Drug Arrests Made

Two county men were arrested late Friday in violation of drug laws at an Iuka residence. At approximately 4:00 p.m. on December 31st, Iuka Chief of Police Jack Rye and Officer Robert Skinner were called on a disturbance at a rental trailer on Pike Street in Iuka. According to Chief Rye, after reaching the scene and surveying the situation, they called the Sheriff's Department to obtain a search warrant. Chief Rye stated that drugs, marijuana, and other paraphernalia were found and two suspects, Larry Jourdan, of 606 Pike Street, Iuka, and Bonnie Southward, of Tishomingo, were arrested and taken to the Tishomingo County Jail. Rye further stated that Jourdan was released on a $5,000 appearance bond set by Judge Robert Arnold, of the Third District, and that this was the second offense of this nature for Jourdan. Bonnie Southward is still in custody at this time. The pair was bound over to await action of the Grand Jury in April.

Those assisting in the search and arrest were Police Chief, Jack Rye, Officer Robert Skinner, and Officer Woodrow Davis, of the Iuka Police Department, and Sheriff Chester Dawson and Deputy Harry Bowman, of the Tishomingo County Sheriff's Department.

New Rate Changes For Power Users

The Tennessee Valley Authority will introduce new rates January 2, 1977, which will simplify rate schedules, better represent present cost conditions, and offer local distributors slightly higher operating margins to help off-set increased operating costs. There will continue to be a fuel adjustment to the kilowatt-hour rate to reflect TVA's changing costs of fuel.

Under the new rate schedule, Tishomingo County Electric Power Association's residential consumers will pay a customer charge of $2.60 per month plus 2.71 cents per KWH for the first 500 KWH and 2.06 cents per KWH for all over 500 KWH (Based on the current fuel adjustment). The customer charge covers fixed costs associated with serving all customers and also replaces the present minimum bill.

A spokesman for Tishomingo County Electric Power Association said that TVA's higher wholesale rate as well as the Association's new resale rate will apply beginning January 2, 1977. They will first show up on bills in late January and February. This is a time when many customers normally receive their highest bills. Large changes in bills of heating customers are likely to result from colder weather rather than the change in rates.

Charges for a 175 watt mercury vapor yard light, located on an existing pole, for individual customers will be $4.00 per month, plus sales tax. If a customer requests a yard light on a separate pole there will be an installation charge of $100.00, plus $4.00 and sales tax.

Dale is a Methodist and teaches the Men's Bible Class at the First Methodist Church of Lucedale, where he has served a number of years as Chairman of the Official Board.

The meeting will begin at 6:00 p.m. with the reception of the Grand Master to be followed by his address. Local Masonic Leaders urge all Master Masons to attend and participate in this meeting.

OUTLOOK OPTIMISTIC FOR TENN.-TOM. WATERWAY — Alabama Governor George Wallace, flanked by members of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Authority, maps plans for the waterway project in the coming year. Gov. Wallace will serve as chairman of the authority in 1977 and Gene Blanton, left, of Nashville, Tenn., is the newly elected vice chairman. Louis Wise, of Columbus, Miss., will continue to serve as treasurer of the five-state compact which includes Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida and Kentucky. Tenn.-Tom officials noted that during the past year several major hurdles were successfully cleared and substantial construction progress was made on the waterway. At the same time, new studies show that the potential for economic development in the Tenn-Tom area is steadily increasing as a result of the project. BACK-TO-SCHOOL FOOD TIPS

After the rush of the holiday season you may find it difficult to get back on schedule. A freezer can take over part of the work of getting kids started on school days.

Breakfast - on - the - run is quick with frozen raisin bran muffins. Heat them in a small electric oven while the family gets dressed. A glass of orange juice reconstituted from frozen the night before and refrigerated, together with the muffins and a glass of milk makes an adequate breakfast.

Other quick breakfast ideas are frozen English muffins toasted and served with a favorite jelly or jam, a wedge of cheese and a bunch of grapes -- or baked frozen biscuits with prefried bacon (heated), applesauce and milk.

If you're a working homemaker, you'll find frozen sandwiches, cupcakes, and cookies convenient sack lunches for the whole family. Adding fresh fruit and vegetables can mean a nutritionally well - rounded lunch, when cheese and meat are used as sandwich fillers.

