HOME ECONOMIST'S NOTES

THE ROLE OF FOOD PRICES IN INFLATION Last fall President Carter announced a new plan for voluntary wage and price guidelines designed to reduce inflation. The goals are to contain price increases in the economy generally to about 3 3/4 percent per year and to hold wage and benefit increases to no more than 7 percent. Containing food price increases is considered crucial to the success of the program. Food price increases are highly visible since purchases are made weekly, sometimes daily. Food price changes can contribute significantly to the overall inflation psychology. Rapid food price increases are especially difficult for those with low and/or relatively fixed incomes. It is important, though, to keep the overall effect of food price inflation in historical perspective.

The relative importance of food in the overall Consumer Price Index is now about 18 percent. On the average, about 18 percent of the consumer dollar is spent on food. Consequent-results in an increase of 118 percentage points in the overall CPI, assuming prices for all other items are unchanged. The food category is subdivided into two major components: food-at-home with a 12.2 percent weight, and food-away-from-home with a 5.5 percent weight.

Meat prices account for more than 32 percent of the overall food-at-home price index. This means if retail meat prices go up by about 20 percent this year (as now expected), they alone will contribute 6.5 percent to the overall food-at-home price increase. Other important product groups include fruits and vegetables (14.4 percent), dairy products (13.5 percent), and cereal and bakery products (12.5) percent). Often neglected as food categories, but increasingly important, are nonalcoholic beverages such as coffee, tea and soft drinks (12.4 percent) and other prepared foods (8.5 percent).

Examining the year-toyear changes in retail food prices reveals that in the 27 years since 1950, food prices contributed less than ly, a 10-percent increase in one percentage point to the food prices in any one year overall rate of inflation. In four of those years, 1953, 1954, 1955, and 1959, food prices actually reduced the overall rate of inflation in the economy. It is important to note, however, that four of the largest year-to-year percentage changes in retail food prices occurred in the five years since 1972. Only in 1976 did food price increases contribute less than one percentage point to the overall inflation rate.

The inflationary effect of input prices in the years since 1965 cannot be ignored. Marketing accounts for about 60 percent of the retail cost of our domestically produced farm foods. Increased energy costs have contributed significantly to the higher food prices. For example, from September, 1973, to May, 1974, food prices increased at a much faster rate (17.9 percent) than nonfood commodities (11.1 percent) but at a much slower rate than price increases for energy products

(62.1 percent). In addition, prices of imported foods, fish and other foods without a domestic farm product base have had a significant effect. These foods now account for about 19 percent of the food-athome index. Since 1970. prices for these products have increased more than 145 percent. Retail prices for the domestically produced farm foods, on the other hand, have increased 58 percent. The effect of the increases in this category was most obvious in 1977 when food prices increased by 6.3 percent, largely because of higher coffee prices.

Another way of looking at the overall impact of food price increases is to compare what has happened in the United States with what is happening around the world. Since 1970, retail food prices in the United States have increased at a slower rate than in 10 of the 15 countries surveyed by USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service. Only West Germany, the Netherlands, Switzerland and Belgium showed lower rates of increase; their prices are well above those in the U.S.

However, through March of 1978, five of the nations, including Japan and The United Kingdom, showed smaller food price advances than the United States.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of

Party Honors Seniors

The 1979 high school graduates of the Iuka Church of Christ, Mike Wade, Lyn Parsons, Mitzi Robinson and Mary Nell Wimbish, were

April 10th in the fellowship room of the church.

A white love seat was under the arch of a lattis trellis gate covered with ivy and flowers and surrounded by greenery. Wicker tables covered with ferns and cascading vines were placed at vantage points around the room and set the mood for a festive

"spring night dinner". Miniature baskets of spring flowers, tiny paper umbrellas and crystal candleabras with green tapers entwined with ivy enhanced the white draped tables. A sea of flittering stars bearing the names of the seniors as "The Stars of the Night" proved a glamerous background for the honoree's table.

