Do you think of the progress that has been made over such a short span of years from ox-drawn wagons, horse and buggies and the Model T to high powered motor cars, freight transport trucks and passenger buses carrying people and freight to all parts of the country?

Great strides have been made in highway construction, and new industries have located in almost every town, both large and small. Our economy has changed considerably and much progress has been made in agriculture, and our dairy and livestock industries are among our largest sources of income. All of this progress has brought about a demand and a necessity for a change from dust and mud to an improved highway system. All of the changes in progress have required vision, study, planning and a lot of effort on the part of many people. Truly, this is a march of progress.

As you ride along a dirt or gravel road, yet unimproved and see a crew of highway employees with transits, or levels, running lines and re-running lines, driving stakes and more stakes you wonder and sometimes ask, "why all of this?" This is why. Funds have become available and your Highway Commissioner has authorized plans to be started for improvement of a section of the 800.8 miles of gravel unimproved highways. The engineers, technicians and trained specialists are studying the most economical route cross sections to determine the quantities of dirt required to be moved and running drainage areas to determine the size of the drainage structures to be built. All of these facts must be known for these field notes are to be transposed into plans by trained draftsmen so that bids may be asked and received and contracts awarded. These quantities must be known for the contractor who builds this road must be paid, and your tax dollar will pay for the construction.

When you see one of the Highway Department's orange colored jeeps boring holes along this proposed route, or taking samples in fields or high ridges, these technicians and specialists are getting samples of dirt and material to determine the kind of material needed in its construction and are locating the material that can be used from a local source. Should you see these men sacking sand, gravel or just plain dirt and were you to see them unload these samples at the laboratories of the Highway Department buildings in Tupelo or Batesville, you might wonder what is the necessity for all of this work. You probably would not one time think of the many tests that are taking place inside these buildings.

The Department's Engineers, arrangement were white tapers in silver branched candelabra. Mrs. John H. Allen, aunt of the bride elect, served individual cakes iced in green and topped with a tiny valley lily. The color scheme was further carried out in the green and white mints. Mrs. H. O. Little, aunt of the bridegroom, served at the punch bowl.

The large assortment of gifts, received by the honoree, included silver, crystal and china in her chosen pattern, linens, etc. They were attractively displayed in the recreation room where Miss Faye Carmichael, sister of the bride elect, assisted the guests in viewing the gorgeous array of gifts. Faye wore a ballerina length dress of yellow net and lace.

Approximately sixty guests called during the appointed hours. Miss Lomenick Entertains

Miss Patsy Lomenick honored Miss Carmichael with a dinner party given Saturday evening at her home on Gaines. For the occasion attractive arrangements of yellow daisies were placed on the dining table and on the buffet.

Guests included Miss Annette Reid, Miss Bobbie Sue Lomenick, Barry Finch, Miss Shirley Sue Brown, Charlie Harrison of University, Miss. and Dick Marsh.

Laboratory Technicians, Instrument and Inspectors coordinating their efforts are responsible for that smooth, riding surface and that beautiful, sturdy bridge for these specialists act as consultants to the contractors, who do most of the highway construction. These specialists also act as advisors to the Highway Department's maintenance crews who reconstruct, repave and maintain your highways.

The Mississippi State Highway Department is a pioneer in the field of Laboratory testing and inspecting. The materials purchased for use in highway construction must pass the tests performed by the two district laboratories. The serviceability and lasting qualities of our approximately 2100 miles of paved highways that extend from state line to state line, from county seat to county seat and are fast extending to almost every rural community, handling an ever-increasing volume of traffic, is due to the tests performed and the skills of these specialists.

As you drive along, do you pause to think of what we had yesterday and what we have today and what will come tomorrow with the "March of Progress"?

The Land And Our People

Hiram A. Jones Work Unit - Conservationist USDA SCS has been said during rec- years about proper land use. It is not at all uncommon for people talk of proper land use. But if asked what you mean proper land use the person thought he knew what it might find that his idea the exact meaning might be vague.

per land use means, using according to its capabilities treating it according to its s. In order to know the capab- of land, it is necessary to have a scientist make a soil map and classify it according to capability. After this is done a comparatively simple task determine its proper use.

There are hundreds and hund- of acres of land being row- ed in Tishomingo County should be in sod crops or r. This is no criticism, it is a statement of fact. It is also that hundreds of Tishomingo farmers, because they own farms, are going to find it difficult to use their land rly. They simply must cult- in row crops land entirely keep for such use.

in what has been said the might conclude that proper use is being over emphasized, that we may use the land as it being used indefinitely with- out much ill effect. The plain is this is not true, and when is not used according to its capability we all suffer.

Mother nature will take only so much abuse, then she will turn and chastize the offender. In the long run nature will force man to properly use the land. The Commission- ers of the Tennessee River Soil Conservation District encourage land owners to use their land as nearly correctly as they can now, in order to give time for further economic adjustments that must be made before all the land can be used within its capability.