If you use cakes in sack lunches, slice and package these in individual wraps for easy use. Cakes, cupcakes and cookies are more nutritious when you make them with peanut butter, dried fruit such as raisins, apricots and prunes, whole grain cereals, grated carrots, grated cheese, milk and egg.

Use your freezer to provide tasty, nutritious meals and to save your food budget and your time.

CHECK CHRISTMAS TOYS

Check the toys your child received from Santa Claus or relatives. Be sure the child is capable of using the toy safely by supervising his first play. If the child does not understand the operation of a particular toy, teach him. If the toy is too complicated, put it away until he is old enough. Toys are for fun - help keep them that way.

SELECTING BEEF BULLS

Bull selecting and buying is a big gamble even when all the skill and know-how are used. It also takes time and travel.

To go forward with a production program, quality of bulls must be kept above the quality of the cow herd. To improve, bulls must be better than the calf crop and calves better than the cow herd.

The only place to find quality bulls is from the purebred breeder.

There are many factors which may be considered. First of all you should study your cow herd and select bulls that will correct known weaknesses in the cows.

The tendency now is toward a little more size and ruggedness in all breeds of cattle. In making your selection, stay away from extremes such as too large and rugged, too small, too short legged, too short of body and too short in the head. You will be on safe ground by sticking to those that are down the middle of the road.

Keep in mind that good-doing bulls are the kind that stay in good condition.

Commercial men, as a rule, do not worry much about blood lines. Their choice is more often made by looking at the individual, his sire and dam. They do, however, want clean pedigrees.

Now the producer is beginning to ask for the bull's individual performance, his ability to gain and use feed efficiently. Weaning weight and grade are factors to consider; also, post weaning gain and grade to 1,000 pounds and up. Producers look to the time when more breeders will adopt performance testing programs.

Each commercial herd offers special problems and you should select your bulls on the basis of need. If your cows are unusually large, consider a smooth bull with high quality. A lack of size and quality in the cows will greatly influence the selection of your bull.

Some producers dislike highly fitted bulls. They feel that extra high condition often hides plain features of an ordinary bull. This is particularly true with the inexperienced operator. At the same time, the good points of better bulls fail to show up when they are poorly conditioned.

Overfitting can damage the feed of herd bulls. You can get some idea of feet and legs by observing the way bulls handle their weight both at a walk and when standing. Select those bulls with sound hooves and ample size to feet and legs.

The set to the legs is of importance. Sometimes legs can be so straight that they are called post legged. This is not desirable. Sickle hocks are more common and are objectionable. This weakness usually becomes more pronounced as the bull gets older and heavier.

Look for ample scale and overall frame, but do not over-emphasize this at the expense of smoothness, fleshing qualities and early maturity.

Most producers look for these qualities in their commercial bulls: enough size for age; deep, full ribs and loin; good-length from hooks to pins; strong, straight back; deep full quarters; straight legs; sound feet; and a good head.

Fireplaces Are Helping To Heat

MISSISSIPPI STATE - Fireplaces are an inefficient source of heat, but they can provide some additional heat and help conserve other sources of heating energy, says Robert Parker, leader, forestry department, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Fireplaces are most efficient when they function properly and when users select suitable firewood. To prevent loss of room heat up the chimney, close the damper when the fireplace is not in use, says Parker. A solid or glass firescreen that can be closed tightly helps prevent the drafting of room heat up the chimney, he adds.

Firewood should be cut early in the year and stacked in a dry place. Green or wet wood is difficult to burn and the heat output is reduced because much of the heat produced by the burning portion of the stick is used in drying the wet portion, the specialist explains. The lower the moisture content of the wood, the higher the heat output. Air-dried wood has a moisture content of 15 to 25 per cent and freshly cut wood contains about 80 to 120 per cent moisture, he adds.

Green wood burns slower but produces less usable heat, Parker continues. Based on dry wood values, hardwood produces about 8,300 to 8,700 BTUs of heat per pound whereas pine produces about 9,000 BTUs per pound. Volatile resins in pine make it burn fast and hot; resins alone produce about 17,000 BTUs per pound, Parker explains. Pine produces less total heat per stick than does hardwood because it is not as dense and weighs less.

Fireplaces just aren't very efficient, says Parker. If they were, the heat from one piece of wood would heat a house for an hour or two. Less than 15 per cent of the heat BTUs produced by the burning of wood is radiated into the room. For maximum efficiency, keep the damper closed when the fireplace isn't in use and burn only dry wood, advises the specialist.

