continuing with the 36 percent of its borrowers who were delinquent at the end of the first seven months of the fiscal year.

Some 1.6 percent, or 4,306, high-risk FmHA borrowers went out of business for financial reasons during the first seven months of FY 1984. Of this total, 2,485 were voluntary conveyances or outright sales for financial reasons. Transfers with assumptions of title to other borrowers were 310. Bankruptcies were 690. Foreclosures by other lenders -- loans in which FmHA was the junior, or secondary, lienholder were 592, or 2/10ths of 1 percent. Foreclosures by FmHA were 229, or less than 1/10th of 1 percent. The total of such financial failures were 353 fewer than in the same period - Oct. 1 through April 30 - of the previous fiscal year.

FmHA will continue its policy of going the extra mile with its borrowers during 1984. The agency will assist farmers, on a case-by-case basis, even if they are behind in payments due to circumstances beyond their control, provided they have kept their agreements with FmHA, are acceptable using management practices, and have properly maintained secured chattel and real estate. FmHA expects to stay with most of its seriously delinquent borrowers again in 1984, provided that the borrowers' Farm and Home Plans show that loans advanced for annual operating purposes can be repaid. ward to meeting the needs of

Soybean Pests

Most Tishomingo County Farmers will begin watching for the sovbean cyst nematode now that crops have been planted and are beginning to make a stand.

The first sign of an infestation of soybean cyst nematodes is a randomly spaced circular area of stunted and yellow soybeans.

Affected plants may wilt even with adequate soil moisture, and severely infected young plants may die. Heavy infection results in root distortion and smaller than normal root systems. The roots of such plants are generally dark and

This is the beginning of a program to fight soil erosion on sloping cropland. The Tishomingo County SWCD, along with TVA, has recently purchased a TYE 10 foot notill drill for county farmers to use, with TVA financing 1/3 of the drill cost. In many cropland fields in the county as much as 2/3 of the topsoil is gone due to continuous tillage of fields. Some fields are losing near 20 tons of topsoil per acre per year by using continuous tillage methods. By using no-till soil erosion could be reduced by

75 percent. The no-till drill will be available to Tishomingo County farmers on a lease basis. Tishomingo County SWCD will lease the drill for $3.50 per acre. The drill can

As for freezing, it is advisable to blanch the beans before drying.

For variations in winter meals, pickled beans might be the answer. Be sure to process beans for five minutes in boiling water to assure a good seal and to destroy any bacteria that might have entered the jar during filling.

Acreage Reduction Program Guards Against Soil Erosion

Howard R. Bridges, chairman of the Tishomingo County ASC Committee said the 1984 acreage reduction program for wheat, feed grain, cotton and rice guards against soil erosion through the installation and maintenance of protective cover crops and conservation practices on the land taken out of production.

A study of the conservation benefits of last year's acreage reduction and payment-in-kind programs showed a 20 percent reduction in soil erosion on cropland removed from production. Soil loss on the land was reduced on an average from 7.4 to 5.8 tons per acre per year, for a total soil savings of 121 million tons, according to Bridges. The study also showed that nearly 60 percent of the land in the programs had adequate protection from erosion -about one-fifth more than would have occurred without

Preserving Green Beans

One of the most popular vegetables in the American diet is the green bean. Green and yellow wax beans can easily be preserved at home by canning, freezing, drying and even pickling. Select young, tender beans for home food preservation. Over-mature beans will be canner is the most common method of preserving beans at home. Only pressure canning

Canning with a pressure

produces temperatures high enough to kill harmful bacteria that can grow in low-acid foods. If processing is inadequate, the bacteria will survive and produce a toxin as they grow. This toxin could be present even though the canned vegetable looks and smells normal.

For an added margin of safety, home canned vegetables should be boiled for 10 to 20 minutes before tasting. This heating destroys any toxins that may have formed.

When freezing beans, it is important to blanch them. This short heat treatment destroys the enzymes which would otherwise cause undesirable changes in flavor, texture and nutritive value during storage. Frozen vegetables should be stored in moisture and vapor-resistant containers at zero degrees F. or below and used within 12 months for best quality. When cooking, put the frozen beans in a small quantity of water and heat until tender.

