Outlaw-Black Wedding Vows Said At Tish Baptist Church

Miss Judy Catherine Outlaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Artis J. Outlaw of Dennis, was united in marriage to Charles Kennedy Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Black of Tishomingo, in an impressive candlelight ceremony on Saturday, August 10. The late evening ceremony, performed at 8 o'clock, was before a lovely setting in the Tishomingo Baptist Church with an assembly of friends and relatives attending.

Rev. J. E. Quillen, grandfather of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Bro. Eugene Tennison sang "At Dawning," "The Wedding Prayer," and "Whither Thou Goest." He was accompanied at the piano by Ken McRae.

The bridal party took their places at the altar which was flanked with baskets of yellow, pink and white gladiolus. The arch was entwined with greenery and clusters of baby's breath, with a white wedding bell suspended in the center. Candelabras with white tapers and entwined with greenery were placed at vantage points. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in an original aisle length gown of white peau de sole with a lace bodice and an empire waistline. The elbow length bell-shaped sleeves featured scalloped edge, which was also carried out at the neckline. The back featured tiny covered buttons to the waistline which was accented by a large bow of self-material above the detachable train that was complimented with motifs of lace.

Her three-tiered waist length veil of silk illusion, also flanked with lace motifs, was attached to a tiara of lace embellished by tiny seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations and tube roses centered with a purple throated orchid atop a white Bible. Her only ornament was a sterling silver heart shaped locket, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Janey Browning, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a street-length mint green dotted swiss dress fashioned with an empire waistline, bell-shaped, scalloped edge sleeves with a scalloped neckline. Her headpiece was a large bow of self-material. She carried a bouquet of white gladiolus and yellow fuji mums.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Peggy Boyd, wore a yellow dotted swiss dress identical to that of the matron of honor. Her headpiece was a large bow of self-material. She carried a bouquet of yellow gladiolus and yellow fuji mums.

Little Miss Camelia Vandevander, cousin of the bride, and Gina Browning, niece of the bride, served as flower girls. Camelia wore pink and Gina wore blue, identical to that of the matron of honor. Their headpieces were of self-material. Each wore a wrist-corsage of one white carnation and carried a basket of rose petals.

Mrs. Charles Kennedy Black

Chuck Evans of Tuscumbia, Ala., and Kermit Long of Belmont served as ushers and candle lighters. Serving the groom as best man was Joe Browning, brother-in-law of the bride. Groomsman was Jeral Nunley of Tishomingo.

After the couple pledged their vows, they knelt at the prie-dieu as soloist Gene Tennison sang "The Wedding Prayer." They then repeated the Lord's Prayer with the minister.

Mrs. Outlaw chose, for her daughter's wedding, a pale pink bonded lace dress with matching accessories. Mrs. Black chose a light blue sheer lace dress with matching accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception held in the fellowship hall of the church.

The table, covered in pink and overlaid with off-white lace, was adorned with a five-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers and pink carnations and greenery. Stringed smilax draped the table.

The three-tiered stilted wedding cake, decorated in pink roses and topped with the traditional bride and groom, was served by Brenda Strickland of Tishomingo.

The pastel bridal mints and nuts were served by Phyllis Kennedy and Anna Carol Holley, cousins of the groom.

The pink cherry punch was served by Linda Quillen, cousin of the bride. The table where Mrs. Ann McDaniel, cousin of the bride, registered the guests was draped with a white linen cloth overlaid with white net. The decoration was a crystal bud vase holding two rose buds from Mrs. Forrest Wright's flower garden.

The bride selected a white linen, A-line dress featuring a yoke and cuffs of shades of pink with matching accessories and she wore the orchid corsage from her bouquet.

After a wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss., the couple are at home in Tishomingo.

REHEARSAL SUPPER

Following the rehearsal Friday evening, August 9, the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Black, entertained the wedding party and guests at the Tishomingo State Park.

The delicious chicken buffet dinner was served to 31 guests. The table in the banquet room was centered with an arrangement of orange gladiolus.

The bride-elect and prospective bridegroom chose this occasion to present gifts to their attendants.

Miss Outlaw chose a green A-line dress featuring a white embroidered yoke with white accessories for this occasion.

FIRE!!

TREES AND GAME ARE TWIN CROPS! They live together on the thousands of acres of land that we call the forest resource. The trees provide a crop of wood for thousands of wood and paper products; game and wildlife provide a crop for the hunter and sportsman.

BOTH CROPS ARE IMPORTANT! That is why the twin crops must be protected against the destruction of forest fires. When trees are burned by fire, the game and wildlife are left homeless or destroyed by the same fire. Hunters, as well as tree farmers, benefit when forest fires are prevented.