Mississippi Consumer Report

BEWARE OF AUTO ADDITIVES

A product called "Tefguard" marketed by Great North American Industries of Dallas, Texas has been stopped from distribution in Mississippi through a suit filed by the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division. This product was to be added to the crankcase of the vehicle and was supposed to act as a permanent lubricant for the engine.

The problem with the sale of this product was that its promoters claimed it was patented; tested by the Nasa, the Navy, and the FAA; insured for any damage, affiliated with Ashland Oil Company, and advertised in national magazines and media in this region, all of which were untrue and deceptive.

In recent months an upsurge in Mississippi has been seen in the distribution of automobile additives as these Tefguard and Teflube permanent lubricants, liquid sealing substances for auto tires that are supposed to balance the tires as you drive and gasoline additives to clean the car's engine. All products are claiming to provide the driver better gas mileage.

Be cautious in buying the new products or the distributorships for the company. Check on the company first and ask to see proof of the promoter's claims before paying any money.

SAVE YOURSELF MONEY

Three Basic Consumer Rules Many Mississippi consumer problems can be avoided by following three general rules in purchasing.

1. Beware of offers of "something for nothing" or ads that offer large savings or discounts or offer opportunities for big earnings for little work. Many frauds and swindles start out just this way but catch and the consumer up paying perhaps times what he should pay for the product or service he ever receive the riches.

2. It is often worth and trouble to do a comparison shopping. You can keep track of the market value of the products you are offered. Oftentimes two outlets will offer the same product at substantially different prices.

3. Do not rely on promises or guarantees. If a consumer complains from the fact that the product he has bought has made by a seller who has found that he had no proof the statement was even. Of course the seller and that he ever said anything and without measure bating-evidence, the consumer may be stuck.

Always get promises or repair, guarantees, warranties in writing.

soming season, was an almost unbelievable sight to behold. The clients expressed great pleasure in this trip and their desire to attend another year.

The Rose Trail, near River-ton, Ala., was another beautiful array of flowers, which was enjoyed by all.

Some of the activities which were of special interest to the clients were observed while at the Center, such as an Easter Egg Hunt and Easter Hat Day. On this occasion both ladies and men wore their fashionable hats, with judges awarding prizes to two first place winners. Also, a washer pitching tournament was enjoyed by the men with a trophy being awarded to the winner.

In early Autumn a Harvest Festival and Open House was enjoyed by the staff and clients, with many visitors attending on this occasion. A bountiful meal was enjoyed at noon, with other activities, consisting of The Dean Family and Temp-laires, from Burnsville, bringing good gospel singing. Also, Buddy Bain accompanying his guitar and James Rubin, who with his harmonica was great enjoyment.

Also a day to be well re-membered was Costume or Tacky Day when clients and the staff were dressed in costumes of all sorts, and were judged by a panel of judges on both their costumes and talent. Prizes were awarded to first, second and third place winners. This was a full day of joy and hilarious laughter and fun.

Once each month a birthday party is enjoyed, honoring all who have birthdays in that month. Birthday cake and punch and picture making are high-lights of the day.

Thanksgiving Day is remem-bered for a bountiful meal, festive decorations and a devo-tional brought by McKinley Rogers, who is one of the clients. Also, songs and praise and thanksgiving were enjoyed by the group.

In observance and celebra-tion of Christmas, a bountiful noontime meal, consisting of turkey, dressing and all the trimmings was enjoyed, along with fruit and traditional Christmas candy, which was contributed by Meryl Tennyson. Ricky Brooks, Church of Christ Minister of Dennis, Miss., brought a very inspirational devo-tional. Singing of Christ-mas songs was enjoyed. Also,

Dorothy Wright and her children singing gospel songs was a great delight. Another highlight of the day was when Santa pre-sented gifts from under the beautifully decorated Christ-mas tree to the staff members and clients, with Santa receiv-ing a gift also. Many of the Christmas tree ornaments were handmade by clients and staff members. Also, approximately 150 gifts of plaster of Paris, which were given to the clients and to Santa, were molded and painted by the staff members. The clients were also present-ed bags of assorted fruits, nuts, candy and gum.

