U. S. Corps of Engineers who have posed project will make a report of their findings on the project to be made at the Tupelo meeting.

According to Mr. Shook, the purpose of the survey, is to determine whether the river project is an economically feasible one from a standpoint of shipping. The project would shorten the water navigation route to the Gulf and the engineers are seeking to determine if enough shipping is being conducted to make it feasible to complete the project.

The estimated cost has been set at $234,000,000. It has been proposed that the river be made navigable and tie it in with the Tennessee river by means of a canal.

Governor Coleman and Governor Folsom of Alabama announced plans for a joint compact between the states for use of the Tombigbee waters at a recent meeting in Jackson. The governors said that if the Federal Government doesn't build the Tombigbee project the states will do it themselves. The governors added that the states can do the job better and cheaper.

Mr. Shook said, "If the project is completed the county stands in a fine position to profit immensely from it." He further states that if and when it is built that the greatest construction will be in Tishomingo County. "After completion of the Tombigbee canal we will have a better means of transporting merchandise out and bringing supplies in for industries at a cheaper rate," he added.

MY FAVORITE PRAYER

Grant us courage, Lord, to face our daily responsibilities with calmness and without apprehension. Encourage us to improve our knowledge of Thee, and help us to find time daily for meditation and communion with thy Spirit. Give us grace to accept in humility and faith thy providences whatever they may be for us, and may we never become weary in well-doing.

The Dangers Of The Minimum Wage

A statesman would vote against a minimum wage of any sort. A politician would vote for any sort of minimum wage.

Many people, of course, would not agree with those two statements and that is their privilege. But let's consider some aspects of the minimum wage law.

First and foremost, it must be remembered that the minimum wage under the so-called Fair Labor Standards Act is decided by law; it is not decided by the value of the laborer's services.

That is the way wages are decided under totalitarian governments—whether dictatorship, communist or socialist. When government assumes the power to decide how little a man shall be paid, it is then a very short step to assume the power to tell him how much he shall be paid. It is next a short step to tell him how much he shall produce and how much he shall pay for what he produces.

This is totalitarianism, and there is no room in a free nation for such governmental assumption of power. Under such a system, the worker has lost his individuality and becomes simply a cog in a machine.

That is why a statesman would vote against a minimum wage law of any sort. He knows that it is wrong in principle, and is therefore bound to be wrong in practice. He knows that it leads to evils much worse than those it proposes to cure.

The whole trouble is that it is so easy to confuse the end with the means. The main objective of the minimum wage, its proponents say, is to give everyone a living wage. Well, everyone wants at least a living wage—and should have it, if he earns it. Most everyone wants a great deal more than a living wage—and should have that, too, if he earns it.

But no one who believes in freedom will argue that a person should have a certain wage whether he earns it or not. That is contrary to common sense. The only real guarantee behind a wage in a free country is the productivity of the person who receives the wage.

Or, to put it another way, a man should be paid what he is worth. That is common sense. But that is not the philosophy of the advocates of government-fixed wages, who are also, of course, the advocates of a planned economy. They would first decide on the wage to be paid and then everyone get it, regardless of the value of his services.

At the present time, there are about 24 million workers covered under the Federal minimum wage law, which now requires payment of $1 per hour. Generally speaking, this law is actually meaningless, because these workers average perhaps double that amount. The fact that it is meaningless has perhaps caused most people to pay little attention to it, even though they may recognize it is wrong in principle.