FIRES CAN BE PREVENTED! When the tree farmer and the hunter work together, trees and game can be protected from fire. Speaking as a tree farmer, Tennessee River hopes you will have a good hunting season. We know we can count on your help as a sportsman to help in the battle against uncontrolled wildfires.

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

COUNTER—MOVEMENT TO ANARCHY

Ever since the Franklin Roosevelt era, with the exception of the Eisenhower years when a war hero won the Presidency, American political life has been dominated by a powerful coalition of union chiefs, minority bloc voters and radical elements drawn from the universities. Time and again it has been a winning combination. While basically unrepresentative of the nation as a whole, it nevertheless has been able to capture the White House and many state houses as well.

This year, however, a new coalition seems to be emerging. The successive waves of riots in urban centers, agitation by Vietnams, the spread of civil disobedience resulting in widespread anarchy — all have produced a strong reaction among responsible citizens who know that the nation must have law and order to achieve further progress.

The counter-movement to anarchy is a true grassroots movement. Americans have had to put up with many humiliating reverses at home and abroad. The Johnson administration's "no-win" policy in Vietnam has angered great numbers of citizens who believe that victory always should be the American goal when war breaks out. There also is intense bitterness that the humiliation of the United States should reach the point where little North Korea would dare snatch an American warship off the high seas and hold its crew prisoner. At home, the American people have seen their capital invaded by an army of vagrants and thugs who were allowed by the Johnson administration to establish an encampment on the banks of the Potomac. Other good citizens are outraged at the chaos on the campus and at the entrenchment of leftists in college and university faculties. Still others are alarmed at the decline of the U. S. dollar as result of the inflationary spending policies of the "liberal" regime in charge in Washington.

Property owners across the nation are shocked and furious that in many communities police have not been allowed to shoot looters and arsonists and that the Attorney General of the United States, Ramsey Clark, seems more interested in giving privileges to disorderly elements than he is in helping create a climate of law and order in the nation.

In short, great numbers of Americans have had enough. They don't want the Great Society's ruinous policies continued under a successor administration. They are properly concerned that a new defeatist administration dominated by "liberals" will abandon the cold war struggle against communist tyranny and thereby lead the United States to disaster.

Out of this widening public concern has come the counter-movement of responsible Americans manifesting determination that realistic, forceful policies prevail in the next four years. At the heart of the new, emerging political coalition are the two principal streams of American conservatism — the conservatism of the South and the West. What is most significant, however, is that the counter-movement is strongly attracting the industrial working people of the North and the small businessmen of that region. For the first time in decades, the northern industrial worker is rejecting stereotyped "liberal" ideas.

They see their neighborhood and their local schools threatened with ruin by anarchists in the street and by social reconstructionists in the White House and the universities who want to shatter established patterns of living.

The industrial worker, who has scored great economic gains through the growth of U. S. free enterprise, suddenly realizes that these gains will be taken away if militant leftists have their way in refashioning American society along radical lines. They know that American cities can't be improved by subjecting the suburbs to a new form of compulsory association or by agreeing to permissiveness in handling of protesters. "Law and order" is a theme that touches the deepest concerns of the average American in all parts of the country, South and North, East and West. That's why the new political coalition is forming. Once established, it should result in a new orientation of American life and politics and, in the process, save the Republic.

To be sure, the "liberals" want to kill the new coalition in its cradle. It already is apparent that they will resort to smear tactics against the leaders who stand for domestic tranquility and victory in Vietnam. What is imperative, therefore, is that the "stay at home" conservative vote turn out for once and give the American government back to the American people in November.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER?

by Henry E. Garrett, Ph.D.

Professor Emeritus, Psychology, Columbia University
Past President, American Psychological Association

Q: Dr. Garrett, what moves do-gooders, these reformers who are always sticking their nose in other people's business?

A: They are motivated by the urge to protect themselves or to compensate for illicit things they, themselves, would like to do. The rabid reformer who wants to save others rarely sees what his real motives may be. The do-gooder wants to feel important; the inhibited man rales against pornography; the "clean-minded" man laughs uproariously at a dirty story — and then admonishes the story teller.

A DAY'S WORK
30 YEARS AGO

JOHN J. SYNON

If you will read along, I will tell you a story of 30 years ago, of what it meant to be unemployed, then, and of how a person will work — if he has any guts — to pull himself out of nothing. He will work, so, that is, if he is not led to believe other people owe him a living.

It is a story told me by the then-young man who experienced it.

