Dr. Sweat Appointed To Mississippi Health Care Commission

Secretary of State Dick Molpus has appointed Dr. Thomas L. Sweat of Corinth to the Mississippi Health Care Commission. Dr. Sweat will fill the unexpired term of Mr. Dan Wilford of Tupelo who has resigned. Dr. Sweat's term will run through June 30, 1987.

The seven member Health Care Commission is responsible for health planning, resource development, and licensure and certification of all health facilities in Mississippi. The facilities include hospitals, clinics, personal care and nursing homes, skilled nursing facilities and home health agencies, among others. The Commission is also responsible for certifying health facilities for participation in the Medicare/Medicaid program.

Dr. Sweat has been practicing family physician in Corinth since 1955. Receiving his undergraduate degree from the University of Mississippi, Dr. Sweat graduated from the University of Tennessee Medical School in 1947. Prior to practicing in Corinth, Dr. Sweat served as a medical officer for a division of naval destroyers for two years and practiced for three years in Ripley, MS.

Dr. Sweat is married to the former Frances Lee Riley, of Tupelo, and they are the parents of three children. He has been active in local civic and professional organizations. In making the announcement, Molpus commended Dr. Sweat for his willingness to serve the State of Mississippi in this capacity, stating, "It is vitally important that committed and knowledgeable people like Dr. Sweat work to improve our State's health care system. The beneficiaries of Dr. Sweat's appointment will be all Mississippians that rely on good health care. I am proud to have Dr. Sweat as the Secretary of State's appointee to this Commission."

YOUNG IUKA MAN VICTIM OF AUTO COLLISION

WILLIAM CLAY STONE
William Clay Stone, 20, died on June 28 from injuries received in an automobile accident at Kilmichael, Mississippi. According to Mississippi Highway Patrolman, James Williams, the accident occurred around 4:15 p.m. on Highway 82, when the 1973 Ford Maverick Stone was driving collided with a 1980 Mack truck. Williams stated that Bobby E. Crawford, driver of the semi, sustained no serious injuries in the mishap.

Clay was a member of Iuka Baptist Church, a Boy Scout and a member of the Order of the Arrow. He was a 1982 graduate of Iuka High School where he participated in football and track and was a three-year letterman in football. He was a member of the Co-Ed Y Club, the Science Club, Beta Club and the paper staff. He served as a class officer. He was selected to the Society of Distinguished American High School Students and Who's Who Among American High School students. As a junior, he received the Danforth Award, and as a senior, he was the recipient of the Balfour Citizenship Award.

At the time of his death, he was a junior at Mississippi State University where he was active in the Student Government Association and was a member of the Student Union Committee.

Surviving him are his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Jerry Clay Stone, of Iuka; three sisters, Lady Anne Stone, of Iuka, Jera Lark Stone Christian, of Columbus, and Joy Stone Dial, of Iuka; one brother, Daniel Ingram Stone, of Iuka; and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gates Jacks, of Kilmichael.

He was also the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stone.

Funeral services were held Saturday, June 30, at 1:00 p.m. at Iuka Baptist Church with Rev. Charles Dampe officiating, assisted by Rev. Bobby Burrell. Burial was in Parkway Cemetery, Kosciusko, with Rev. Reid Dickens being in charge of graveside services.

Clay was active in his church and community. He studied voice and sang in his church and for weddings and for school functions.

NEW PICKWICK LOCK OPEN TO COMMERCIAL TRAFFIC

The new 1,000-foot navigation lock at Pickwick Landing Dam opened July 3 to commercial barge traffic, completing a $140 million project that began in 1978, TVA announced. A dedication ceremony for the new lock is planned later in the year.

The new lock was built at a cost about 14 percent lower than the projected cost of $165 million.

It has 60 percent more barge handling capacity than the old lock, which was built in the 1930's as part of the Pickwick Dam project. The old lock is 600 by 110 feet with a capacity of 9 jumbo barges, while the new lock is 1,000 by 110 feet with a capacity of 15 jumbo barges. After the new main lock has been in service for a few months, the old lock will be renovated to serve as an auxiliary facility at Pickwick. Renovation will take about a year.

Among locks on the Tennessee River waterway, Pickwick is second only to Kentucky Dam in the amount of cargo passing through the lock. It handles about twice as much cargo as the third busiest lock, at Wilson Dam. Last year some 15.6 million tons of cargo moved through Pickwick, and tonnage is expected to increase as economic conditions improve.