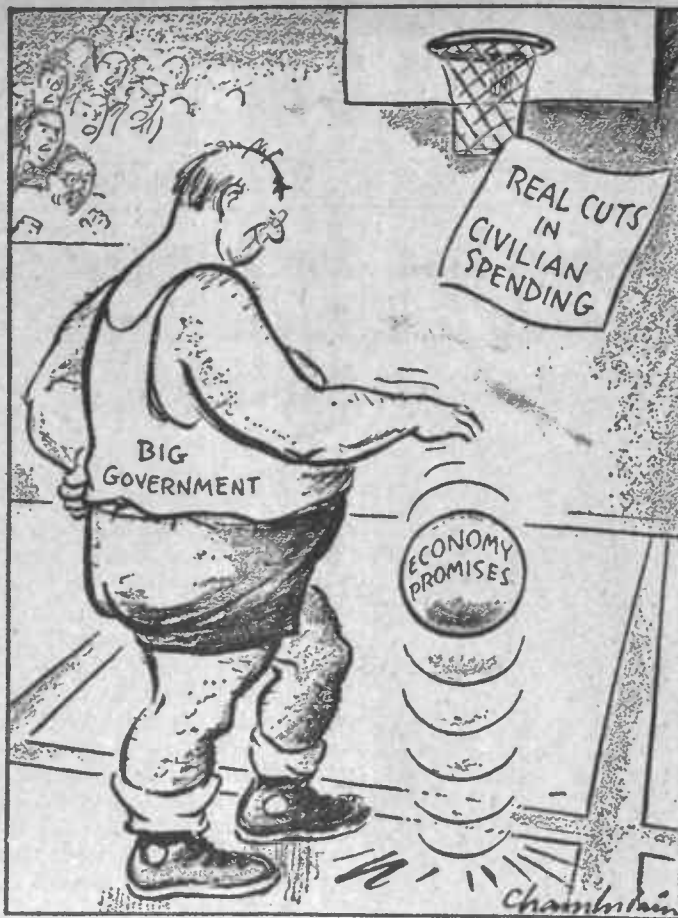

But even if we forget the principle, it is the extension of the law that the real economic danger lies. There are about 20 million other workers in the country that the national labor union says should come under the law, and it is advocating immediate extension to at least 10 million of them and an increase in the minimum wage to all those covered. Extension to the other 10 million would, of course, be the next step.

Such extension would cause many employers to price themselves out of business. It would add enormously to the dangers of inflation, which are great enough as it is. It would cause many employees whose services are simply not worth the minimum wage to become unemployed and therefore become wards of the government. It would prevent many youngsters from getting jobs and benefiting from learning how to make a living. The moral effect of preventing both groups—adults and youngsters—from realizing the satisfaction of earning their way in the world be tremendous, as is already the case to some extent.

But the Administration is partially going along with this advocacy of increased coverage. In fact, both political parties advocated increased coverage in their 1956 platforms—when they were seeking votes.

The matter will soon come before Congress. Each member must decide for himself whether to vote as a statesman or a politician.

STOP DRIBBLING AND SHOOT!

A SPLENDID PATTERN

By George Peck

(EDITOR'S NOTE: George Peck is President of the Laymen's National Committee, sponsor of National Sunday School and Bible Weeks.)

In my mail recently came a beautifully-executed parchment, carrying a message based on the resolutions adopted at the 35th Annual Meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation, held in December of 1953. There was no clue as to the identity of the sender, making it impossible for me to make grateful acknowledgment. It is my hope that he or she will read this column in one of the newspapers in which it will appear and thus learn that the document was received and read with both interest and approval.

The resolutions as set forth on this parchment so completely parallel my own conception of "The American Way," that I could not resist the urge to pass them on to the readers of this column. The parchment reads as follows:

I BELIEVE

in the American competitive enterprise system.

that man's search for progress should be encouraged by maintenance of opportunity, not hindered by illusions of security.

that a person should be rewarded in accordance with his productive contribution to society.

that every man is entitled to own property, earn money honestly, save, invest and spend as he chooses.

that property rights cannot be taken away without infringing on rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

that the Constitution is the basic law of the land, and that its interpretation should be in accordance with the intent of its authors.

that government should operate impartially in the interest of all.

that government's regulatory functions should be based on law.

that government should provide only minimum controls and aids.

that government should stimulate, not discourage, individual initiative.

that propagandizing by government is dangerous to the maintenance of self-government.

that monopoly, whether by government, industry, labor or agriculture, is dangerous.

that voluntary cooperation is a part of the American system.

that all candidates for public office should state their beliefs with respect to Communism, Socialism and Capitalism.

