LET US GIVE THANKS

Thanksgiving ...a time for prayer

We all have times when things go wrong,
And Fortune's in reverse;
Yet we're expected to be strong,
Though things could not get worse...
A strength of which the Scriptures name
Examples plain to see:
Like Job, whose faith remained the same
Throughout adversity.
So why not go to Church this week,
Whichever one you choose,
And listen to the Bible speak;
There's not a thing to lose!
Then, what those passages command
You'll follow to the letter;
And let God take your life in hand,
To change it for the better! —Gloria Nowak

Clothing Exhibit Comes To Area

Making consumers aware of clothing and textile products manufactured in Mississippi is the object of a new project called "Made in Mississippi," sponsored by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The traveling exhibit will be in Alcorn and Tishomingo counties for four days, according to Extension Home Economist, Nellie R. Horton.

"More than 100 items are in the exhibit, from an orange safety flag, men's pants and ladies' hose to hunting gear," Horton said. "By showing off what's made in the state, we hope to promote the purchase of clothing and textiles made in the USA."

"The continuing tide of clothing imports is slowly choking the U.S. textile/apparel industry," she said. "Imported apparel displaces American workers."

Since 1983, about 2,500 Mississippians have lost their jobs due to foreign competition in textiles and apparel.

The project was put together by Extension Clothing and Textile Specialist Beth Duncan. She contacted each apparel manufacturer in the state and asked for at least one representative garment, along with information about how long the company has been in business and how many people are employed.

The state has about 155 apparel manufacturers, Duncan said. The industry is the largest manufacturing employer in the state, employing more than 38,000 people.

Times for the exhibit are Monday, November 30, 1:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m., and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, December 1-3, 9:00 a.m. until 8:00 p.m. at the Corinth Public Library, Filmore St., Corinth. For more information about the exhibit, contact Nellie R. Horton at 423-3616.

State Jobless Rate At 9.2% In October

The October jobless rate for Mississippi rose to 9.2 percent, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director, Thomas H. Dyson. This rate was three tenths of a percentage point above one month ago, when the rate stood at 8.9 percent. This was 1.6 percentage points below the 10.8 percent reported October 1986. Small seasonal decreases in agricultural and increases in nonagricultural employment combined to produce another good economic report.

Place of residence employment for October stood at 1,071,600 in a labor force of 1,179,900. There were 100 more people employed in October than last month and 20,700 more than October 1986.

Manufacturing establishments provided 227,200 jobs, the highest level since the 227,500 were reported in February and March 1980. Nonmanufacturing businesses provided 650,600 jobs in October. Manufacturing jobs increased 200 from one month ago and dramatically 3,100 from October 1986. Non-manufacturing provided 3,200 more jobs this month than last month and 14,500 more than last year. This monthly employment of 650,600 represents the largest number of jobs ever supported by nonmanufacturing industries. Wholesale and retail trade continued at high levels and more school personnel returned to their jobs to partially cause this record.

There were 73,014 claims filed in October 1987 as compared to 85,458 during September and 116,142 one year ago. There were 9,914 job openings received in October compared to 10,382 last month and 8,798 one year ago. Of those received 8,849 8,595 and 7,423 were filled by local Employment Service Offices.

Rural Carrier Safety Alert

If you drive, you surely must have experienced road discourtesies of some variety. Some are annoying; some are frightening; and some are deadly.

The Tupelo Management Sectional Center has approximately 335 rural routes traveling about 27,000 miles daily over an area of forty-one counties. These rural carriers' accident ratio comprises 75% of our total vehicle accidents. Contributing factors are narrow gravel roads, sharp curves and overgrowth near the edge of the road. Add to this -- HUNTERS.

We are asking that all hunters be alert to a vehicle with an amber revolving light on top. This light indicates a rural carrier. These employees have been trained to observe road courtesy and safety. We are asking you, as hunters, to observe the same rules of courtesy and safety.

Don't Ignore Creditors
People who get into financial trouble often do the very worst thing they can by not contacting their creditors immediately and explain why they are unable to pay.

Most creditors are willing to work with people who owe them in developing a revised payment schedule to fit the circumstances. The worst thing a person can do is ignore creditors, because a number of things will then begin to happen.

The process of collecting debts varies considerably from one creditor to another. It will depend on the creditor's policies and accounting procedures. Some creditors take action against late payments if only a few days late. Others do not send late notices until payment is at least 30 days late.

People who get 60 days behind generally receive another request for payment. At the end of 60 days, some creditors will turn the debt over to an attorney or collection agency to collect the late payment. Some creditors have their own representatives who collect debts. If a creditor turns a person's account over to an attorney, the person can expect an additional cost in attorney fees.

After a period, if the debt has not been collected, court action by the creditor can be expected. The creditor will file a suit in court in an effort to get the court to make a person pay a bill. The court's decision is called a judgment.

If the court rules in the creditor's favor, expect wages to be garnished or assets to be taken. If the court rules that wages be garnished, the creditor notifies an employer of the garnishment action and about 25 percent of wages will be sent to the creditor unless this amount would leave a person with a paycheck less than 30 times the Federal minimum wage. In this situation, no more can be taken than the amount of money that exceeds the Federal minimum wage. This does not apply to garnishing money for alimony or support of a dependent. Also, creditors can legally attach the assets of a checking or savings account up to the value of the court judgment. Personal property can be seized and sold.

The creditor may already have or can obtain the legal right to repossess the property. This means a person loses the item for which money was borrowed.

Frequently, the creditor sells the property for less than the amount still owed on it. If the item does not sell for enough money to pay off the loan, the creditor will file another suit for a deficiency judgment to make up the difference between what was owed and the sale price of the item. Failure to pay the amount of deficiency judgment means wages can be garnished or the creditor can seize other possessions for the amount of the judgment.

Do not ignore a suit. Contact an attorney immediately. Failure to file an answer to the suit and failure to appear in court will allow the creditor to win the suit by default. With an appearance in court, a person can possibly work out an acceptable plan with the creditor. Without an appearance in court, a person cannot defend against the creditor's claim.