The invocation was given by Al Garner and then everyone enjoyed a buffet dinner prepared by the ladies of the congregation.

Master of Ceremonies, R. E. Lambert, opened the program with a welcome to all and the introduction of the guests of the honorees. The program was then turned over to Bro. Rex Buford, speaker for the night.

Bro. Buford's talk was inspirational and timely, presented especially for the honorees and then closed with a "Roast of the Graduates", which provided fun and laughter for everyone. The seniors were then presented a book, a gift from Guests were: Tammie Cope, Mike Wade's guest; Pam Dailey, Mary Nell Wimbish's guest; Babs Jourdan, Mitzi Robinson's guest, as well as her grandmother, Mrs. Grace Thomas, of Selmer, Tenn.; Pam Page and Raymond Buse, Lyn Parsons' guests, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Parsons, of Burnsville.

Mrs. J. W. Howell and Mrs. Tommie Robinson were recognized as two special guests and the two loved senior mothers of the congregation.

A benediction by Dr. Roger Swanson closed the program, and the remainder of the evening was spent "just visiting".

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

The recent accident at the Three Mile Island Power Plant in Pennsylvania raised some important questions about the future of nuclear power. Although the accident was frightening, the questions now facing us must be decided rationally, rather than emotionally. Thankfully, no one was harmed by the Pennsylvania accident, but greater safeguards need to be developed to prevent such mishaps in the future.

A major factor which must be considered in the debate over the future of nuclear energy is the danger inherent in our heavy dependence on foreign oil. About 50 percent of our oil requirements is imported. It is difficult to imagine how crippled we would be should the supply of foreign oil be suddenly cut off.

We must reduce oil imports through energy conservation, development of other energy sources (such as coal, solar, geothermal, etc.), and increased production in our own oil fields. Although some headway is being made in all of those areas, they will be insufficient to meet the demand. Only nuclear power holds a realistic promise of supplying our energy needs and significantly reducing our unhealthy dependence on foreign oil.

There are already 72 commercial reactors in the United States, generating some 12 percent of our electrical capacity. I believe the two plants under construction in Mississippi will prove great assets in the years ahead.

Public health and safety must come first in our considerations. We must put our great technology to use and come up with ways to reasonably assure nuclear safety -- in the plants and in the transportation and storage of nuclear wastes. The nuclear era is, after all, only 20 years old. We can not expect all of the problems with nuclear energy to be solved overnight. Continued experience should make for greater safety.

The Senate is planning hearings which will provide an honest and open assessment of nuclear power, including the issues of transportation and storage of nuclear waste. I will continue to do all I can to protect the interest and welfare of the people of Mississippi as I take an active role in the development of the facts. We must solve this problem because nuclear energy is crucial to our future.

The Annual Report from the office of the Mississippi Motor Vehicle Comptroller's office illustrates graphically what has been apparent for years - that a more equitable distribution of the State gasoline tax to eligible government entities is absolutely necessary.

Last week, the Executive Committee of the Mississippi Municipal Association voted to institute whatever proper and necessary steps are necessary to achieve a fair distribution of gas tax monies. The formula for payments to municipalities, counties, and the State Highway Dapartment was implemented by legislation established in 1952 and that formula dramatically penalizes the state's 288 municipalities, who receive less than one percent of gasoline tax funds. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1978, for example, all municipalities in the state received a total of only one-point-four million dollars ($1,422,085.35). That is zero-point 97 percent (0.97%) of the 146-point-5 million dollars ($146,546,504.08) collected. Yet streets and roads in municipal areas absorb 32 percent of all the mileage travelled in Mississippi. That's five billion of the 16-point-one billion miles travelled on all roads and streets in the State in the last fiscal year. Therefore, today, the Iuka City Council has resolved to join the Mississippi Municipal Association, other municipalities, and certain private individuals in a class action suit requesting a fairer distribution of gasoline taxes. The suit is aimed toward achieving a decision that will ultimately require the State Legislature to address itself to a re-distribution of the funds on a more equitable basis. We are ever-concerned about luka's tax base ... constantly studying and adjusting this to attempt to maintain the means of meeting ever-increasing services to the citizens of luka without establishing a tax increase. If additional revenue can be diverted to the City of Iuka, as well as to other municipalities, from a revision in the distribution of the gas taxand on the surface it appears justly due - luka can help hold the line on property taxes and can provide continued city services and at the same time improve our tax base.

