SIGNATURES FOR FAIR TRADE

Blue Bell employees and city officials are "Making Their Mark for American Jobs" by signing a unique petition for fair trade. The petition, which takes the form of a roll of denim, is making its way to over 80 Blue Bell locations in 15 states. When the denim returns to Blue Bell headquarters in Greensboro, North Carolina complete with thousands of signatures, it will be sewn into a giant pair of jeans for presentation to President Reagan. Shown here making their mark at the Tishomingo Blue Bell Plant are Tishomingo Vice-Mayor, Bertha Tidwell (left) and Mayor, Jim Wade (right). Fair trade means better control over the number of apparel imports presently flooding the United States. Each day

2,740 job opportunities in the apparel/textile industry are lost due to imports. Textile/apparel imports have doubled since 1980. "By 1995 the apparel industry as we know it today will cease to exist", says Blue Bell Chief Executive Officer Edward J. Bauman, "unless fair and equitable competition returns to the international marketplace."

Northeast MS Pork Producers Association

As you know prices for pork have been low for area and other national producers. Canada and European producers are finding our American markets will give them good business. This is not good business for the local hog man however.

None-the-less there are ways of improving our individual production efficiency. By using good management and seeking the best markets for our products we increase our success in the swine world. The Pork Producers Association can be a great source of information and encouragement if we all take part and help out.

The NEMPPA Directors have set the annual meeting for August 19, at the Corinth City Park. This is a good time to get involved, fellowship, and learn some tips on better hog production. Bring the family, and invite your feed suppliers and vets. We'll have a pig judging contest for kids and adults to try their hand at, then we'll sit down to a barbecue supper, courtesy of Purina feeds. ### Concerning Organic Matter

Organic matter in the soil boosts production of plants growing in it.

Organic matter has a great influence on soil and plant growth. One of the reasons soil with organic matter is more productive is that it is loose and crumbly. It also increases the rate that water can enter the soil and how much water the soil can hold.

In addition organic matter is a source of plant nutrients.

Nearly all the nitrogen found naturally in soil anywhere in the world is because of organic matter.

From 15-80 percent of the total phosphorus in soil is in the organic matter, and most sulphur in soils is in organic matter.

Organic matter also forms complexes with other micronutrients, such as zinc and boron.

This is why nutrient deficiencies usually occur where the topsoil containing most of the organic matter erodes or vanishes because of poor soil management.

The micro-organisms that aid soil productivity also depend on organic matter as their major source of energy.

If acts as a buffer to herbicides, minimizing injury to plants in cases of over-dosage. It also harbors the soil organisms that help break down the herbicides in the soil, preventing carryovers from year to year.

Incorrect Canning

A pressure cooker/canner is a sealed cooking vessel under the name "Maltre's" and is manufactured by the Alcan Manufacturing Company of Brazil. To date, it has only been located at Gibson's Department Store.

The canner itself appears to be safe; however, the recommendations for pressure canning low acid vegetables are drastically different from what USDA recommends. The company recommends processing at 15 pounds of pressure for very short periods of time. The company also recommends processing fruits and tomatoes at 15 pounds of pressure.

Unfortunately, the instruction booklet refers to USDA in the general directions for canning which may lead consumers to believe that the processing times are what USDA recommends.

Dr. Baldauf at USDA has been contacted and he is to contact the company according to Mrs. Melissa Mixon, Food and Nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. Mrs. Mixon also states she realizes that the new Presto canner instruction books also have 15 pound recommendations. These processing times are longer than the Maltre's recommendations but we still cannot recommend them. USDA does not recommend processing any food at 15 pounds pressure until further research can be completed to verify the processing times.

If you need additional information concerning the correct recommendations for canning, freezing, making jellies, pickles, preserves, and relishes, call your Tishomingo County Extension Home Economist, Nellie R. Horton at 423-3616.

benefits are? Then read on.

As runoff water from fields falls into a deep ditch, a small washout or gully can occur. The washout becomes larger and larger as more water continues to be lost until a pipe overfall is installed to safely drop the water from the field level to the ditch bottom. The size and type of pipe needed is determined by site conditions. Now is the time to check your fields for eroding areas and your ditches for sediment deposition with "lost soil" from your fields.

For technical assistance on design and installation of pipe drop structures or other conservation measures contact the Soil Conservation Service office in Iuka.

Visting Sick Friends

Many healthy people find visiting hospitals and talking to the sick or dying uncomfortable, painful, and frightening. When confronted with death or its possibility, it's natural to feel somewhat helpless and inadequate.

If you have this difficulty you need to identify your feelings as the first step in overcoming this uneasiness. When in contact with seriously ill or dying people we are confronted with the fear of becoming ill ourselves and with the inexorable fact of our own death.

When we acknowledge our fear we gain control over it so that it no longer blocks our ability to relate honestly and openly with the seriously ill and dying. Such an effort will allow us to understand, accept, and even help those who are suffering through an illness or who are coping with their approaching death.

Painful as this process may be to us, it allows genuine dialogue and expression of concern for the dying or ill

CARING FOR YOUR PET

INTESTINAL WORMS

Your dog may have worms living inside his body, robbing him of the precious nutrients he needs to grow properly and stay healthy. Since you cannot see most worms, your veterinarian has to examine a small amount of your dog's stool under a microscope in order to determine their presence.

