MAJORITY RIGHTS

One of the most significant developments on the national scene took place in Pittsburgh recently when construction workers staged a counter-demonstration against black militants who had persuaded city officials to halt building projects until more minority group workers had been hired. The counter-demonstrations paraded around City Hall shouting: "We are the majority."

At long last, it seems that the silent majority is finding its voice in America. During the 1960's, the majority seemed to be in retreat before the arrogant demands of a militant minority with political muscle. In the Kennedy-Johnson era, an organized minority group had only to make a protest — and federal agencies hastened to implement its will. The temper of the country is changing, however, as the Pittsburgh story indicates.

It's amazing that the country ever got away from majority rule. This is what a republican system of government is based upon — decisions made by a majority of the citizens. The ultra-liberals, which once asserted the rights of the majority (when it seemed that a majority was for Big Government), now is protesting against the system. Some liberal ideologists are trying to formulate a theory of minority rule of the United States.

Highly significant in this connection was a recent article by Prof. Herbert J. Gans in The New York Times Magazine. His article was entitled "We Won't End The Urban Crisis Until We End 'Majority Rule'." This is a curious thesis, but Prof. Gans strained to find arguments to support it. His analysis is profoundly revealing of liberal thinking at this time.

According to Prof. Gans, "majoritarian democracy" was adopted when America was a small, agrarian nation. Times have changed, he insists, and it's time, in his judgment, for something he calls "pluralistic democracy."

The Professor urged that minorities have a veto on legislation affecting them. He urged public financing of election campaigns and recommended free television time to all candidates — "even from the third, fourth or fifth parties." Under "majoritarian democracy," he said, "minorities can be tyrannized because their demands are diametrically opposed to the majority's. When this happens, with a school or other institution, the minority should have the right to secede, establishing its own institution." He also wants proportional representation, which would give splinter parties a place in every legislative chamber.

What Prof. Gans proposed is a receipt for chaos. France in the 1930s had proportional representation, and it prevented maintenance of a strong government with a working majority. The communists, of course, gained a place at the governmental table, and disruption resulted.

It seems fair to say that the American people aren't about to buy Prof. Gans' proposal for "pluralistic democracy," which amounts to the tyranny of a minority. They aren't going to let dissident black power elements establish taxpayer-financed Jomo Kenyatta academies because community protesters don't like the public schools. They aren't about to require the television networks to give every kook a huge listening audience or finance the election campaigns of the lunatic fringe in American life. Finally, the American people don't seem in a mood to let a minority dictate public policy at the local or national level.

A minority group has rights — the same rights as a majority group — the rights every citizen has. A minority, however, cannot be what the ultra-liberals want it to be, namely a privileged class in America that can disrupt a city by halting garbage collections or blocking construction of private and public buildings. In Pittsburgh, for example, the construction workers have a right to work without interference by radical-led groups.

Some of the nation's politicians, who have been catering to militants in recent years, may not have gotten the word. The politicians in Pittsburgh no doubt are getting the message from the aroused workers and the majority of citizens who cheered the counter-demonstration.

American communities and great industries cannot be held up virtually at gunpoint by militant factions who threaten to plunge a community or a plant into chaos if their edicts aren't obeyed. The majority will have to prevail in America. That's the system in a Republic; that's the way the people want it.

Transplants May Create Problems

When Dr. Philip Blaiberg died recently in Cape Town, S. Africa, after living for 594 days with another man's heart, it was explained that his death was caused by the fact that his body finally rejected the alien organ.

This caused some discouragement on the part of many doctors who had been experimenting with the transplanting of parts of the human body from one person to another.

However, there will apparently be no stopping of this activity, as surgeons continue to transplant livers, kidneys, and other organs.

There is even — fantastic as it may seem — discussion as to whether it may, some day, be possible to transplant brains from one person to another.

"A Different Person"

This has caused Dr. Joshua Lederberg, of Stanford University, to ask, "What is the moral, legal, or psychiatric identity of an artificial chimera?" (Chimera is the term used for a living body which has one or more parts taken from another body.)

