SINGLE MEN GALORE IN TISHOMINGO COUNTY

single women who are interested in meeting single men subject matrimony — Tishomingo County is the place.

There appears to be an unusual profusion of bachelors hanging around loose in the area, according to the latest estimate, there are now some 121 unmarried men locally for every 100 unmarried women, considerably more than in most communities.

Such are the figures, according to data released by the Department of Commerce in connection with its annual report on marital and family status in the United States.

The findings are that the proportion of single men to single women is quite different in some sections of the country than in others. In many localities, in fact, the surplus is in the other direction.

The adjusted figures show that about 24.4 percent of Tishomingo County's male population above age 14 is unmarried, as against 18.9 percent of the female population over 14.

Nationally, according to the report, 26.7 percent of the men over 14 and 20.9 percent of the women are single.

The figures do not include persons who have been widowed or divorced. They refer only to those who have never been married.

The marriage rate steps up sharply as the young folk graduate from their teens into their 20's.

Eventually, nearly everyone gets married. An estimate by a Census Bureau statistician shows that as few as 4 percent of the men and 3 percent of the women in their late 20's are likely to enter middle age without having been married.

However, in most parts of the country today, there is a temporary marriage squeeze because of the shortage of males at the normal marrying ages.

It all dates back to the 1940's with the low birth rate during the war and the baby boom that followed. As a result, for many young women born just after the war and now ready for marriage, there are not enough men slightly older than themselves available.

In Tishomingo County this year, there will be approximately 595 women in the prime marrying ages, 18 to 21. As for the men, who marry between 20 and 23 for the most part, there will be 600 in the local area.

Martin Heads Lions

Billy Martin has been elected to head the Belmont Lions Club as president for the upcoming year. The election of the new president and staff of officers was held at a dinner meeting Monday night of this week.

Others leading the Belmont Lions include Lois Underwood, vice-pres.; Jimmy Timms, 2nd vice-pres.; Noble Keys, 3rd vice-pres.; Arlie Strickland, secretary; Floyd Shook, Lion Tamer; J. P. Fulton, Jr., Tail Twister; Charles McNally, song director; and James S. Walls, official greeter.

Visit State Park Prior To Allocation Of Funds

Representatives of the State Building Commission were at J. P. Coleman State Park Sunday and Monday on an inspection tour to determine maintenance funds needed.

Heading the delegation was State Senator Bob Perry of Horn Lake. Sen. Perry is a member of the Building Commission and was in Tishomingo County while other members of his commission were in other parts of the state on similar duties. Information obtained in the tours was used in Tuesday's meeting of the building commission in Jackson.

Others in the group were Buddy Medlin, comptroller of the State Park System. It is through Mr. Medlin's office that all park funds are disbursed — both for new construction and for maintenance. Also present was the Building Commission architect, Charles R. Smith.

A priority project for Coleman Park, according to Mr. Medlin, is a floating dock on the beach in front of the restaurant. "This improvement is very badly needed and we intend to do all we can to get it started," Mr. Medlin said.

A $60,000 camping area on Indian creek in the southern part of the park is almost completed. Included in the camping area is a central comfort station with hot and cold showers and a washer and dryer. Each individual camp site will have underground utilities including water, electricity and garbage disposal. A picnic table and a barbecue grill is also provided for each site.

Senator Perry stated that upwards of $30,000 is expected to be allocated to Coleman park for maintenance. In addition, about $35,000 is expected to be granted for the floating boat dock in front of the restaurant.

Others making the inspection tour were Senators Cecil Summers of Iuka, Theodore Smith of Corinth and Representative W. A. Stevens of Corinth. Mr. Medlin and Architect Smith are from Jackson.

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

A MANDATE FOR WELFARISTS

Having compelled the states to surrender their traditional and constitutional authority over public education, the U. S. Supreme Court now has decreed that states may not make fundamental decisions as to who is eligible for welfare assistance.

In a 6 to 3 decision, the court struck down state laws and regulations requiring welfare "clients" to wait a period of months before becoming eligible for relief payments. In so doing, the Supreme Court tossed out rules that are in force in 40 states and the District of Columbia.

