EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

'CRONYISM' AND THE COURT

In nominating Associate Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to succeed Earl Warren as Chief Justice and Federal Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas to become an Associate Justice of the nation's highest court, President Johnson has struck at the concept of an independent judiciary.

Under the balance of powers concept written into the Constitution, the Executive and Judicial Branches of the U. S. government are supposed to be independent of one another. But Mr. Johnson, by seating two longtime political cronies on the Supreme Court would exercise an influence on the character of the court decisions long after he left Washington and went back to the ranch.

While not a "lame duck" in a strict sense (as he hasn't been defeated at the polls), Mr. Johnson in a general sense belongs in that political category. He declined to seek reelection because he recognized that he had lost popular support and could not win in November. He obviously intends to be the king-maker at his party's presidential nomination convention. It seems improper that he also should be a shaper of the Supreme Court for years to come by action in the final months of his office-holding.

With respect to Justice Fortas and Judge Thornberry, it is sufficient to note that they have been close political associates and allies of Mr. Johnson for many years. Mr. Fortas demonstrated great skill in getting Mr. Johnson out of tricky situations, such as the embarrassment that resulted when a top White House aide under the Great Society was involved in a particularly messy morals case. This skill, while useful to politicians, hardly seems to qualify Mr. Fortas for elevation to Chief Justice. Judge Thornberry's principal attribute seems to be loyalty to Mr. Johnson, which is a quality greatly admired in political circles. Again, that quality doesn't mean a man is well suited for the Supreme Court, where he will be helping decide constitutional cases.

In defending Mr. Johnson, some persons have said that other Presidents made last-minute judicial appointments when they were clearly out of favor. This may be so, but it doesn't constitute justification of Mr. Johnson's nominations. Because other Presidents were in contempt of the public will is no cause for accepting such contempt in 1968.

Basically, contempt is what's involved. On all sides, there is dissatisfaction with the Johnson administration. There also is profound dissatisfaction with the Warren Court and the ultra-liberal tack it has taken. In November, the American electorate will go to the polls. A new President will be chosen. The election will determine the outlook of the nation. It is only reasonable that the new President, to be inaugurated next January, be allowed to exercise the right of nomination with respect to vacancies on the Supreme Court. If this procedure were followed, the will of the American people would be more accurately expressed.

Unfortunately, Mr. Johnson, while unwilling to exercise presidential leadership to win the war in Vietnam and end the slaughter of American youth on the battlefield, is eager to continue to do political battle for the Great Society and apparently a radical, activist philosophy on the Supreme Court. He is determined to carry on the Earl Warren tradition of judicial twisting of the Republic by naming Justice Fortas Chief Justice of the United States. In short, Mr. Johnson is carrying out his own version of a court-packing scheme.

The Warren Court has cruelly distorted the Constitution and laws of the United States since 1952. It has given criminals a mandate for anti-social action, allowing them to hide behind technicalities. It has deprived the states of authority over education.

The American people have had enough of the Warren Court. They do not need a Fortas Court that follows in its footsteps. What is needed is a truly independent judiciary that recognizes the limits on federal interference with the rights of the states and individuals, a Supreme Court that will uphold law and order and deal firmly with challenges to the security of the United States. Nothing in the record of Messrs. Fortas and Thornberry encourages fair-minded citizens to believe that their elevation would result in a safeguarding of the principles on which this Republic was organized. It is understandable, therefore, that some members of the Senate plan to engage in extended debate to block their nomination.

ON GUN CONTROL AND OTHER ITEMS

JOHN J. SYNON

THREE ITEMS:

The first: This gun-control hysteria.

Those who control our government do not believe in personal liberty, that is, the right to do as one pleases so long as there is no infringement on another's rights. Instead, the Liberals base their philosophy on force: They would make you do what they think best since, to hear them tell it, they know what is best for you.