4-H Holds Awards Night

On Monday, November 16, 1987, the Tishomingo County 4-H Clubs held their annual Awards Program in the Iuka High School Cafeteria. The Outstanding Junior 4-H Member award went to Dena Lowrey of the Happy Days 4-H Club. The Outstanding Senior 4-H Member Award went to Keith Broadway of the Busy Bee 4-H Club. These two 4-H members received $50.00 for their 4-H participation. The "I Dare You" Award was given to Nancy South of the Action 4-H Club. This award goes to someone who is active in 4-H and the purpose of the award is to challenge the recipient to reach for higher goals. The Outstanding Club Award was given to the North Crossroads 4-H Club. This club turned in an exceptional record and received a blue ribbon in state competition. For their efforts the club received $50.00 from the 4-H Advisory Council and $50.00 from South Central Bell, as well as a certificate and a banner. Other clubs placing in the competition were Rainbow I, Rainbow II and Action. This year there were six 4-H members who achieved the Standard of Excellence. They were Dena Lowrey of Happy Days 4-H Club, Latasha Dilworth of the V.I.Y.P. 4-H Club, Wesley and Tina Hendrix of the Action 4-H Club, Nancy South of the Action 4-H Club and Keith Broadway of the Busy Bee 4-H Club. These members will be participating in a trip sponsored by the 4-H Advisory Council.

Two of our leaders were also recognized. Sandy Rutledge of the North Crossroads 4-H Club and Margaret Hendrix of the Action 4-H Club were awarded $25.00 each for their records submitted to state competition. Each year, two outstanding high school seniors are awarded college scholarships of $150.00 each. This year's scholarship winners were Joey Carson of the Happy Days 4-H Club and Anthony Bray of the Rainbow I 4-H Club. In addition to the above awards three members were accepted into the 4-H Honor Club, Sonya Magill of Rainbow I, Nancy South of Action and Keith Broadway of Busy Bee. Also, approximately 100 other medals and checks were given to other 4-H members in the county. Tishomingo County should be proud of its young people. Please be sure to congratulate these people for a job well done.

LEGENDS AND MYTHS OF THE TENN-TOM REGION....
The staff of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway would like to share the following legends and myths of the Tenn-Tom Region.

'BIGBEE BOTTOM BEAST'

Tales of the Tombigbee River Bottom have been around for hundreds of years. Some say that the Indians were the first to experience strange things in the ol' bottom. Even today some people who hunt and fish in the bottom say that they have heard, seen or felt something strange there. One old timer said "lots of folks think it's swamp gas or a wild animal, but I'll tell you that I've seen tracks in that old bottom that weren't made by any wild animal you or I've ever seen."

One of the least talked about legends of the area is the account of the 'Bigbee

Bottom Beast'.

This legend is said to have first started in the 1820's. A flatboat riverman was walking his way north from Natchez, Mississippi up the wilderness Indian trail we now know as The Natchez Trace. In his haste to arrive home, he traveled both day and night. One night it was storming and he lost his way. Nothing is known of how he died. All that was found were his brown saddle bags with his initials B.B. stamped on the side. The strange thing was that none of the money in the saddlebags was missing.

More than forty years later a local cotton farmer was found dead along the banks of the Tombigbee River. His cotton wagon was found with his body inside. On the back of the wagon were his identifying initials B.B.

Seventy years passed until another strange death was reported in the Tombigbee Bottom. During prohibition, a revenuer was investigating reports of a "White Lightning" still in the bottom. Folks say he found and burned the still, but lost his life. He was found dead 100 yards from the river holding his badge in one hand and a confiscated "Bottle of Booze" in the other.

People started talking about the "Bigbee Bottom Beast" after the revenuer was killed. Some said, "You had better make sure you don't have more than two B's when you go into that bottom," others were sure it was just a coincidence.

It was along time until the "Bigbee Bottom Beast" struck again. During the construction of the Waterway many dozers and other types of equipment were used to clear logs and debris in the old Tombigbee River Bottom. One dozer operator was having problems with people vandalizing his equipment at night, so he decided to take his old hunting dog, Big Blue, and camp at the dozer all night. He chained Big Blue to the dozer and soon had his tent up and was cozy inside. He started to give thanks for all his blessings, when suddenly he heard a grinding of teeth, loud growling and eerie breathing outside. Thinking his dog was making the noise, he looked out of the tent only to see a large creature with red, glowing eyes coming at him. Not knowing what to do, he started to run and pray outloud. Unknowningly he just continued the prayer he had been saying while in the tent. Miraculously he made it safely out of the bottom.

The next morning when he got the nerve to return to his equipment, he and his friends found Big Blue's dead body on the seat of the bulldozer. They all knew that the man was the first to ever escape the "Bigbee Bottom Beast".

Since that time few people go to the Tombigbee River Bottom if they have more than two B's.

If you are in the bottom and have overlooked a B or two, there is only one safe way to get out alive. COUNT YOUR

VEGETABLE MARKET
READY FOR OPERATION

The Tenn-Tom Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, which represents five counties in Northeast Mississippi including Tishomingo, has made excellent progress recently regarding a commercial vegetable production and marketing program.

Plans are presently being finalized to offer producers the opportunity to produce four crops for market including: cabbage, bell pepper, peas, and trellis cucumbers.

Your Smile:

A fashion classic
Miniskirts are "in" this season. Colored stockings are "the look." And padded shoulders are among today's hottest fashion trends.

But some things never go out of style—like basic black...diamond jewelry...and a dazzling smile.

Today, your smile can be more beautiful than ever, thanks to new dentistry procedures like bonding.

Bonding can camouflage dull, damaged or unevenly spaced teeth. It can also fix "headlights," bright spots on front teeth caused by hypocalcification (loss of calcium in the enamel.) Bonding can also be combined with contouring or bleaching for maximum effectiveness.

The basic bonding process may not require drilling or anesthesia. First, a mild acid solution roughens the tooth to improve adhesion. We paint on tooth-colored plastic—composite resin—tinted to match tooth coloration for a natural-looking results. Then, the resin hardens through a chemical reaction or with the help of a special light.

Finally, we shape the tooth with a special instrument. It's that simple.

In recent years, dentistry has developed new bonding techniques, often combining them with other processes to create maximum results.

For example, laminate veneers coat the tooth with thin porcelain or acrylic shells that fit over the teeth much like false fingernails. Because laminate veneers are pre-formed, they require less shaping than composite resins, and can be applied more quickly.

The contouring procedures that finish the bonding process can also be used alone. For example, cosmetic contouring may be all that is required to fix a tooth that is only slightly flawed.

While bonding may not be the ideal solution to all your fashion problems, they've beautified many a face...and added style to many a smile!