HIRAM & FANNIE

By: Ben Earl Kitchens It was a warm day in April when old Hiram Winkleday left his comfortable living bare legs and swollen ankles. When Hiram reached the top of the stairs he forgot what he had gone after. He stood motionless on the top step for a couple of minutes and then with a puzzled and embarrassed expression on his face, began walking back down the stairs. The stairs creaked loudly with each descending step. He hesitated on the bottom step and held onto the faded white railing with his left hand for balance. "Now did I go up the stairs to get something or did I come down to get something?" he pondered aloud to Fannie who was sitting in the rocking chair just around the corner. "Please tell me, Fannie. I'll be dadburned if I can remember." Fannie, who was knitting as she rocked, held the top half of a blue-green sweater in her lap. She would have had it finished weeks before if the arthritis had not had her fingers so swollen and stiff. "I don't know what you went after, Hiram," she said. "Was it your drawers?" 'I don't remember if I put on any drawers this morning or not," he answered.

"Where is the dresser?" Hiram wanted to know. He was still standing at the foot of the stairs. The living room was well illuminated from the large picture window and the overhanging Victorian lamp but the light was dim where Hiram was standing.

"It's in our bedroom where it has been for the last sixty vears." Fannie said. Her voice indicated that she was becoming somewhat im- an old upright piano. patient with Hiram.

"Well go look in the hamper in the bathroom," Fannie shouted back up the stairs. Her voice was becoming hoarse from the screaming. "Where is the bathroom?"

Hiram asked loudly. He remembered having had one built many years ago when the outhouse fell down but he could not remember just where it was.

"Right next to the bedroom." Fannie cried out again. "Turn to the left when you come out of the bedroom."

Hiram turned out of the bedroom and into the bathroom. "Which hamper is it?" he wanted to know. "The only one in there!"

Fannie replied in a hoarse voice. Hiram lifted the lid on the green wicker hamper and dragged out a pair of dirty underwear. He began walking back down the stairs, dragging the underwear behind him. The clothing left a trail of cleanliness on the dusty stairs. "Fannie," he hollered again, "I've got this pair of underwear but I can't remember what I'm supposed to do with them."

"Just come on back down she said in here." exasperation.

Hiram descended the creaking stairs and walked into the living room. He held the dirty underwear up for Fannie to see. "Just throw them over in the corner." she directed. Hiram tossed them in a cor-

The pair had lived contentedly on Mulberry Street since their marriage and had been selfsufficient until the preceding six months, Billy Ted Luttrell, their next door neighbor, had noticed that Hiram's mind had begun to fail and that Fannie's usual impeccable house had begun to gather some dust since her crippling arthritis had her incapacitated. Over the rhythmic squeaks of the old rocker, Fannie could hear the shouts of the two Luttrell boys as they shot marbles just outside her front door. Of High-Energy Recovery Is Dawning In The Natural Gas Business he natural gas business is changing. It isn't the same old blue flame. Like many other natural gas transmission companies we are contributing substantially to research holding the promise of increasing energy derived from natural gas, thus lowering the cost of this vital energy.

This effort has been so successful that a new age of high-energy recovery is dawning in the natural gas business.

It means many benefits for the consumer, and more than anything else, it means natural gas will remain our premium fuel well into the next century.

It is well known, for example, that it costs three times as much to heat water with electricity. And now, research is producing end-use appliances for both cooling and heating that save as much as 20 to 40 percent in gas bills. Even vehicles that run on natural gas are being developed with an objective of reducing fuel costs by 15 to 20 percent.

Natural gas has always been our best fuel, the most efficient energy ever produced by man or nature. At United Gas we're making it serve you better.

New Computer Enhances Business & Office Program At Vo-Tech

The Business and Office Occupations program at the Tishomingo Vo-Tech Center was greatly enhanced when local businesses donated an Apple //e Computer and Apple Writer II. Those contributing for the computer were First American National Bank of First Bank of luka, Tishomingo and Belmont, and luka Guaranty Bank. Businesses contributing for the Apple Writer II, as well as software and textbooks, were Farm Bureau Insurance Agency of luka, Piggly Wiggly of Belmont, and Quick-Clean Cleaners of luka. We now have five computers and expect from one to four more for the next school year. Our Business and Office Department offers a program of intensive business training built upon basic business skills provided already by the traditional business courses the student has had in his/her high school. To enter our program, a student must have completed the 10th grade and have completed (or be enrolled in) Typing I. Next year, more emphasis will be placed on work with the computers.