Isn't that a splendid statement of basic Americanism, the kind of Americanism for which the Founding Fathers fought and died? Isn't it a restatement, couched in 20th Century language, of the splendid pattern they laid down for a new nation in drawing up that great document—the Constitution?

Well, once again, the American Farm Bureau Federation, and all other organizations that are opposed to "centralized government" and bureaucratic meddling with our orderly economic system, need to warn the American citizenry that its well-being is in jeopardy. President Eisenhower has warned that if capital and labor do not bestir themselves to halt the march of inflation, he will be forced to ask Congress for wage controls, price controls, rationing, etc., etc.

Isn't that a nauseating prospect? It is especially loathsome because the major villain contributing to the inflationary spiral is government itself—capital and labor are minor contributors thereto. If the President feels that capital and labor should exercise restraint, one is led to wonder why he doesn't set them an example by lopping off a few billions of dollars from the inflationary budget he recently presented to the Congress for fiscal 1958. The billions included therein for foreign aid, schools, roads, power plants, subsidies, etc., etc., could for the most part be cut considerably, even in some cases eliminated entirely.

Further, if he were to suggest to the Congress that it lower taxes, such action by the Congress would have a salutary effect by

Advice To Retailers In Selecting Employees; Intelligent Advertising Store Location Discussed By Writer

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass., March 7—Retailers nowadays seem to have two questions—where and why? If they would look at the stores where customers are going in and out all day, or follow the customers down the highways and see them going to other towns and cities, they would know "where".

Then if they would take a good look at their own business establishment, they would find the answer to "why". In these days of clever advertising together with easy transportation, a customer thinks nothing of traveling miles for a good bargain.

Roger W. Babson

Examine your store, your stock, your employees, and your advertising. Is your store neat and attractive? Can your merchandise be easily seen or is it so jumbled up that even you do not know where a specified item is? How well did you screen your employees before you hired them? Are you getting the most out of your advertising? Retailing today is very competitive. Most retailers should wake up or go to work for some other concern.

Condition of Store

Walk into the store where the manager is too busy to stand around complaining about poor business.

Enemy Number One

By M. V. Eggleston

Russia is recognized by all of us as a threat to our security and the greatest roadblock to world peace. But we have another enemy, even more dangerous, because too many of us do not recognize it. That enemy is indifference to the principles of freedom which bit by bit are being undermined.

The American Republic is gradually but surely being subverted into a democracy, because of the apathy toward or ignorance of our Capitalistic System of Free, Private Enterprise, on the part of millions of Americans—the System under which this nation achieved the highest standard of living in all world history.

That callous regard or lack of knowledge is our Number One Enemy. No military force can combat it—only a campaign of education as to the fundamental facts of our economic system and our Republican (not to be confused with the political party of the same name) form of government, can prevail against it. Jefferson told an infant America that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." We need to shake ourselves out of the complacency that infects us and begin exercising some of that "eternal vigilance" that Jefferson proclaimed.

bringing about lower commodity prices.

Let's put the blame for the rising cost of living where it rightfully belongs—right on the doorstep of the White House and our two Houses of Congress. Cut that budget and inflation will be halted in its tracks!

ness. Notice his neatly displayed merchandise; he keeps his stock under control by periodic inventory. He knows what is not selling and therefore does not re-order blindly. Slow-selling items are displayed so as to attract attention.

This man uses his "know-how" to make room for popular merchandise. He or his well-trained help know when to re-order certain items or when a line has been discontinued. His merchandise has been price marked. This not only helps the customer, but also the manager and clerks who could not be expected to memorize the price of every item in the store.

Pay More Money to Fewer Employees

Mr. Manager, you would do well to screen your employees thoroughly. The question, "Can you use a cash register?" should not be sufficient. Make sure, at the beginning, that he or she will use it honestly, or you may find a small percent of your profit trickling out through the register. If you will observe your new employees closely, you will learn whether they are really interested in the work or whether the job is merely a stop-gap for them. Watch if they use your store to kill time by reading or talking to friends while waiting for pay day.