While bonding, laminated veneers and recontouring may not be the ideal solution to all your fashion problems, they've beautified many a face...and added style to many a smile!

CARING FOR YOUR PET

Pets Should Fit Their Environment.

If you plan to give or get a live pet as a gift -- or just to take one home, it's important to determine ahead of time the type of pet that's best suited to the household for which it is intended.

The new pet should fit into the family's existing lifestyle -- not upset it.

Some animals are strictly outdoor animals and cannot be housebroken. Others can cause serious housekeeping and health problems for the family.

Exotic animals frequently become a major problem for their owners as the animals mature.

Laws in some areas prohibit the keeping of certain animals as pets.

Even the selection of a puppy or kitten should be given careful consideration and discussed with a veterinarian before purchasing a "cute little ball of fur."

Remember that "ball of fur" will grow -- and in some cases, grow and grow.

Not all breeds of dogs are intended as apartment or house dwellers. They get too large. They need an outdoor area in which to run and play if they are to remain healthy and happy.

Knowing in advance the expected size an animal is likely to become can prevent later heartbreak, especially for a child.

Some breeds have better dispositions than others. Something to be considered if children are involved.

Plan carefully and select an animal that will fit into and become a part of the family for which it is intended. Select an animal that will bring happiness into its new environment for years to come.

Thanksgiving

By
Lindsey Earl Jones

As we come to this Thanksgiving Day 1987, We have much to thank God for. We thank him for the health he has blessed us with to let us live through another year.

We thank him for our church and all the good services we have attended there. We thank him for our pastor and the many ways he has helped us.

We thank him for our home, and many friends and all the ways they have helped us. For the rain and sunshine and the flowers that have bloomed along the way.

For food to eat, Clothes to wear, and the car to take us to and from the places we have gone.

Help us God, to thank you each and every day for all the blessings that come our way, and not to wait till the 4th Thursday in November, the day set aside for Thanksgiving.

Singing At Boggs Chapel

The Boggs Chapel United Methodist Church will have its regular fifth Sunday afternoon singing on Sunday, November 29, beginning at 1 o'clock.

The pastor, Bro. Rowland Hyde, and the congregation invite everyone to attend, especially all singers and piano players.

Home Care Week

"Home health care...because there's no place like home."

The Mississippi State Department of Health recognizes November 29 through December 5, 1987, as Home Care Week -- a national and statewide effort to promote home health care.

Home health agencies have existed in America for more than a century. Since the enactment of a 1965 Medicare law, which made home health services available to the elderly, home care has experienced tremendous growth.

A form of home health care has been available in Mississippi since the early 1900's when public health nurses made home visits to care for the sick; teach good habits of nutrition, hygiene, and sanitation; and encourage healthy life-styles. The State Department of Health has been providing home health services statewide since July 1969.

The number of Medicare-certified home health agencies has increased from 1,753 in 1967 to 5,877 in August 1987. The National Association for Home Care identifies another 4,000 home health agencies which don't participate in Medicare -- totaling some 9,800 agencies nationwide providing home health care.

Both Medicare and Medicaid certified, the Mississippi State Department of Health provides home health care in every county, with 82 health department-based clinics. Private free-standing and hospital-based agencies add another 53 outlets for home health care in Mississippi.

Health Program Specialist Tucker Brown says that the State Department of Health serves 8,000 patients a year.

"Home health nurses and aides make about 270,000 visits to 8,000 patients each year -- bringing in over $14 million -- which equals the cost of care," he said.

Home health care offers a cost-effective alternative to higher priced care and also allows patients the comfort of recovering in familiar surroundings.

To be eligible for home health services, a person must be ill or disabled, essentially homebound, under the care and supervision of a physician, and in need of intermittent skilled nursing, physical, or speech therapy.

Home health care has become especially important with recent cutbacks in Medicare-reimbursed care.

Medicare enforces a breakdown of diagnoses and reimbursable hospital stays, or Diagnostic Related Groups (DRG's).

"DRG's specify -- according to diagnosis -- an amount of money to be reimbursed for a certain number of days," explained Alicia Crowder, home health nurse consultant.

"We're seeing a lot more people released from hospitals quicker and sicker," she added.

These patients who still need the skilled care a nurse provides can now rely on home health nurses.

"Home health nursing has changed considerably in the last five years," Crowder explained.

"Things that used to be done only in hospitals are being done in the home now," she added. "Home health nurses now give intravenous treatments in the home -- and even care for patients on life-support systems."

Statistics support the need for home health care, too. In 1983, 27.8 million Americans were over age 65. The fastest growing of all age groups includes those 85 and over. By 1990, the ratio of elderly people to those under age 65 will rise from a current one in nine to one in five.

Home health care is an option to long-term care in medical institutions for the nation's ever-growing number of elderly and infirm.

For more information on home health care through the Mississippi State Department of Health, readers may contact their county health department.

HIGH RISES: Weaver ants of Asian, African and Australian rain forests build giant leafy nests in trees more than 50 feet above the ground. According to Ranger Rick magazine, the nests help protect the ant colonies from enemies as well as from rain and strong winds. Some colonies have over a half million ants living in over 150 nests. And some nests may spread over more than 20 tree tops.

Matters Of Health

THANKSGIVING AND SPECIAL DIETS

Several of my Thanksgiving guests can't eat certain foods because they have health problems, such as high blood pressure or diabetes. How do I prepare a meal that all of my guests can enjoy?

Food takes center stage during the holidays in most households—especially at Thanksgiving—when it can be particularly difficult for people on special diets, as well as for their families and friends.

Diabetes and high blood pressure are only two of many health problems that can prohibit people from fully enjoying the traditional holiday fare. A far more common problem is obesity. Dieters understandably dread Thanksgiving, when people tend to consume more food than on any other day of the year.

One way to help all of your guests enjoy the day is to plan activities before and after eating. Try going outside after dinner for a brisk walk around the neighborhood if weather and daylight permits. Encourage the adults to join in the children's outdoor games or to take them on a trip to the park, if the children are included in your gathering.

Concentrate on the Thanksgiving dinner when it's time to dine rather than on an all-day eating affair that starts with pastries in the morning and ends with dessert at night. Try to set a time limit on the meal so your guests won't be tempted to have second or third helpings. And, try to keep your guests from visiting the kitchen while food is being prepared or put away, so they won't "snack" before or after dinner.

