It's Nearly Time Again

Don't forget to set your clocks AHEAD one hour before retiring Saturday night.

Officially, Daylight Saving Time begins at 2 a.m. Sunday, April 26. When the clock reads 2 a.m., it becomes 3 a.m.—and the "beswitching" hour just might present a few problems.

We are all human enough to look for bargains. For this one-hour investment of your time next Saturday night, you'll get an extra hour of daylight every day for six months—182 extra daylight hours before DST ends October 25, is a safer investment than almost anything on the stock market.

Cemetery Cleaning At Spring Hill

All persons interested in the Spring Hill Cemetery and church are asked to please come April 23rd.

In case of rain, come Friday.

Burnsville PTL

The Burnsville PTL will meet Thursday, April 23, at 7 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Tornado Sweeps Thru Corinth Sunday Leaving 5 Dead, 60 Injured and 138 Homes Destroyed

A killer tornado struck Corinth Sunday, April 19th about 1:00 p.m., leaving five persons dead, 60 injured and 138 homes destroyed or damaged beyond repair. Another 120 suffered some damage and five businesses were damaged.

Local residents said the tornado hit just south of U. S. Highway 72. Clocks over the city were stopped at 12:55. The twister cut a path north into a mostly Negro section east of Eason School and destroyed several houses in a white section to the north. It ripped through an area about three miles long and 200 yards wide. One resident, who watched the twister from his kitchen window said that it looked like a big, black funnel raking the ground. He said it was about 200 yards wide and it sounded like 15 freight trains coming at once. His house didn't get hurt.

Another twister demolished a garage and damaged several houses and barns in nearby Ripley just after noon. Other damage was reported at Counce, Tenn. Authorities said no serious injuries were reported from either of these places.

Corinth residents pronounced dead on arrival were identified as Tony Bishop, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wayne Bishop, Proper St.; C. G. Sweeney, six-months old son of Mrs. Carolyn Sweeney, Scale St.; Mrs. Roy Batie, 38 of Route 2, Corinth; and Melva Lae Kirk, 12 year old daughter of Mrs. Troy Spears, Meigg St., all attributed to injuries received in the tornado. The fifth person pronounced dead on arrival was James Marlin Roaten, age 50, Wenasoga Road, who died of an apparent heart attack. Authorities do not list him as a victim because an ambulance was already enroute to him before the tornado struck.

Five persons were transferred to Memphis in critical condition. Officials listed them as Ruby Boyd, Billy Batie, Hubert Boyd, Eddie Boyd and R. L. Dilworth. Red Cross officials said another 22 were admitted to the Magnolia Hospital and about 50 were treated and released.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Murrah and Melissa of Iuka were attending a birthday party for Mrs. Murrah's 83 year old grandmother at the home of Mrs. Murrah's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hardwick, when the tornado struck. The house was completely demolished. All of the 21 attending walked away with minor bruises and cuts. The Murrahs were treated and released.

Ambulances came from towns over Northeast Mississippi and Northwest Alabama to carry the injured to the hospital. Cutshall of Iuka sent two ambulances and three men.

National Guard, Rescue Squad, and Civil Defense personnel from surrounding towns joined the Red Cross and other agencies to assist the stricken area. Sixty-four National Guardsmen from Tishomingo County Unit worked throughout the night Sunday. Iuka's unit had headquarters at Eason Gym and Cafeteria. On Monday they worked two hours and were off four to rest from the long hours of toil Sunday night. They patrolled the area, cooked and served food and distributed clothing to the refugees. Rescue Squads were also helping.

Tishomingo County sightseers hampered rescue efforts despite the plea for them to stay away. An official said the spectators created a "carnival type atmosphere" in the disaster area.

Mayor and Mrs. John H. Biggs and "Tobuck" King of Iuka toured the scene Monday in a National Guard jeep with Capt. William Harold (Bounce) Kent, Company Commander of the Iuka National Guard.