The ground on which the decision was made was nothing less than fantastic. The court held that requiring people to wait before getting aid is unconstitutional because it restricts the right of all citizens "to travel throughout the length and breadth of the land." To reach this conclusion, the court had to ignore the facts. No person, except those restricted by a court order, is hindered from traveling anywhere in the United States. Freedom of movement never has been curtailed. States simply have drafted sensible rules that prevented handout hounds from dropping into any community they pleased and becoming an immediate burden on the taxpayers.

Now the Supreme Court has said that welfare careerists have an automatic right to get a handout in any state they choose to reside temporarily. This ruling is another nail in the coffin of state sovereignty, in the concept of a federal Union as established by the founding fathers of the United States.

On the practical side, the decision most probably will lead to the creation of wandering bands of welfare recipients who migrate from state to state according to the season and their whims. Sunny states such as Florida and California may become winter resorts for a roving drone population. In Florida, the law on the books requires a person to have lived in the state five of the past nine years, and at least one full year prior to applying for welfare.

Floridians have been well aware of the possibility of hordes of professional relievers descending on the Sunshine State. It is impossible to calculate at this point how costly the new ruling will be to many states, but it will likely run into millions of dollars. Taxpayers, who are already overburdened, will be faced with a new weight of taxation. Secretary of Welfare Finch has warned that the decision will have a severe financial impact. He has said that states should have the right to set their own welfare standards, but, in the light of the court's ruling, he added, the states "are going to have to scramble to meet the extra budgetary load."

Inevitably, the Supreme Court's ruling will lead to demands for federal uniform welfare standards. And as a practical matter, the scale of payments almost certainly will be what is being paid in New York State. This, in turn, will impose staggering financial burdens on the poorer states. In addition, a federal welfare minimum would mean that those getting relief could move into those poorer states and live on a higher scale than many of the people in those states who are employed and paying taxes. Thus, the court's ruling will be an incentive to many persons to give up working and to get on welfare.

So-called welfare unions already are active. They aim at packing the welfare rolls and extracting every possible handout and advantage. The strategists of the welfare unions are engaging in this campaign in order to achieve their goal of a federally guaranteed income for non-workers in our society.

The drones in American society believe they have a vested right to a comfortable living at the expense of working citizens. And the Supreme Court's latest ruling in effect is a judicial mandate for this philosophy of compulsory handouts. In the long run, the United States may not be able to survive such an assault on productive citizens by organized, non-productive elements.

The working people of America need to regain the initiative, in state legislatures, in the Congress and in the Courts. This country wasn't designed as a grab

EDUCATION VIA THE GOOSE STEP

JOHN J. SYNON

It serves no good purpose to say: "We told you so," but the fact is, today's deplorable plight of the public-school systems was foretold from the beginning.

Those of us who believe in and advocate the social separation of the races warned the integrators that, if they jumbled the kids, chaos would follow. The warning, having gone unheeded, has become a reality: chaos reigns.

That is Chapter One. Now, if the weaklings who brought this upon us want to know what comes in Chapter Two, here it is:

1) The tempo of the mixing will be stepped up until only "unitary" school systems remain.

2) Standards, as we have known them, will be abolished; age will be the only criterion by which the student's grade level will be determined.

3) Graduation certificates will be given to all and, thus, be made worthless.

In such fashion quality (public-school) education will disappear — and all "men", at last, will be equal. Goose stepped into equality.

That is the bleak future of the public-school systems and because it is, I wish every public school in the land would shut its doors, now.

And I suggest my wish is shared by a growing number of thoughtful, concerned, knowledgeable people.

They won't close, of course. Not today. And not tomorrow, either. They won't for two reasons.

The first reason deals with the Educational Establishment.

Few laymen have an appreciation of the power the professional public-school educators wield over our State and federal governments. Put simply: They are the most powerful lobby in America; their is a vested interest, organized to the nines, a racket without peer.

The second reason has to do with the parents of the children. Parents, by and large, sit at home and chew their lip over the collapse of our public schools, wringing their hands — but that is all bag for the shiftless. A counter-movement against welfarism, a revolt of the taxpayers, is essential. Survival of our free enterprise country may depend on such a revolt.

Digestion Data

It's an old wives' tale that pork is hard to digest. Meat from all animals, beef, pork, lamb and veal, reveals that 97% of the protein is completely digested while meat fat is at least 96% digested.