Dr. Francis D. Moore, of Harvard, a pioneer in human transplants, considers the transplanting of human brains highly improbable. However, he says that, "if it were accomplished, the recipient would be a different person."

Most of us would agree with this. Even if it were possible, would you want the brain of another to be transplanted into your body?

Perhaps somebody would, especially if his own brain were diseased or injured to the extent that death was imminent.

But there would undoubtedly be a complete change in the personality of a man with a brain which had belonged to somebody else — with different heredity, different education, and different experiences.

Startling changes in personality, however, have come about in some instances — without any external physical change whatever.

The Great Physician Who walked with men on this earth many years ago performed radical surgery on the personalities of many who submitted themselves to Him.

Supernatural Change

The spiritual surgery was so effective that the foul-mouthed lustful fisherman Simon became the Apostle Peter.

Saul of Tarsus, who himself said that he was "exceedingly mad" against the Christians and "persecuted them even unto strange cities," was transformed by the Master Surgeon into Paul the Apostle.

How odd it is that we can all believe the miracles of science but many of us do not believe the miracles worked by the God Who created the worlds and established the laws of science!

Have you tested the truth of the Scripture: "If any man be in Christ he is a new creation. Old things are passed away — behold, all things are become new, and all things are of God?"

This is a "heart transplant" operation which really gives the recipient a new start in life.

Modern, super jetliners, capable of carrying from 360 to 490 passengers, require about 10,000 pounds of nickel in alloy form for engines, landing gear, engine mounts, thrust reversers and miscellaneous pressure tubing.

In 1968, 21 countries were producing or circulating 44 denominations of pure nickel coins and 94 countries were producing or circulating 271 denominations of 75% copper, 25% nickel coins.

—SCRATCH PAD—

by Judy Holtsford

Aha! You thought I'd be goofin' off this week. Well, frankly, you're right. Right about now, we should be somewhere between Atlanta and home and you can bet we've relived last Saturday afternoon a hundred times.

Before the wedding, everybody kept asking if the jitters had started. I had a whale of a case but I think Mother had a better one. The first sign was Friday morning at breakfast. She must have thought she was eating pancakes because she took the egg platter and stacked three eggs on top of one another. That was my egg, Bennie's egg and her egg!

I could go on to tell you about these things but I'll save a few until next week when there's more time and space. I'm still in a fog.

Here's a letter that came in the mail this past week from Haleyville, Alabama. It recalls days when I used to get in front of a mike up at WVOM Radio. (Judy Canova's what Mr. Minor Nixon at the bank called me.) However, those days have long since faded, but don't think it wasn't fun 'cause it was. The letter makes reference to a Judy on another station. By the good graces it wasn't me — folks in another locale couldn't have stood it.

Anyway, on with the letter: Dear Judy,

Just writing a few lines to let you know how much I have enjoyed your "Scratch Pad" news. I know about some of the places you write about. It gives me such a thrill to hear more about them.

I have lived in Tishomingo county most all my life. I take The Vidette and can't wait for it to come to read all the news. It gives me such a thrill to see people's names I know.

I hear a lady announce some on WJBB radio in Haleyville. I have wondered if that is you. They call her Judy. About two years ago I saw a car passing around in Haleyville with a WVOM tag on it and saw ladies in the car. They went in a Piggly Wiggly store as I was going in. I heard this Judy on morning programs with Ottie Williams and some in the afternoon on the other announcer's programs.

I heard you speak on Women's News on WVOM years ago when I would go home on a visit. I sure did enjoy your program. Sincerely,
Belle Massey

The Mid-South Fair is beginning to move into Memphis. The first big show is the Rodeo in the coliseum September 19-21. Wayne Newton will be there in two performances September 26 at 4 and 8:30. Saturday, September 27 will be Country Charley Pride, Tammy Wynette and George Jones in two performances at 4 and 8:30.