While residents dug in the rubble Monday, a massive relief effort and a coordinated plan to rebuild the tornado ravaged section was already in operation. Representatives of the Governor's office and all agencies involved in the recovery work met Monday and designated the Corinth Urban Renewal Agency to be the command center through which all functions will be coordinated.

Governor John Bell Williams asked President Nixon to declare Corinth a major disaster area. The Tennessee Valley Regional Housing Authority is working with the city administration and city housing authority to draw up necessary resolutions to make regional authority houses available for residents in the stricken area.

In the meantime, arrangements are being made for temporary housing. Plans are being made to bring about 100 house trailers from the Gulf Coast-Camille disaster to the Corinth area. The mobile homes are property of the Federal Government.

The State Highway Department assisted in moving debris from the streets and sidewalks.

Applications for help were filed at the Eason School.

Sam Linderman, a Red Cross Field Representative from Oxford, said the Red Cross would stay as long as needed, at least a month.

Mayor John D. Mercier issued a note of thanks to persons outside Corinth who came in to help.

home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hardwick for the occasion. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Murrah and daughter, Melissa of Iuka. Mrs. Murrah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hardwick. Lloyd fell over Melissa's body to protect her. None were seriously injured. The Murrahs were treated at Tishomingo County Hospital for minor cuts and bruises and released. Mrs. Lloyd Murrah is shown here in the midst of the rubble of her parent's home.

President To Release Funds For Yellow Creek Project

Senator John Stennis announced today that he has been informed by the White House that the President intends to release, early in the coming fiscal year, funds to start the Yellow Creek Portpro-ject in Tishomingo County.

In December, 1969, the Congress appropriated $450,000 for planning and design of the project, and for the dredging of the port. These funds were frozen by the Administration, as a part of the national program of cutting back on expenditures of money on public works construction.

Release of the funds in July, 1970, will permit designing the project and proceeding into construction. The port complex consists of a large transportation terminal on Pickwick Lake, a part of the Tennessee River Waterway; waterside facilities for freight handling; spur railroad; highway facilities; and an industrial area. The Tennessee Valley Authority, the State of Mississippi, and Tishomingo County will share in the costs. The Federal investment will ultimately be repaid. The Port complex is expected to return six dollars to benefits for each dollar in cost and to provide strong economic stimulus in that part of Northeast Mississippi.

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

THE SHAME OF THE SENATE

The U. S. Senate's rejection of Judge G. Harrold Carswell as a nominee for the Supreme Court reveals the low estate to which that body has fallen under the domination of a bipartisan Liberal coalition. The action also exposes the almost pathological hatred the Liberal camp has for the Southern part of the United States, the region that played a leading role in the establishment of the republic and whose people always have been so ready to defend their country.

The Senate's action was the result of undiluted sectional bias. President Nixon "told it like it is" when he declared after Judge Carswell's defeat that the Senate, "as it is presently constituted," will not approve a Southerner.

In a moving and forthright statement Mr. Nixon said: "I understand the bitter feeling of millions of Americans who live in the South about the act of regional discrimination that took place in the Senate. They have my assurance that the day will come when men like Judges Carswell and Haynsworth can and will sit on the high court."

It is the shame of the Senate that it would turn down the President's nominees for a judicial post because, as Mr. Nixon said, of "the accident of their birth, the fact that they were born in the South." It should be profoundly shocking to Americans of good will, wherever they live, that the Liberal coalition in the Senate would be so determined to punish the people of one section and confine them to second-class status in the nation. Apparently Southerners are good enough to fight and die in Viet Nam and defend their country on other fronts. But when it comes to placing them in posts of responsibility at home, the sectional bitterness of the Liberals bars Southerners from key posts. That certainly, is a strange way to promote "unity" in this country.