Our purpose is to provide the opportunity to integrate all previously learned skills and knowledge in a laboratory setting to enable the student to graduate with entry-level skills for jobs in the following areas: Clerk-Typist; Filing Clerk; Receptionist; Secretary; Clerical Recorthouse, election of officers, local competition, and the State FBLA Contest in Jackson. Leadership and professionalism in business is stressed in FBLA, and members receive a monthly publication, TOMORROW'S BUSINESS LEADER. Our Business and Office

Occupations instruction, Donna Malone Hester, has a B.S. degree

Business/Secretarial education (and an additional major in English) from the University of North Alabama. Before coming to Vo-Tech this year, Mrs. Hester was employed by Hi-Lo, Inc., from June, 1981, to July, 1983, first as an Accounts Pavable Clerk and then as a Computer Operator.

Besides our day classes for high school students, we offer night classes in typwriting, accounting, shorthand, business machines, office procedures, and computer literacy/programming. For a class to develop, a minimum of 10 students is needed.

We welcome your visits!

Head Start For Adult Students Returning To College

When adults are debating on whether to return to college, it seems a multitude of "good excuses" for not returning crop up. But Northeast Mississippi Junior College has set up an Adult Student College Workshop program to try and minimize the number of "good excuses"

Scheduled for June 19-20, the workshop is designed to provide adult students with the skills necessary to be successful in the pursuit of higher education. Director of Student Counseling J. Connie Drown said the overall purpose of the workshop is to help adults find that they can overcome any obstacle and be successful in college.

"What we try to do is bring them to campus and help them realize that with certain fundamental skills, they really can be successful here," Drown said.

Some of the skills Drown said the students can learn are how to study, take notes and prepare for exams, how to choose a college major suited to one's interests, aptitude and personality and how to change doubts into positive thoughts through self-affirmation exercises. Perhaps the most important part of preparation for attending college for many students concerns financing their education. The workshop provides prospective students with complete financial aid forms and aid in filling them > out properly. in "This is the third year we've had an Adult Student Workshop, and we've been extremely pleased with our previous results," Drown said. "All that have come through the program have been quite successful in college. Many were surprised to find what they could do. Our success rate with this program has really been significant."

And Drown added that adults thinking about enrolling in college need not feel alone. Northeast usually has approximately 500 nontraditional adult students enrolled.

Registration for the workshop will begin at 9 a.m. in Patterson Hall June 19, followed by the welcome address, a self-affirmation session and a career decision-making segment. On day two, the workshop will begin again at 9 a.m. with a study skills session, followed by information on financial aid. The workshop will end with college orientation and a tour of the campus.

> The workshop is provided at no cost to those who wish to attend, and those who do attend will receive one continuing education unit.

For more information, contact the Counseling Center at Northeast Mississippi Junior College, Booneville, MS 38829, or call 728-7751, ext. 235.

dkeeper; Stenographe Transcriber; Computer Operator and other businessrelated jobs.