And since a little of that sort of thing doesn't work (any more than a lot of it will work), as time goes by they must continue to tighten the screws in a futile effort to make it work — more laws, more taxes, more this, more that. Under this system, inevitably, there will come a time when even the most bovine of characters will resist further restraint.

We have about reached that point, now. The Liberal Establishment, during the past 14 years, has rubbed race noses to a degree that is no longer tolerable to either race. So, folks are arming themselves a little more than somewhat. And the next thing on the docket is pop, pop, pop.

To avoid that, The Establishment would, first, register all weapons and then, at the first pop, confiscate them. After that the overlords would be able to do anything they please and you would be helpless, a la Russia, a la China.

Registration of weapons isn't the answer, of course; we have never needed that. The answer lies in a return to self-determination. But to the Liberals, self-determination is a fate worse than death.

There is another reason for creating the sin of owning a gun: Manifestly, integration is not working, anywhere. And soon people everywhere will be searching for the reason why — the reason "who", would be a better way to put it — why integration has failed. To avoid that finger, they have cooked up this guilt-by-ownership business. Gun owners are to be made the new vil-lans. It is the same sort of thing a magician does when he pulls a rabbit out of his hat — they would misdirect your attention.

ITEM TWO: Our public schools, as many of our colleges, are all a-twitter over courses they are preparing on Negro history.

That is sad, you know it. Negro history is mostly a blank.

Much is made over George W. Carver as a Negro "scientist". So far as I can learn, G. W. Carver's principal contribution to science is peanut butter. Not bad, I admit — I love peanut butter. But it is not the same sort of scientific creation I would equate with steam propulsion or the electric light bulb. To do, also, is made over the Negro who was "the first man to reach the North pole" — I forget his name. But let it be known, that fellow had about as much to do with discovering the North Pole as had the huskies who pulled his sled.

Until the Negro was exposed to the White man, the Negro's system of agriculture consisted of digging a hole with a stick and dropping therein a seed. His system of cartage was the human head.

ITEM THREE: The grandson of Coal-Oil Johnny, Nelson Rockefeller, indubitably is the stupidest politician of this century. Twice, now, his millions have brought him within grasping range of the Republican nomination and twice he has blown it. Here is how he does it:

Recently, this aging Lothario urged a conclave of governors to support his presidential candidacy because, as he put it, he had "coat-tail power". That is, as the Republican nominee he would pull to victory "weak" Republican candidates for lesser office. Well, sir! This is the man who, during his tenure as governor, has seen both houses of the New York legislature turn from Republican to Democratic and the State's congressional delegation follow the same fallow route. Some "coat-tail power", his.

While in Waterloo the other day, a cousin of mine, Cecelia, was talking about how many of the stores in larger cities were having sales on the Fourth of July. It was her impression that before too many years this would be one of the holidays to go. Why is it that big money-changers do not give up a day in respect for the American heritage and those who gave their lives to make it possible for them to conduct their "free enterprise"?

In addition to seeing flags on display locally, over the 4th, one particular gathering opened their celebration with the Pledge of Allegiance. Young Timothy Pittman, dressed in his Cub Scout uniform, stood at a proud attention Thursday and led the employees and their families at the Iuka Shirt Company picnic in the pledge to "Old Glory."

Oldsters Eddie Thomas and "Moose" Mansell were seen at one of the July 4th picnics observing their younger brothers entertaining in a rock 'n roll band. Eddie and "Moose" were members of the original Playboys who played in years past for the picnics. Younger brothers Frank and Anthony are keeping up with the tradition. However, the music has boogalooed some since "Summertime."

Ever heard of a Rillenglas Offener? The Editor came in with one this week and nobody could guess what it was. Made in Germany, it's simply a pleyer-like gadget to open a glass of jelly. (The Editor's waistline doesn't need to have jelly glasses made to open any easier.)

From Belmont comes a story of a kitten with five legs. It wasn't reported to whom the cat belongs. The seven weeks old kitten uses three of the legs to get around.

Other than its affliction, the animal is reportedly healthy and playful.