With all the parties and gaiety that we have had, the year could never have been complete without the assistance of our many volunteer workers and our sponsors. The volunteer help-ers consist of a minister bring-ing a devotional each Monday morning, occasional gospel singers, musical bands that have performed, for our Tish-omingo County Home Economist, Nellie Horton, as well as many others who have come and de-monstrated the making of arts and crafts.

The Reverend Eugene Ten-nyson, who with a group of young people came for an after-noon of singing. Refreshments were also provided and served by this group of young people. This was truly a delight and greatly appreciated by all.

Visitors who have come on our special occasions are never to be forgotten, and then those who have just come by to say hello, you too, have helped to make our year complete.

Members of the staff of the Tishomingo County Department of Public Welfare have been great to work with and have meant much to this program.

This program is funded by the Mississippi State Depart-ment of Public Welfare under Title XX, and sponsored by the Tishomingo County Depart-ment of Education and the Mis-sissippi State Park Commis-sion.

The program is designed to provide services for 80 senior citizens of the county, and we are looking forward in great anticipation to a new year, hop-ing to provide even greater services through this program.

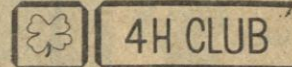

The average human body con-sists of about 50 trillion cells!

She reports the most beautiful scenes she has ever seen, even prettier than the Hawaiian sunshine was the 4 inch soft snow on the trees all the way to the top of the Blue Ridge Mountains and the seven or eight foot icicles hanging on the sides of the highway from rocks, making the most gorgeous picture.

Mrs. Oaks Wins Trip To Hawaii

Mrs. P. L. Oaks, secretary of Tishomingo County Farm Bureau, won a trip to Hawaii to attend the 58th annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation. This award was given to the first twenty-five secretaries that exceeded their membership quota of 1976 by the largest percent by Dec. 5, 1976. Tishomingo County was the second in the state, and as of today has a membership of 3,140.

A chartered jet liner carrying 376 Mississippi Farm Bureau members left Memphis January 5th and proceeded to Jackson to take on the Jackson entourage, for a non-stop flight to Hilo, Hawaii, the largest and most southern island in the Hawaiian Chain. Thursday will be spent with a full day touring the island, beginning in Hilo touring Orchid and Anthurium nurseries, Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, with lunch at the famous Volcano House built on the very edge of Kilavea Crater on via Black Sand Beach to Kona, Friday will be a free day to enjoy the resort area of Kona. Saturday the group will fly to Island of Maui. Upon arrival they will be taken on a sight-seeing tour of this spectacular island. This town has resisted change and today its quaint old streets and shops reflect its historic past.

Sunday a noon flight will take the group to Honolulu on the Island of Oahu. They will register at the Ala Moana Hotel before going to the Convention Center for registration and the Vesper Service, the first function of the American Farm Bureau Convention. Optional tours will be offered while in Honolulu. The delegation will depart Hawaii late Wednesday, January 12th, with Thursday morning arrivals in Jackson and Memphis.

COMMENTS

BY KENNETH NUNLEY
My family and I were sitting watching T.V. the other night, listening to the news. On this program, the reporter was interviewing various consumers, getting their opinions on food prices; coffee in particular.
Now, as everyone who reads this column knows, the price of coffee has almost tripled in only 3 years! For instance, the brand I buy is fast on its way to $3.00 a pound!
It is a sad state of affairs for the American consumer, when Big Business can use the very substance of life, solely for profit. For example, we all remember the sugar shortage of not so long ago, when the price went right through the ceiling.
Every store I visited still had the sugar on the shelves, the same quantities as before, with the outrageous price tacked on. If the food stores could still acquire the amounts needed for everyone, why was the price ten to twelve times higher?

When asked this question in front of the American people, the big person gave us very flowery excuses; showed us film clips of devastated sugar cane fields; told us how very sorry he was, and raised the price again.

I will NEVER understand this direct contradiction! This man, direct representative of the big food stores, telling us that sugar was in short supply, while all the shelves were full. Nobody that I know had any trouble getting sugar, they just had trouble paying for it.

Alas, this year, it seems to be coffee!

Like the fabled "Achilles' Heel", coffee is the weak spot of all the millions of sleepy-eyed American workers. And, I wonder to myself - Why is it that we're never short of something we hate?

The thing that intrigued me about the coffee interview was this. This big shot in the Food Chain Industry was asked if, in his opinion, a boycott on coffee would work. His reply, I quote, "No, because we hold all the cards".