This class action suit, in no way, should be construed as a "City-Versus-County" situation. In fact, with respect to luka and Tishomingo County, Tishomingo countians outside the City of luka, could actually enjoy increased benefits through a more equitable distribution of gas tax funds. GOVERNMENT AGENCY AMOUNT PERCENT $146,546,504.08 100 Percent Total 0.97 Percent Municipal -1,422,805.35 288 Municipalities 29,434,330.45

has worked for the benefit of both the doctors and the patients. This exchange of ideas has helped to give good advice especially to patients who wear bifocals and who could have some potential problems.

Some patients who wore bifocal glasses began complaining of headaches and stiff necks and often returned to the eye doctor to see what was wrong with the glasses. As it turned out, the glasses were satisfactory. Through a good professional rapport between the eye doctor and the doctor of Chiropractic, they began working to see if there was a relationship between the new glasses and the neck and headache problem.

What was discovered was this: When the patient used normal lenses there was no problem; but when the patient went to bifocals there was. This was because the head was tilted back, causing the neck problems with pinched nerves. Chiropractic adjustments corrected the cause, resulting in relief, but the relief was not long lasting since the patients were causing the problem to recur by their reading habits. The bad habit was raising the head to look through the reading section of the glasses. The adjustments held longer once the patient made a conscious effort to read for shorter periods of time and to lower the head while reading. Unfortunately, all problems coming from pinched nerves in the neck do not show up as headaches or stiff necks. Any disorder in the body can arise from a neck vertebra pinching on nerves.

If you know someone who wears bifocals and who may be having physical problems, urge them to see your family Chiropractor to remove a possible cause of the problem and to help to correct the bad reading habit. Presented in public interest for better health by the Mississippi Society of Chiropractors, District I.

luka Poet Receives Award At Festival

Mrs. Louise Hajek, of Iuka, won one of the three monetary awards given to adult members by the Mississippi Poetry Society when it met for the Annual Poetry Festival in Jackson, Miss., on April 1, 1979. Her poem, "Some Alien Flute," won best in the sonnet category. Then it was chosen one of the three best in the whole contest.

Mrs. Hajek has lived at 308 N. Rowena, in luka, since October of last year, when she decided to follow her son, George's, example and move south. As she had lived in Chicago all her life, she finds the less rigorous winter weather delightful. While natives of our town are staying inside complaining of the cold, she is often out walking to the post office or to the public library.

Just before leaving Chicago last fall, she attended the Chicagoland Poetry Contest in which she won three first awards, two seconds, and three honorable mentions out of the eighteen contests. Previously, she had won quite a number of national awards. Above her desk in her warm friendly home hangs a sterling silver plaque telling about the award given her in 1960 by the Pacific Area Travel Association. That winner, "Gift from the Orient," was read by the governor of Hawaii and later printed in the San Francisco Chronicle and reprinted in the South China Morning Post of Hong ional League of American Pen Women, Louise has served different offices: chaplain; recording secretary; and, for four years, poetry workshop chairman. She is a regular contributor to Hallmark Treasure Books. Her poems have appeared in the Chicago Tribune, the Washington Star, the New York Herald, and the Kansas City Star. She was first place winner in the Deep South Poetry Contest for an unpublished book of poetry, Remembered Music. The book is now available in the public library of luka. Mrs. Hajek also writes children's poetry. Scotts, Foresman and Company used her poem, "Builders" in their fifth grade reader published in 1957. The lines, "... The things that feel and breathe and grow are handiwork of God alone," show how basic are the poet's thoughts.