Pickwick hit a level of 16.4 million tons in 1980, highest for that facility to date. However, Pickwick traffic is expected to increase significantly with completion of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway in 1985, which will link the Tennessee River with the Port of Mobile on the Gulf Coast.

Completion of the new lock increases the reliability of barge-handling facilities at Pickwick. There are now two locks available in case one is out of service for maintenance or repair.

CONTROLLING SOUTHERN PINE BEETLES

Although you may not have a stand of timber, as a homeowner you may have one or two trees in your yard. Pines and spruces are highly susceptible to damage from southern pine beetles from now until October.

If you have noticed yellowish or reddish crowns in pines, yellowish or white pitch tubes on the bark or reddish boring dust, your trees could be infested with the southern pine beetle.

Winter broods may not change the tree's appearance, but woodpecker activity is often a clue of an infestation. Woodpeckers work the upper stem from the southern pine beetle larvae and pupae.

Beetles attack the lower portion of the trunk from spring to fall and the upper trunk in the winter months.

Once you've spotted any of these signs you should begin treatment immediately. Proper treatment of individual trees and spots could prevent the infestation from becoming epidemic.

Management practices that keep the trees growing vigorously will help reduce southern pine beetle attacks. Water, fertilizer, protection from injury and disease and prompt removal and destruction of infested trees will also help.

Time is the key element in controlling the spread of the southern pine beetle. Take the time to become familiar with the recommended practices for detecting and preventing the spread of infestations.

Investing a little time and money in good forest management practices to prevent southern pine beetle attacks will reduce the amount of time and money required to control an in-

Damage From Falling Tree

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pounders, Graham Road, Iuka, received minor damage Thursday night, June 21, when a large oak tree collapsed in their back yard. The tree apparently fell due to roots, which were rotted and gave way. The family car, the dog's house, and a 1979 Dodge pickup also received damage. The Pounders family is fortunate not to have received injuries in the bizarre mishap. Mrs. Pounders stated that she heard a popping sound and that the next thing she knew the tree was falling on the house. The Pounders family is thankful to the Lord for His watching over them.

Creep Feeding Market Stock

Many areas of the country have only recently received a rain. The prolonged dry weather has damaged pastures and limited the quality of most cattle's food supply.

Farmers interested in marketing a heavier calf this fall should consider creep feeding steers.

Creep feeding is a concept of feeding the calf directly instead of feeding the cow that nurses the calf.

When pastures are in poor condition the mature cow cannot produce enough milk to wean heavy calves.

However, supplemental feeding of home grown or cheaply-bought grains can produce heavy-weight calves that will market well this fall.

Replacement heifers and calves carried past weaning should not be creep fed.

For more information on building creep feeders, types of suitable feed sources and other tips on cattle management, contact the Extension office.

Versatile Carrots

Carrots are in the market all year and usually considered one of the less expensive vegetables. But don't cut carrots short on values -- they are long on eating qualities and nutritive values.

Carrots are part of the parsley family related to dill, caraway, anise, parsnips and many others. Choose fresh carrots that are well formed, smooth, firm and well colored for best flavor and texture and less waste.

Carrots with large green "sunburned" areas at the top which must be trimmed away or badly misshapen roots can be wasteful. Those that are flabby from wilting or show spots of soft decay are likely to be of poor quality.

Larger carrots are good for cooking and shredding and small, younger carrots are good for eating raw. One pound of fresh carrots will YIELD AROUND THREE CUPS SLICED OR SHREDDED.

When limiting the calories in a diet, carrots are valuable having less than 50 calories in a cup of grated carrots. A one-half cup serving of grated, fresh carrots can supply all of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin A for an individual. One carrot can supply more than the recommended daily allowance for a young child. A one-pound package of carrots can provide the recommended daily allowance of vitamin A for a family of six or more.

A versatile vegetable, carrots may be prepared to fit every course on the menu alone, combined or in disguise. Carrots combine to enhance most meat dishes with other vegetables for a sweet glint of gold. This golden root is excellent in salads bringing color and texture appeal.

Grated carrot in the batter of cakes, cookies, pancakes or waffles adds a pleasant sweet flavor and moistness. Carrots for pies and puddings are splendid.

Carrots lend a delightful sweetness to dessert items that can be great, especially if cutting on the intake of high calorie sweets.

Cooked or raw -- as a salad or a vegetable, or even as an ingredient in a dessert, carrots are a good food choice. Consider carrots for their colorful contribution to carotene which becomes vitamin A as it is utilized by the body.