On the Fourth-of-July, 1938, our hero found himself seated on the steps of San Francisco's Embarcadero YMCA. He was dirty, very dirty and unshaven since, a stranger to the town, he had no means of getting bathed or barbered. He had not slept in a bed in a matter of weeks — boxcars were made to do — and his belly had shrunk until hunger no longer really bothered him; an occasional giddiness was all.

He sat there, gazing idly at the holiday-quiet piers across the way, homeless and forlorn, a product of many adversities; mostly self made, some inflicted upon him.

In a bit he noticed a truck and trailer backing into the Matson Line. It was a tremendous rig and awkward, but, slowly, the driver wove it into position, hopped down and disappeared into a door marked, "Office".

That's odd, the lonely man thought, a truck on the Fourth.

In a bit the driver reappeared and looked around as though searching for something. Spying the young fellow sitting alone he crossed over and asked if he wanted to work.

"I can't work on the piers, it's all union".

"Not on holidays", the driver replied, "anybody can unload perishables on holidays; they told me. Five bucks in it".

That trailer housed 1,400 crates of oranges that weighed about 60 pounds each. The job consisted of hand hauling those crates, one by one, to the rear of the trailer. No mean day's work for a husky person and my friend, that Fourth-of-July, was not a husky person. But that five dollars beckoned.

Some time later the job was done.

Matson, in those days, ran a quasi-public cafeteria that served its employees as well as others who had business on the pier.

With his five dollars tightly clutched in a raw, grimy hand, my friend followed his erstwhile employer along the food line, choosing this item and that. About half way along he played out, things spun, blood gushed from his mouth and he fell in a heap.

When he regained consciousness, my friend said, he found himself in the emergency ward of the city-hospital annex that, 30 years ago, was located in the area.

The policeman-nurse who served as attendant saw him stir and asked how he felt.

"Where is my five dollars?" the wraith asked by way of answer.

"Take it easy", the cop said, "you are all right here until morning".

With daylight my friend was to tell their kids about that trip. The Youth Talent Contest is a fine opportunity for young people to display their talent before judges who can give their professional opinions.

Different classifications in the contest include classical vocal solo, pop vocal solo, instrumental solo, vocal group, novelty, dance group and instrumental group. (Chances are the Livin' in' Ins" and the "Electric Tsetse Fly" will both be competing in this last section in addition to several other new groups.)

The officials for the Kings and Queens of the Fair Contest will have the young contestants, (6-12) wearing dressy dresses and both junior and senior division candidates wearing evening dresses. (That includes 13-15 and 16-21 groups). Of course all the young men will be in coats and ties. Crowning in the Tuesday night event at the county fair September 3, will be last year's winners, Dan Finch and Julie Long, Craig Long and Charlotte Hussey, and Mike Cox and Phyllis Kennedy.

The Northeast Mississippi Historical Society produces a NMH Journal which is presented to members at their quarterly meetings. The information included is really priceless. We have a copy here at the office, thanks to J. W. Howell, NMHS member. The society has also provided the local library with one of the journals if you'd be interested in reading it. The publication is edited by Claude Gentry of Baldwin with Lee Rakestraw, of NE, the associate editor.

Being a bug on these old papers, I came across the following in a Sept. 30, 1915 edition of "The Vidette" on loan from Will Brown. In a legal publication, an ordinance was printed declaring the intention of the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the Town of Iuka to issue $12,000 bonds for school heating purposes. The ordinance was signed by A. T. Scruggs, mayor and B. L. Martin, Jr., Clerk.

W. S. Brown's new store was to be the scene of a benefit supper on October 8th, 1915, in behalf of the Baptist church.

The old newspaper also stated that "while cranking a car last week, Carl Woodley had the misfortune to break a bone in his right arm." Also, "W. J. Brin-

The Youth Talent Contest at the Fair Grounds in Iuka Sept. 5 will present the cream of the county's young performers as they compete for $25.00 cash prize money and a trip to the Mid-South Fair Talent Contest in Memphis.

You remember when the original "Playboys" won the local contest and appeared several times in the Memphis competition and then on to the Ted Mack Amateur Hour on nation-wide TV from New York. Although these boys didn't go in hot pursuit of the show biz circuit, they will have some fine stories to tell their kids about that trip. This past weekend in Memphis, "Ortego's", a spot for delicious Mexican food (sans atmosphere) turned out to be the accidental meeting place for some home-folks. Our foursome, completed by the Ralph Hornes, formerly of Corinth, ran into Judy (nee Gann) and Bo Yarbber, with Mary Ann Lomenick and Bert Coleman. They had Judy's little sister, Pam, with them. Mary Ann and Bert had just left the hospital where her father is a patient. She said that he was doing much better.