Take a sample with you the first time you visit your veterinarian and from then on at least once a year. It is best to get the worming medicine from a veterinarian since there is no one medicine that works against all the different types of worms. You want to avoid giving unnecessary medicine to your dog, as it may harm him. The veterinarian can also make sure that the dosage is right for your animal.

Don't depend on symptoms for diagnosing dog worms. Some dogs eat a lot and others eat very little. A plump, seemingly healthy looking puppy may have a fat bellyful of worms.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir:

A history "Leatherwood Family" is being written and in an endeavor to learn a little more about those that settled in Tishomingo County, I would like to ask your readers if they would help me.

I know that there was a Leatherwood Hotel there which is said to have burned in 1899. It was run by Walter Leatherwood and his wife Ida Hubbard Leatherwood.

He was born about 1853 but I do not know where or the names of his parents. Ida was born in 1861, the daughter of John Daniel Hubbard and his wife Martha Catherine Millsap.

Walter and Ida had two known children, Walter born about 1883 and Paul born about 1886. I would like to know more about this family and their descendants.

We have gathered a great deal of information on the Leatherwoods of the south and will be happy to share with anyone.

Sincerely,

generation has lived longer than the generation preceding it. In 1900-1902, the mean age for death was 49.2 years. In 1959-1961, a person could expect to live to 69.9 years. The most recent statistics (1981) show that the average life span is 74.2 years. A better educated, public on health matters, improved level of nutrition, and innovations in the field of medicine have caused this phenomenon.

In recent years doctors and other health care professionals have stressed the importance of proper eating habits, regular checkups, daily exercise, and abstinence from tobacco.

"Nutrition has a major impact on physical fitness," commented Martha T. Segars, the hospital's registered dietitian. "All movements of your body require food as a source of fuel. Like a car, your body will not function properly without a well-balanced mixture of fuel. A well balanced diet includes six elements which function together: protein, vitamins, fats, minerals, carbohydrates, and water."

Dr. Ben Kitchens agrees with Mrs. Segars on the importance of a proper diet, but he also emphasized the benefits of daily exercise. "It has been known for a long time that exercise and diet were important, and this was even recommended by Hippocrates many years ago," he said. "Adequate anaerobic exercise can help reduce the risk factors of diseases of the arteries, obesity, high blood pressure, abnormal glucose tolerance, high cholesterol, and can even reduce some of the risk factors of smoking. The best types of exercise, jogging, cycling, swimming, and walking that cause heart to beat at a rapid rate for a sustained period of time. The diet does not have to be too strict nor the exercise strenuous; it just has to be regular and consistent."

The public's attention toward smoking has changed drastically over the past decades. Dr. Bobby King explains why. "Most of the systems of the body are adversely affected by smoking, but the lungs, heart, and vascular system bear the brunt of the damage. Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, or emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and carcinoma of the lung frequently associated with smoking. It also increases one's risk of artery disease and generalized hardening of the arteries of the body which result in poor circulation, heart attack, and stroke."

Even if a person follows preceding tips for living longer life, he should undergo regular checkups. "Regular medical checkups are important tools in the detection of many physical disorders," stated. "In adults, diagnosis of potential and vascular disorders, kidney disease, metabolic abnormalities such as diabetes, some malignancies, other health problems can be discovered by routine checkups before any symptoms appear. In infants, young children, problems of growth and development more effectively treated when discovered early."

cloth overlaid by a white lace cloth. The white lace was accented by blue candles and a center piece of blue and yellow roses with greenery and baby's breath in a wicker basket.

The bride's three-tiered wedding cake was white with blue roses topped with a blue silk heart with a ceramic bride and groom praying in front of the heart. Bells were placed between the tiers with blue roses on the inside of each bell.

The groom's chocolate layer cake was topped with a comical bride and groom and flanked with a white border with blue roses. Mints, nuts, cheese straws, and yellow punch were also served.

Serving at the reception were Judy Steele, Bonnie Hyde, and Patricia Steele. Directing the wedding was Margaret Whatley.

After a short wedding trip, the couple now make their home in Iuka.

Prevention of Alcohol Abuse Begins At Home

Alcohol is the most commonly abused drug in the United States and during National Drug and Alcohol Awareness Week, March 3-9, parents are urged to talk with their children about the potential dangers of the substances.

About 92 percent of high school seniors and more than 50 percent of seventh-grade students have tried alcohol. Participants in the 4-H health and safety projects learn how various drugs, including alcohol, affect the body and why people use them.

Peer pressure is the number one reason for drug and alcohol use but pre-teens and teen-agers

Lawn Of The Month

All types of beautiful flowers, plants and shrubbery adorn the neatly kept lawn of Robert and Gladys Lovelace, located at 403 West Eastport Street in Iuka. This lovely scene caught the eye of the Iuka Twentieth Century Club, who named the Lovelace's lawn as their August choice for "Lawn of the Month". The couple moved to Iuka in March of 1985 from Westmont, Ill., after their retirement and made a remarkable effort in transforming their residence into a suitable candidate for lawn of the month.

The Alamo, which you may remember, was so called because it stood in a grove of cotton-wood trees, called Alamo in Spanish.