Food programs aided 303,850 needy people in Mississippi during July, a total of 4,349 persons less than the number that received food assistance in June and 49,845 persons less than the number that took part in the program in 1968.

Dorms at Ole Miss for the first term opened last Sunday. Orientation for new undergrad students is going on this week. Registration is September 10-11 and classes begin Friday, Sept. 12. I seem to have lost touch with who's a part of the college set and in which direction each is going. (That happens after you get a little older). Mrs. Farris Enlow reminded me the other day that Larry was one of those to attend Mississippi Southern. (He met his lovely wife there.)

We've learned via a prepared news release that the W. E. Ludlams of Eastport Beach, Iuka, plan a trip to the Holy Land during the Thanksgiving holidays. They'll leave New York November 24 by jet for 10 days of his-

THE BEST MAN IN THE SENATE

JOHN J. SYNON

Here is a query: "On balance, who do you think is the best senator in congress?"

Well, now. That's not an easy one. But it is intriguing.

There is Sam Ervin of North Carolina. I am a flat-out admirer of Senator Sam. But only within somewhat narrow limits. Ervin's incisive mind is the best on The Hill — so far as the convolutions of the law are concerned. And when he is in a floor fight, he is something to see. But the Carolinian's influence across the breadth of the country is limited. He is hardly known outside the political periphery of Washington, excusing of course his native State; they know him there.

Another of my favorites is the Delaware chicken rancher, John J. Williams. Whenever John Williams blows the whistle, thieves scurry. He is a protege of Harry Byrd and that says a lot. But, like Ervin, the man from Delaware has a limited range of influence and while I don't deprecate his value to the country because of it, Senator Williams is not, in my opinion, the answer to the reader's inquiry.

And what is true of Ervin and Williams is true of a number of others. (I am no cynic as it pertains to the United States Senate). There are many fine men there, serving their State and nation valiantly: I think of Goldwater; yes, Goldwater. And West Virginia's Bob Byrd; Cotton of New Hampshire; Hruska of Nebraska; Thurmond of South Carolina; Jim Eastland and John Stennis of Mississippi. Both of them. John Stennis, for instance, is the Senate's own judge. When the August 100 want an impartial answer, they give the problem to the man from DeKalb.

But what I take it my reader really wants to know is who, above all, do I think of as the toga-type Senator, The Political Renaissance Man of Capitol Hill? Well, if somebody gave his vote to Florida's Spessard Holland, I wouldn't argue much. Except that Holland, much like Ervin, and for all of Holland's scintillating versatility, the Cracker's light is pretty well covered by the Capitol's bushelbasket. Except for that probably self-imposed limitation, I wouldn't argue at all. Spessard Holland is a very, very good man.

My man is John Tower of Texas. I think John Tower, now that he has weathered, is the best of the lot, his potential the greatest. Admiration for this erstwhile school teacher, erstwhile radio announcer, 44-year-old son of a preacher, is almost without limit.

That he and I do not agree wholeheartedly on every issue only signifies the growth the senator has yet to attain. But you take a cross section of John Tower and the growth rings you will see will prove magnificent. To answer the lady, then, "on balance," my choice is John Tower.

This pin-neat, little fellow, in my opinion, has the best mind in Washington. He is a John Randolph without Randolph's bitterness, and that about describes him. And, as I say, he has weathered real good.

Tower's outlook is truly national. Not only geographically but culturally as well. Make no mistake, though: First, as he should be, John Tower is a Texan.

John Tower drinks in knowledge like a sump pump sucking at a well. He is the best talker I ever heard; his courage is unquestioned and he does what he thinks is right.