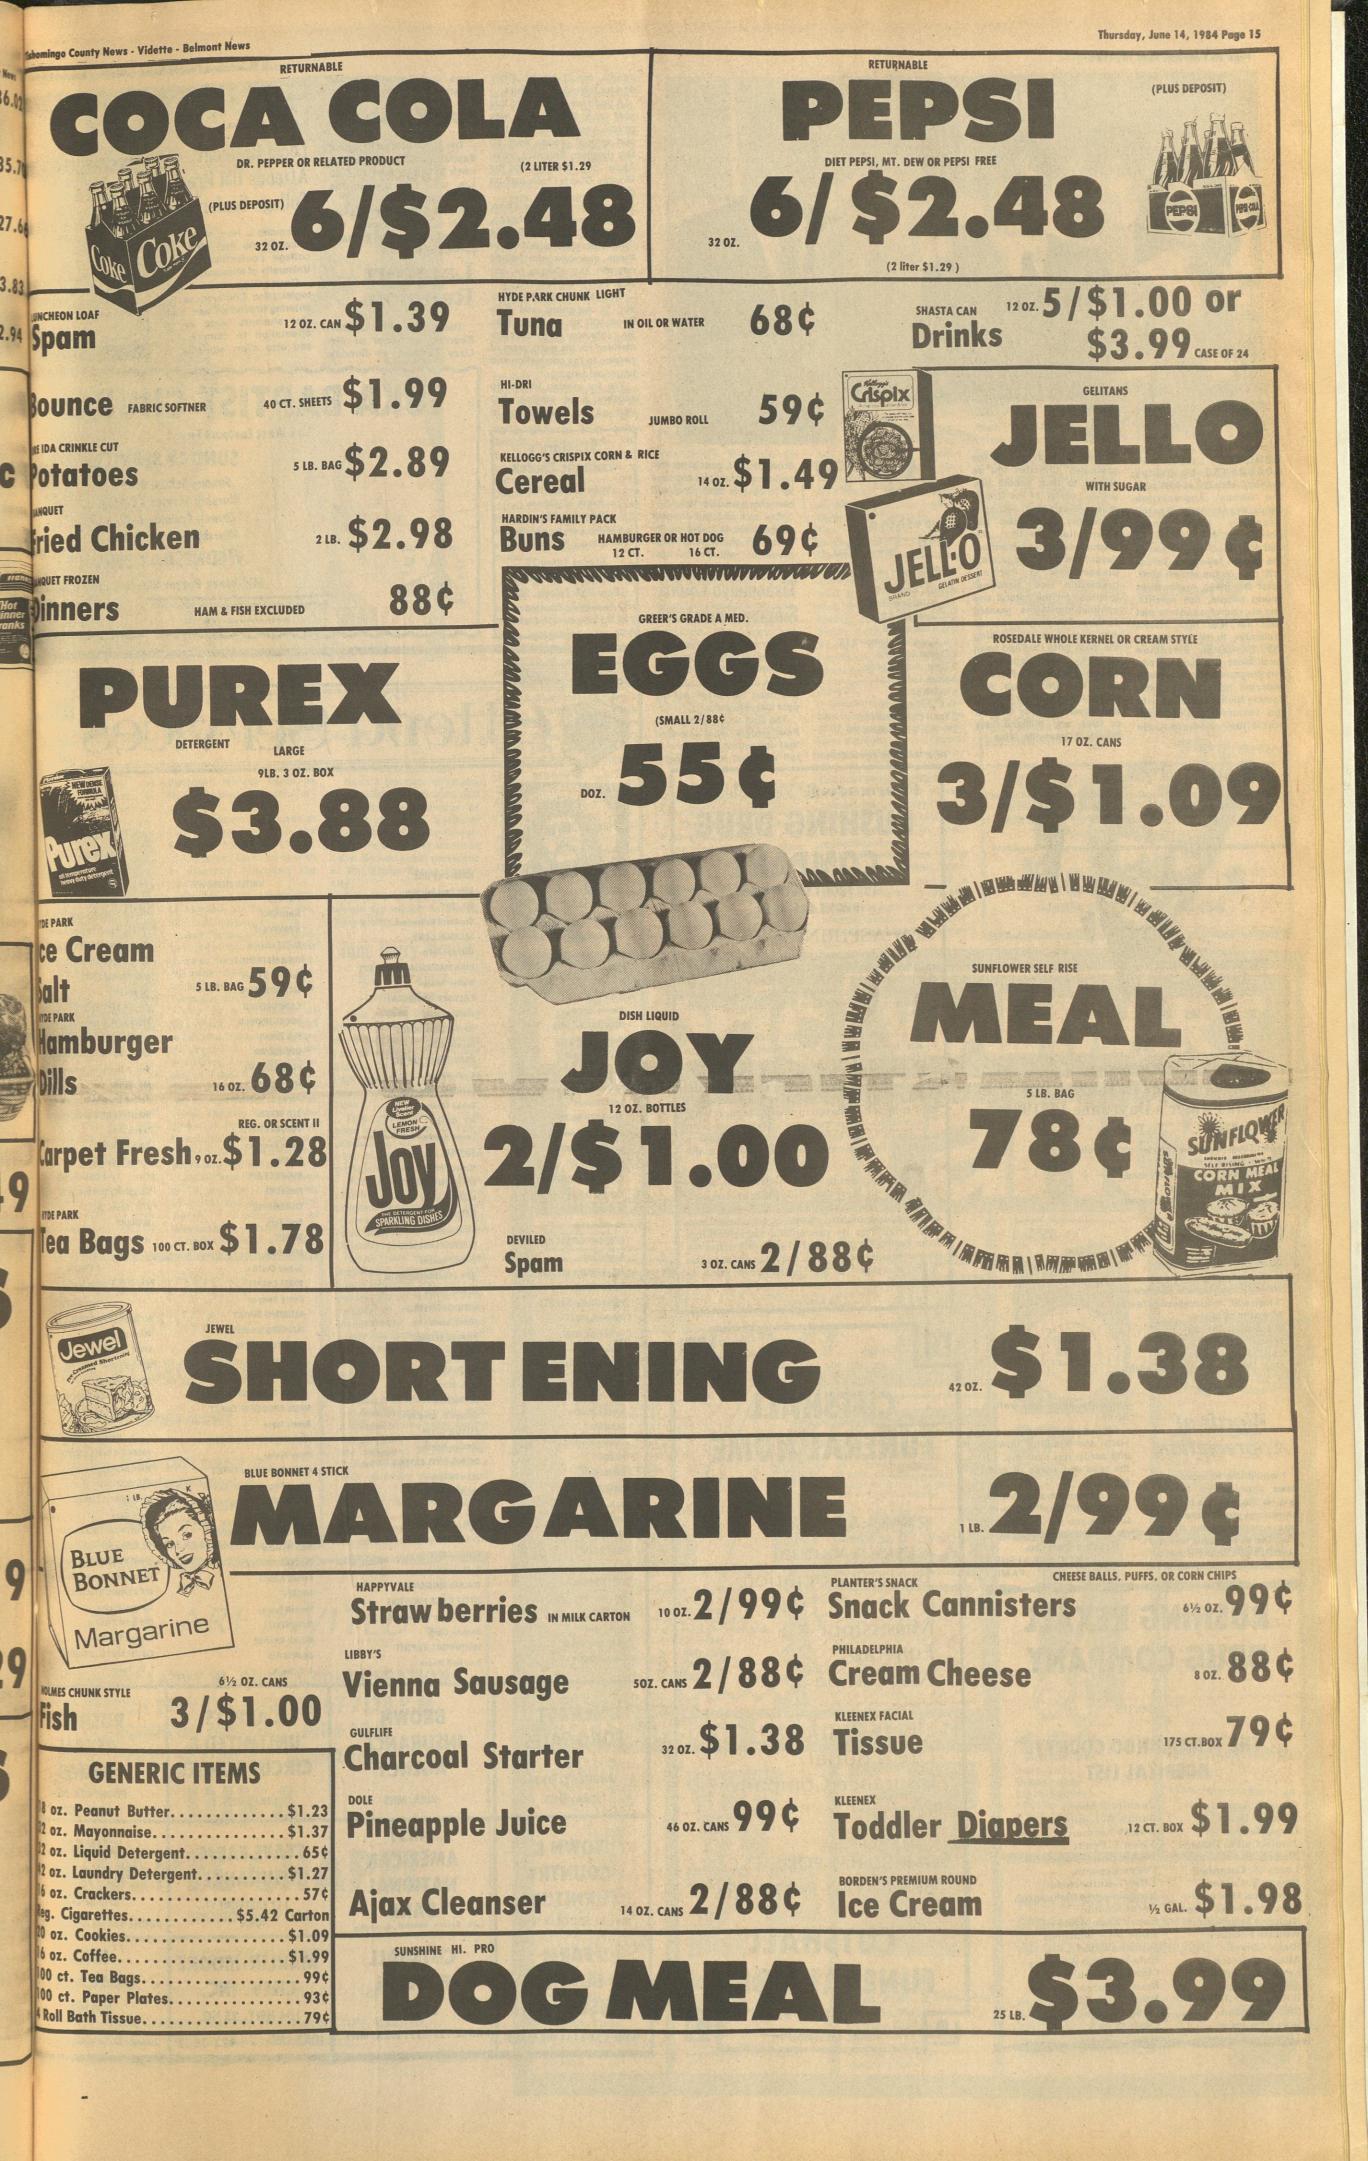

Our classroom operates as much as possible like a real office with up-to-date business machines. Emphasis is placed upon proper attire, grooming, personality traits, and attitudes expected of office personnel.