You can prepare a delicious meal and respect the needs of people on special diets while satisfying the appetites of those who aren't, as well. Traditional Thanksgiving foods, if prepared properly, aren't off-limits for people with health problems. Turkey, for example, is one of the most nutritious foods available—it's high in protein and low in salt, fat, cholesterol and calories at only 50 calories per ounce. Fresh vegetables and fruits are also low in calories and earn high marks for vitamin and fiber content. Potatoes contain only a moderate number of calories, as long as added fat, such as butter or sour cream, is kept to minimum.

Try serving raw vegetables with low-fat dip or celery filled with low-fat cottage cheese and chives. Offer dry white wine, fruit juice or mineral water to drink. Prepare the turkey by basting the bird in its own juices, or add a little wine. Don't add butter or bacon fat. Prepare a simple bread stuffing with skimmed chicken broth and little or no butter. (Chicken broth will separate into fat and liquid when cooled. Skim off the fat and use the broth.) You can add onions, celery or mushrooms sauteed in a minimal amount of fat and seasoned with herbs and spices. If you make gravy, skim the fat from the drippings before adding the flour or corn starch (flour is lower in calories) and serve the gravy on the side. Other nutritious items on your table might include: baked or mashed potatoes, winter squash, sweet potatoes or yams without added sugar and mixed with cinnamon and a bit of margarine or artificial sweetener; steamed fresh vegetables such as carrots, broccoli, green beans or cauliflower; fresh fruit, and a salad with low-calorie dressing. For dessert, offer an apple crisp, apple pie or pumpkin pie prepared with spices and very little sugar, or sweetened with artificial sweetener.

Generally choose foods that contain very little salt, sugar and fat—and use only small amounts of these items when cooking. Candied yams, stuffing made with sausage or ham, canned vegetables or fruits, food that is heavily buttered or fried, pickles and olives, sugary breads and heavy desserts—traditional Thanksgiving fare in most homes—should be avoided.

In short, don't let food become the focus of the Thanksgiving holiday—enjoy the opportunity to spend time with loved ones and to appreciate the true meaning of the occasion. Follow these simple recommendations for menu planning to help to make a healthier holiday for all of your guests, not only for those with weight or health problems.

ASCS Farm News

By David Wilson
County Executive Director

Maintenance of ACR required through end of year

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service says conservation Protection established on acreage conservation reserve (ACR) land must be maintained through December 1987. "These acres must be kept free from weeds, insects and rodents through the end of the year," said county ASCS official David Wilson.

The 1987 acreage reduction and land diversion programs removed about 1882 base acres, or 24 percent of the county's wheat, feed grain, and cotton acres from production to the ACR. Farm program participants have since planted cover crops and installed conservation practices on the land to guard against soil erosion, according to Wilson.

"To qualify for total 1987 farm program benefits, producers are required to protect ACR land in accordance with program requirements."

The ASCS official said farmers will be out of compliance and could lose payments and other benefits if they fail to carry out conservation practices to protect ACR from wind and water erosion; or if they do not take necessary measures to control weeds, insects and rodents; or fail to comply with harvesting and grazing restrictions on the land.

To insure that farm program participants are meeting these requirements, ASCS periodically checks ACR land.

Blood Pressure Checks

Another event at the 1987 Christmas Fair, held Tuesday and Wednesday, November 17th and 18th, at Golden City Hall, was the Blood Pressure Checks, sponsored by the Tishomingo County Extension Homemakers Council. Shown above, left, Mrs. Charlotte Daniels, president of the Midway Homemakers Club, checks Mrs. Mildred Outlaw, of the Belmont Night Homemakers Club. According to Nellie R. Horton, Extension Home Economist, the "Blood Pressure Checks" have been a very successful project for the Extension Homemakers Clubs throughout the county. Approximately 325 persons registered at the gala event, which proved to be very successful. Many beautiful Christmas decorations and gifts were displayed throughout the area, and all were handmade by Extension Homemakers from all across Tishomingo County.

Friendship Homemakers Tour "Christmas Fair"

Tuesday morning, November 17th, members of Friendship Homemakers Club toured the annual "Christmas Fair" at Golden, Mississippi, where they displayed their Christmas tree with hand-crafted decorations and various gifts and admired the handiwork of items shown by other homemakers of Tishomingo County.

Later, they met at the Dennis Restaurant where they enjoyed a delicious lunch, after which, a business meeting was held. Betty Ballard, opened the meeting with prayer. The Club collected a $20.00 donation to 4-H club from individual members.

The club voted $25.00 toward restoration of the old Tishomingo County Courthouse, and a $50.00 contribution to a needy family in the community.

The Christmas Party will be held at the home of Frances Keahey, Wednesday, December 9th. Mrs. Annie Gray closed the meeting with the benediction. Attending the Fair and meeting were: Betty Ballard, Victoria Dean, Louise Faulkner, Eunice Guinn, Jaunita Haley (President), Lila Hollis, Mae Hudson, Lily Ruth Johnson, Frances Keahey, Nell Landrum, Sally Monks, Ruth Ramsey, Ophelia Ray and Ellen Williams.

The Pilgrims left us this unique heritage — thanksgiving. Newly arrived in this land, they gave thanks to a benevolent Maker who guided them across the sea and who would sustain them through their first harrowing years in a new home.

Now, we may forget that the prosperity that we enjoy today is not entirely the product of our own labor, but also the result of the countless blessings received from a higher being.

We hope that all will remember this Thanksgiving to be a time of praise, of hope and of gratitude.

Burnsville School officials presented McGruff Puppets by Wal-Mart "Canine Crime Sleuth" to be used in awareness programs for children.

Local education officials were recently presented with a check for $476 raised by Iuka Wal-Mart associates to purchase four sets of McGruff crime dog puppets for school use in an anti-crime awareness program. Local store manager John Pickle, presented the check to Mr. Green, guidance counselor, on behalf of the store associates to purchase the puppet sets, complete with workbook and cassette tapes for children grades: Kindergarten through sixth.

Wal-Mart's fundraising efforts took place the whole month of October, 1987, at Wal-Mart #274 with activities including Bake Sales, TV raffle and coke and hot dog wagon.

In addition to $945 raised by the store, the Company Foundation matched store efforts by $945 dollars. The schools will use the money to purchase puppet sets this fall for class use later this fall.

Wal-Mart's McGruff program fundraising efforts are being conducted by other Wal-Mart stores throughout the Arkansas-based, retail chains 23-state trade territory.