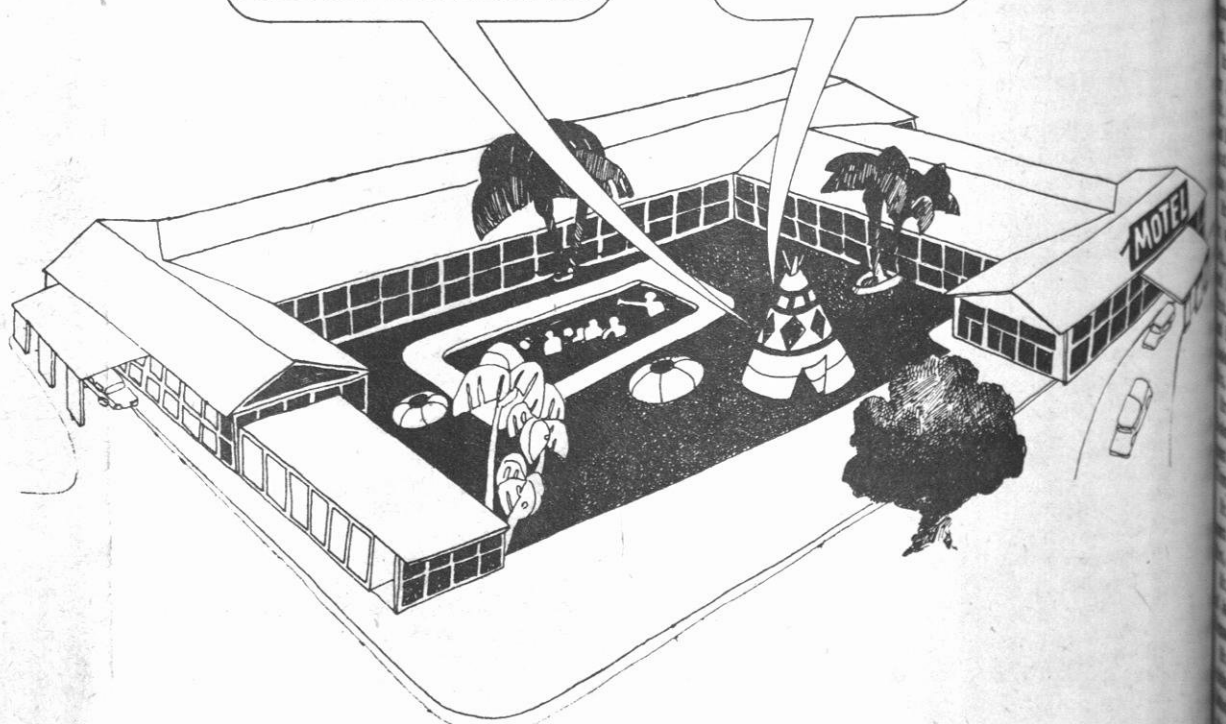

One day, John Tower will become President of The United States.

When he does, he will be the first in my life time upon whom I will have put the stamp of approval.

John Tower: I hope that answer's the lady's query.

Redbirds Win Over Red Bay Team 8-6 of the largest crowd to attend a football game, the Belmont Redbirds successfully opened their season with a hard-fought 8-6 win over the Red Bay team.

Jackie Senter mowed the ball forward a total of nine yards on successive end around plays. Dill's punt was returned by Bullen, who was abruptly stopped by Johnny Hallmark at the 18.

On a quarterback keeper, Thomas Miller got 2 before Phillip Gray stopped the play. Bullen picked up five yards before Roger Wood made a good tackle. Frankie Garrison went up the middle for a first down. Chuck Davis reeled off another Tiger first down to the 45, where Phillip Gray and Merle McAnally made the stop. Garrison slashed off the left side for 5 before he was brought down by David Holcomb and others.

Two successive penalties broke the back of the Tiger drive. Miller threw incomplete to Thomas Armstrong, and Phil Bullen managed a short gain as the first quarter ended.

As the second quarter got underway, Justin Scott punted to Tommy Moody, who returned to the Belmont 30. Cardinal quarterback, Jeff Comer, was hit by Ronald Thorn for no gain. Then, the Redbirds were penalized 15 yards for failure to wear a mouth and tooth protector. Comer threw incomplete to Donnie Dill with Chuck Davis defending for Red Bay. Comer, back to pass, was hit for a five yard loss at his own ten by Thorn and Mike Copeland. Dill punted to his own 32, and a 15 yard penalty after Red Bay possession moved the ball back to the Belmont 47.