Among the learning activities first-year students have are the following: typing mailable letters, legal forms, and rough draft copy, as well as statistical and form typing; using the Ten-key adding machine and electronic calculators for various functions, including payroll; filing; using duplicating machines; dictation and transcription; and vocabulary building. Next year shorthand may be offered for those who have not previously had it, and possibly business law will be included. Another activity for both first-year and second-year students is a job simulation unit, using all previously taught rules, theories and skills. Students apply for jobs in this unit by completing a personal data sheet, a letter of application, and an actual interview.

In addition to the above, first-year students work with the microcomputer doing word processing and speed and skill building. Secondyear students will spend from 75 to 95% of their time increasing proficiency on the microcomputer doing advanced word processing; data entry activities; basic accounting and payroll procedures; and program. ming. Also, these students will be involved with reinforcing previously learned skills techniques in and typewriting, calculating, and filing through practice sets and individual projects.

Students may become members of FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America). The year's activities include a fund-raising project, a trip to the Columbus Pilgrimage, a tour of offices at Tishomingo County Cour-

The program was opened by a welcome from the minister. Tommy Nichols followed with the featured graduate appreciation address. He recalled the highlights of the graduates' Christian life as related to their school life. Janice Lockler, of the Green. ville, Mississippi Gospel Assembly, reiterated her association with the graduates during their school days. Then each graduate expressed his or her appreciation and personal gratitude for the natural and spiritual provisions granted to them. The program closed with each graduate opening the many gifts that had been given by their friends and church associates. HOW ASPIRIN WORKS

Americans consume tons of aspirin each year in their quest for relief of fever and pain. Although this white substance has been available for decades, scientists are just now beginning to understand how aspirin works in the body

As a fever-reducer, aspirin works in the brain to set back the body's thermostat. The brain then sends signals to the blood vessels in the skin. The vessels enlarge in size (dilate) and allow heat to leave the body at the surface of the skin. The radiator of an automobile releases heat from a hot engine in much the same way The coolant in the radiator carries heat from the engine to the radiator. In a similar fashion the blood in the human body carries heat to the skin

First, aspirin works in the brain to make an individual less conscious of dull, throbbing pain. Second, aspirin works at the very places pain originates by preventing nerve endings from becoming sensitized to pain. When nerves do not become sensitized, they cannot send the "pain message" to the brain where pain is registered.

June Dairy Month By: Tommy Purvis,

County Agent

June is Dairy Month and a time to salute the dairy industry not only in Mississippi but throughout the United States. This is the 48th year milk and milk products have been emphasized during June.

This year, however, has been a trying time for dairy producers, as there have been many changes to take place within the industry.

Price supports, dairy compromise, milk diversion per capita sales of cheese, low fat milk, fluid cream and ice cream have increased. During the same period nonfat dry milk, evaporated and condensed, fluid whole milk, sherbert, cottage cheese, ice cream and butter have declined.

There have been changes in packaging too -- from glass, paper to plastic. Container size also has changed. The quart at one time was most popular, then the half gallon and now the gallon.

Last year we spent 16.1 percent of all our income on food . the lowest of any nation. Roughly 2 percent of the total spent for food goes to dairy products.

The real measure of a product is the amount of time required to work to purchase that product. The amount of labor required to purchase dairy products have been declining. For example, last year the average worker had to work only 8 minutes to purchase that same halfgallon of milk. Ten years ago it took 11 minutes to purchase that same half-gallon. So milk and milk products still remain a good food buy for the consumer.

Dairying, however, continues to be a major contributor to the agricultural economy of Mississippi. The farm value from the sale of milk amounted to $126 million and ranked seventh as a source of agricultural income.