As Work Unit Conservationist representing the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Tishomingo County, I want to reemphasize the importance of new industry coming into our County. These indus- trial plants will give employment to local rural people. The employ- ment of these people will relieve the pressure on the land. There is every reason to believe that from a long time viewpoint that the increase from the land, resulting from better use of it, will equal in dollars and cents the factory payroll. Actually this better use of the land will create new jobs processing timber from new forest land.

The one point I want to stress is, proper land use will evolve slowly but surely in this county. The coming of more new industry into Tishomingo County will play a major part in making possible a more correct use of our land.

It is doubtful if there is any section of America that has a brighter future than does Tishomingo County. The future of this area is indeed bright. The landscape and the people will change for the better together. As more and more industry moves in, more and more gullied hillsides will go back into pine trees, and once again clear cool water will flow down the branches and creeks into the Tennessee River and a happy and contented people will live here in Tishomingo County because they have learned to cooperate with nature in the use of the land.

Loyalty Under Fire

Lesson for August 7, 1955

SOMETHING can be learned from history, even when it is the history of obscure men. Perhaps we can even learn more from the history of obscure, little-known, forgotten men, because we are mostly of that sort ourselves, than we can from the biographies of the rich and great. We are invited in this week's lesson to consider a little community of displaced persons more than 2,000 years ago.

Most of those displaced persons Dr. Foreman were citizens of Jerusalem, or had been. That city had been laid flat by Nebuchadnezzar's army. That the little nation of Judah had brought the war on itself, that the prophets, and especially Jeremiah, had predicted exactly what happened,—all this did not soften the blow. Those people were exiles, but with a special bitterness. It is one thing to be driven from home hoping to go back some day; it is another thing to have no home to go back to. If those displaced persons could have been taken back to Palestine, to the exact spot where Jerusalem stood, all they would have found was rubble. They would have perished of starvation. . . . They knew this all too well. Yet in their memories Jerusalem still lived, a dream-city unchanged by time. They wept when they saw it in their mind's eye; but tears did not wash away the picture they loved. Did it do them any good, this remembering and remembering a city that was no more, a city they would never see again? Yes, it did. For even if that city were less fair than their homesick minds portrayed it, the good which they remembered would remain as an ideal. The community they would build in exile would be as near like the best they remembered as they could make it. A remembered glory that comes no more may become an ideal for today's world. Loyalty to memory may be something better than laying posies on well-tended graves; it may be the channel through which the best of yesterday flows into today and tomorrow.

Loyal to Life's Must's

These exiled Jews often dreamed of going back. That was before Jerusalem fell, and before Jeremiah wrote them a famous letter. (Jer. 29.) You will never see your native land again, he told them. The captivity will end, but not in your lifetime. Meanwhile be good citizens where you are. Build houses, plant gardens live with your growing families. Seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile. . . . That may have been hard advice to take; but they took it. Dreams of the past can be slow poison if all they produce is tears. Dreams can make men crazy, they can keep people from looking at life's realities. Dream-wishes can keep men from doing what is possible under the circumstances. Jeremiah did not wish these people to forget Jerusalem. He wanted them to recognize the Must's of the situation where they were. There is such a thing as loyalty to the inevitable. "Shake hands with the Inevitable" is a good rule, for the really inevitable is the hand of Providence.

Loyal to God

The story of the young men who chose death rather than be disloyal to God by worshipping Nebuchadnezzar's golden image, reaches one of its high points in what the young men said to the king. God will deliver us, they said; He is able to deliver us and we believe He will; but if not—if there is no God, or if He is not able to save us, or if He does not choose to save us, if He forsakes us altogether, we will not be disloyal to Him. The story is a kind of parable about all the loyal servants of the true God, in great pagan Babylonia during those exile years. Many Jews must have been tempted to take over the religion of their conquerors, just as after the second World War there was a rush toward Christianity in Japan. Certainly there in Babylon there were many voices whispering or calling aloud, Bow down! Conform, be like everybody else, when you are in Babylon do as the Babylonians do. Don't be peculiar, don't be stubborn, leave your invisible God and come worship the golden gods to whom the nation prays! But the young men made the right choice, hard then, hard always: They would be loyal to the true God, even if his deliverance was delayed.

4,776 Of Our 13,187,000 Forest Acres Went Up In Flames During 1954-55

Mississippi has "lost" its national first place position in forest acreage burned. This is one loss that we can be proud of.

In 1953 Mississippi had more forested forest acreage burned than any other state. Last year we moved down to third place in the nation and this year we should be at the bottom of the list. A total of 124,776 acres of our 13,187,000 acres of forest protection went up in flames during the fiscal year 1954-55. The total number of fires on this protected acreage amounted to 8,665. Almost one-half of these fires were intentionally set. Debris burning and smokers ranked second and third, respectively, as causes. Our record can continue to improve if Mississippi will only use fire wisely. It is our duty to protect the forests of our state because their tremendous economic value. About 46% of our industrial workers are employed in forest product industries and one in every four of Mississippi's dollars comes from the forests. In 1954, the economic value of our forest products amounted to $331,035,148. Mississippi's state fire control program is better than ever before without the cooperation of every citizen in fire prevention the state will find us with far less loss than is needed by our wooding industries.