Miller, the Tiger quarterback, was thrown for a four yard loss by Johnny Hallmark and a host of Cardinals. Subsequently, Miller threw incomplete to end, Tommy Thompson. Hallmark again made the initial stop after Garrison hit for three yards. Scott's punt rolled dead on the Cardinal 15.

Comer swept right end for 8. Butch Keeton hit Moody for no gain. On the next play, Steve Harris crashed off the left side for a Redbird first down at the 30.

Roger Wood, Moody and Comer got short yardage on three plays. Then, Wood with an inspired, hard-hitting second effort got the first down at the 46.

After Comer got two around left end, the Cardinals were penalized 15 yards back to their 33. Comer was hit trying to pass by Copeland and Garrison for a twelve yard loss. To make matters worse, the Cards suffered another penalty for failure to wear a mouth and tooth protector. Comer was hit for a two yard loss, but Dill punted the Cardinals out of an immediate jam to Davis, who returned from the 40 to the 32.

Earl McAnally and Phillip Gray hit Miller for no gain. Garrison squeezed out only a one yard gain on a five line play by Gray. However, Garrison took a pitch-out around left end for a first down at the Belmont 20. Miller was hit for a six yard loss with Johnny Hallmark making initial contact for the "fired-up" Cardinals. Then, Jeff Comer intercepted a long Miller bomb intended for Bullen at the Belmont 10. Roger Wood hit for three yards as the first half ended with the scoreboard reading: Belmont 0-Red Bay 0.

Following the halftime festivities, Chuck Davis kicked short to Donnie Dill, who returned to the Belmont 43. In high gear, Comer rambled for a first down to the Tiger 43.

Wood had a one yard gain, but Moody was hit for a three yard loss by Bullen and James Holland. Comer passed to Dill for another Cardinal first down at the 33.

On a keeper around left end, Comer dashed to the Red Bay 26. To the disappointment of all Cardinals and Cardinal fans, this drive ended when a Redbird fumble was recovered on the wet turf by Ronald Thorn at the Tiger 30.

Garrison went up the middle for five before Danny Sparks brought him down. Bullen rushed for two, and Garrison had the first down at the 42.

A Miller keeper netted 3, and after two carries, Garrison had another first down at the Belmont 49. A Red Bay clipping penalty and short yardage by Garrison left the ball on the Tiger 40. Then, an errant Miller pass was picked off by an alert Phillip Gray and returned to the Red Bay 43.

Roger Wood banged off the right side for 5, and a Comer keeper added 4 more to the drive. Wood lunged for the first down at the 32.

Cardinal end Donnie Dill caught the Tigers napping on a running play and galloped to the Tiger 17. Comer hit for a yard gain. Tommy Moody hit off left guard, cut back, and dashed to the 8 before being brought down by several Tigers.

Phil Bullen hit Comer for a three yard loss before Coach Paul Prestage sent in junior quarterback Johnny Hallmark. Hallmark on the next play pitched ed out to Comer, who was now playing halfback. Jeff lofted a pass to Tommy Moody. With a good block by Donnie Dill and some flashy footwork, Moody carried the ball in for the first Cardinal touchdown of 1967. On the two point try after the touchdown, Comer passed to Jackie Senter who was wide open as a boot jack in the end zone. With thirty-six seconds remaining in the third quarter, the score read: Belmont 8 — Red Bay 0.

Chuck Davis returned Senter's kickoff to the 28. The third quarter ended with Davis carrying the ball to the Red Bay 30.

In the fourth quarter first play, Miller added four yards. Phil Bullen raced for a first down to the Tiger 47. Then, Garrison rumbled for even another first down to the Belmont 37.