In my opinion, he was saying that he knew the American consumer could not get up and go to work without one to three cups of coffee (I take three); and they would buy coffee, regardless!

Like the alcoholic who feels he "can't live without his beer", or the addict who has to have his "fix", I fear he's right.

It pains me to think of the untold billions of extra profit made by Big Business, at the expense of you, and me. I feel that they intend to pick at least one food item a year, an item the consumer feels he can't do without, such as tea, and skyrocket the price. They then sit back, and again the billions roll in.

Fellow Iuka residents, WHEN are they going to think of us? I know people who work at both of the little factories here, who have worked for years, and still make around $3.00 per hour. When are the wages going up? And, what will they do when we can't afford their food-stuffs? AND, will they care?

It's hell being poor, isn't it?

The American Legion and VFW and Ladies Auxiliary will meet Friday night, January 7, at 7:00 p.m.

A report on natural gas available to the Gulf South this winter

The purpose of this advertisement is to report to you the volume of natural gas expected to be available during this winter to Gulf South communities, commerce and industry through the United Gas Pipe Line Company system.

From the very outset of the national gas shortage, this company, in common with other major interstate pipelines, has broadened and further intensified its search for new reserves. The success of this effort, however, has greater meaning for the future than the present. Time remains a problem.

There are various factors affecting the amount of time it takes for a company to contract for new reserves and introduce new gas production into its pipeline system. These are both economic and physical, and in some cases, human factors. There is intense competition for available new supplies, and the law requires that United Gas continue to allocate its deliveries in accordance with a priority schedule supervised by the Federal Power Commission.

Although the company expects to deliver to its customers more than 380 billion cubic feet of this vital fuel during the winter, this nevertheless represents a greater curtailment this winter than any previous winter.

United believes that the public is entitled to know not only the scope of the shortage, but also what is being done to cope with it. Thus, in a series of communications, of which this is the first, we will provide you information about how the shortage is being handled in the near term. In addition we will detail some of the projects now under way to introduce supplementary amounts of natural gas into United's system.

Because of the depth of the nationwide gas shortage, virtually all citizens are affected, one way or another, by the complex, often misunderstood and often controversial aspects of deliveries of gas. The delivery schedule assigns the highest priority to homes, schools, hospitals and other human needs consumers.

United's gas allocation program is based on priorities of service established in so-called "curtailment plans" approved by the Federal Power Commission and reviewing courts and, thus, are always subject to change. Last April United proposed a permanent program which would provide maximum protection to most gas-dependent customers in the Gulf South. Lengthy FPC proceedings are in progress to determine United's permanent program.

As a result of Court challenges by several of United's pipeline customers, the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit has ordered United to make curtailments under a different program this winter pending further court or FPC action. However, the Court also ordered modifications to the plan to permit continued service to Gulf South industrial customers that lack the present ability to use other fuels. With this important modification, United's curtailments under the court ordered plan should be very similar to those under the plan United has proposed.

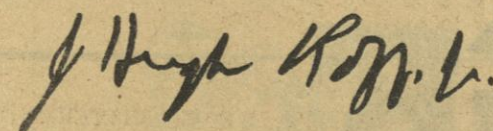

Based on present supply levels, United will be able to provide enough gas this winter to protect all human needs consumers and enough gas for industrial purposes to prevent any severe economic impact, such as plant closings, job layoffs or loss of normal production in United's Gulf South service area . . . unless there are prolonged periods of unusually cold weather.

United Gas will continue to work to protect the hundreds of communities in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida which we have served and helped build for more than 40 years.

The origin of the natural gas shortage and the means for dealing with it involve numerous complex economic and technological factors which have not yet been fully perceived by many of our citizens. Because of this, and because of the critical importance of natural gas to the well-being of the Gulf South, United Gas is once again publishing a series of advertisements to ensure, to the greatest extent possible, the understanding of the public.

In last winter's communications United Gas asked the cooperation of everyone in a program of conservation. The principle is simple: if gas can be saved in the home, it can be used in the plant. To those citizens who responded to this request, turned down their thermostats, increased their insulation and made the most efficient use of this precious fuel, the company extends its deepest gratitude for these acts of good citizenship. The final resolution of the shortage depends ultimately on the wisdom and willingness of the Congress to deal with the root causes of the shortage. In the meantime, successful handling of the effects of the shortage requires the understanding and cooperation of everyone.