There are somewhere around 69 firms engaged in processing the and distributing of milk in the state. These firms employ about 1700 people with an annual payroll of $24 million. economic activity The generated by the industry has been estimated at over $380 million.

So we salute the dairy industry with "June Dairy Month" and with the industry great success in the future.

program, oversupply are just a few among many words that have been in the forefront in the dairy industry recently.

There have been several legislative changes that vastly changed the dairy industry. Faced with an oversupply of milk and high government expenditures under the Commodity Credit Corporation for manufacmilk products, tured legislation was formulated. Dairy producers were assessed as much as $1 per hundredweight on all milk marketed at one point during the past year. Presently they are assessed 50 cents per hundredweight to finance a milk diversion program and another 15 cents for a National Dairy Promotional Program. There have been changes in consumer demands. The vestment. Pressure canners and water bath canners fall into this category. Watch for sales on these two items in the coming months.

A pressure canner is needed to process low acid foods, meat, fish, poultry and vegetables. Two basic types are available. One has a dialtype gauge to regulate the pressure. The other has a weighted device. Both work satisfactorily when directions are followed carefully.

Dial gauges must be tested for accuracy before each canning season. The county office of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service can tell you where to take them for testing.

A boiling water bath canner is needed for canning fruits, pickles and jams. Be sure to take a quart jar along when making a purchase. The canner should be deep enough to allow two or three inches of water to boil over the top of the jars. A pressure canner (without gauge) can double as a water bath canner if it's deep enough.

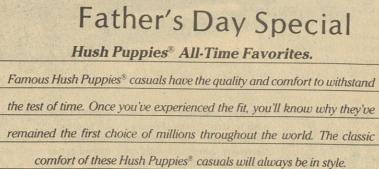

Take a jar inventory and decide whether you need to purchase new jars this spring. Inspect canning jars on hand for nicks and cracks, especially around the top edge. A nick could prevent a good seal. Also, remember that very old canning jars

National Guard and Reserve units from Mississippi and throughout the nation provide a highly valuable service in enhancing the capabilities of our national defense. We should recognize the importance of the role these units play in our military preparedness and the potential they have to assume an even greater role in the future.

I have been convinced for some time now that we get more value from our money spent on the Guard and Reserves than from any other defense expenditure. However, we have neglected the needs of the Guard and Reserves to a large degree, in failing to supply these units with sufficient modern equipment and weapons

Several years ago, I initiated a program aimed at updating equipment and weapons for the Guard and Reserves, and over $300 million has been authorized and appropriated for this purpose since 1981. Still, more is needed if the men and women in the Guard and Reserves are to be adequately trained so that they can fulfill their mission when called upon in national emergencies.

The capabilities and levels of readiness of many Guard and Reserve units is truly outstanding. I am personnally familiar with a number of units in Mississippi which have been rated extremely high in competition with regular military units. The individuals in these units are solid citizens in their communities in their day to day activities, but through a feeling of patriotism they give up many of their weekends to prepare for military service should the need arise. All Americans owe them a great debt of gratitude.

In the United States we have traditionally relied on a large group of citizen-soldiers to supplement our active military force in time of war. This concept has been highly beneficial, and I believe our Guard and Reserve forces are more capable than ever to answer the call to duty should they be needed.

I know that these units can do even more in our overall defense effort if they are better equipped. They have proven themselves capable, and they deserve an opportunity to train with new and modern equipment.

My efforts to have a higher priority assigned to the equipment needs of the Guard and Reserves will certainly continue, and I am hopeful that these units will be given an even larger role in the overall important task of defending our country.

National Award Winner

The Achievement Academy announced today that Carla Michelle Daily has been named a 1984 United States National Award winner in Leadership. This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American high school students. Carla, who attends Tishomingo High School, was nominated for this National Award by Mr. Tom Mitchell, a science teacher at the school. Carla will appear the United States in Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally. The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors, or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth

It has been brought to the attention of The News staff that the wedding announcement of Debbie Wiggington and Dennis Luttrell, which appeared in the June 7 issue of The Tishomingo County News, was an apparent joke. We, at The News office,