For Southerners, the most shocking aspect of the rejection of Judge Carswell was the action of a handful of senators from Southern states who turned their back on their region and joined

"GIVE THEM GRAPE AND PLENTY OF IT"

JOHN J. SYNON

In New York City, one sweltering week in July, 1863, some 100,000 enraged, first-generation Irish marched through the streets of Gotham beating, maiming, or lynching every black man they would lay their hands on.

That, in essence, was history's "Draft" Riot, as it has come to be known. Actually, it was a week-long race riot.

Most of the records of that furious time are no longer available. An aging friend of mine, as a reporter on the old New York World, back in 1920, located at City Hall a room piled ceiling high with the history of that fearful time. But the records are gone now, he said, and nobody there seems ever to have heard of them.

About the only extant source of information I know is a book published in 1929 and authored by a man named Asbury, The Gangs of New York. Years ago, I bought a paperback copy of Asbury's work — along with another he did, this one on New Orleans — and for all I know both are still being sold. They are worth reading, if you can find them.

The other day, I reread the chapter Asbury wrote on the Draft Riots and was struck by the essential similarity between this time and that. I refer to friction between races.

In the 1860s, the immigrant Irish and the New York Negro were huddled, through force of economic circumstance, into a constricted area of lower Manhattan. Like a compressed checkerboard, they were. And, as might be expected, they came to hate each other.

That was the situation when the war came on. And it was still the situation after two years of conflict, when in January 1863, Lincoln issued his politically-inspired Emancipation Proclamation. Six months later, in July of that year and just a week before the riots, there came the Gettysburg blood bath, and immediately after that the call went out for an additional 300,000 conscripts.

The Irish knew who "conscripts" meant; they faced forced induction. They were to face Johnny Reb's bullets, they reasoned, on behalf of their enemy, "the niggers". Together it was too much. The riots ensued.

On Lexington Avenue, at 35th Street, Asbury tells us, the army fired into the surging Irish. "For an instant the mob was checked, and then the rioters attacked..." "Before the troops could reload, their guns had been wrested from their hands and they were being clubbed and shot with their own weapons". "...The soldiers turned and fled".

"The (Armory) was of wood and very old..." "Rioters

(who were inside seeking arms and who tried to get out)..." "The building" became "a roaring torch..." More than 50 baskets and barrels of human bones were carted from the ruins..."

The mobs "surged across Manhattan Island from the Hudson to the East River, looting and burning". "Three black men were hanged before nightfall... the first day... their bodies slashed by knives and beaten almost to a pulp".

Having chased every black from the streets of New York, the enraged people began to pillage the homes of the elite. "Give them grape" (cannon-sized buckshot) The New York Times urged the authorities, "and plenty of it".

Despite the "grape", the mobs moved north to the Colored Orphanage Asylum at 43rd and Fifth, but luckily, the military had removed the 300 black waifs normally resident there

"HEALTH PAYS DAILY DIVIDENDS"

Which came first: the hen or the egg? Which came first: the back-ache or the kidney trouble?

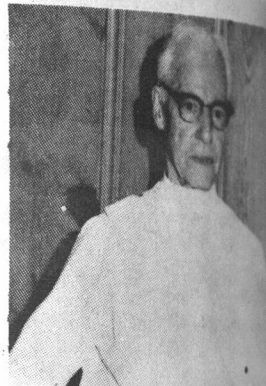

Actually, there would be no kidney trouble unless there was interruption of the nerve supply to the kidneys to interfere with their proper function. At first there may or may not be any back trouble (obvious) to the victim.

However, as the malady progresses and the entire body becomes quite toxic, the spine weakens thereby, and pain in the back usually develops at some stage in the process.

Only a small fraction of "back-ache" cases can be associated with kidney disease despite the prevalent notion that back-ache and kidney trouble are almost synonymous.

That "monthly check-up" could ward off most threatening body disorders.

And those children's spines are more important than the routine examination of tonsils, eyes, ears, etc.

Southerners, to be sure, simply want a responsible, conservative court. They will support a sound jurist whether he comes from California, Oregon, Indiana, or any other state. They aren't asking for a regional balance on the Supreme Court. But Southerners understandably resent deliberate efforts to exclude qualified men from the South and to deny them preferment. They also resent the hypocrisy of the Liberals who preach endlessly about "equal justice" and then gang up on Southern jurists to make sure that a native of one part of the country is denied a place on the highest court in the land. That such a narrow and partisan view prevails in the U. S. Senate should be a source of sadness to Americans living in all 50 states of the Union.

The U. S. Senate, which has played so many noble roles in American history, must be rescued from the Liberal coalition now in charge. Responsible citizens in both parties and all regions of the country no doubt will wish President Nixon to go to the country this fall and explain the need for truly fair-minded senators to be elected.

MILK

Your milk must be kept free of pesticides. At the same time you must use pesticides and other chemicals around the farm--both on animals and crops--to control pests.

This is why you must use the utmost care to keep the pesticides out of milk. Here are some rules to follow that will help.

Use only recommended materials. Do not plant cotton near hay fields, corn fields or pastures. If possible on cotton that is near these forage areas, use only sevin or methyl parathion as insecticides on the cotton.

Do not store pesticides in feed room, or milking rooms. Measure pesticides accurately and mix thoroughly. Apply pesticides carefully and observe waiting periods before grazing your cows. When buying any hay or corn, check on the pesticides used on these crops. Follow all label directions to the letter on all pesticides.

SOYBEAN PLANTING

It is still too early to plant soybeans. Lots of you may be tempted to plant beans early just because the weather has warmed up, but if you give in to the temptation and plant early, you may cut your yields 10 to 15 percent.

When planted too early the soybean plant may start blooming before it gets large enough to support good yields. When the plants start blooming, they make little more growth. This will give a plant that is too small to yield many beans.

Recommended plantings dates are May 1 through June 20 in the northern half of the state. In the southern parts, planting should be delayed until May 20. In selecting a time to plant within the recommended period, availability of soil moisture is a major consideration. For good even stands, planting in moist soil is a must.

LAWN CARE

For that deep green color and good growth, your lawn needs fertilizer. Fertilizer applied about once a month makes the grass healthy, gives a good thick sod and helps control weeds. Actually it cuts down on mowing needs as much of what is mown

USDA — SCS

The following article was prepared by Mrs. Rose Fleming, SCS-Jackson, Mississippi: Thirty-one teachers from 14 counties have already registered for the Conservation Education Workshop to be offered June 15-26 by the University of Mississippi. April 20 is the deadline for registration.

The workshop is being held in cooperation with the Mississippi Chapter of the Society of American Foresters and soil and water conservation districts, and will be directed by Dr. Harold Hein of the University School of Education. A number of scholarships are available for interested teachers.

Dr. Hein said subjects will be taught by members of the University staff and professional foresters, biologists, geologists and conservationists of the Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Forest Service, Mississippi Game and Fish Commission and other state and federal agencies.

"Participants will have the opportunity to acquire knowledge which will enable them to educate the young citizens of our nation in the values of natural resource conservation," said Dr. Hein.

"I think the thing teachers liked best last year was the fact that they were talking to people who had firsthand experience. They learned about specific things they could do in the classroom. They could relate the field trip experiences to textbook material."

According to Dr. Hein, about half the workshop time will be spent on field trips. Classes will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., beginning June 15. Teachers can earn 3 hours graduate credit in Education 596 -- Conservation Education Workshop. Housing and meals will be available on campus.

Compliance Program: Now that planting time is here the Tishomingo ASCS County Committee has some very important question and answers that each farmer who signed up to participate in the cotton and Feed Grain Program.

First: We would like to remind this group of farmers of the absolute necessity of planting their Cotton and Feed Grain crops and caring for them in a workmanlike manner. Why is this important? Because Price Support Payment earned and any acreage credit for history purposes depends on a farmer planting and caring for this crop expecting to harvest a normal crop. Numerous spot checks will be made this year to see that farmers carry out practice.

Reporters will not visit your farm this summer, but each farmer will be expected to certify at the local ASCS Office, not later than July 15, 1970 the acreage planted in Cotton, Corn, or Feed Grain. Remember that farmers are not allowed to plow up cotton or corn after they have certified to an acreage. If you are spot checked and it is found that you have more cotton planted than your allotment or more corn planted than you designated plus your diverted acreage, you are not allowed to plow up.

I'm trying to tell you not to Certify if you do not know your acreage. We have measuring service. If the farmer does not know his acreage, for a small fee, we will come to the farm and measure your acreage before you certify. This is very important. Don't make a mistake.

Agricultural Conservation Program: Tishomingo County farmers have two weeks left to sign up and receive assistance on new pasture, including coastal Bermuda, fertilizing old pasture. Don't forget to get your approval before you plant Coastal Bermuda. No payments can be made if you go ahead and plant then come to the office for assistance.

Lime: Agricultural Limestone is available all during the year. If you need lime, see us at once.

Wild Life Ponds: Due to the great demand for this practice, and because program funds are limited to County Committee has limited this practice to 1000 yards -- Farmers may go ahead and build larger ponds if they wish but the Government will assist on 1000 cu. yds. only.

Pollution: Again we call your attention to two practices now included in the ACP Program. First: Construction - farm animal waste disposal system and Second: Controlling sedimentation from gullies. These two practices are available and SCS will be responsible for all engineering. If you should be interested call by the ASCS Office at once.

Who passed away one year ago
April 27, 1969

When the evening shadows are falling,
And I'm sitting here all alone,
In my heart there comes a longing,
If only you could come home.
God gave me strength to face it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.

In Memory Of Frank Mars

Dear Frank, six years ago today God called you away.
My life is so empty and time seems so long.
But some day I'll meet you no more to roam.
Then life will be sweet and complete,
While we kneel at Jesus' feet.
When you became so ill, you looked up at me, and it seemed you would say,
Press on, Alta, till the battle of life is won.
When I stand by your graveside, as so often I do,
I seem to hear you whisper, I still love you.
Each day of my life, I relive the past.
Life was so sweet, it just could not last.
I can't understand why you had to part,
And leave me with a broken heart.
But it won't be long now until I'll be coming home.
Then we will have a happy reunion in a home where peace, joy and happiness never can decrease or end.
And the kind and loving Saviour is our sovereign and our friend.

Forestry Notes

By Charles Guinn,
Area Forester

Long, spindle-shaped swellings on limbs and stems of slash, loblolly, and longleaf pines are a common sight to farmers and other landowners throughout the south. The swellings are caused by the fungus Cronartium fusiforme. This disease is commonly called southern fusiform rust. Like many other rusts, it must have an alternate host. It cannot spread from pine to pine. Oaks are the alternate host. The infection cycle from pine to oak and back to pine is usually completed in the spring. First signs of this infection usually first appear in early March. The cankers on pines produce masses of orange-colored spores resembling powder. The spores are wind-disseminated. The spores that come into contact with oak leaves produce brownish, hair-like bristles on the lower surface of leaves. These bristles bear small dark spores that can infect pines. Many factors affect the incidence of infection such as weather, fire, soil cultivation, species, stand age, rate of height growth and density of stocking. It has been found that the conditions that favor abundant infection of pines is temperatures that range between 60-79 degrees and humidity near the saturation point for at least 18 hours. The pines in order of greatest to least resistance to infection are shortleaf, longleaf, loblolly, and slash pine. Shortleaf pine is immune for all practical purposes. It has been found that in plantations that those at wider spacing had more infection than those that were planted at closer spacing. Whether this is of enough importance to be considered in planting is debatable. When you see pines this spring with a covering of orange powder on them, you'll know they were victims of fusiform rust.

The Southern Hardwoods Lab at Stoneville recently announced the development of a superior strain of cottonwood tree for commercial planting along the lower Mississippi Delta.

Climaxing 15 years of forest genetics research aimed at speeding the growth of cottonwood, the forest scientists report that on good soil, the improved variety should produce 50 cords of pulpwood and more than 24,000 board feet of lumber per acre in 20 years. The researchers believe that the trees will grow as much as 8 to 10 feet in height each year until they are about 120 feet tall. Cottonwood normally grows 4 to 5 feet annually, but even at that rate it is one of the fastest growing trees known.

Litter Campaign Report

The week of April 13-18 witnessed action in cleaning up LITTER in Tishomingo County. Numerous are the reports of individuals, families, large and small groups, working to remove small items of Litter—such as cans, bottles, cartons, etc., from all areas. Due to rain some were hindered from finishing their projects, and propose to do it this week or into next week. We encourage you to not let up until the job is done. Also, the second phase of our campaign will include an assault of old cars, washing machines, stoves, and such like things cluttering up our countryside. We have many unsightly spots of these which must be removed or a fence built around them.

Jack Rye and E. C. Marlair of the Rescue Squad are to be highly commended for taking 6, 7, and 8 grade boys from the Iuka High School on Thursday of last week and cleaning up Hwy. 72 through our city. Thanks to Superintendent Burress for his cooperation. We witnessed the State Highway Department crews up and down Hwy. 25 picking up Litter, and we appreciate this work. The residents on old Hwy. 25 North just out of the city limits, picked up a truck load of Litter, and some families are still picking up around their homes. The Jaycees, led by Clifton Rhodes, are yet to finish their project of working J. P. Coleman Park Road. Leslie Moser and a group of the NYC boys, sent out by Mrs. Yvonne Long, are to finish Mill Creek Road. Mrs. Jim Carpenter and the Lucy Rowe Club will finish the cleaning of Mineral Springs Park this week. We are glad to commend Aster Johnson and his troop for cleaning up the section of Iuka known as "Colored Hill." It is this type of cooperation of our citizens we appreciate so much. Thanks, Aster, for your good work!

Third District Supervisor A. C. Ryan spent most of last week ridding his district of literally tons of LITTER. This is the kind of job that really counts. Supervisor Second District Russell Ponds has tons of the stuff to dispose of and he is completing his plans to do a thorough job this week. Carl Hendrix of the First District has done some work and plans to carry on this week and even longer to finish his job. Heavy rains have hindered our Supervisors in their work. We have not received reports from Districts Four and Five as yet. No doubt there are many reports of work we have not received. We will make record of them as they come in. One thing, we must not let up until we complete our projects. Another thing, our plans include making our program a year-round-job, with

WILLIE HORTON'S

YOUR FAMILY FROM DANGEROUS ILLNESS

Food can be made unsafe
by lack of sanitary cooking and storage can allow bacteria in food to increase to dangerous levels.

You can protect your family from foodborne illness by: (1) stressing personal hygiene for all members of your household; (2) making sure all dishes, utensils, kitchen equipment, and work surfaces are clean; and (3) taking simple precautions in storing, preparing, cooking and preserving all foods.

The best way to prevent contamination of foods and the spread of foodborne illness in the home is strict cleanliness of person and surroundings.

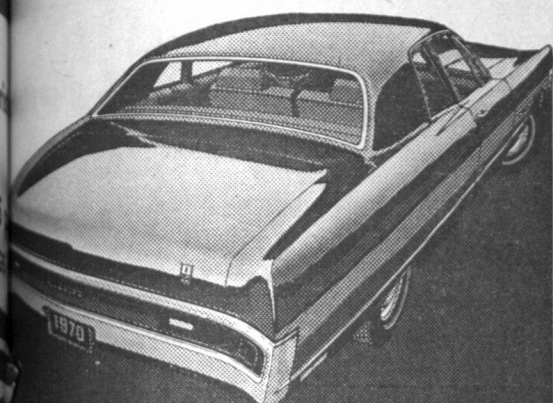

Temperature is an important guide to safety in preparing, cooking and storing foods. Serve food soon after cooking or refrigerate promptly. Hot foods may be refrigerated if they do not raise the temperature of the refrigerator above 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Keep them in the refrigerator until served or reheated.