The first American student to work his way through college was Zechariah Bridgen, 14, who graduated from Harvard in 1657. He earned money by "ringing the bell and waytinge."

Point Of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: To whom do I report the apparent illegal dumping of waste or other substances into a river?

A: The Department of Natural Resources is primarily responsible for controlling pollution in Mississippi rivers and other water bodies. Report any such incident to the Department of Natural Resources in Jackson at 981-5000. Ask them to respond to you in writing as to what they find from their investigation.

Q: Attached to my water bill last month was a statement notifying me that the water provided me the previous month did not conform to the standards of the Safe Drinking Water Act. What does this mean?

A: The Safe Drinking Water Act was passed by Congress to ensure that public water supplies will be free from substances that could harm human health. The law directs the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to set standards (called "maximum contaminant levels") for safe drinking water, to recommend techniques for treating water, to monitor water systems to make sure they comply with the standards and to enforce the standards. States such as Mississippi, which have adopted standards that are approved by the EPA, have been given the responsibility for monitoring public water systems and for enforcing the standards. In Mississippi this was done by the State Board of Health.

In the situation you described, the company or association that supplies your water did not meet at least one of the standards during the month indicated in the notice. It was then required by the Safe Drinking Water Act to notify you on your next water bill. If you have any questions as to why your water supplier was not in compliance, call your local health department.

Farmers Make Good Use Of ACR Land

Howard R. Bridges, chairperson of the Tishomingo County ASC Committee says Tishomingo County farmers are making good use of their cropland idled by the 1985 acreage reduction and land diversion programs. More than 4,600 base acres, or 7 percent of the county's wheat feed grain, cotton and rice cropland acres were removed from production to an acreage conservation reserve

To protect these acres from wind and water erosion, some farmers planted Bicolor Lespedeza and bermuda.

Bridges said the conservation protection applied on these acres is not only preserving the soil, it is providing food and cover for wildlife. "The land is referred to as acreage conservation reserve to emphasize the importance of saving soil and water."

The ASDS official said keeping the land free from weeds, insects and rodents is very important, and as much of a program requirement as planting a cover crop or establishing a conservation practice on the land. If the normal control measures for such conditions are found inadequate, additional control measures will be required.

Depending on actual plantings, the national ACR could total over 31 million acres.

The first automatic pop-up electric toaster was marketed in June, 1926. It received one slice of toast at a time.

Iuka All-Stars

Iuka Wins District Tournament

The Iuka 11 and 12 year old All-Stars traveled to the District Tournament at Fulton, July 22-30, where they competed in the double elimination tournament.

In the first game of the tourney, Iuka played against the Amory team and lost with a score of 3-2. However, the second game of the series left the Iuka team victorious over the Fulton team with a 20-1 score. A double was hit by Shaune Holliday. Richy Harrelson, Jason Rhear, and Bernard Powell all contributed home runs to the game. Charles Milligan pitched a two hitter.

During the third game against Smithville, doubles were hit by Ronald Jones, Shaune Holliday, Jason Nunley, Jason Rhear, Charles Milligan, and Courice Dillworth, along with a home run being brought in by Brian Bullard. The game ended with Richy Harrelson having a total of ten strike outs polishing off Iuka's 17-1 victory.

Fourth game scores of 5-3 in favor of Iuka left the Aberdeen team hot under the collar as they pressed for the title that would lead one team to the state competition. Iuka's Jason Rhear and Charles Milligan brought in doubles with teammates Richy Harrelson and Brian Bullard having home runs in this game. Jason Nunley pitched this fourth game striking out eight batters.

The final game of the District tourney was played between the Iuka and Aberdeen teams once again, each vying for the State tournament. A double, as well as a triple hit by Richy Harrelson, sent the score of the game upward and was further aided when home runs by Brian Bullard and Courice Dillworth were added to the final score. This brought the tournament to a close with an 8-1 victory over the defensive Aberdeen team. The game was pitched by Richy Harrelson who pitched a one hitter, striking out 15 batters. Winning the critical game qualified the Iuka All-Star team to advance to the all important State Tournament held in Pascagoula, MS, on Saturday, August 3.

The first game played in the scorching sun of the South Mississippi field was against the Washington County team. Despite the high temperatures, the Iuka team came out on top by a small margin of 1-0. Richy Harrelson pitched a shut-out and one run was made by Brian Bullard.

The State tourney continued with the second game leaving the Iuka All-Stars disappointed with a 15-1 loss to the team from Pascagoula. The third game ended Iuka's visit to Pascagoula after their 9-8 loss to the North Jackson team. Richy Harrelson set a new state record during the tourney for the most strike outs. Richy, who had 16 strike outs, broke the state record that had been untouched for several years.

There are approximately 1,000 teams in Mississippi included in the 12 year old Dixie Youth League and to earn a trip to State competition is certainly a great honor. Team coaches, Gary Bullard, Paul Nunley, and Bobby Flint were very proud of these young men for the tremendous effort they put forth.

CIVIL WAR RAID RECALLED

During the Civil War one Mississippi farm family whose property was overrun by the Battle of Chickasaw Bayou a few miles north of Vicksburg decided to move lock, stock and barrel to the Cayuga community in southwest Hinds County in an effort to avoid being caught in the middle of that terrible conflict.