Add to this a psychological value: pleasing aroma and appetite appeal from meats may aid in the digestion of other foods contained in the meal. That's because well-cooked meats help initiate the flow of digestive juices.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

What to Do About Filthy Films?

If you knew a man was selling poisoned candy to children and young people, would you patronize his store?

Even if the Supreme Court declared that the man must be allowed to continue to dispense his poison, wouldn't you feel a responsibility not to help him to stay in business?

Recently, Joseph Grunstein, film distributor, said, "I've been 40 years in this business, and frankly I'm ashamed of some of the films we handle now. I wouldn't want my kids to see them."

He justified his continuing to handle these indecent films on the basis that "this is what the market is demanding."

"Progress" of Movies

Over a period of years, movies have "progressed" from border-line scenes, shady situations, and double-entendre dialogue to the present practice of showing a man and a woman in bed together, partial or complete nudity, and even—in a Swedish import now showing in this country—an actor and an actress engaging in actual sex acts.

What should be our attitude toward motion picture theaters which exhibit films that are immoral and degrading—poisonous to the morals of all, especially our young people?

Perhaps Jack Valenti, chairman of the Motion Picture Association of America, has given us the answer to this question.

The public, said Valenti, has the "greatest civil right in the world to stay out of the movies."

Regarding the motion picture producer, Valenti said that he was opposed to any form of censorship. He added, "I want to shame him into raising his sights."

Well, while Valenti does what he can to shame the shameless purveyors of immorality, maybe the rest of us should adopt his other suggestion and "stay out of the movies."

What does the Bible say about this matter?

Of course, there were no motion pictures when the Bible was written, but there was immorality, and there are specific instructions as to what our attitude should be.

One thing that the Bible says is this: "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them."

Another: "What fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness? Wherefore, come out from among them."

"Stay Out!" Motion picture exhibitors and producers will respond to only two things, it appears—legal action and box-office figures.

Since our Supreme Court has made it practically impossible to control this moral cancer by legal means, we are left with only one weapon to use against those who would destroy our youth for profit.

This weapon is the one which Jack Valenti suggested that we use—"stay out of the movies." You have an influence. Will you use it? On which side?

I hate to think how many years ago it's been, but do you remember a song that was popular around 1956 recorded by a boy from Cherokee?

"A falling star, that's what you are."

"The twinkle in your eye came from the sky."

"You must have strayed from the Milkyway, (etc.)"

"A falling star, that's what you are."

That was the gist of it and I can remember sitting absolutely spellbound while the golden-throated blonde stood and strummed his guitar and sang those very words. The singer was Bobby Denton and it was at a birthday party Judy (then Marilyn) Moore had one summer night.

Last Friday at noon I wheeled into the drive and ran in the patio door. There was none other than that same Bobby Denton tuning our television set. Small world. He's still right here close by, making his home in Tuscumbia, and in business for himself. (Of course, he didn't remember me — I was just a star-struck little girl rating Bobby Denton with Elvis Presley way back at the birth of Rock).

Among the battle flags shown was that of the 68th Volunteer Infantry. It was a flag showing 35 stars on a blue background in the upper left corner with alternating red and white stripes completing the design. On each of the stripes was written the name of the battles that the 68th had participated in. Right near the top, as Eddie spotted, was "Siege of Corinth, Iuka." It also listed Fort Donelson, Shiloh; Raymond, Jackson; Vicksburg, Moore; Bogouchitto, Meridian, among others.

Parsons - Bishop Vows Said Saturday

Miss Barbara Parsons, daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Waco Parsons of Iuka, became the bride of Keith Bishop of Huntsville, Alabama in an impressive candlelight ceremony Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Iuka Church of Christ.

Eural Wade, minister of the church, officiated over the double ring service, where vows were recited before an altar flanked with two seven-branched candelabras entwined with greenery and holding white burning tapers. At either side were white cathedral baskets filled with yellow gladiolas and green stock.