In commenting on the presentation, John Pickle said, "Our Wal-Mart Company is deeply committed to the education of our country's youth. Our commitment is expressed through our scholarship programs in each Wal-Mart community and through special projects such as the McGruff program. McGruff has been instrumental in the safety and education of thousands of children and we are proud to be a part of bringing this program to Iuka."

McGruff, the famous "Take A Bite Out of Crime", spokesdog, has been the National Crime Prevention Council's mascot since 1979 and has become to crime prevention what Smokey The Bear has been to forest fire prevention. The McGruff

Elementary School Puppet Program has become an effective tool in many states to teach children to say "No" to abusers, "No" to crime, "No" to drugs and how to help protect themselves when faced with these dilemmas. Topics the children will discuss through songs and story messages include crime prevention, molestation, respect for authority, child abuse, alcohol and substance abuse, hitchhiking, vandalism, shoplifting, arson, gangs and theft.

Iuka Lion's News

We met in the "Lion's Den" on November 17th and a very good meeting was held. We had two ladies as speakers, who really did an outstanding job. Mrs. Cheryl Clark based her talk on "Diabetes". Cheryl is a local product and is, at present, Director of Nursing at Tishomingo Hospital. Mrs. Ellen Green, Tishomingo County Literacy Coordinator, also spoke briefly. Mrs. Joyce Borden, also a nurse at the hospital, was a very welcome visitor.

Uppermost on our agenda, was the Christmas Parade which is getting closer day by day! A list of Lions involved in Parade plans appears elsewhere in this newspaper. Anyone wanting to enter floats, antique cars, etc. may contact any name listed. One special item, concerning antique cars, is that cars may be towed or ridden piggy-back on flatbed trucks. Lion Bobby Riley should be contacted concerning any questions about this.

How To Cook A Turkey

Many turkeys have the directions for thawing and cooking on the package. If yours does, follow these directions. If you use a roasting bag or roasting wrap, follow directions that come with the package.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Rinse turkey inside and out with cold water. Pat dry. Rub cavity of bird lightly with salt and pepper if desired.

If stuffing is used, fill the neck area lightly. Fasten neck skin with a skewer. Fill body cavity lightly (stuffing tends to expand). Tie drumsticks to the tail or push them under band of skin at the tail.

Place turkey breast side up on a rack in a shallow pan. Fold wings under the back. If you use a thermometer, insert it so that the bulb is in the center of the inside thigh muscle. Be sure it does not touch the bone.

Place in the 325 degree oven. Baste with melted shortening or drippings if desired. When skin is light golden brown, place a loose tent of aluminum over the legs and breast. When the turkey is about two-thirds done, center the cord or band of skin at the tail to release the legs and permit the heat to reach the heavy meated part.

Do not partly roast turkey on one day and complete roasting the next day.

Approximate Timetable for Cooking Turkey

Weight	Roast Time at 325°
4 to 7 lbs.	2 to 2½ hrs.
7 to 10 lbs.	2½ to 3 hrs.
10 to 13 lbs.	3 to 4 hrs.
13 to 17 lbs.	4 to 5 hrs.
17 to 22 lbs.	5 to 6½ hrs.

Turkey is easier to carve if it stands about 30 minutes after it is out of the oven.

-DRESSING-

3 c. cornbread crumbs
1 c. toasted biscuit crumbs
1 cup celery, chopped
2 hard boiled eggs
¼ teaspoon sage
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 onion, chopped
2 eggs, beaten
1 tsp. celery salt
1 tsp. salt
1 c. chicken broth

Mix all ingredients together, using more or less broth for desirable consistency. Pack dressing loosely inside turkey and around sides. Bake as directed for turkey.

(The above is a special news article brought to you by Nellie R. Horton, Extension Home Economist).

Ask Ochsner

Q. What can I do to help prevent my annual weight gain during the upcoming holiday season? Do you have any tips to help someone who has little will power? Mrs. FE, Covington, La.

A. Thanksgiving is traditionally the start of the holiday season of food and parties. For some, it means a gain of an extra ten pounds. Debbie Kern, a registered dietitian at the Ochsner Clinic in New Orleans, says that a lot of people eat because of emotions -- either they have negative feelings about the holidays because of stress, or they are excited and happy. It is important, she says, to know why your eating habits may be different during the holiday season.

Choose the foods which are your favorites and allow yourself to eat those foods, but in small portions. The most important thing is to enjoy the holidays and not feel deprived. Before a party, eat something at home so you may not be as tempted to eat the hors d'oeuvres.

Remember to ask yourself why you are going to the party. Make sure you go to socialize with the guests rather than focus on the food table. Avoid the "I'm on a diet" response to the hostess when turning down food. Sometimes a persistent hostess can persuade you to eat it anyway, so just tell yourself you really don't want it and just say so, or say that you're too full.

Stay away from fried foods and cheeses at office or cocktail parties. Both types of foods have a high fat content, which add calories even if they are eaten in small quantities.

Alcoholic beverages are also high in calories, so when drinking spirits, choose lite beers or dry wines as they have the least amount of calories. Kern suggests alternating the alcoholic drink with a non-alcoholic one, such as fruit juice, club soda or mineral water.

Don't forget that exercising is one way to help burn off excess calories during the holiday glut. Get a big group together after a meal and go for a walk -- you may start another tradition.

Ask Ochsner answers medical questions of general interest. We cannot reply directly to individual questions, nor should you consider general answers an adequate substitute for consulting your doctor about a specific complaint. If you have a medical question you would like us to address, send it to Ask Ochsner, c/o Public Affairs Office, 1516 Jefferson Highway, New Orleans, La. 70121. When writing, please indicate your name, address and the name of the newspaper in which you read this column.

The Soil Conservation Service

The rub is probably the most commonly observed type of "buck sign". A rub is typically made on the stem of a sapling or tree and results in the stem being debarked as the buck rubs both his head and antlers against it. Trees such as cedar and pine are preferred but others will also be used. Most rubs are made on stems less than 4 inches in diameter and the hunter's proverb "the bigger the tree rubbed, the bigger the buck" is generally true.

Rubbing activity begins in the fall when the increase in testosterone production causes antler growth to cease. The flow of blood to the velvet covering the antlers shuts off, the velvet dries and the antler hardens.