The trauma of dealing with Union raiders was described by the wife of a Confederate soldier in "Reminiscences Of the Civil War", and her written account is on file in the Warren County Courthouse.

The writer is Mrs. Jennie Cathell Henry, the great grandmother of Preston Gough, now manager of insurance services for the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, who recently gave this writer access to some fine old family records with considerable historical merit.

As warclouds formed over Vicksburg Jennie's husband brought his wife and two children to stay with his father at Chickasaw Bayou where the nearly 70 year old man had a home on a hill overlooking the bayou. Soon this family realized that their homestead was caught in middle ground between Union General Sherman's Army and the city of Vicksburg.

Jennie later wrote: "We hurriedly gathered together what clothing and other things we could take in a wagon, and amidst the boom, boom of Sherman's cannon, we left the old town.

The slaves, with the horses and cattle, and the wagons of provisions, followed a few days later.

"After going over a rough country road for about 25 miles, we reached our destination—the home of some relatives in Hinds County, not far from Cayuga.

At last we thought we were safe. We filled the storerooms and smokehouse with provisions, and prepared to let the slaves make a crop, and raise vegetables.

"The day after the Battle of Champion's Hill, my father-in-law and the old man in whose home we were staying started out to headquarters to ask for protection, as we knew the soldiers would soon reach there. While they were gone, the soldiers came.

They began killing and carrying off our chickens, then ransacked our storerooms and the smokehouse."

Jennie next recalled seeing two officers with the men and they asked them to stay in the yard until the soldiers left. The two officers sat on the porch until the last of the soldiers had disappeared "carrying our hams on their bayonets."

The Union troops also took the family's tobacco supply, which caused Jennie's aunt to rush out and ask a soldier to give her back some of the tobacco. He returned three pieces which she carefully hid upstairs along with a few sides of bacon.

Meanwhile, a Union trooper rode past on Jennie's fine black horse which her father-in-law had ridden as he headed toward headquarters that morning. Jennie called for him to stop and told him that the horse was hers and asked him to dismount. "He smiled, and told me very politely that he had borrowed the horse from a gentleman at headquarters, and would have to return it. That was the last I ever saw of my horse," Jennie recorded.

"At last", Jennie reported, "the Army passed on, and we were left in peace with an almost empty larder. We suffered many hardships within the next few months. Our three-years supply of meat was nearly gone; we had no flour nor coffee. We drank a beverage made from ground okra seed as a substitute...besides our family, there were 23 slaves to feed. But for the garden we made, we would have suffered for food."

After the surrender of Vicksburg Confederate soldiers began straggling home. Everyday Jennie expected to see her husband but he never came. She finally could bear the suspense no longer, and told her father-in-law that she was going to Vicksburg to try and find out if her husband had been killed or taken prisoner.

Vainly he tried to dissuade her from such a rash act, but she was determined. The father finally consented, and sent one of the boys, age 11, to accompany her.

Jennie wrote: "I knew it was a long and dangerous journey, but I felt that I must go. The bridge over the Big Black River had been burned, so I had to go to a relative and ask him to make a raft for me to cross on. He succeeded in making a crude raft out of logs; and early next morning, little Arthur and I were ferried across. We promised the old man to be back a week later—no matter what happened—unless we were killed. He said he would be there to ferry us back across, but we felt sure we would never return alive."

Jennie's heart sank, she subsequently wrote, as they started along the swamp road. They feared running into someone who would harm them. But they set out.

"After hurrying along for some distance we found the road blocked...(trees were thrown across the road in every direction) we found that we could climb over and under the trees...It was tiresome but we got through at last and entered upon more open ground, occasionally passing fields and houses. About noon we stopped at a cottage to get a drink of water. There was only an old lady there who took a great interest in us and made us promise to stop there again on our return...

"...about six o'clock we reached the foot of Grove street...we stopped to get a drink of water. There, foot-sore and weary, we started on toward my father's home which was a mile north of the Courthouse.

"Amid exclamations of joy and surprise we reached our destination about dark. My father had heard nothing of my husband, but had learned that some friends who were in his company had been captured, and were then in jail. Early the next morning I arose, though I ached from my head to toes. I went to headquarters for a pass and then to the jail. A friend of my husband was there and he told me that my husband and a number of others were captured just after the Battle of Champion's Hill. They were sent to an unknown northern prison. My spirits arose..."

"...he had been taken prisoner in May and it was now July. I tried in vain to find to what prison he had been sent.

"At last my week was up, and I had to start back on that lonely journey. We started out early that July morning and reached the old lady's cottage before noon. She was glad to see us, gave us refreshments, and insisted upon my resting for a few minutes. I lay down on a couch and was soon fast asleep. The kindhearted old lady would not awaken me..."

Jennie goes on to relate that when she awoke it was in horror realizing it was two o'clock and she would never reach the ferry before dark. She wondered what they would do since the relative who had ferried them across the Big Black River lived a mile or two from the crossing and there were no homes nearer. She determined to try to reach the river anyway.

"We ran awhile," she related, and walked awhile. She next told of meeting some boys who told them that they had seen three men hanging from a tree in the swamp not far from the road. "We hurried on," she continued, "hoping we would not see the gruesome thing we had been told about."