Appetizing flavor, long keeping quality and varied uses along with the appealing low cost are reasons to include carrots in your food plan often.

INSIGHT IN

DR. PHILLIP GRAY
OPTOMETRIST

THE NEARSIGHTED EYE

What happens when one eye or both eyes are nearsighted? The nearsighted eye focuses on an object too soon. The image is sharp when it enters the cornea, the "window of the eye." But it gets out of focus by the time it reaches the retina. This is the innermost lining of the eye that sends the image to the brain.

There are several causes of nearsightedness. One is an eyeball that is longer than normal, measured from the front of the eye to the back, where the retina is located. It is too long to hold an image in focus by the time it reaches the retina.

Or the problem may be the light-bending ability of the eye. It may do too good a job at bending the light, causing the image to go out of focus before it reaches the retina. Nothing can be done to shorten the distance between the front of the eye and the back of the eye. But nothing can be done about its light-bending ability. That's why you were born with eye examinations show how eye problems can be corrected by wearing properly fitted glasses.

CARING FOR YOUR PET

JOGGING WITH YOUR DOG

It's a great idea to take your dog with you when you go out jogging. But you should consider taking a few precautions before you start him out on this routine.

Just as a person should have a medical check-up before commencing a program of rigorous exercise, so should a dog. Get your veterinarian's OK before starting. And don't overdo it at first. Dogs, just like people, have to build up their endurance. This is particularly true for puppies. They have to build up their strength and toughen up their pads.

Be careful in hot weather. Dogs over heat easier than people. In the summer, try to jog during the cooler times of the day -- early morning and evening. And never feed your pet until you've finished exercising. A meal beforehand make your dog bloated and could also cause a serious condition that sometimes can be fatal. Always keep your dog leashed when running.

Don't throw your money out with the wash water

Hot water costs money. As much as 16 cents out of every dollar you spend on electricity. The more you use, the more it costs. So saving money is simply a matter of saving hot water. Here's how:

- Take a quick, warm shower instead of a long, hot bath.
- Reduce water use with a shower flow restrictor.
- Don't shave or wash dishes with the hot water running.
- Use the dishwasher only when it's full.
- Wash full loads of clothes in the coolest water possible and rinse them in cold water.

Kids In The Kitchen
With summer here, more children and young people will be at home and many will be expected to fix their own lunch since their mothers have full-time jobs.

The 4-H Food and Nutrition Project can make this easier for kids in the kitchen. Lunch does not have to be a peanut butter and jelly sandwich everyday. However, this sandwich combined with a glass of milk and a piece of fresh fruit can make a good, quick and easy, nutritious meal for a growing youngster.

Many interesting lunches can be prepared without a lot of cooking or cleaning up afterwards. This should appeal to the young person who would like to spend the summer outside.

Here are some ideas for quick summer lunches:

- * Make a taco salad. Open a can of chili with beans and heat. While it is heating, chop up some lettuce, tomato, and onion, and grate some cheese. Put some corn chips or tortilla chips on a plate, top with lettuce, tomatoes, onions, cheese, and finally the hot chili. If there is chili left, put it in a plastic container, cover and refrigerate. Put water in the pan and soak until you are finished eating. Then wash the pan, plate and

HAPPY DAYS 4-H NEWS
By: Christy Tice, Reporter

The Happy Days 4-H Club is very proud to say that one of our members, Rebecca Carson, was recently chosen to be a Fontana delegate. During the week of June 4-8, she and other delegates from Tishomingo, Alcorn, Prentiss, and Itawamba counties attended a conference in Fontana Village, N.C.

After a week of hard work, she and the other delegates returned and several days later served as leaders at the 4-H Natural Resource Conference held at Northeast Junior College.

Other Fontana delegates from Tishomingo County were: Julia Alexander, Chris Timbs, Steven Bobo and Returnee Delegate, Angie Carpenter.

Other Happy Days members attending the 4-H Natural Resource Conference were Christy Tice and Patrice Johnson.

In conclusion, I would personally like to congratulate all the Fontana delegates. You did a great job!

Fireworks Safety

I hear a lot about fireworks accidents. Are they increasing? Yes, they are. And because these accidents have become more frequent and often result in serious injuries, use extreme caution when handling fireworks.

Here are some statistics about fireworks accidents: There are between 6000 and 7000 fireworks injuries in the United States each year. Approximately 20 percent of these are eye injuries, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, which monitors such injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms around the country. And the trend in fireworks-related injuries has been upward since 1975, according to the Center for Disease Control. The 1981 injury estimate equalled that of 1976 -- the nation's bicentennial year -- and in 1982, fireworks-related injuries were up an estimated 14.5 percent over 1981.