When you have thoroughly screened the applicants and found honest and efficient help, you will be able to pay such employees more money because you will need fewer clerks. Your well-paid employee is an asset to your business. From the customer's viewpoint, nothing is more irritating than to be given a discourteous or unintelligent answer. And since bad publicity travels farther and faster than good publicity, one unhappy customer can do a lot of harm. Your well-paid clerk who studies the stock and price-marks it will not let this happen.

Use More Intelligent Advertising

Advertising is very important because it has so many facets. A clean, well-arranged store with attractive window displays is good advertising—as is anything at all that causes people to mention your place favorably, such as friendly, courteous, efficient help. Material is frequently furnished with nationally advertised merchandise, but is too often ignored and put in a corner. Actually, such signs, placed to advantage, catch the eye and bring customers inside.

Do not resent the man in your line of business who is using every means of advertising. He realizes advertising is most important. Many of the ads have clever and unique ideas. You will find they have not used trickery, nor is there any "gimmick," but honest, clever "know-how". A new highway which may by-pass many cities need not be a menace. It may be a booster. The retailer needs to wake up!

Selecting A Location

Often the highest rent is the cheapest rent. The brightest retailers will get located as near as possible to an off-street parking

The regular use of Chilean Soda corrects acidity and maintains favorable soil fertility used at right contained no sodium.

and you'll choose CLEAN NITRATE OF SODA

It's a natural fertilizer, and everybody knows a natural fertilizer is an extra good fertilizer. Extra good for crops and for the soil. Not just for today, but for the years ahead as well. Chilean Soda is a natural combination of nitrate nitrogen, sodium and elements. Its extra values distinguish it from other nitrogen fertilizers. Account for its remarkable efficiency, for its beneficial effect on soil fertility and the production of fine crops.

Efficiency of a nitrogen fertilizer for top-dressing and side-dressing depends almost directly on the proportion of nitrate it contains. In Chilean Soda, the nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate—ready to work as soon as you apply it, rain or shine. It's not all Chilean Soda has sodium and minor elements, too. It destroys soil acidity, substitutes for potash and calcium when they are lacking. Increases the efficiency of nitrogen and helps plants make use of other plant foods.

Where the soil is too acid; where potash is deficient or where the available phosphate supply is low; where the crop needs help; or where one or more of the minor elements are lacking, Natural Chilean Soda has no equal.

For instance, they say, is the best teacher, and 100 years of consistency of experience with Natural Chilean Soda have demonstrated that there is no other fertilizer to compare with it for your top-dressing and side-dressing requirements. If you have any questions, we urge you to try it. It's a small way to begin with, and see for yourself. You'll find it is economical and efficient nitrate fertilizer you ever used.

Why Teenagers Need Milk

Why do nutritionists recommend a quart of milk or more each day for teenagers? One answer is contained in the top part of chart, above, prepared by the National Dairy Council, showing the substantial amounts of vital nutrients which young people 13 to 15 years of age receive daily from a quart of milk. America possesses an abundance of basic foods. Adequate meal planning, utilizing these foods, insures healthier future citizens. Yet surveys repeatedly reveal that teenagers, in particular, need to improve their food habits. Milk, the Council says, is one of the teenagers best means for improvement because of its singular ability to "fill out" an otherwise inadequate meal.

Milk is also a good buy, money-wise. As shown in the lower part of chart, per person income (after taxes) has risen about 40% since 1947 while the average price of a quart of milk has increased only 20%, according to the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Three cash prizes will be awarded, a first prize of $25, with $15 and $10 prizes for second and third.

Information concerning the contest has been forwarded to the chemistry teachers in the nine counties included. Any teacher that has failed to receive this information is requested to write Mr. Weldon E. Cate, 128 W. Duncan Ave., Florence, Ala.

Plans call for the examination to be given simultaneously in the high schools of the area on a date in April to be announced later. The completed examinations will be judged by the Wilson Dam section committee. Details for the presentation of the awards are not completed, but it is expected that the presentation will be made by Chairman Lehr at a meeting in May at which the winning contestants and their teachers will be guests.

County Agent news

By W. C. HAMILTON
Representing Mississippi State College Agricultural Extension Controlling Bitter Weeds

You should plan to control bitter weeds by spraying with Amine 2-4D this March or April before cotton gets up. Tests show that good control can be had by spraying in the early spring. So far no bitter weeds have come up on these sprayed areas to bother the pasture during the summer. This is a cheap method of bitter weed control. Bitter weeds seem to have a toxic effect on Bermuda, Dallas and lespedeza and when the bitter weeds are controlled, these plants grow well and when they are not controlled, they seem not to grow at all.

Fertilizing Summer Pastures

Topdress summer permanent pastures with phosphate and potash. This can be done using the minerals or mixtures. An average medium amount of fertilizer that will pay off on summer pastures is 300 pounds phosphate and 50 to 100 pounds of muriate of potash or this amount in mixtures. If permanent pastures were not fertilized last year and pastures were overgrazed because of limited acreage, they should be fertilized now.

Insecticide Safety

This year you will hear a lot about phosphate poisons for boll weevil. Used carelessly, phosphate insecticides will kill you. But they can be used safely. Here are some rules, and very important ones to follow when using these materials next summer.

Applicators who will handle sprayers or dusts should take cholinesterase tests before handling phosphates. This is necessary for accurate tests later. Periodic checks or tests should be made during the insect season. If Guthion or methyl parathion are used, tests should be taken every two weeks and preferably every week.

Users of phosphates should read and follow all precautions on the label.

Some more rules for safe use include: Never work alone. Always wear full length clothing—long sleeves, long pants. Put on clean clothes every day.

If liquids are spilled on the body or clothing, remove clothes and wash thoroughly immediately—don't wait until you get home, do it at once. Wash hands before smoking or eating. Do not carry cigarettes into the field.

Dairy

An ordinary strip cup is highly valuable in producing quality milk. It should be used on each cow before milking. Such use often enable dairymen to notice early evidence of mastitis. If flakes, spots or watery milk up on the screen, the cow from which the milk came should be milked last and examined closely for mastitis.

PERSONALS

Miss Cora Lee Glenn, deaconess and conference rural worker for the Methodist churches of the county, recently returned from a Methodist deaconesses meeting held in Knoxville. The three day convention proved to be very interesting and important.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorian Gurley and Cindy left Sunday night for their home in ElCajon, California after a month's visit with his mother, Mrs. Stella Gurley, and relatives.

IN RAISING PIGS OR CHICKS

HEAT LAMP BROODERS

Are Real Money Makers

In early litters, a heat lamp brooder saves up to one-third of the baby pigs by keeping them warm and dry. It gives them a fast-growing start . . . keeps them away from cold drafts . . . away from crushing by the sow.

And a heat lamp brooder is just as effective with baby chicks. It keeps them comfortable and healthy . . . keeps them from huddling . . . cuts losses caused by smothering.

The heat lamp brooder radiates a gentle but penetrating heat that helps baby animals through their first critical weeks. It's easy to set up, costs little to operate. You can buy heat lamps from any electric dealer, and with the proper specifications, build your own brooders.

Set up your brooders now. You'll measure their cost in pennies . . . their return in dollars.

Miss Allen Weds Ray Curtis In Early Spring Wedding Solemnized At Iuka Baptist Church On Saturday Afternoon

Iuka Baptist Church was the scene of a lovely early spring wedding performed Saturday afternoon in marriage Miss Allen and Ray Curtis. Rev. Mahon of Okolona, assisted by Carmon Savell, pastor, officiating the double-ring ceremony.

Allen is the daughter of Mrs. E. N. Allen and Mr. Curtis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Curtis.

Vows were exchanged before an altar of fern balls and greenery flanked by twin cathedral baskets filled with white gladiola and chrysanthemums. Waxen tapers in wrought iron candelabra illuminated the church.

Pre-nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. Carlton Woodley, organist, who played, "I Love You Truly," "The Sunshine of Your Smile," "Song of My Heart," and "All for You". She was assisted by her daughter, Miss Margaret June Woodley, soloist, who sang, "Because," and in closing, "The Lord's Prayer".

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length gown of Chantilly lace poised over taffeta. A fitted bolero featuring a Peter Pan collar and elongated sleeves, extending to pedal points over the wrists, was worn over the strapless gown which featured a torso waist and full gathered skirt. The elbow length veil of misty illusion fell from a tiny half shell cap of orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible overlaid with stephanotis and centered with a large white orchid, from which a cascade of white satin streamers fell.

Miss Glenda Dean served as maid of honor. Her dress was of white antique satin cut along princess lines and featured a flowing panel of blue silk chiffon. She wore a head piece of matching self material designed in a petal effect, encrusted with seed pearls. Her satin slippers were of a matching shade. She carried a nosegay of blue carnations.

Miss Margaret Stormont, bridesmaid, wore an identical dress and headpiece to that of the maid of honor, featuring a pink flowing panel. Her head piece was of matching pink chiffon and her slippers of pink satin. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

James "Kissum" Grisham served as best man. Ushers were Charles Kay, Billy Kinard, Pat Cooper and L. T. Robinson. Candles were lit by Ellett Allen, Jr., brother of the bride, and Billy Don Ramsey.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Allen chose a spring frock of navy semi-sheer with which she wore navy accessories. Mrs. Curtis, mother of the groom, wore a smart two-piece navy faille suit with navy accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

SQUARE DANCE

An Old Fashioned Square Dance with Hillbilly Music featuring the Iuka Playboys will be given at the AMERICAN LEGION HUT on Friday Night, March 15, from 7:30 'til 12.

Sponsored by THE THURSDAY STUDY CLUB
Proceeds will be used for Youth of the Town.
ADMISSION: 50c each.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Curtis

Immediately following the wedding ceremony a lovely reception was held in the church annex. Guests were received by Mrs. Allen, mother of the bride, the groom's parents, the bride and groom, maid of honor, and bridesmaid. Refreshments were served from a table overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a lovely arrangement of white carnations and greenery. Flanking this were glowing tapers in silver candelabras. The traditional tiered wedding cake, topped with a tiny bride and groom figurine, was cut and served by Miss Martha Stormont. Assisting at the punch bowl were Misses Barbara Nell King and Pat-sy Wade.

Attending the bride's book was Miss Karen Guber.

Immediately following the reception, the bride and groom left for their apartment in Memphis. Mr. Curtis is employed by Bruce Lumber Co. of that city.

For traveling the bride chose a yellow two-piece spring suit with which she wore brown accessories, a tiny white satin pillbox hat, and the orchid from her bridal bouquet pinned at the shoulder.

Those from out of town attending the wedding were L. Z. Sprayberry, grandfather of the bride, of Grenada; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gary and Mrs. Travis Hughes of Eupora; Mrs. George Harriman and daughters, Stephy and Marjorie Ann, Mrs. S. L. Sprayberry and sons, Sammy and Harold Ray of Memphis.

Skip-Row Cotton Planting Yields Better In Test

State College, Miss.—The practice of planting four rows of cotton and skipping four produced a substantial increase in yield at the Delta Branch Experiment Station at Stoneville in 1956, the first year of a five-year test.

Agronomist James B. Dick and Geneticist Harmon H. Ramey, who work cooperatively with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Mississippi Experiment Station, have made the following report on the project:

"Under the dry conditions of 1956, the 4-row plots had a 35 per cent increase at the first picking on August 29, and a total yield increase of 73 per cent over the solid planting. The outside border rows produced 3700 pounds of seed cotton per acre or approximately 130 per cent more than the solid planting, and the two inside rows of the 4-row plots produced 1884 pounds per acre, an increase of 268 pounds over the 1616 pounds produced on the solid planting.

"There are several disadvantages connected with skip planting. The large increase in yield will probably not be obtained in a year of adequate rainfall during July and August, although some increase may be expected in any season. Sufficient good cotton land may not be available to follow the practice on the entire farm and only good cotton land should be used. Difficulties connected with fertilization, planting and cultivation are to be expected, and the use of airplanes for insect control would not be economical. "However, if the practice were to be continued for several years the advantages of possible weed and Johnson grass control, land fallow and increased yield should far outweigh the disadvantages."

A more complete report of their work in published in the February issue of Mississippi Farm Research, available on request from the Experiment Station at State College.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Matthew 18-20.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:6-9.

Seventy X Seven

Lesson for March 10, 1957

IS IT a mark of high breeding never to forget an injury? One of the most famous Americans was known also as a duelist. When he left home as a boy, his mother wrote him a letter which contained some Christian advice; but she mixed with it an idea she could not have found in her New Testament; he must never overlook an insult or a slight. It is rather strange how many Christians (Christians otherwise, that is,) have had the same notion. Long after duel. Dr. Foreman was outlawed in most states, it was still going on in the "Bible Belt." It has gone out there too by now; which may be an indication that people understand the Gospel better than they once did. The Need for Forgiveness

In a southern town there lives a man who was in a penitentiary in another state, for 19 years, for a crime he did not commit. He was a stranger and he had a gun; so when the local hoodlums all came up with alibis, this man was a convenient mark, and to the penitentiary he went. And there he stayed even after the real criminal confessed. Authorities kept him there, because if the facts became known, and the man released, some important reputations and careers would be ruined. Finally, through the efforts of a sister and a friend, he was released, 19 years not guilty, but punished all the same, even years after his innocence was established. Would you be in a forgiving mood after that? Not many people have tremendous, long-lasting injustices done to them of that sort; yet the story illustrates one point about forgiveness: it is not always a matter of forgiving persons directly. One may suffer severely, unjustly, without its being possible to identify the persons who are responsible for things we suffer (such as unfair laws, or customs which harm us in some way); but although we cannot forgive the responsible persons—who may be many—face to face, it is just as un-Christian to harbor bitterness in the heart against "fate" in general as it is to feel bitterly about some one we know.

God Has More to Put Up With

When Peter asked his question about forgiveness, he was thinking, it seems, of a kind of rule. Forgive a man once, twice . . . to seven times; but the eighth time is one too much? Jesus' reply—that if a brother repents 70 times seven times, we are to forgive him just as many times—is not a matter of strict arithmetic. It is not intended as a rule. It is Jesus way of saying: Forgiveness must be without limit. The reason Jesus suggests, in his parable, goes to the heart of things. God has far more to forgive than we have. Even an apostle, Jesus suggests, has sinned against God more than any man has ever sinned against him. What we have to put up with from others, every day, are trifles compared with what God has to put up with from us. If the reader thinks this is an exaggeration, let him consider one point: the way we Christians misrepresent God. His reputation in this world is maintained or blackened by those who profess to be his people. We claim to be his children, and yet we often act as if we had been sired by the devil. Few if any human beings have been so persistently slandered as God is by his professed friends.

Forgiving From the Heart

Forgiveness has been called a fiction, and in a way it is. It is not the same as ignoring or condoning, but it treats the offender exactly as if no offense had been committed. That may be fiction; but there is no true forgiveness without forgetting. God's forgiveness is complete: he casts forgiven sins "behind his back"—he "remembers them no more."

Human forgiveness is like all things human is never complete, for in spite of our best efforts the thing will keep coming back to mind. Nevertheless, true Christian forgiveness makes every effort to forget. Forgiving without forgetting leaves things much as they were. Only in complete forgiveness can there be a complete new start. Erasing the whole thing from mind, living as if it never had happened; this may be a fiction but it is a fiction of love.

More than (20) twenty Tishom county farmers have planted Coastal Bermuda. Most of plantings are small plots set apart to supply plants for other areas.

The results of these small plantings have varied from good to bad, but in no instance was there a complete failure.

John Watson, Claude Morton, and Henry Dilworth have succeeded in establishing good Coastal Bermuda grass plant nurseries. These farmers are ready to enlarge their plantings this year.

Recently, Mr. Morton said that he is very interested in getting a good Coastal Bermuda grass pasture started on his farm this spring. Mr. H. E. Hester says he intends to set more land on his farm to this pasture grass this year. He will use plants from his nursery to do this.

I have not talked with all the farmers who have small plantings of Coastal Bermuda, but I am sure that most of them are interested in getting larger areas of it established on their farms.

In other sections of our state, and in adjoining states, Coastal Bermuda has produced very high yields of palatable high-protein hay, silage and pasture. We should be able to do the same thing here in Tishomingo county.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if our farmers could produce pastures that would carry three cows to the acre instead of needing 3 acres to supply the required grazing for one cow? This would be a 900% increase.

If we can learn how to establish Coastal Bermuda, and get it to grow, and we should be able to do this, we can easily double or treble the carrying capacity of much of our pasture land.

Coastal Bermuda grass is superior in quality and will produce more tons of grazings per acre than most of our pasture grasses.

The USDA Soil Conservation Service Technicians, who work in Tishomingo county will assist any farmer who is interested in establishing a Coastal Bermuda grass pasture on his farm.

This is not a grass to put on high dry hills, but is best suited to well-drained fertile second or first bottom land.

The Soil Conservation District Commissioners urge the farmers of Tishomingo county to give Coastal Bermuda grass a fair chance on their farms. We should not be satisfied with less when we can have the best.

Questions are being asked about whether starched items can go into the clothes dryer.

The answer is, "Yes, you may dry your starched clothing and other articles in your dryer. But they should be dried as a separate load."

Since the drying process causes some of the starch to be lost, you will need to use a heavier solution to get the clothes as stiff as you want them. You may need to use up to half again as much starch as you usually use.

A word of caution: Be particularly careful not to overdry starched items.

Those who have tested and studied this problem suggest that most articles be removed from the dryer when they feel just slightly damp or cool. If you leave a slight amount of moisture in the articles, it helps in maintaining tensile strength and softness.

Cleaning Stainless Steel

You have probably heard the recommendation that rubbing alcohol or household ammonia be used to clean stainless steel.

Tests have recently been made, and neither is harmful to a stainless steel finish. But the experts say the cleaning ability of the two agents on stainless steel is doubtful.

A commercial liquid cleaner and soap and water have given best results for polishing steel finish where stains are not excessive and are primarily finger prints.

Installment Buying

Twelve percent—about one out of every 8 persons is putting one-fifth—$20 out of every $100, of their incomes into installment payments.

And others to varying degrees, for nearly half the families in this county use installment credit.

At times it may be worth the price of credit to be able to use the purchase while paying for it. But do you know how much you are paying for credit buying?

Interest rates vary, depending on the kind of credit and whether or not insurance costs and other fees are figured as part of the cost of credit. Do some checking and figuring and question-asking before you make an installment purchase.

Consider all the facts, before you sign the contract.

Consider the cost of credit and weigh the values of using credit against this cost, before you decide how to buy. Buying on the installment plan always costs more than paying cash.

Termite Control

Termites enter homes for only one purpose—food. And a termite's food is wood.

Termites usually build tunnels from the soil to the wood. Barriers made with chemicals, a BHC, chlordane, dieldrin and DDT, keep them from going up foundation walls, voids in brick, concrete blocks or hollow tile, cracks in foundation, through dirt fills, or any hidden area into the wood structure.

These hidden areas are where chemically treated soil can be the most good. The insecticide used as a barrier either kills or repels the termites.

Chemicals have been tested for a number of years, and have been found to last from 5 to 10 years as barriers. Other materials such as coal-tar creosote, pentachlorophenol or sodium arsenite may be used.

For more information on termite control, call or see your home demonstration agent or county agricultural agent.