"As the shades of evening began to gather, we entered the dreaded woods. Faster and still faster we ran, looking neither to the right nor the left. We dared not look up at a single tree. Darker and darker it became; and still we hurried on. At last the moon came out and we saw the outlines of some of the burned pliers of the Big Black Bridge. They looked black and threatening..."

The pair of tired humans, one a disconsolate captured Confederate's wife and the other a mere lad, wondered what to do next. Continued Jennie, "I told Arthur to whistle. He gave one long, shrill whistle which resounded through the woods. We listened on breathless second—and then, joy of joys! An answering whistle came back from far up on the distant bank. Soon two figures were seen. In a short time we were greeted with delight by my uncle who had given us up and had started for home when he heard Arthur's whistle.

"He had been waiting for us a long time. If we had been five minutes later, we would have been forced to sit on the river bank all night. We stayed at Uncle's home until the next morning.

"When we got home, they all cried over us for joy because they did not expect ever to see us again...That was July, and I did not hear from my husband until November. He had been at death's door for months at Fort Douglas and had been unable to write to me.

"When he came home, he was so pale and thin I did not recognize him at first. After weeks of good nursing, his health came back—and we returned to our old home and started life anew."

John C. Stennis

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

The line item veto which would give the President authority to veto specific portions of legislation rather than the entire bill is an idea which may look good at first glance, but the ramifications it would bring to our system of government based on separation of powers are alarming indeed.

In the United States Constitution our forefathers provided Congress with sole authority to appropriate funds through legislative action, and gave the President the authority to veto any measure which he felt was unwise for the country. Congress could, with a two-thirds majority, vote to override the President's veto of a specific measure if it had the necessary support.

The President's authority to veto a measure which he felt was not in the best national interest is vastly different than giving him authority to veto specific items in a legislative bill which he does not support.

The so-called line item veto would shift a large amount of the power and responsibility for appropriating funds away from the Congress and to the President. It would greatly disturb the balance of power which has served our nation so well for over 200 years.

Many supporters of the line item veto argue that it would allow the President to more effectively deal with the deficit. In my opinion, this is a diversionary tactic which in reality detracts from meaningful efforts to bring the federal budget under control.

The truth of the matter is that the President already has a strong influence in budgetary and appropriations matters. He submits a proposed budget to Congress for each fiscal year which provides the framework within which Congress works to appropriate funds. There is constant communication back and forth between the Executive and Legislative branches during the appropriations process. The real challenge is for the Administration to submit a budget which reduces deficit more. In recent years the Congress has regularly appropriated less money than the President has requested.

Congress should retain the full responsibility given it in the U.S. Constitution to appropriate funds. Members of Congress are the federally elected officials closest and most accessible to the people, and there is a greater understanding of the needs and problems of the people at that level.

Let us put this diversionary issue aside, and get on with the task dealing with the deficit problem in a constitutionally right manner.

Two Attend Convention

Channe Ables, president of the Iuka Pilot Club, and Rilla Wiley, left have just returned from the Pilot International Convention in Bait Harbor, Florida. The theme for the 64th Annual Convention was "Enthusiasm-The Big Difference" and the convention was filled with enthusiasm for Pilot Clubs and their many projects throughout the world. Highlights included the presentation to the convention of the Handicapped Professional Woman of the Year, Kaye Ann Herth, of Houston, Texas; the presentation to Pilot International of a Safety Grant of $22,500 from Allstate Insurance Company; the announcement of winners of Pilot sponsored scholarships to needy students; a Pilot International Foundation sponsored style show by SAKS Fifth Avenue; details on the Pilot Co-Sponsored Telethon for the United Cerebral Palsy Association to be held in January, 1986, and many more highlights such as the installation of the officers for Pilot International for 1985-86. Details will be given to the club at its regular August meeting to be held August 19. Mrs. Ables served as the official club delegate to the convention and voted for the club in issued concerning the changing of Pilot By-Laws. Rilla Wiley served on the public relations committee for the national convention as a representative of the LA-MS District in Public Relations. The Iuka club will entertain their official visitor from the LA-MS District at their meeting in September. The visitor this year will be Hazel Garlington, First Lt. Governor, from Monroe, LA.

However, some things cannot be taught; they must be instinctive to that individual. "The best EMT is a person who can get along with people and listen to their problems," says Dale White, the hospital's ambulance service supervisor. "An EMT has to be willing to worry about the other person instead of 'self. He or she sees the worst injuries and sicknesses before they get to the hospital. A lot of people think it's a glory trip. It's not. It's work. A good many EMTs who get their licenses don't keep them because the job's not what they thought."

White heads an ambulance crew which has gained wide respect throughout the state. In recent years, it has ranked at or near the top for continuing education and for lives saved for total ambulance runs made. These ratings were based on surveys conducted by the Emergency Medical Service division of the Mississippi State Department of Health. White attributes the ambulance service's high rating to the EMTs who take obvious pride in their work.

Edna Barnes is quick to point out how she and the other EMTs raised funds through road blocks, cake sales, raffles, and yard sales to purchase badly needed equipment. This equipment includes a special stethoscope that blots out road noises, a scoop stretcher which is used to lift someone with a spinal injury, and reference books. Mrs. Barnes and Kermit Long have both served in state offices for the Mississippi EMT Association. Other EMTs at the hospital include Tony Letchworth, Billie Lewis, Howard Woodruff, Jeff Rogers, Brenda Edmondson, Paula Cummings, Chris Potts, Kim Wells, Karen Wells, and Mike Montgomery.