In the two-week period before and after Independence Day in 1982, an estimated 1866 people were treated for eye injuries from fireworks accidents. One-third of these were children between the ages of five and 14, and another third were young people 15 to 24.

A four-year study found that males were injured twice as often as females, and the right eye was injured twice as often as the left. But these figures tell only part of the story, because there are no statistics on the substantial number of injuries treated annually by private physicians.

What are the most dangerous types of fireworks?

The leading causes of eye injuries were bottle rockets and firecrackers. They caused 80 percent of these injuries. The other 20 percent were caused by roman candles, sparklers, cone fountains and punks. Usually, more than one part of the eye was damaged in each case.

Sparklers, generally thought to be safe, have been thrust accidentally at bystanders and produced extremely serious chemical and heat burns of the eye.

Bottle rockets cause so many injuries for several reasons: First, the rocket's flight is erratic, and second, the individual who lights the fuse may lean over the rocket, bringing his face and eyes into the flight path. Often, the victim lights not only the fuse, but the rocket as well and has no time to get to a safe position. Overheating and launching bottle may also cause unexpected explosions. And friendly, competitive horseplay between adults shooting rockets at each other has caused numerous injuries.

What types of eye injuries are most common?

They can be divided into three categories, according to their degree of severity:

-- Burns may cause severe scars and deformities of the eyelids and eyeball.

-- The blast or a concussion from the explosion may cause hemorrhage, cataracts, retinal detachment, or even rupture of the eyeball.

-- Foreign particles, such as powder, dirt, metal, plastic or glass, may end up embedded in the eye and cause severe lacerations and infections.

Severity of the injuries may be mild (no lasting damage), moderate (permanent damage but with good residual vision), or severe (permanent damage with visual loss, blindness or even surgical removal of the eye). Occasionally, death has occurred.

Fireworks have been a great American tradition and will not easily fade. However, they are extremely dangerous and should be used only with the greatest caution. Exercising care ourselves and urging caution by others is the responsibility of us all -- especially parents -- during this Fourth of July. Don't let an accident ruin your summer celebration.

Words of Appreciation

To all who sent me greetings and good wishes during my hospital stay in Memphis, to Dr. Kitchens, the ambulance team, the X-ray technician and the emergency room staff at Tishomingo County Hospital, I send my grateful appreciation.

Street Dance In Tishomingo

The Tishomingo Street Dance will be held this year on Saturday, July 7th. The band playing this year is 'Dan West and Marauder', which is the same band as played last year's street dance. We are proud to bring this band back by popular demand. The band has been touring extensively in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma. The band will begin playing at 8:00 p.m. until 12:00 midnight.

We are happy to have back from Belmont, The Belmont Fludder-Wheels, which is a popular square dance group. The times of their dances will probably be during intermission, but an exact time has not been set at present.

This annual event is being sponsored by the Tishomingo Chamber of Commerce, and everyone is invited and welcome.

THE 'SIGN' OF GOOD FORESTRY
The next Mississippian to put up this sign and be added to the state's list of Tree Farmers will be No. 5,741, according to figures from the American Forest Institute and Mississippi Forestry Association, Inc. The latest statistics from AFI show that Mississippi leads the nation in the number of Tree Farms, a position it has held since 1955. The total number of state acres in Tree Farms at January 1, 1984, was almost 4.2 million. The American Tree Farm System, launched in 1941 by the nation's wood using industries, is a program to encourage private forest owners to do an effective job of growing trees as a crop. Currently, the system is a function of the American Forest Foundation, administered by the American Forest Institute. Professional foresters from industry, government, and consulting firms give time to its maintenance. The program in Mississippi is sponsored by the Mississippi Forestry Association, Inc., an organization of about 1400 individuals, companies, and groups interested in forestry. MFA's Tree Farm committee, with Richard Sones, of Columbia, as chairman, operates under the guidance of the American Forest Institute in making arrangements for foresters to inspect and certify Tree Farm applications. Reinspections are scheduled at five-year intervals to determine that membership qualifications are being maintained. The cash benefits to the Tree Farmer, and his help in meeting the nation's growing need for wood and paper products, are not the only benefits of the system, says the American Forest Institute. Added advantages pointed out by the Institute as becoming more important daily, because of population growth and increasing urbanization, are outdoor recreation and aesthetic value, watershed protection, and improved wildlife habitat. Upon certification, Tree Farmers receive a certificate and the familiar metal Tree Farm sign. "When you see a Tree Farm sign," said Bob Izlar, executive vice president of Mississippi Forestry Association, Inc., "you know the owner of the land is carrying out forestry practices that meet the basic requirements of a Tree Farm." Contests to select the Outstanding Tree Farmer of the Year are held on local, state, regional and national levels. Opportunities are also provided for Tree Farmers to attend conferences, field days, study tours, and seminars on Tree Farming. They also receive the American Tree Farmer magazine from the American Forest Institute. Additional information about becoming a Tree Farmer can be obtained from Mississippi Forestry Association, 620 North State St., Jackson, MS 39202-3398.

In Memory of Amos Timbes AMOS

Our little town doesn't seem the same
We miss a well known face
There's grief, heartache and emptiness
No one can take his place.

He had no gold or silver,
His needs were very small
He lived a very simple life
Was known and loved by all.

Friends came to pay their last respects
With sad eyes they filed past
In friends he had his riches
And that's a wealth that lasts.

So many counted on him
To drive them into town
He was a man they trusted
And he never let them down.

We've said goodbye to Amos
He's gone, we've shed our tears
But Tishomingo won't be the same
For many, many years.

PRESSURE MEDICINES

Medicines that reduce high blood pressure exert their effect by acting on the heart, blood vessels, nervous system, or kidneys. Most antihypertensives (high blood pressure medicines) work best when combined with salt restriction, weight control, moderate exercise, and relaxation.

Forty percent of people with hypertension obtain adequate pressure reduction by taking only a diuretic ("water" or "fluid" pill). Diuretics have been the mainstay of hypertension treatment for about 20 years.

The antiadrenergics act in the brain to cause blood vessels to relax. Vessel relaxation allows blood to flow more easily, and a lowering of blood pressure thus results. Included among the antiadrenergics are reserpine, methyl dopa, clonidine, and the beta-blockers of which propranolol is a popular example.

Vasodilators such as hydralazine and prazosin appear to work directly on the blood vessels to produce a similar relaxation.

And most recently available are the calcium channel blockers such as verapamil and nifedipine. These relatively new medicines uniquely protect the heart from excessive stimulation. Blood pressure may be reduced as a result of such protection.

Isom Family Reunion

Long fingers of bright June sunlight pushed through the lush green trees to play on the ground below, as clock hands reached 2 p.m., June 18th, the "Isom Clan Reunion" time had come once again. Locapoolsa Lodge, at beautiful Tishomingo State Park rang with happy greetings from the children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren of Mrs. Lillie Paysinger Isom and the late Byrd Bryant Isom, as they gathered for an afternoon of fun and fellowship.

Mrs. Isom arrived to be greeted by her family members, already gathered to enjoy the lodge with its plantation setting. Ceiling fans swirling on the large stone front porch above rocking chairs, as well as inside the huge hand-planed wood-paneled rooms with massive stone fireplaces, offered an afternoon of relaxation to all.

Mrs. Jo Ann Isom welcomed the family members from a registration table set up on the porch beneath a banner greeting the "Isom Clan" and made sure all received name tags.

Inside, everyone enjoyed locating their families and the "new additions" on the huge family tree painted on canvas by Lisa Lambert, which hung from the top of the fireplace chimney down to the mantle in the entrance room.

Posters showing the setting of a monument in Athens, Al, at Lucinda B. Isom's grave, the great-grandmother of Mrs. Lillie Isom's children and great-great-grandmother to several present, was of much interest to all as the purchase of the marker had been a joint effort of family members.

Around three o'clock everyone gathered at the front of the lodge and Martha Lambert, a daughter, welcomed them and read the personal greetings of Mrs. Lillie Isom to everyone as stated in her caring and loving way. Stories depicting family happenings of the past as told by Mrs. Isom and several of her children, and written by Lisa Lambert, were given to each family group as a keepsake. Pictures of the monument setting and an account of the day and those involved were also included.