Dale Sanderson of Cherokee, Ala., served as organist and accompanist for Mrs. Boyd Phillips, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride entered the church escorted by her father. She wore a gown fashioned by her mother and Mrs. Charles Daugherty. It was a floor-length peau de soie design enhanced with wide bands of heavy lace in rose design, from the rounded neckline to the floor, giving a panel effect. Hand sewn into the lace were tiny seed pearls. The same lace appeared on the hem of the chapel train of silk organza, attached to the shoulders of the gown. The bride wore a shoulder-length veil of misty illusion attached to a pearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of deep yellow roses.

Mrs. Linda Fredrick Smith, cousin of the bride, served as Matron of Honor. She wore a floor-length gown of yellow satin fashioned with short sleeves and rounded neckline. The empire waistline was enhanced with a heavy yellow band of lace, fashioned in a back bow with streamers to the floor. Her headpiece was a pillbox of yellow satin to which a wide circlette of yellow illusion was attached. Her bouquet was of white daisies with ribbon streamers tied in love-knots.

Bridesmaids were Wanda Fell of Memphis and Teresa Whitfield of Iuka. Their dresses were similar to that of the Matron of honor, with flat bows at the empire waistline of self-material. They also wore satin pillboxes with circlettes of net illusion and carried daisy bouquets. All wore matching yellow shoes.

Bill Lanier of Huntsville attended the groom as Best Man. Ushers were Sammy Don Parsons, brother of the bride, and Bobby Reid of Allsboro.

Mrs. Parsons chose for her daughter's wedding a lovely street length dress of soft powder blue. She wore a blue net whimsy with white accessories and a white carnation corsage pinned at her shoulder.

Mrs. Bishop selected a street length dress of dusky rose for her son's wedding. Her net whimsy was of a deeper shade of rose. She wore black accessories and had a white carnation corsage pinned at her shoulder.

Miss Becky Thornton presided at a guest register situated in the foyer of the church. She, too, wore a carnation corsage complimenting her fashionable wedding attire.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for a short weekend trip before returning for classes both at Northeast Mississippi Junior College and Florence State College, where the bride and groom, respectively, are students.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Among those attending the ceremony from out-of-town included Mrs. M. Komarowski, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Forbus and daughter, Debbie, of Amory; Elizabeth Nolan and Janet Gann, both of Ole Miss; Mrs. Doris Daniel of Memphis; and a host of friends and relatives from Allsboro.

Unique Machine Is In First Operation At Kaydee Metal

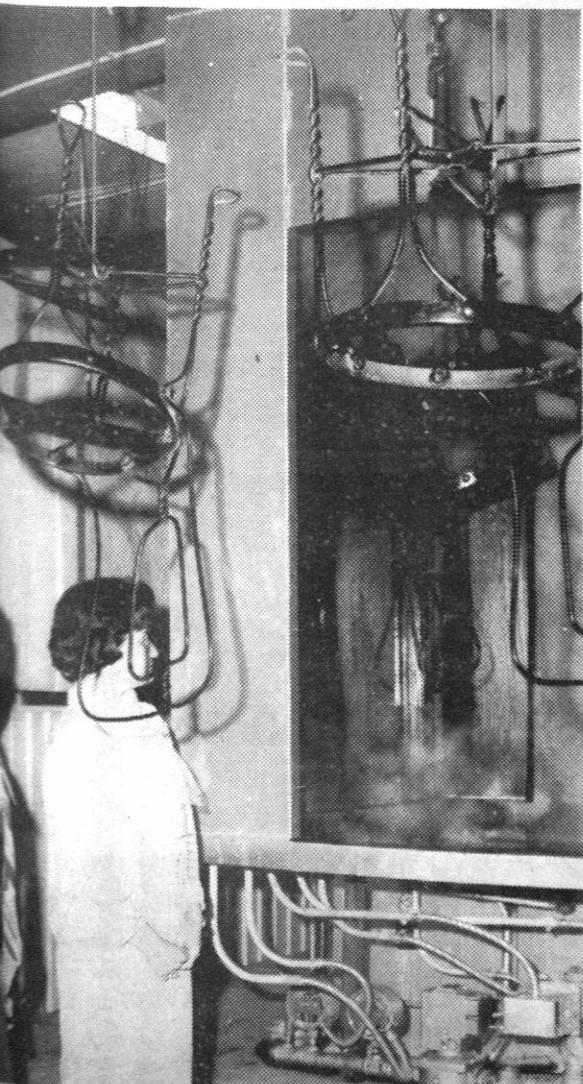

Metal Products Corporation in Belmont put into operation Friday a $200,000 machine that is unequalled for such equipment in the state. It occupies approximately 1/8th of the building space, nearly 15,000 square feet.

MIXING—This process is carried out in a separate building from the main plant for safety purposes.

TO HANG — Saul Rubin and Dr. L. H. Ratliff prepare to hang wire chairs on conveyor belt.

THE WASH — Mrs. Bernice watch as chairs enter the giant provided the first items to be painted — an eight-chair ice cream parlor set. The chosen paint was black. The doctor's wife now owns one of the most expensive paint jobs in the world at an estimated $2,000 per piece — first die product.

The entire process used at Kaydee is carried out via a conveyor belt that extends some 1200 feet. It involves a steaming hot spray wash, a gas heat controlled dryer, the de-magnetized paint process and a final drying in a separate gas heat oven. The painting of items begins in a mixing room which is built altogether, separate from the main Kaydee building for safety purposes. "We take every precautionary measure possible to insure the safety of our workers, especially in the painting process," Saul Rubin, Kaydee owner, explained.

In giving a brief rundown, the plant official explained that the paint room is entirely grounded with several hundred feet of copper wire. The roof of the building is flexible and attached so that if an explosion should occur, it will lift off with the least force.

"Another good feature is that the workers in this section do not lift the heavy drums of paint. This is all done mechanically," he said. Rows of giant mixers line one wall. These do the stirring. The mixers are attached to the large painter inside the main building. If the directions for preparing the paint have not been followed exactly to specifications, there is no chance of a slip-up. The machines in both locations automatically shut off.

This was demonstrated to the onlookers as the men mixed the black paint for the first job. One pound of air too much was set on the dials and the machines automatically stopped, corrected the setting and began over.

The entire process from mixing to painting takes only 45 minutes. Electricity is generated right in the plant.

The onlooker sees the pieces hung on the conveyor about five feet above the floor. They travel up and around at various levels first passing through the high speed wash, through a dryer and into the painter. Here the spray is so fine that the onlooker only sees the items turn the new color. A rushing panel of water behind the paint line absorbs the paint and leaves no trace of drippings or mess. It is a thoroughly clean operation.

After the painting, items go through a second oven for drying and hang on the conveyor for several more feet to cool in the finishing process.

On hand for the "chair painting" Friday were the Dr. Ratliffs, the Saul Rubins and son, Alan, who is working closely with his dad in the business, and Mrs. Rubin's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Karel of Chicago.

$162,000.00 in Benefits Paid County Residents

ward $162,000.00 in monthly security benefits was paid residents of Tishomingo Co. end of December 1968, increase of $8,000.00 above amount payable at the end January 1968, according to Tigrett, District Manager Social Security.

Throughout the county, benefits payable at the end of 1968 amounted to nearly $350 million, some $350 million more than at the end of '67', continued. "Approximately three-quarters of the increased monthly amount resulted from higher benefit rates established by the 1967 Amendment to the Social Security Act, remainder of the increase simply due to a greater number of beneficiaries."

In Tishomingo County, 740 people under 60 are receiving benefits. That figure breaks down into 370 under 18, 48 between ages 18 and 21, and 322 between 22 and 59.

Many students would have been unable to continue their education were it not for the 1965 Amendments to the Social Security Act which extended survivors and dependents insurance benefits to students until their 22nd birthdays. In 1968, that provision resulted in continuing benefits for 470,000 students. Monthly payments to the family of a worker who dies leaving a widow and two or more children assist in decision making and range from $82.50 to $434.40 a month, depending on the worker's average earnings under social security. Payments to the young family of a worker who dies at an early age could total as much as $85,000 to $100,000.

Tigrett also pointed out that by the end of 1968, approximately 90% of Americans 65 and over were either receiving cash benefits or would have been eligible for such benefits if they or their spouses had not been working.

In terms of Medicare, almost all people in the country 65 or over are eligible for hospital insurance benefits. Likewise, 95% of all older persons in the country have elected coverage under the voluntary supplementary medical insurance plan which pays physicians' fees.