Rev. Jimmy Owen Phifer is going to teach at the Cherokee Vocational High School this fall and coach some basketball too, in addition to continuing his pastoral duties at his residence. They're home in Cherokee.

LIFE HEALTH

That Healthy,
Happy Feeling

The bright smile, the cheery whistle and the sparkling eye are only outward indications of inner health.

When all of the muscles, organs and glands of the body are functioning normally and efficiently, the rosy glow of health bursts from the human body like a continuing song of joy.

Dr. Parker

But the body is subject to innumerable physical and emotional stresses which cause tensions and pressures to form within the body. When the pressures interfere with the proper functioning of the body's nervous system, vital parts of the body often are affected.

To keep that happy glow of health, it is essential that the nervous system be kept in tip-top operating condition at all times.

When the healthy, happy glow begins to fade, it is time for a visit to the chiropractor. His knowledge and his scientific training in correcting disorder of the spinal cord and the nervous system will enable him to make simple, gentle adjustments to restore the body to its normal effective function.

Through competent chiropractic adjustment, the chiropractor releases vital nerve energy so nature can restore the bright smile, the cheery whistle and the sparkling eye. Another Life and Health Article

WIN' TIME — Clyde Plaxton is one of the few men who's fought the tropics to north Mississippi. He shows off a live bunch of bananas growing in Iuka; as a matter of right in his own backyard. Each of the dark leaves roll tiny bunches of bananas forth. When ready for harvest, there will be a comestalk. After the harvest the banana tree will die. This particular tree grew from a cutting off a root given to the Plaxtons by a friend living in Florida. The tree bearing the fruit is four years old and has a shoot with three leaves growing at the foot of the trunk which will replace the original tree when it has completed the fruit-bearing process.

LABOR DAY SAFETY URGED AS LONG HOLIDAY BEGINS

Labor Day week-end, the last long summer holiday of the year, could result in tragedy for many Mississippi motorists, according to Paul E. Edwards, President of the Mississippi Safety Council.

Edwards said most of the State's automobiles, pick-ups, and beach buggies will be travelling to and from the State's numerous playgrounds, parks, rivers, reservoirs, and race tracks at some time during this holiday period, and unless strict attention is given to the business of driving a tragic accident could be the consequence.

Edwards said Commissioner of Public Safety, Giles Crisler and his Highway Patrolmen have performed their duties in a truly outstanding manner.

"As a result of their combined efforts, the number of traffic fatalities so far during 1968 number more than one hundred less than for the same period last year," he said.

Edwards said this good record should stand as a challenge for all drivers to use their very best judgment when driving.

"Always drive defensively and your chances of becoming involved in a serious accident will be greatly reduced," Edwards said.

The Council President offered these suggestions for defensive driving:

1. Always make sure you and your car are in good driving condition;
2. Having the Right of Way does not prevent an accident. If a person fails to yield — let him go. It may save your life;
3. If the car behind you is following too closely, slow down and make him pass. If this fails, stop completely and let him go ahead. The "tail-gator" is a hazard;
4. Check ahead and behind before passing;
5. If you're taking medicine that may contain drugs, ask your doctor if it is safe to drive;
6. Stop often and drive refreshed;
7. Make courtesy a part of your driving.

Labor Day week-end is usually one of the deadliest insofar as accidental deaths are concerned. The Safety Council believes they can be greatly reduced if only half of the drivers follow these simple rules.

Mrs. Dorla Ann Barnes of Tishomingo recently completed her practice teaching in Business Education from Mississippi State University at Tishomingo High School, under the supervision of Howard Fredrick.

Dr. Katherine Green, advisor of Business Education at Mississippi State University, presented Mrs. Barnes with a corsage made of wheat, peanuts, a pine cone and tied with a green ribbon which was symbolic of the following: The wheat symbolized Education is the staff of life; the peanuts symbolized teaching is not peanuts; the pine cone was symbolic of Mississippi, and the green ribbon from Dr. Green. Each year, Dr. Green had given each of her student teachers a ruler symbolizing that every inch of our life counts and a typewriting erasure symbolizing that all errors can be erased. This year, she awarded a corsage to the most deserving student teacher for her outstanding work and the student teacher who made the most of her method courses studied at the University.

In a letter from Dean Francis A. Rhodes of the Mississippi State University, Mrs. Barnes was commended for her excellent scholastic record during the second semester of the school year 1967-68. She was advised that her name had been placed on the Dean's List and she was also designated as a President's Scholar.

Lock At Pickwick Will Close

The lock at Pickwick Landing on the Tennessee River for the Tennessee-Mississippi waterway will be shut down from October 14 through November 4 for permit necessary repair work on the lower lock gate, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced.