Six persons, with two more available, stand ready to answer the 100 to 120 emergency calls received. The hospital has four ambulances, one of which is stationed in Belmont to shorten response time. If a situation should ever arise where more ambulances were needed, an agreement exists with Alcorn and Prentiss Counties for assistance.

Since the Governor's Highway Safety Program has been in effect, ambulances are limited to a speed of 85 miles per hour. "People always seem to think an ambulance is traveling a whole lot faster than it really is when they hear its siren and see its lights flashing," stated Dale White. He said that it takes an ambulance traveling from TCH to Baptist Hospital in downtown Memphis an hour and thirty-five minutes to get there in light traffic and two hours and 15 minutes in heavy traffic.

When measured in heartbeats, a minute can be an extremely long time. Drivers should follow the proper procedure when they encounter an ambulance on an emergency run. "Anytime an ambulance with red flashing lights pulls up behind you, you're supposed to pull to the right," said White. "If you can't pull to the right, don't slow down and please don't stop. Maintain your speed."

Drivers aren't the only ones who slow an ambulance down. Sometimes the person who calls for help hampers a swift response by not giving clear and complete information. "Never ever call and say, 'I need an ambulance out here. You know where I live,'" instructed White. "We don't always do." The proper way to make an ambulance call is to tell what the problem is, how many persons are involved, give directions from the hospital, and leave your name and number.

Hopefully no one reading this will ever have to call an ambulance. One way to lessen the odds is by taking the following precautions specified by Dale White, who also serves as county coroner.

To the adults:

If working in yard or garden during July, August, and September, don't get too hot. You could have a heat stroke, possibly a heart attack.

Don't climb anything without a ladder. If you use a ladder, make sure it is safely secured.

If you have chest pains, go see a doctor before we have to take you to one.

To the teenagers:

Don't drive drunk or high.

Even though you're the best driver in Iuka, watch out for the other guy.

Never swim alone or in brushy areas where you might get entangled.

"The Other People In The Ambulance"

The wall of a siren and the red flashing light of an ambulance send uneasy tingles up the spines of everyone.

They signal an emergency. Someone has been in a car wreck. Someone has had a heart attack. Or someone has been badly injured. But who? Was it the spouse you kissed goodbye this morning? Was it the parent in ill health you've been worried about? Was it the child you warned about driving too fast?

Whatever the danger was, it has happened. The ambulance has been called, and the hospital EMTs are on their way to render aid.

It takes a special individual to be an EMT. An EMT must be calm, cool, and collective, yet caring. He must know what to do and when to do it when minutes can make the difference between life and death. So it is not surprising to learn that an EMT must undergo stringent education and training to be licensed.

All the EMTs at the Tishomingo County Hospital have taken college emergency medical courses totaling 100 credit hours. They have passed written and practical tests as well as a national exam. They have received emergency and defensive driving instruction from the Mississippi Highway Patrol. And they are required to constantly learn more about saving lives through state conferences and a telecommunications network "squawk box" at the hospital which allows them to talk back and forth with

BIG CATCH!

Charles and Calloway Lester (left) of Iuka with the assistance of Tony Doles (right) caught this 40 lb. Buffalo fish from the bank at Eastport. They brought the fish in with a rod and reel threaded with an eight pound test line. The Lesters used chicken livers for bait that attracted this "monster" fish which took approximately 45 minutes to get to the bank.

Chicken Snake Killed

On the way home from a recent July 26th fishing trip, David and James Brumley boasted of killing a five foot long chicken snake around 12:35 p.m. and are pictured Immediately following the deed. Information turned in at The News Office failed to say whether the fellows had any success with their fishing, however, it's apparent from the picture that it was an exciting day for the boys.

Apple Pie Perfect:

Golden Apple Mosaic Pie

A creamy, custard-like filling studded with juicy, flavorful bits of fresh Golden Delicious apples, puts this apple pie into the category of something special.

Apple pie is, without a doubt, one of America's most popular desserts and has been since the earliest days of this country's culinary history. This outstanding version, Golden Apple Mosaic Pie, is sure to become an all-time dessert classic.

The pretty, custard-like filling of this exquisite pie combines juicy-fresh bits of chopped Golden Delicious apples and a rich sour cream custard capped with a buttery Streusel Topping. The delicately sweet flavor of the Golden Delicious apples comes clearly through the creamy base, resulting in a pie that is both delicious and distinctive.

Whether served warm or chilled, Golden Apple Mosaic Pie makes an irresistible company dessert and a real treat for the family. It goes together quickly, using ingredients readily at hand and, when time is limited, can be prepared in advance.

Fresh, all-purpose Golden Delicious apples are the preferred variety for this streusel topped pie because they retain their shape better than other apples during cooking and resist darkening when cut. And, because Golden's are characterized by a natural sweetness, the additional sugar needed to sweeten the creamy filling of this pastry can be kept to a minimum.

Crisp, flavorful Golden Delicious apples from Washington State are in excellent supply now and will be throughout the spring and summer months—thanks to modern controlled atmosphere storage methods.

GOLDEN APPLE MOSAIC PIE

1 (9-inch) pastry shell
1 egg, separated
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon salt

1 cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups pared, cored and chopped Golden Delicious apples
Streusel Topping

Brush pastry shell with beaten egg white. Bake at 375°F. 7 minutes. Combine sugar, flour and salt. Stir in sour cream, remainder of egg white, yolk and vanilla; beat until smooth. Stir in apples; pour into partially baked pastry shell. Bake at 375°F. 45 minutes. Spread Streusel Topping over apples. Bake 15 minutes longer or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Serve warm or chilled. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Streusel Topping: Combine 1/3 cup each sugar and flour and 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon; cut in 1/4 cup butter or margarine until crumbly. Makes 1 cup.

Spats Participants at MSU

Thirty-nine high school seniors from Mississippi, Alabama, Illinois, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas participated this summer in the Special Program for Academically Talented Students (SPATS) at Mississippi State University. The program gives intellectually curious students stimulation in the pursuit of knowledge and provides them

Participants must have scored at least 23 on the American College Test (ACT) 980-990 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or rank in the top 10 percent of their academic class. Among the participants was Terry Evans of Dennis, son of Mrs. Glenda Evans and a student at Belmont High School.

Permits For All Qualified Water Users In County

The Bureau of Land and Water Resources is in the process of issuing permits to all qualified water users in Benton, Tippah, Alcorn, Tishomingo, Itawamba, Prentiss, and Marshall counties. A law passed by the Legislature in 1985 requires a permit for all surface and well water users.

Exceptions to the law include water wells for domestic use only or wells with surface casings less than six inches in diameter. Also, no permits shall be required for the use of surface water in impoundments which are not located on continuous, free-flowing watercourses.

Charles Branch, director of the Bureau of Land and Water Resources said, "The Bureau has mailed notices to all known water users requesting that they file the necessary Notice of Claims in order to obtain a permit under the grandfather clause of the law."

Persons in the above-named counties who do not receive a notice from the Bureau of Land and Water Resources in the next thirty days should contact the Bureau at P.O. Box 10631, Jackson, Mississippi 39209, or telephone (601) 961-5200.

Water Safety Seminar

The Golden Triangle EMT Association of Starkville, MS held a Water Safety Seminar on July 26, 1985. During the seminar, the participants were given lectures and demonstrations on diving, repelling, drowning rescue, aquatic injuries, skilling accidents and administering CPR in the water.

Edna Barnes and Billie Lewis of Iuka attended this seminar.

The Water Safety Seminar is the first of its kind to be held in North Mississippi. This is another program in the ongoing educational process of the Emergency Medical Technicians.

Home Damaged By Fire

Volunteer firefighters and neighbors along with the usual number of spectators arrived at the scene outside the Curtis Blair home on Westwood Circle in Iuka when a fire broke out around 10:15 p.m. Sunday. Iuka

Fireman, Travis South and volunteers successfully contained the fire damage to a closet area in one of the bedrooms of the house; however, extensive smoke damage was apparent throughout the dwelling. Fire chief Danny McVay said the family was home at the time of the blaze and were able to escape injuries from the fire. It was said the family have had to relocate until clean-up measures can be taken. The actual cause of the fire was undetermined.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Young children are very inquisitive, but the parents should not grow tired in answering them for it is their way of learning, just as in the classroom the teacher uses the question and answer method for the same purpose. We, too, can learn from the following questions and answers given in the Bible.

The Pharisees and Herodians wanted to catch the Lord in His words and so they asked, "Master, is it lawful to give tribute (taxes) to Caesar or not? He showed them a penny and asked them, "Whose is this image and superscription?" When they answered "Caesar's", He told them to "render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's." (Mark 12:14-17)

The Scribes and Pharisees watched Jesus to see if He would heal the man with a withered hand on the Sabbath. Knowing the questions in their minds, the Lord said unto them, "I will ask you one thing: is it lawful on the Sabbath days to do good, or to do evil, to save life, or to destroy it?" and He healed the man. (Luke 6:7-9)

One of the Sadducees, who was a lawyer, asked the Lord a question: "Master, which is the great commandment in the law? He said unto him: 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.' (Mt. 22:35-40)

After Jesus had shown His humility by washing His disciples' feet, He asked this question, "Know ye what I have done unto you?" This was to remind them to follow His example of being a humble servant.

Seeing a blind man, His disciples asked Him saying, "Master, who did this sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind? He answered, "Neither hath this man sinned nor his parents but that the works of God should be made manifest in him; and he spat on the ground, made clay of the spittle, and anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay. As he washed in the pool of Siloam, the blind man went his way seeing. (Jn. 9:2-3)

Jesus asked His disciples, saying, "whom do men say that I the Son of man am?" and they said, "Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias, and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets." He saith unto the, buy whom say ye that I am?" and Simon Peter answered and said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." "Why do ye not believe me?" (Jn.8:46) The Lord asked His enemies; and He continues to ask this question of people today for if we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, we shall be saved and our household, too (if they believe on the Lord-Acts 16:31) Then eternal life in heaven is ours!