Rubs may function in communication between the sexes. The forehead skin contains glands that become more active during breeding season and leave scent on the objects rubbed. This scent may remain on the trees for several days, allowing other deer to identify the buck making the rub.

A scrape is a pawed area on the ground usually with a broken limb on a branch 3' to 6' above. The majority of scrapes are made prior to the rut.

When making a scrape, a buck mouths an over hanging leaf or limb, often breaking it. As he chews on the limb, the buck hooks the branches with his antlers and rubs his preorbital glands (located on the inside corner of the eye) against the limb to leave his scent. Then beneath the branch, the buck paws an area free of litter with one or both front feet. Scrapes may be as small as 10" to 12" in diameter or as large as 3' in diameter. The buck may then urinate on the scrape. This scent "marks" the scrape and identifies the buck making the scrape.

Now that deer season is upon us, remember that you and I are hunters, and that our hunting future depends on us being sportsmen in the field.

Foster family homes provide care for children who must be apart from their families for a planned period of time. It takes special people to be foster parents. Being a foster parent is difficult and demanding responsibility, yet it can be a very rewarding experience. If you would like more information about becoming a foster parent, contact your local welfare department. Alcorn - 286-2205, Prentiss - 728-3118, Tishomingo - 423-9241.

Travel's Economic Impact On Mississippi Counties

According to a recent study, U. S. travelers spent nearly $1.4 billion in Mississippi during 1986. The report was prepared by the U. S. Travel Data Center for the Mississippi Department of Economic Development, Tourism Division, and details total travel expenditures, travel generated employment and payroll, and state and local tax receipts for each county.

Hinds County received nearly $292 million in travel spending to lead all counties, followed by Harrison County with $248.6 million, Rankin with $107.6 million, Lauderdale with $86.5 million, and Warren, with $57.4 million. Rounding out the top ten were Forrest, Lee, Adams, Jackson, and Lowndes Counties.

The total expenditures include spending on transportation, lodging, food, entertainment, recreation, and incidentals purchased in stores while traveling away from home overnight, or on day trips to places 100 miles or more away from home.

Food service spending of $461 million accounted for about one-third of the state total while auto transportation ranked second, garnering 20 percent of the total. Expenditures directly generated 33.9 thousand jobs in the state, four percent of the total state nonagricultural employment of 849 thousand jobs. Traveler spending generated $78.7 million in state tax revenue and $19 million in local tax revenue.

Between 1985 and 1986, spending on public transportation increased at the fastest rate while auto transportation spending declined, a result of the large drop in gasoline prices that year.

To obtain the figures, the U. S. Travel Data Center uses a computer model initially developed in 1975 for the U. S. Department of the Interior. Last year, the model was adjusted to fit business receipts and payroll data available for each state from the 1982 Census of Service Industries and Census of Retail Trade.

"These figures reinforce what we've been saying for years," says Al Elmore, Tourism Director for the Department of Economic Development. "The travel industry is a vital segment of Mississippi's economy. A close look at the data in this report reveals the broad scope of travel's impact throughout the state. This is a diverse industry which reaches far beyond the traditional view of motels and restaurants as the only beneficiaries of travel activity."

Outstanding Young Man of America

The Board of Advisors for the Outstanding Young Men of America awards program has announced that Gregory H. Enlow has been selected for inclusion in the 1987 edition of OUTSTANDING YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA.

Now in its 25th year, the OYMA program is designed to honor and encourage exceptional young men between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in many fields of endeavor, such as service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments, and civic and political participation. Achievements in these areas are the result of dedication, responsibility, and a drive for excellence—qualities which deserve to be recognized and remembered.

The men listed, along with fellow Outstanding Young Men throughout North America, were selected after 150,000 nominations were received from political leaders, University and College officials, clergymen, business leaders, as well as from various civic groups and community organizations. Each young man will be represented by his biographical entry in this prestigious annual awards publication.

Our Board of Advisors and Editors salute all those honored as Outstanding Young Men of America. We take great pride in bringing their accomplishments to the attention of the American public.

TRY CRANBERRIES FOR THANKSGIVING DELIGHT

Cranberries are as traditional with the holidays as turkey. It is believed that cranberries were served at the first Thanksgiving, and have been a tradition ever since. The cranberry, which is a North American fruit, however, was being enjoyed by the Indians long before the Pilgrims arrived. The bright red berry was an important part of the Indian's "convenience food" pemmican. The pemmican was a combination of venison fat and the crushed berries.

Harvesting of cranberries has changed throughout the years. The cranberry scoop that originally was used was a device with teeth-like features that would remove the berries when it was pulled through the vines. Today cranberries are no longer harvested by hand, due to the fact that growers are using mechanical methods for harvesting.

The season for cranberries is relatively short with most of the crop being harvested in November, followed by fewer harvested in December. January ends the harvest season with only one percent being harvested. Almost 90 percent of the nation's cranberry crop is used for processed products. On our grocery store shelves today we may find products such as cranberry juice and cranberry sauce all using cranberries.

Once the cranberries are harvested, they are taken to a packing plant. One might say the berries bounce their way into the stores. When the fruit arrives at the packing plant they are cleaned and given the bounce test. The red berries are fed over a series of "baffle boards" and then they are divided according to how well they bounce. The berries lacking in bounce are discarded. The remaining fruit is carefully checked for quality, color, size, shape and defects.

When choosing cranberries in the grocery stores choose berries that are firm, plump, fresh and full of color. Steer away from berries that are shriveled, dull in color or soft. Cranberries bearing any of these negative traits have more than likely passed their quality peakness.

Cranberries need to be refrigerated until needed. Just before using the berries they need to be washed, drained and sorted. Cranberries will keep in the refrigerator two weeks or longer. Since the season for cranberries is so short, the cranberries may be frozen. Just put the package of berries, in the original package, in the freezer, or the berries may be frozen by putting the bag of cranberries in to a freezer bag, seal and freeze. Freezing cranberries makes it easy to grind or chop the berries because there is not any juice drip.

Fresh cranberries should be clean, firm and mature. The berries are usually packaged in one-pound film bags or in boxes with a window for viewing. Although cranberries usually do not bruise, try to avoid berries that are crushed or leaky. These berries will not have their full potential of flavor.

U.S. Grade A or Fancy is the top quality for the canned cranberry sauces. The sauces that are not top quality may still be good and they are often a good way to save money. The only difference in the lower quality fruit is that the color may not be as bright or the consistency and texture may not be deserving of Grade A quality.