Keep hot foods HOT, above 140 degrees, and cold foods COLD, below 40 degrees. Food may not be safe to eat if held for more than 3 or 4 hours at temperatures between 60 to 120 degrees, the zone where bacteria grow rapidly. Remember that time includes all time during preparation, storage and serving.

Holding foods for several hours in an automatic oven before cooking is not safe if the food is in the temperature zone of 60 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit for more than 3 or 4 hours.

Thoroughly clean all dishes, utensils, and work surfaces with soap and water after each use. Bacteria can be destroyed by rinsing utensils and work surfaces with chlorine laundry bleach. Use the proportion recommended on the bleach package. Cutting boards, meatgrinders, blenders and can openers particularly need this protection. SHAPE BOOK COVERS OF PLASTIC

Pliable plastic is as easy to shape for book covers as paper, and far more durable. Doodling with pencil or water soluble colors make no difference because covers made from plastic yard goods can be cleaned easily. Or let your child exhibit his own artwork made with a permanent marking pen on a light-colored solid shade.

Hearing Conservation
Crusade Launched

A Crusade for Hearing Conservation was launched today by Beltone Electronics Corporation of Chicago, world leader in hearing aids and electronic hearing test instruments. In announcing the Crusade, David H. Barnow, Beltone's executive vice president, said the effort is dedicated to educating the public to the imperative need for controlling noise pollution and to protecting individuals hearing ability.

Barnow pointed out that statistics from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare indicate there currently are more than 15 million Americans suffering some degree of hearing loss.

"While it is true that hearing losses are most common among people over age 55, this does not mean that younger persons—even teenagers and pre-teens—are immune from hearing handicaps," Barnow said. He pointed out that in addition to water and air pollution, our modern Twentieth Century environment also has produced noise pollution.

"Everyone who reads the daily newspapers or watches television newscasts is aware of the dangers that water and air pollution hold for us and for our future generations unless these problems are attacked effectively and immediately. Unfortunately, the public does not have the same degree of awareness concerning noise pollution. That is the primary reason we are dedicating our efforts to the Beltone Crusade -- for Hearing Conservation," he added.

Barnow pointed out that if excessive noise is allowed to continue unchecked, it will rob millions of people of their God-given ability to hear. "Once this ability to hear has been damaged or destroyed, the damage may be permanent," the Beltone executive stressed.

Initial emphasis for the Crusade will come from a new Bel-tone produced 16 mm color and sound motion picture entitled "To Conserve and Protect." The film, which is narrated by James Mason, a leading Hollywood personality, has been released for showings on television, to movie theatres and through schools, civic, fraternal and religious groups.

The movie stresses that modern-day life exposes people to damaging, or potentially damaging noise levels during almost countless daily activities. These excessive noise situations include on-the-job conditions, traveling, recreational activities and in-the-home situations. The movie also advocates effective noise controlling actions that can be taken by government, by industry and by concerned citizens.

(It makes the others obsolete.)

The electric range is CLEANER because it's flameless. There's no soot, smoke or grime, so your kitchen stays fresh. And, electric ranges are easier to keep clean. All models have surface units that clean themselves, and many have the self-cleaning oven feature.

With hot weather around the corner, you'll appreciate how much COOLER electric cooking is. An electric oven is insulated on all six sides to keep heat inside. Electric surface units put heat directly into your pots and pans, with less spillover into the kitchen.

Electric cooking is EASIER, and you can choose from many time and work saving options. Like a timer that starts and stops the oven at times you select in advance, not to