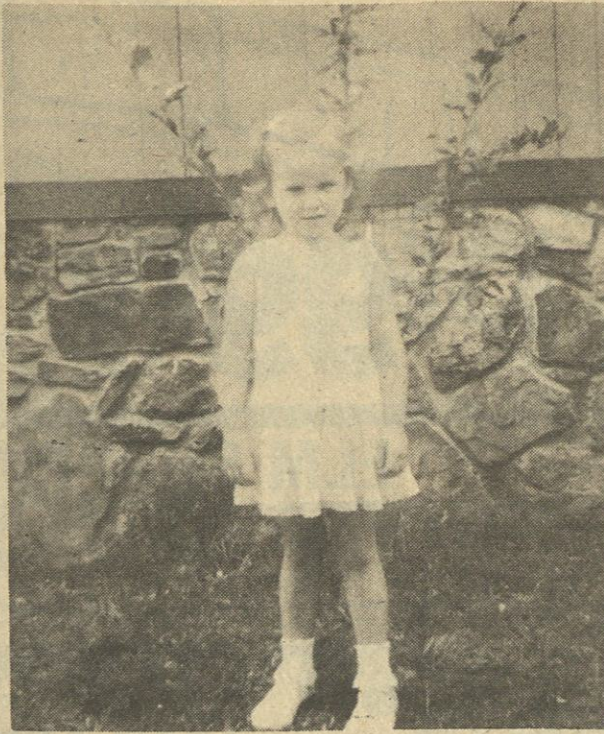

Special recognition was given to the new additions born during the year. These included Curtis Smith, 7-month 20-day-old son of Gary and Susan Smith, of Pocahontas, TN; and Grace Ann Thomas, 8-month 1-day-old daughter of Danielle and David Thomas, of Florence, Al. Those added to the family through marriage were welcomed into the group. These included Ramona "Mona" May Isom, wife of Russel "Rusty" Isom, of Florence, Al; and Tammie Lynn Yopp, wife of Michael Yopp, of Memphis, TN. Time was then taken for making pictures of the group to add to the memories of the future.

The fifth-generation included Caydee Marie and Curtis Bryan Smith; Allison Webster; Autumn Thompson; Grace Ann Thomas; and John Yopp; all under four years of age. The youngest great-great-grandchild present was Curtis Smith, 7 months 20 days old; the youngest great-grandchild present was Amanda Presson, age 3; and the youngest grandchild present was Robert Lambert, age 12.

Dinner was served early to accommodate the families who had so far to travel and food fairly bulged from the long tables set up in the large entrance room. Tables and seating to accommodate everyone in the adjoining room gave time for visiting and the warmth of a family sharing a meal together. The benediction was given by Leon L. Isom, Jr., eldest grandson of Mrs. Isom.

After dinner, large-group visiting gave way to a traditional baseball game played by the energetic members present; hiking through the beautiful trails past the swinging bridge for the curious; swimming for the water-lovers; swinging and see-sawing for the young; and just more time for being together and time to "catch-up" on all the family happenings for others. Mrs. Isom spent the afternoon visiting and talking with family members as they came by to be with her, for all relish their own special time with her and the love she shows each of them.

Those present included the

Burnsville Library News

By: Helen Elliott

The Burnsville Public Library Summer Reading Program was held during the month of June. This year's theme was "Let's Explore in '84". Different topics of interest were presented each Wednesday during the month. An average of 30 were present each Wednesday. The following are some of the activities during the month:

JUNE 6 - LET'S EXPLORE THE OCEAN AND WATER LIFE: Mr. Charles Robbins captured the attention of the boys and girls by telling them how to catch bass fish. He showed mounted bass he and Mrs. Robbins had caught. He also showed a special bait he used to catch bass. Handcraft, songs and story was part of the day's program.

JUNE 13 - LET'S EXPLORE FOLKLORE, TALL TALES AND DAYS OF YESTERYEAR: Everyone enjoyed a selection of folk songs played on guitar and sung by Mr. Allen Hendrix. He also gave a special treat by playing the mandolin. Food for the day was furnished by Barbara Glidewell. The molasses cake and popcorn balls were favorite of all. Household and farm relics were on display for the children to see and try to identify. They were also of interest to all who visited the library.

JUNE 20 - LET'S EXPLORE SPACE: Maps and pictures were used to help the boys and girls to identify the planets in their orbit. Mr. Joe Miller, an aircraft mechanic and pilot, told the children about parts of the airplane which cause them to fly. He used pictures and maps to show the "highways" in the sky. Mr. William McCullin read a story about a mouse who wanted to go to the moon because he thought it was made of cheese. A film, "Moonwalk", was shown at the end of the program. The film was about the first astronauts to walk on the moon.

JUNE 27 - A party was given for all boys and girls who attended the Summer Reading Program. Cookies and chips were donated by B & J Supermarket. The bride-elect is the daughter of Walter Province, the late Beulah Province, luka; and Mrs. Lillie Strachan and the late William Strachan, of Glen, MS.

The prospective groom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Christian, of Fort Worth, Texas.

Mr. Godwin is a 1980 graduate of luka High School and is currently attending the University of North Alabama.

The wedding vows will be solemnized at 7:00 p.m. Friday, August 3rd, in the luka Gospel Assembly.

A reception will follow in the fellowship hall of the church.

All friends and relatives of the couple are cordially invited to attend.

Mississippi Needs Coordination to Utilize Tenn-Tom Waterway

It is now that the political struggle to complete the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway is over, the economic struggle to take advantage of the 282-mile public works project begins, and one source of Mississippi worries that the project may be too poorly planned for it.

The benefits will be realized by those state, county and municipal governments which are equipped by legislation and organization to take this phase of the political struggle," said Dr. John C. Stennis, professor of political science and environmental research.

In previous studies conducted through the University of Tennessee's Bureau of Government Research, Dr. McArthur has seen too often how uncoordinated efforts and ruinous "turf battles" have cost Mississippi economic benefits. He is encouraged that Gov. Bill Allain mentioned the need for a statewide coordinated effort to attract industry on the Waterway in his inaugural address, but he knows that much work has to be done.

"Unless the situation changes," he said, "Mississippi's local governments may engage in disastrous competition among themselves for industrial development and commerce along the Waterway, and we'll lose out to other states in long-term collective benefit. There needs to be state-level leadership and coordination. Nothing is gained if towns and counties fight it out with one another and boards of supervisors throw up their hands in frustration."

There is no such plan at present, said Dr. McArthur, and he believes it will be difficult to produce one.

He points out that numerous agencies over several gubernatorial administrations have worked hard to get continued federal funding to complete the Waterway, and have tried to spread the benefits of construction jobs among various localities and minorities. These agencies include the Governor's Office of Planning and Policy, the Department of Energy and Transportation, the Board of Economic Development, the Mississippi Research and Development Center, and the Tombigbee River Valley Water Management District. The state has gained greatly from these efforts during the construction phase.

But Dr. McArthur feels the state has been slow in developing a comprehensive frame-work to work with private industry.

"Private decisions will have the major impact now," he said, "but it would be naive to assume that these decisions won't be affected in a substantial way by decisions made or avoided by public agencies. Private developers will take more substantial action in states where public policy is clear and coordinated among all governmental levels."

He sees Mississippi choosing among two alternatives.

"State, regional, and local leaders can unite in an aggressive, cooperative program to develop a plan of maximum economic benefit from the Waterway or these same leaders can defend their turf and maintain the traditional uncoordinated way of making public decisions in Mississippi and let the Waterway take care of itself."

There is great irony in this situation, he said.

"If Mississippi were a wealthy state, perhaps we could maintain our hands-off attitude and leave planning entirely to the private sector. Since we're such a poor state, however, we need to manage every resource carefully. It is ironic that wealthy states like New York and California tend to manage their finances for maximum return, while poor states like Mississippi tend to remain uncoordinated and to waste their resources and opportunities. It is not surprising that the rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

Dr. McArthur is hopeful that the economic opportunities afforded by the Waterway will be handled differently.

"Our major deficiency is our quest for economic well-being is not a lack of hard-working people, nor is it basically the result of geographical location or natural resources," he said. "It's a traditional lack of coordinated efficient decision-making. The authority to make timely decisions is dispensed among numerous, often overlapping agencies at all levels. Everybody's responsibility is nobody's responsibility."

"While Mississippians languish in the midst of an interagency struggle among state agencies, regional entities and individual cities and counties, other better-coordinated states get the enterprises we so desperately need."

The state has solid assets, he believes -- a favorable geographical location, plentiful natural resources and a stronger labor force. But those assets don't guarantee prosperity.

Neither does the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, he asserts, unless we can take advantage of it.

LAWN AND GARDEN TIPS

Q. I'm adding tomatoes to my garden this year. I know I have to build tomato towers, but what size should I make them?

A. Good question. The most common mistake in designing tomato towers is to make them too small. The best size is five to six feet in height and 2 1/2 feet across. Garden experts at Union Carbide, a company that makes Sevin carbaryl insecticide, one of the most widely recommended insecticides, point out that tomato plants grown in towers generally suffer less from disease and insect problems than plants allowed to sprawl on the ground.

Don't be tempted to save money by making small, lightweight towers. Invest in large

PICK OF THE PICNICS

It's picnic season. Kicked off in May with those first-of-the-season Memorial Day picnics, the festival of outside dining continues through Labor Day. International Picnic Day has been established on June 18 to celebrate this culinary tradition.

And what would a picnic be without potato salad? This make-ahead layered salad is a great choice with its many layers of flavors and eye-appealing color. The Easy Eight-Layer Salad starts with Betty Crocker scalloped potato mix so the potatoes are already peeled and sliced. Add crisp vegetables, a creamy dressing and you have the pick of the picnic.

EASY EIGHT-LAYER SALAD

1 package (5.25 ounces) Betty Crocker scalloped potatoes
3 cups water
1 cup water
1/2 cup Thousand Island dressing
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
4 cups shredded lettuce
1-1/2 cups shredded carrots

1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1 package (10 ounces) frozen green peas, thawed and drained
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
4 slices bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled

Heat potatoes and 3 cups water to boiling in 2-1/2-quart saucepan. Reduce heat; cover and simmer until tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Rinse under running cold water; drain. Mix 1 cup water and the Sauce Mix in saucepan. Heat to boiling over medium heat, stirring constantly; cool. Stir in dressing and sour cream. Mix sauce mixture and potatoes. Layer lettuce, carrots, celery, onion, peas, potato mixture, cheese and bacon in 3- or 3-1/2-quart bowl. Cover and refrigerate at least 8 hours. Serve with additional Thousand Island dressing if desired. 5 or 6 servings.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): No adjustments are necessary.

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

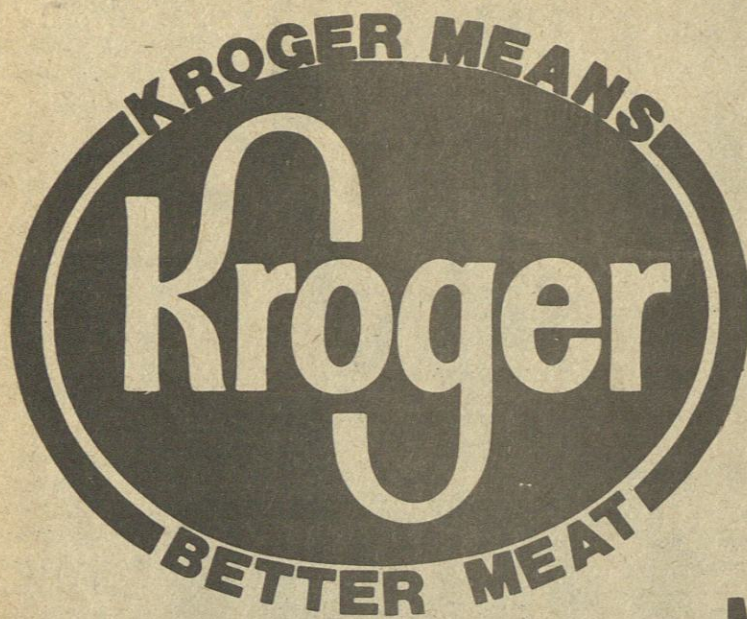

We cannot avoid being involved in Central America. The impact of events in that region on our own country is far too great to be ignored. Our future is entwined to a degree with the future of Central America, and we must take positive steps to help the people of that region improve for their own future before it is too late.

Foreign aid is a bad word for many Americans, and I am all too aware that over the years we have spent entirely too much money over the world for questionable purposes. But we must recognize that some financial investment in the future of Central America is absolutely essential both to give those people hope and also to make our own borders more secure. The people of Central America must be convinced that democracy and freedom are worth holding onto -- that they must not sell out to the empty promises of the Communists.

Our best hope -- indeed our only hope -- for saving Central America from domination by Soviet, Cuban and Nicaraguan forces is to help the people of the Central American nations to become strong-willed enough to turn back the communist influence. Direct military involvement is a poor alternative which we must work to avoid.

We are going to have to work closely with our Central American neighbors over a long period if we are going to help them become strong enough economically and militarily to withstand the threat. What we need is a program looking forward 20 years or more. It can't be hit or miss. We need to develop an economic development plan for Central America which we know has a good chance of success.

We Americans have a hard time reaching a consensus on foreign policy, but this is a crucial situation which demands a bipartisan effort. Bickering back and forth for political position must be avoided. I strongly advocate a plan to protect our interests in Central America, a sound plan which will make a real difference in economic conditions in Central America. If we can play an important role in helping raise the standard of living of those in Central America, we stand a better chance of stopping the threatened spread of communism and the influence of the Soviet-bloc at our very doorstep.