Cranberries make a delightful addition to meals. Not only do cranberries add color to a meal but they also add taste to budget meals.

Point Of Law

Q: If an employer refuses to hire or to promote an individual because of his or her race or sex, what recourse does that individual have?

A: Federal law prohibits most employers from discriminating against an individual on the basis of that individual's race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

That means that an employer cannot refuse to hire a person because he is black or refuse to promote him for that reason. Similarly, an employer may not refuse to hire or to promote a woman simply because she is female.

An individual who believes that he or she has been discriminated against in violation of this law may file a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The complaint must be filed within 180 days of the employer's discriminatory act. The Commission will investigate the complaint. Following the Commission's investigation, the complaining individual may then file a lawsuit against the employer. The lawsuit must be filed within 90 days after the individual receives a letter from the Commission informing him of his right to sue the employer.

Q: Does an individual have any recourse if his employer fires him or demotes him because he has filed a complaint against the employer with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission?

A: Federal law also makes it illegal for an employer to retaliate against an employee for filing a charge of discrimination or bringing a lawsuit involving claims of discrimination.

Local Group Attend Memphis Meeting

The Iuka Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses recently attended a one-day assembly in Memphis, Tennessee. The 1,283 attendance included twelve Northeast Mississippi congregations along with visitors. Held on October 25th, the day provided opportunity for thirteen new Witnesses to be baptized.

"Helping Multitudes to Act Wisely and Without Delay," was the subject discussed by John Mansavage, the new traveling overseer serving Northeast Mississippi. He encouraged witnesses to reason with their Bible students using viewpoint questions. "Helping them to appreciate the seriousness of the times and the responsibilities of every Christian as a minister," he said.

Mr. Mansavage has been a minister of Jehovah's Witnesses since 1940 and has been a Circuit Overseer for 27 years. He and his wife, Florence, moved to this area from Michigan and say that they are "delighted" to be here in Mississippi. Mrs. Mansavage works with her husband in the door-to-door visitation work, sharing Bible messages, discussions and literature.

The Mansavages visit each congregation for a week, making a circuit of 22 congregations twice each year. Currently Mr. Mansavage is delivering the talk, "Basis for Confidence in the Bible's Divine Authorship." Another highlight of the program was a talk given by Russell Kurzen, visiting from the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, New York. "Study Diligently and Apply God's Word," provided illustrations of what serious study includes. The speaker encouraged all to make practical application to their relationships with others.

In Mississippi Gardens

Cranberry: Close Kin To Blueberry, Azalea.

Cranberries - what are they? We see them fresh in the market for that brief period following Halloween until the first of the New Year. Forty-eight percent of the crop is marketed in November.

Processed, they are available all year as canned whole berry or jellied sauce and as bottled or frozen juice or juice blends. Sometimes I even string the reddish-black berries with popcorn or garlands to decorate the Christmas tree. This is a hold over of my Yankee upbringing.

The cranberry is an almost forgotten fresh fruit. One former Secretary of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration suggested we could do without cranberries, much to the dismay of the industry and the American public.

The scientific name of the cranberry, Vaccinium macrocarpon, tells us that the plant is in the same genus as the blueberry. This is certainly something in its favor. Tracing the plant back further reveals that it is in the Heath family and therefore related to Mountain Laurel, Rhododendrons, including azaleas, Andromeda and Enkianthus, another delightful ornamental shrub.

Cranberries are native to North America and are found from Newfoundland west to Minnesota, south to North Carolina, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. In the wild, the plants grow in locations often too wet for most other plants.

The cranberry industry in the United States started in Massachusetts between 1810 and 1820 and soon cranberries were cultivated in New Jersey, spreading west to Wisconsin and north to Nova Scotia. On the west coast cultivation was started in Oregon in the 1880's by a man from Massachusetts.

Most cranberries are grown on floodable, organic or peat soils called bogs. Production is highly specialized requiring special land preparation, bog management and harvest equipment. Sand is a very important production item in bog preparation and can require as many as 400 cubic yards per acre initially with additional applications every few years.

The cranberry plant is a perennial vine propagated by cuttings (pieces of vines) taken in spring before growth begins. The vines grow along the ground and have upright branches that bear the flowers and fruit. The flowers are largely self-pollinating but aided by some pollinating insects. The vines do not grow rapidly and it takes 3 to 4 years after the cuttings are planted to bring a bog into production. The common name of the plant was derived from the older name "craneberry" given because the flower bud and its stem resembled the neck, head and beak of a crane.

Cranberry production requires cool summer temperatures, so put any ideas of growing them in Mississippi out of your head right now. While it might appear that cranberries are plants that grow in water, this is not the case. Water must be available for irrigation, for flooding to protect the plants against winter injury, for insect control and to aid in harvest, but the bog must be capable of being drained and flooded at will.

Harvest begins in late summer when the small berries mature and turn red. Years ago all cranberries were hand harvested with each harvester averaging only 3 to 4 bushels a day. The development of hand held scoops increased the daily average to 20 bushels per harvester. A scoop harvester consisted of a box-like catcher with a comb-like leading edge to pull the berries from the plant. Today the bulk of the berries are mechanically harvested by large combing type machines with flotation tires. The harvested berries were originally marketed in 100 pound wooden barrels and yields are still reported in barrels. However, the fresh berries are now available in 12 ounce bags or window cartons.

In 1986, the U.S. production of cranberries was a record-setting 3.57 million barrels with Wisconsin, New Jersey, Oregon and Washington providing the bulk of the crop. Once purchased, cranberries require refrigeration at 36 to 40 degrees and a relative humidity of 85 to 90 percent. One-half cup of fresh cranberries provides 10 percent of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C and has only 25 calories. However, this is not a fruit that has so much appeal and flavor that it is readily eaten fresh out of hand.

Cow Pregnancy Test

If you're wondering why the number of calves in your herd is dwindling, it's because your cows aren't pregnant. I'm not trying to be funny, but I do want to prove a point.

If you have cows that are not pregnant, they may need to be culled. You have two choices in culling. Wait until calving time and cull cows that don't have calves. Your second alternative is to test your cows for pregnancy and cull them after the test.

Pregnancy testing can save you time and money. It eliminates guesswork. A cow can't be a little pregnant; either she is or she isn't. The expense of carrying a pregnant cow is not that much greater than carrying one that is not pregnant.