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor, Mayor, and Board: This letter is a repeat, but some questions need to be answered. The loose dog situation, is becoming unbearable! Dogs are stealing newspapers from lawns, fouling up yards, destroying flower beds, and making general nuisance of themselves. Now I personally like dogs, but not to the extent of having to clean off their droppings, and having my daily news paper torn to pieces, and scattered to the four winds!

I'd like to know, for certain, if Iuka has leash-law, and if so, why it is not enforced—and, does a citizen have the right to shoot, or otherwise, destroy these animals?

If we don't have an ordinance, covering these pests—Let's get one!

THANK YOU,
REX L. TUCKIER

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

EYE COORDINATION IN CHILDREN

Common eyesight problems when they are found, must be corrected with glasses or contact lenses. But, there are more causes for such problems than nearsightedness, farsightedness, or astigmatism.

A typical fault is that a child has trouble in smoothly moving both eyes together in all directions. To compensate, a child will move his head instead of his eyes. While the symptom is easily observed, for instance when reading, it is difficult to tell offhand if the problem is in the focusing mechanism or the convergence of the eyes. In either case, such a child will frequently become fatigued. In the case of reading, the child will probably give up atter only a few minutes, and eventually develop an aversion to it.

Routinely, an optometrist's examination will test to find out how the child's eyes normally work together. This will include tests for eye movement, eye focusing, eye convergence, and the ability to change direction of gaze.

H.O.T. Field Day Successful
The H.O.T. field day, sponsored by the Soil Conservation Office, made tours available for many different interests. Among the six stops on the tour were those to view the No-till corn, Pasture management, Terrace Systems, Sod waterways, No-till soybeans and Forestry and wildlife. The group shown here were listening to Greg Yarrow of the M.C.E.S. as he gives in-site into the management of forest lands. The majority of the 150 visitors were from Tishomingo County, however, some were from other areas. M.C. Sparks, speaker at the event and president of the Mississippi Association of Conservation District, Inc., commented that he believes "that the H.O.T. field days are forerunners of greater things to come" and further commended the organizers of the event for the success of the event.

H. O. T. Stop
An estimated 150 land owners, farmers and interested persons attended the H.O.T. (Hold Our Topsoil) field day activities held at the Travis Cain Farm, near Dennis August 7. Visitors to the site were carried on tours of the farm, viewing innovative as well as existing land management practices designed to "hold our top-

Horses And Burros Looking For Homes

Animal lovers in Mississippi will again have the opportunity to adopt a western wild horse or burro, as the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) opens a temporary adoption center in Canton, Mississippi, September 13-15. BLM, which will ship the animals into Mississippi after removing them from overgrazed public rangelands in Wyoming and Arizona, is looking for people with adequate facilities and a willingness to give the animals a good home. The adoption fee is $125 for each horse and $75 for each burro. Qualified applicants may adopt up to four animals.

"This event should make it both convenient and economical for Mississippi residents to adopt a wild horse or burro", said BLM Jackson District Manager Don Libbey. At two previous Canton adoptions in 1983, over 300 animals were selected for adoption by Mississippians. The Mid-Mississippi Livestock Company show yards in Canton are located about 15 miles north of Jackson city limits off of I-55.

Mr. Libbey explained that wild horses and burros-the descendants of stock brought west as long ago as the days of the pioneers-have been under Federal protection since 1971, but that the maintenance of healthy herds requires that excess animals be removed from overgrazed areas and placed in new homes.

Although the adoption event is still several weeks away, Libbey explained that BLM is already accepting adoption applications. Applicants who are approved in advance will be assured a better selection from among the 170 horses and 70 burros scheduled to be brought into Canton. Application forms, along with general brochures on the Adopt-A-Horse or Burro Program, are available from the BLM, Jackson District Office, 300 Woodrow Wilson Blvd, Jackson Mall Complex, Suite 326, Jackson, MS 39213; telephone (601) 960-4405.

With care and patience, wild horses and burros can be tamed and used for riding, farmwork, showing and breeding. All are Coggins tested and vaccinated for major equine disorders before shipping east. BLM requires that adopters have at least some experience with horses or burros, along with facilities that include adequate shelter and a corral with sturdy plank or pipe fencing.

Settlement of Claim On Tenn-Tom

A $17.25 million settlement has ended all claims arising under the largest civil works contract ever awarded by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, $271 million for the construction of an 11.3-mile section of the Tennessee Tombigbee Waterway. According to Brigadier General Peter J. Offringa, Commander of the Corps' Ohio River Division, the claim of $53 million for differing site conditions encountered at the project by the contractor -- Tenn-Tom Constructors, a joint venture of Morrison-Knudsen Company, Inc.; Brown and Root, Inc.; and Martin K. Eby Company -- was rendered to $17.5 million through the use of an innovative process known as a "mini-trial".

Under the contract, completed in January 1984, some 95 million cubic yards of clay and sand were excavated to create a nine-foot-deep channel along the deepest cut of the waterway. The contractor claimed that several conditions, namely the weight of excavated material, its moisture content, and its trafficability, were different from that presented in contract documents. These differences were claimed to cause excessive equipment maintenance, delays, and use of fuel.

The "mini-trial," a relatively new alternate procedure for resolving disputes, is a voluntary, expedited, and non-judicial procedure whereby top management officials for each party meet to resolve differences.