Dr. Armando Coello of Lima, Peru, has been at Eastport with Ben Kitchens visiting for several days. Armando has gone on to Baylor Hospital in Houston, Texas, where he'll be working on a fellowship in ophthalmology (eye-doctoring) for an indefinite period. Armando and our Dr. Ben were roommates in St. Louis. Ben is at home and visiting around awaiting orders from Uncle Sam. It's his opinion that he'll likely be sent to Vietnam.

A note from Glenda Milligan at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, reads in part "Mac is getting a 45-day leave before going to Vietnam, so we'll be leaving here around August 2 (for Iuka)".

Miss Willie Hiett, organist for the Iuka Baptist Church, announced her official resignation from the position just recently. In regard to her years of service in this capacity, Bill Spencer, the minister of music, noted "I have found her to be one of the sweetest and most co-operative persons that I have ever met. She has an attitude about her Lord and Church that is unequalled."

Dillard-Wingo Vows Said In Lovely Church Setting

Miss Brenda Annette Dillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Dillard, became the bride of Franklin Wayne Wingo in an impressive candlelight ceremony, Saturday, June 1.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wingo.

Rites were performed at the Christian Fellowship Center with Bro. S. A. Bonds officiating.

The altar of the church sanctuary was adorned with large white cathedral baskets of white mums and white gladioli with green stock. Green candelabras holding white burning tapers stood at either side of the altar. At the center was an archway covered with white gladioli and green stock. The ceremony was performed before the arch. The long white carpet runner led to the altar from the entrance of the sanctuary.

The bride was escorted by her father. She wore a floor length, fitted sheath wedding gown of chantilly lace over white taffeta. The gown was designed with a sabrina neckline of chantilly lace embroidered in sequins. The fitted bodice was accented with a large taffeta bow in the center of the back. Long tapered sleeves ended in delicate lily points at her wrists. The hemline of the skirt was delicately scalloped following the design of the lace. Added lines of grace were evident in the chapel train which gave emphasis to the back of the gown.

The bride wore a fingertip veil of misty illusion attached to a tiara of tiny seed pearls. Her bouquet was fashioned of large white carnations encircling a white orchid attached to a white Bible with long white streamers tied in love knots.

Miss Hilda Dillard, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Janet Crowell and Billie Gayle Laxson.

They wore identical floor-length dresses of Nile green bonded lace. The gowns were styled with empire waistlines and elbow-length bell sleeves. The sleeves and the necklines were scalloped. Each wore white accessories. The maid of honor carried three long-stemmed white mums. Bridesmaids carried single long-stemmed white mums.

Marion Wingo, young brother of the groom, served as ring bearer. Rhonda Dillard was train bearer and Marilyn Dillard, flower girl. Both youngsters, sisters of the bride, were dressed in white bonded lace dresses made with empire waists and A-line short skirts. Their headpieces were fashioned of rambling roses with streamers.

Micky Wingo, uncle of the groom, served as best man. The ushers were Stanley Bonds and Johnny Puckett, a cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Willard Grimes, organist and vocalist, provided a program of nuptial music including the selection "Whither Thou Goest" and the traditional wedding march and recessional.

Mrs. Dillard chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of beige brocade satin with which she wore beige accessories. At her shoulder was pinned a white carnation corsage.

The mother of the groom, Mrs. Wingo, was stylish in a fashion of powder blue with navy accessories. She, too, wore a white carnation corsage.

RECEPTION

Following the wedding, a reception was held in honor of the couple at the Sands Restaurant.

At the bride's table was a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake decorated in white with yellow roses and topped with a figurine of a bride and groom. A floral arrangement of yellow mums accented the table. Served with the cake was lime punch and mints and salted nuts. The table was overlaid with white.

Serving were Sherri Wingo and Debra Puckett, both cousins of the groom, and Paulette Morgan.

Following the reception, the couple left for a honeymoon to the Smokey Mountains and Chattanooga. They are now making their home in Atlanta where the groom is employed with Latex Pipe Line for the summer.

The bride chose for traveling a pale blue 2-piece ensemble with white accessories

Clemmons-Elledge Vows Repeated In Arkansas

The Wheatley Baptist Church in Wheatley, Arkansas, was the setting June 14 at four in the afternoon for a double-ring wedding ceremony, uniting Dorothy Walker Clemmons and Michael Lawrence Elledge in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. E. Walker and the late Mr. Walker of Wheatley, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Elledge of Burnsville.

Rev. Jack Clack, pastor of Brinkley First Baptist Church, was the officiant over the nuptial rites. Only members of the immediate families attended.

For her wedding, the attractive young bride chose a dainty, long torso model of blue voile, lined with bridal satin. The chic frock was set off by a profusion of tiny pleats, and featured a high neckline and full-length sleeves. She wore a white headpiece fashioned from net, and pinned a white carnation corsage trimmed with tiny blue butterflies at her shoulder. She used all white accessories.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Walker chose a navy A-line bonded knit and used white accessories. She wore a white carnation corsage at her shoulder. Mrs. Elledge was attractively attired in a pink A-line fashioned from a modish open-weave fabric and featuring embrodered floral bodice and skirt accessories and white carnation

We don't see 'just feed'

Take this sow above: She's produced what we need — what we have to have — to make money — a big litter of pigs.

We work with you for this result.

And more: Has she been fed enough for best production? But not too much so as to be costly and to reduce reproduction ability? Has she been fed the right diet so that her piglets will get off to the fastest start?

Are the pigs protected from her with the right stall so she won't kill your investment? Is the farrowing pen layout efficient enough so that the least work is needed?

In other words, we are interested in making money with your hogs. That way, you and us can stay in business and prosper.

The Old Snake Story Comes To Light Again

The following is an excerpt from an article published in the old Booneville Pleader many years ago. It concerns information gathered from The Vidette, on March 5, 1896 edition, and is about a man who was bitten a total of 8 times by snakes, before his death in 1882.

The clipping was kept by W. E. Owens of Paden. S. M. Shackelford, who now makes his home in Paden, contributed the information for re-printing at this time.

"Mr. N. W. Posey died at the residence of Mr. W. H. Shackelford, on Mackey's Creek, Tishomingo County, Miss., on Saturday, the 22nd inst. from the bite of a ground rattlesnake on the arm just above the wrist. He was bitten on Tuesday and suffered great pain, causing cramps and spasms so terrible that he was wild, acting like a snake, licking out his tongue and trying to bite himself and everything in his reach.

"During these periodical spasms it required from three to six men to hold him on the bed. "It seems that he was destined to be snake bitten, having been bitten on the hand by a ground rattlesnake in March 1880; again in May 1880 by a cotton mouth on the big toe through a hole in his boot; again about the last of May 1881, he was bitten by a cotton mouth through a hole in his shoe; again June 3rd, 1882, he was bitten by a cotton mouth on the hand while hauling rails and again on the 29th of the same month he was bitten on the leg by a copperhead while plowing.

From all these bites he was similarly affected with spasmodic spells as in the one from which he died.

"In addition to the bites received in the neighborhood, he was twice bitten by snakes in Alabama — by a rattlesnake when about 10 years old and by a copperhead last spring while on a visit to his relatives in Alabama. Mr. Posey was only about 25 years of age."

According to S. M. Shackelford on a visit to The Vidette office this week, Posey reportedly died on July 22, 1882. He was buried at Palestine Church, 1 mile north of Paden. Mr. Shackelford went on to add that Posey worked with W. H. Shackelford and just weeks prior to his death had married W. H. Shackelford's wife's sister.

Posey was employed by W. A. H. Shackelford, father of W. H. and grandfather of S. M. (W. H. was an uncle of S. M.)

Mrs. Rosa Adkins and Becky spent this week with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Pruitt and little son, Jimmy Lee in Cherokee.