TCEPA NOTES

By Tressie Gober

Recently, I heard a lady say that her son and family said they had never been able to save any money until he bought a home freezer. It proved to be such an asset that he decided to buy another one. Now they have plenty to eat the year round for much less money. A home freezer is somewhat like a checking account in the bank. To realize its true value in convenience and in saving time, it has to be used. And to get the most in service and savings, there must be some kind of balance between deposits and withdrawals.

In putting food into your freezer, you'll do your shopping, and perhaps some of your cooking, weeks in advance. You should keep an eye open for bargain buys in meats, vegetables, and fruits and do take advantage of all the specials.

Then, to manage your frozen assets wisely, you should organize your freezer space with special sections for your various foods. By doing this, you will use your space economically and will not end up with a freezer full of just one or two foods.

As a guide to organizing this space, you can count on one cubic foot of space holding about 40 pounds of food or about 35 to 40 pounds of meat (not including whole poultry which takes a little more space).

Good management also includes the labeling and dating of all food that goes into your freezer. Because foods have a maximum storage time, you should arrange to use all of them before that time expires. This is simple to do if you will place the new packages behind or beneath the older ones, thereby making the older ones easy to reach.

It is a good idea to keep books on your freezer just as you do on your bank or checking account. An inventory list tacked near your freezer, a record book, a calendar or whatever fits your needs best will help you to manage your freezer contents. This list will be a great help in planning your meals, and do remember to use the oldest first, always.

By setting up a good freezer management plan, you will save time in meal preparation and time in shopping. Your foods will be in prime condition and a freezer doesn't cost, it pays.

Your Built-in "Air Conditioner" . . . Fans Give It the Extra Zip Needed

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

With your fevered brow baking and the corn "popping" in the broiling sun, it may be hard to believe, but . . . your body has its own built-in "air conditioning" system. Of course it may need a little help to function effectively, but it has one nevertheless. Here's how it works: when the temperature rises you start to perspire; when the perspiration evaporates quickly, you feel cooler.

Now, there's very little difficulty in perspiring in hot weather. The trick is to get rid of excess perspiration quickly. And, you can do it if you keep the air around you in motion. Take an uncomfortably warm house on a hot day, for example. You can keep it cool inside if you apply a few simple principles. In the daytime, summer outdoor air is warmer and more humid than air indoors. So—close the doors and windows and pull down the shades or blinds so that heat can not be transferred into the house from outside. Don't worry about lack of air. There's plenty of it in the house. All it needs is motion to overcome any feeling of stuffiness. An electric fan or fans of the proper rating and correctly located will do an efficient air circulation job for you at little cost.

Fans circulate a given number of cubic feet of air per minute, and this data appears on their nameplates. To get the right size of fans needed, therefore, you must first know the cubic feet of air in the room to be cooled. This is done by multiplying the length of the room x the length x the height. Say this comes to 2,000 cubic feet. Therefore, a fan or fans with a total rated capacity of at least 2,000 cubic feet per minute (CFM) will move the air in this room once every minute. In cooler climates a 2 or 3-minute air circulation cycle may be adequate.

Be sure, too, that your fans are located correctly. Figures 1, 1A, 2 and 3 show different types of fans available and the different patterns of air which each creates to cool off your room.

FIG. 1—Non-oscillating fan blows air against opposite wall so it breaks up into smaller currents which give circulation without creating draft.

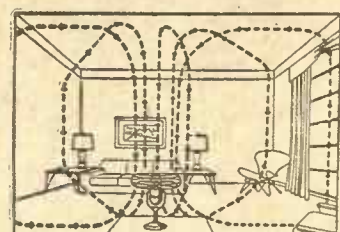

FIG. 1A—Non-oscillating fan tilted upwards blows air toward ceiling breaking up into downward currents providing continuous circulation throughout the room.

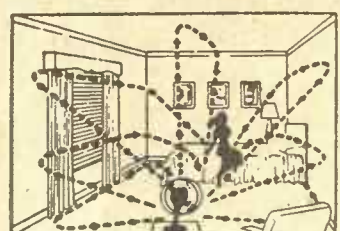

FIG. 2—Oscillating fan moves air back and forth in irregular pattern so persons in immediate vicinity quickly feel cooling effect.

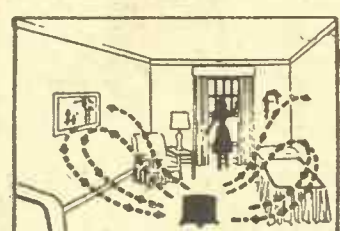

FIG. 3—Floor fan in center of room provides pattern of air movement for general circulation.

Which penny buys electricity?

The happy penny, of course . . . because it's worth more! As a matter of fact, the penny you spend for electricity today is worth even more than it was a few years back . . . while pennies spent for nearly every other product are worth less.

That's why we say that electricity is your best buy.

She carried a carried a prayer book overlaid with lilies of the valley.

The bride's sister and only attendant, Miss Billye Johnston, chose a sleeveless cotton with a full skirt in a rich russet color. She wore a black velvet picture hat and a corsage of yellow roses.