This will mean a 3-week interruption of river traffic, and an early announcement was made to give shippers and towing companies as much advance notice as possible for building up stocks and rescheduling shipments. Large freight passing through Pickwick lock totals about 6 million tons a year.

The lock at Kentucky Dam on the Tennessee River near Paducah also will be closed for repairs September 16-30. This will not stop traffic, however, since the nearby Barkley Dam on the Cumberland River and the Kentucky-Barkley Canal provide an alternate route for river tows.

A second lock at Pickwick Dam is expected to be one of the future improvements in Tennessee River navigation facilities. Since TVA added new locks at three points in recent years, and the Corps completed Barkley Dam and the canal, Pickwick is the only dam of five in the heavily used west Tennessee-north Alabama portion of the river where lock outages bring river traffic to a halt.

Disability Benefits Told By Tigrett

According to Hugh Tigrett, District Manager, Social Security Administration, Tupelo, there are many seriously disabled workers in Tishomingo County who do not appear to fully understand how valuable Social Security may be to them. Tigrett stated that many people still believe that a person has to be permanently disabled to qualify for disability payments under Social Security. He stated that under the recent changes in the Social Security law, if a person's disability can be expected to last at least a year, he should apply for consideration as soon as possible after he has become disabled.

The District Manager further stated that some people believe that receiving Social Security while they are ill or injured will count against them when they retire at age 62 or 65. This is not true — in fact, receiving disability benefits prevents counting time against one while off from work due to illness; and in some cases could make a favorable difference in the retirement amount at age 65, assuming a person overcomes his disability and is able to return to work.

Additional information on disability payments is available at the Social Security District office in Tupelo. Write or telephone this office for free pamphlet number 29.

During his guerrilla training, he lived under simulated Vietnam conditions for five days, fighting off night attacks and conducting raids on "enemy" villages. He was taught methods of removing booby traps, setting ambushes and avoiding enemy ambushes.

License Renewal

Highway Patrol Chief J. D. Gardner said today that renewal notices have been sent to 138,000 Mississippi drivers whose licenses expire September 30. Gardner stated that the notices must be mailed back to Highway Patrol headquarters by the return date shown on each notice in order for the driver to receive his new plastic license prior to the September expiration date.

"Many licenses are returned to us each renewal period because drivers fail to list address changes," said Public Safety Commissioner Giles Crisler. "We ask that drivers make sure that their address is correct as shown on the notice and that they put their Social Security Number in the proper place on the form," added Crisler.

Patrol officials report that persons properly following instructions on the notices can expect their renewed license within two weeks after sending in the notice.

Historical Society

The Natchez Trace Inn was the setting for the quarterly meeting of the Northeast Mississippi Historical Society with Dr. Van B. Philpot, Jr. of Houston presiding.

Guest speaker was Dr. Kenneth Holdith, assistant professor of English Literature at Louisiana State University whose subject was "A History of the Sacred Harp."

Among those attending the banquet from this area were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Howell. Mrs. Howell was admitted as a new member, along with Mrs. Sally K. Chast, Donald Franks, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Romberger, Sr., of Booneville.

Mr. Howell announced at the meeting that the next quarterly session will be held in Tishomingo county, tentatively at the J. P. Coleman State Park Restaurant. Further details of the session will be given as the November 21 date nears.

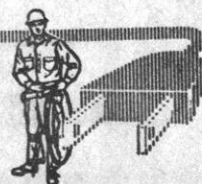

You flipped on your lights this morning, turned off the alarm on your electric clock, and cooked breakfast on your electric range.

You put your breakfast dishes in the dishwasher, vacuumed a room or two, and ran two loads of clothes through your electric washer and dryer.

You watched television, ironed a few items, then took a long soak in the tub (water heated electrically).

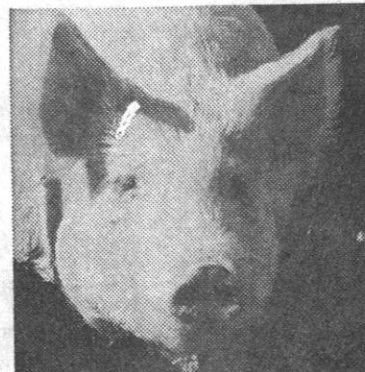

You cooked your family a sumptuous evening meal (disposing of waste items in your garbage disposer as you went). After dinner, your dishwasher took over as your family settled down in your well-lighted living room for an evening of reading or television.

If you didn't remember us during all of these activities, we don't mind. That means that electricity is working for you as it should. All day, every day, dependably.