Garrison hit off guard for seven more yards. The Cardinals were penalized 5 yards for off side, and the ball rested on the 25. A Cardinal personal foul and short yardage gains by Garrison left the ball on about the Belmont 8.

rison crashed off the left side for the Red Bay touchdown with eight minutes and thirty seconds left in the hard-fought game. On the all-important extra point try, Phil Bullen was stopped shy of the goal line on a left end sweep. Score: Belmont 8 — Red Bay 6.

Donnie Dill covered the following kickoff at the Belmont 38. Wood picked up two yards, and Comer passed to Senter at the Redbird 46. Comer carried the ball around left end to midfield, Lionel Leathers hit Wood for little or no gain. Then, Comer swept right end on an exciting play that carried to the Red Bay 39 and ended in a fumble. Bullen, Garrison, and Chuck Davis got short yardage. Then Garrison was hit short of a first down near the Tiger 44 by Wood, Sparks, and other Cardinals.

The Cardinals failed to pick up a first down on the next drive, and Red Bay took over at near its own 39.

Phil Bullen on a reverse displayed the exceptional speed for which he is noted and dashed to the Belmont 30. Garrison and Bullen only managed a yard each against the tough Cardinal defense that was now "keyed-up."

A Miller screen pass to Chuck Davis netted very little on an alert defense by Earl McAnally. On a crucial fourth down pass, Miller threw incomplete because Hassell Bennett and other Cardinals put on a big rush.

Belmont took over on downs! On a keeper around left end, Jeff Comer rambled for a Cardinal first down at the Belmont 42. The Redbirds ran out the clock; and as the whistle blew, the final score remained: Belmont 8 — Red Bay 6.

Of the win over his old Alma Mater, Belmont Coach Paul Prestage said, "The victory was fine." After analyzing the game action on the wet field and after reviewing the game film several times, Coach Prestage seemed well pleased with the defensive effort; but he thought improvement needs to be made in future games on the offense.

In the summary, the Belmont Cardinals are off and winging. This week they go to Burnsville to take on the Burnsville Mustangs, who are coached by Jackie Spradling, a former student of Coach Prestage when he was at Fulton.

As you can envision, the stage is set for "a real good one." So, Belmont fans, let's all get out and boost the Cardinals to Victory No. 2.

ALONG THE SOUTHERN

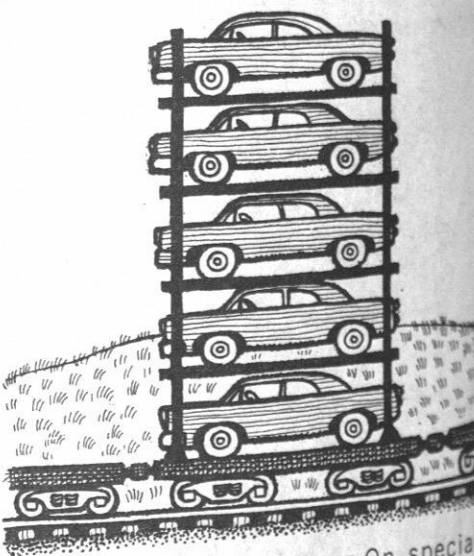

INSTANT ANSWERS. When our freight customers want to know the location of a shipment on our railroad, we have a computer that can answer them—in seconds. But the main job of Southern Railway's computer complex—one of the largest in the country—is to help boost efficiency. Which means moving shipments faster and more reliably for our customers and saving them money.

LOW LIVING COSTS. Living costs are lower in Southern cities than in other urban areas, says a U.S. Department of Labor study. An average family of four can live for about 17% less in Atlanta than in New York City, for example. Southern Railway works hard to bring down the cost of transporting the things you buy—and that, in turn, helps lower your costs.

LOOK OUT FOR TUNNELS! On special freight cars (not quite like the one shown), we can stack autos three-deep. That means 12 standard-size autos or 15 compact per freight car—resulting in lower costs for shippers and the public. With this innovation, railroads have reduced congestion on your highways by capturing more than half of the nation's vehicle-shipping activity. Shows you what cost-reducing innovations can do!