Seventy percent of your annual cost per cow will be incurred regardless of whether a cow produces a calf or not.

Christmas Trees

Tree farmers are reminded to rid their Christmas tree crop of insect pests before harvesting. Aphids and scales may discolor needles and cause them to shed prematurely, thus ruining your crop.

These pests can be controlled with applications of orthonene, dursban, diazinon, cygon or malathion.

Storage of Pesticides

Store all your pesticides under lock and key. Too many accidents happen when children and animals come in contact with them especially during the holiday season.

Don't store pesticides with or near feed, seed or clothing. Storage areas should be well lighted, ventilated and temperature-controlled. They also should be fire-resistant and have an exhaust fan.

Warning signs should be posted on all doors of storage facilities and all doors should be locked. Keep products in their original containers, with labels intact. Write the date of purchase on all pesticide containers so product age can later be determined if needed.

Termites

Termites tend to shift their colonies deeper into the soil as cool weather approaches. They generally don't swarm or establish new colonies this time of year. Some species of ants, however, do swarm now as they seek overwintering sites.

Rose Planting

It's much too early to plant dormant rose bushes but it's not too early to prepare the site. Start with a soil test, and amend the soil to provide good drainage. Group roses in a bed to make spraying, fertilizing and general care easier.

State Crop Report

Dry weather increases fall logging efforts.

Mississippi's wood mills will be well-stocked with lumber this winter because the dry fall allowed loggers to meet their cutting schedules.

More wood going to the mills on time means more products made, more workers hired and more money staying in the state as manufacturing activity is maintained, said Bob Daniels, forest products utilization specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"We're in good shape in Mississippi," Daniels said. "Business is humming right along."

A wet fall would have delayed logging, and some mills would have been forced to cut in harsher weather to meet needed inventory levels. Because most of Mississippi's 800 wood-using mills are well-stocked for winter manufacturing, they will have enough wood to carry them through periods when winter weather makes logging impossible.

"Those folks at the mills are glad to get the logs in," Daniels said. "One mill manager told me he now had the most inventory he has ever had."

He said a few mills have begun to limit the number of logs they are taking because inventory stocks are adequate to continue manufacturing throughout wintertime.

Timber is a top crop in Mississippi, and thus is an integral part of the state's economy. Last year it was the number one crop in 62 of Mississippi's 82 counties. Since 1980, the timber industry has invested $1.5 billion for plants and equipment in the state.

The state has 16.3 million acres of commercial timberland.

In other agricultural news, state farmers trying to plant winter wheat and winter forages welcomed the rain that fell earlier in the week.

"Rainfall this past Monday was in excess of 4 inches over the county," said George Alley, Carroll County agent. "Only minor damage resulted from strong tornado-like winds Monday night."

"The rain will also stop wildfires which were a problem in Scott County last week," said William O. Goodwin, county agent.

Cows have four stomachs.

South Central Bell Stylist Service

If you've ever wanted your phone number to really "say something," here's your chance.

South Central Bell says you can now list your phone number as a word instead of a number -- providing the word is not obscene.

Using a new "Stylist (SM) Service," you can use the letters on the telephone dial or touch pad to create a word from your telephone number.

"Personalized numbers can spell out anything -- names, jobs, acronyms, special number combinations, or whatever strikes your fancy," said Tom Bailey, district manager.

And that's how your number will be listed in the telephone directory.

Stylist Service costs $2.50 a month for residence telephones. If you want to get a special number, there is an additional one-time special search and assign charge of $22.00. If your current number spells a word, there is no search and assign charge.

Once you subscribe to the service, the monthly charge is in effect for at least a year, from directory to directory.

There are a few limitations on the word or letters you use, however. The number must have seven letters or a seven digit/letter combination that corresponds to your telephone number. You cannot use a word containing

Q or Z because those letters aren't on the telephone dial. And the word cannot be profane or obscene.

In addition, the number must be available. Only one customer can use the word F-L-O-W-E-R-S, for example.

"These personalized telephone numbers are a response to consumer desires to creatively express themselves," said Bailey. "It's a logical extension of prestige auto license plates."

Pilot Project Offers Parenting Skills

Fifteen teenage mothers in Adams County are learning parenting skills through a pilot project administered by the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs and funded through a two-year grant from the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

Federal-State Programs' Commission for Children and Youth (CCY) received two-year funding of $150,000 for programs in five Mississippi counties on parenting skills for teenage mothers, 13-17. Programs have been completed in Washington County for 11 teenage mothers and in Leflore County for 17 teenage mothers. Two more programs will be offered during 1988 in counties that have not been chosen.

Child development and basic care for infants from birth to two years are taught through the project. Two-hour classes are held once a week for 10-12 weeks. The classes are taught by Laverne Harrison, project trainer for CCY.

Objectives are to improve the parenting skills of young mothers and increase the positive life options, often hindered by early child-bearing, available to teenage mothers.

"The overall project goal is to develop a program model which can serve as a blueprint for other groups and agencies to develop similar programs in their communities," said Jane Swett, project director for CCY. "Materials will be available to other communities, and the project is organized so that it can be distributed with little or no funding."

The curriculum is written at a basic reading level so that it is readable by teens with low literacy skills.

Community volunteers who serve as "big sisters," working on a one-on-one basis with each teenage mother, are an important part of the project. The female volunteers provide transportation to the weekly sessions, make at least one home visit a week to help the teenage mother with parenting skills and provide other counseling and assistance.

Teenage participants are referred by schools and local service agencies, such as the health department.

For additional information, contact the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, Commission for Children and Youth, 301 W. Pearl St., Jackson, MS 39203-3093, telephone: (601) 949-2054.

Attention: Former De Sailors

In the annals of naval history the destroyer escorts are acknowledged for winning "THE BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC". Though many of these ships were recommissioned during the Korean conflict and used in reserve service, they are non-existent today.

Over ten years ago, a dedicated group of men formed the "DESTROYER ESCORT SAILORS ASSOCIATION" to honor those sailors who served on board the destroyer escorts. They believed that the destroyer escort sailor should not be lost to oblivion as most of their ships were. These ships were considered obsolete for our present day Navy and were sold for scrap iron or used as targets for torpedo/missile practice.

If your interest is activated as a former destroyer escort sailor, we are having a reunion and convention for your shipmates in St. Louis, September 2-6, 1988. Anyone who served aboard these types of ships or knows of anyone who did, please contact:
