Reading Tutors' Workshop Set

WHERE? Burnsville Public Library
WHEN? January 16, 23, & 30
TIME? 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. each session

WHY? To learn how to teach an adult to read.

"Why would I want to teach an adult to read? I don't know anyone who can't read, and I don't think we have many people in that situation."

People who can't read are often very good at hiding their problem from friends and neighbors. These are the facts: 36% of the population of our county does not have an 8th grade education. (The 7th or 8th grade is where most kids are having problems with reading drop out because they can no longer cope.) 36% means at least 1 out of 3 people that you meet each day in Tishomingo County has a problem with reading.

Their problems with reading can negatively affect their lives in many ways. Obviously, it limits their employment options. And also obviously, they have to rely on oral information from friends, TV, or radio. (But a result that is not always considered is the effect being a non-reader in a reader's world has on a person's self-esteem). Failure eats away like an acid on self-esteem until often there is very little left. A person with little self-esteem often feels like he is powerless to control the direction of his life.

A few of our 4,000 people that probably need help have come to us wanting to learn to read. To step forward to ask for help is often as hard for a non-reader as it is for an alcoholic.

These brave people need tutors. They need a special friend who is willing to generously share his good fortune and skill with reading; someone who can prepare them for a better job; someone who can teach them to read the Bible and share with them the beauty of God's Word; a very special person who can lead them through successful experiences in reading and build up their confidence and self-esteem.

You can give someone a gift beyond price. And all it takes is a little of your time.

Volunteer to teach an adult to read. You can make a world of difference.

Call 423-6300 today.

Local Citizens For Decency

Most all of the citizens in Tishomingo County are believers in God and the moral standards found in the Bible. They are also concerned about the growing amount of sex, violence, and profanity on television, in books and magazines, and at the local video businesses. Much of this material has crossed the line into pornography. According to Webster, pornography is "writings, pictures, etc. intended to arouse sexual desire." This material breeds most sex crimes as convicted sex molesters have testified. To protect our families from such things the legislature of Mississippi has written laws pertaining to obscenities. In Indianola and Clarksdale law officials are enforcing this much neglected law. X-rated videos are being removed in these counties.

A number of Tishomingo County citizens have formed a chapter of The National Federation For Decency. They invite anyone, who is tired of remaining silent while trends are going downhill, to become involved.

The next meeting will be held at the Deposit Guaranty Bank in Tishomingo on Tuesday, January 19th at 7:00 p.m. Something can be done to stop pornography in Tishomingo County. If you have questions, please contact one of the local board members: Perry Taylor 423-6891, Ted Vafeas 423-1597, Carla Purvis 423-9006, Leonard Osborn 424-9529, Paul Brooks 427-9019, Richard Carlson 438-6613, T.E. Davis 423-5261, or Steve Logan 423-1549.

Randy Proctor, the Associate Director of the American Family Association, (the headquarters of the National Federation on Decency) will be here to explain more of what can be done. You are urged to make plans to attend.

Ross McCall To Speak At Mt. Evergreen

Ross McCall will speak at Mt. Evergreen Methodist Church. Be there Sunday, January 17, 6 p.m. and hear a true account of the compassion of Jesus Christ at work in a life that took a whole new direction.

Ross has spoken at Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International. He became Oklahoma State Director of Capitol Hill Anointed Intercessors of the Nation (a prayer chain). Pat Boone, Pat Robertson, J. Stewart, Dr. Johnny Johnson and others have this to say "Ross is proof of God's grace and glory." If you enjoy stories of suspense or horror or love of animals, or would like to know why an average person in this area has been invited from coast to coast to speak. If you have heard Ross, or seen him on TV, do not tell your friends what happened. Bring them. Dr. Johnny Johnson said "I have seen and/or heard of many miracles and proof that Christ lives, but never anymore amazing than this. I am trying to get him to finish his book and have Doubleday print it."

Come join us on Sunday, January 17 at 6 p.m. You will be blessed.

Refreshments will be served after the service.

Hot Dog Supper At Tishomingo

The Tishomingo United Methodist Church will sponsor a Hot Dog Supper, Saturday night January 16 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

You may purchase a plate consisting of a hot dog, baked beans, slaw, chips, dessert and a drink for only $2.00.

Live entertainment will be provided for your enjoyment.

All proceeds will go to the Mississippi Lung Association.

Winter Storm Front Brings Heavy Snow

A cold front that moved through our area over the weekend brought with it a winter storm system that dumped from 10 to 12 inches of snow in some areas.

On Wednesday, January 6, Tishomingo County saw light snow flurries but also lots of sunshine. In the late afternoon and night snow began falling in greater density as the temperature continued to drop. By Thursday morning, there was an accumulation of approximately 10½ inches in the Iuka area, bringing schools, factories, and most businesses to a halt as hazardous travelers advisories were issued.

Students enjoyed an extended Christmas Holiday as the Iuka City Schools remained closed until Tuesday, January 12, and county schools were still closed at presstime.

Snow and ice continued to make travel on area roads and highways difficult and hazardous through the weekend.

On Monday, the area slowly began to come back to life and resume regular schedules. There is still a problem of ice on some of the city streets and in curves and on bridges on some of the roads.

There has been some reports of minor fender benders, some slight property damage, and a lot of inconvenience as a result of the storm. Fortunately, no injuries have been attributed to the storm.

Iuka Headstart Creates Snow Lady!

The first day back to school was an exciting one for the children of the Iuka Headstart Center. After the three day vacation from school and the long weekend the children were full of pep and energy and not at all ready to go back to the ho hum of classes. With their creative skills and suggestions, the staff of the Headstart Center constructed this colorful snow lady. Enjoying playing winter

Near Mississippi - Tennessee State Line

Snowfall blanketed Tishomingo County Wednesday night creating hazardous driving conditions and forcing the closings of many industries and area schools.

Snow moved into the area late on Wednesday and by Thursday almost a foot of snow was reported in some areas. Snow and ice continued to make area roads and highways treacherous on through the weekend. According to reports several fender benders and vehicles slipping off the road was reported as a result of the icy conditions but no serious accidents were reported.

Former Resident Found Murdered

Charles Watson, 54, formerly of Iuka was found dead in his wrecked Ford pickup truck about 1½ miles from his home in Saltillo, Tennessee on Tuesday, January 5.

Hardin County Sheriff's Department has arrested John Reeder Robbins, 45, of Saltillo, Tennessee, charging him with the first degree murder of Watson.

Authorities answering a call to an automobile accident discovered Watson's body in his overturned Ford pickup. A closer examination revealed Mr. Watson had been shot with a 410-gauge shotgun slug.

According to family members, Robbins, a slight acquaintance of Watson's, had run over a deer and had offered Watson half the deer to help him dress it. After dressing the deer they had gone to carry some of the deer to someone else and were on their way back home when the incident occurred.

Family members said Robbins was seen leaving the scene (by an unidentified source) after the pick-up left the road, struck a tree and overturned in a ditch.

Robbins is being held in Hardin County Jail placed under $75,000 bond. A preliminary hearing has been set for Friday, January 15.

No motive for the murder has been established and authorities continue to investigate.

Funeral services for Charles Watson were held Saturday, January 9. He was a native of Iuka, the son of the late Lewis "Buck" and Blanche Watson. Survivors include his wife, Martha Watson of Saltillo, Tenn.; four daughters, Teresa Lambert of Booneville, Sandy White of Burnsville, and Sherry Stevenson and Ann Marie Taylor, both of Iuka; two sons, David Watson of Iuka, and Buck Watson of Saltillo, Tenn.; one stepson, Mike Ray of Memphis; two sisters, Shirley Masner of Memphis, and Donna Scott of Iuka; two brothers, Bobby Watson of Berwyn, Ill., and Jerry Watson, of Florida; and six grandchildren.

Report From The Senate

BY: Senator Irb Benjamin

The Siberian winter ice storm that hit the "Sunny South" did not cool the excitement of the opening week of the 1988 Legislative Session. I was pleased to be joined by my family when I took the oath of office as your State Senator at noon on Tuesday. It was with great pride that I took this solemn oath and I wish to reiterate my pledge to serve you with honesty, integrity and with the best interest of the state at heart.

Our first order of business was to elect a President Pro Tempore who presides in the absence of the Lieutenant Governor. We selected unanimously and without opposition Senator Glen Deweese of Meridian. Senator Deweese is a 12-year veteran of the Senate and is one of its most respected members.

On Wednesday, Governor Bill Allain made his final State of the State address in which he reviewed the accomplishments made during his term and left us with his suggestions for the future as he bid us farewell. In addition to continuing to make strides in education, economic development, and public health and welfare, he suggested that we consider creating a Department of Transportation and taking the issue of constitutional reform to the people to decide in a referendum if you want reform by means of amendments or a constitutional convention. He said he hopes that his administration will be remembered as having been fair, open, honest, caring, and compassionate.

The ice storm did not stop the inauguration of Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye and our six other state officials. Dye reviewed the legislative accomplishments of his eight years in office including the Education Reform Act, the four-lane highway program, and the innovative programs to attract new business and industry. He noted that the people of Mississippi are now united and have faith in our state and that the rest of the nation is seeing us in a positive light. He pledged his cooperation with the new governor.

Next week, we look forward to the inauguration of Governor Ray Mabus and getting a look at the legislation for this Session.

I would be glad to hear your views on any issue. Please feel free to write to me at the Mississippi State Senate, P. O. Box 1018, Jackson, Mississippi 39205 or call me at 359-3770.

Nine million tons of salt are applied to American highways each year for road de-icing.

CARING FOR YOUR PET

Regardless of whether your cat has nine lives or just one, vaccination against major feline diseases is the best protection a responsible pet owner can provide.

Many of the more serious feline diseases can be prevented through annual vaccinations. And many of the vaccinations against the various diseases may be given in combination.

Rabies heads the list of infectious diseases that can be prevented through an annual vaccination. In recent years, the number of confirmed cases of feline rabies has increased dramatically nationwide. In 1981, the number of cat rabies cases exceeded the number of canine rabies cases for the first time in history. It is now estimated that for every three cases of canine rabies in this country, there are four cases of feline rabies. Feline panleukopenia - the most virulent and devastating of all diseases in cats - also can be prevented through annual vaccinations.

Combination vaccines are available to protect felines from the major respiratory diseases, including feline viral rhinotracheitis (FVR), feline calicivirus (FCV) and feline pneumonitis. These diseases are responsible for approximately 90 percent of all upper respiratory infections in cats.

A regular vaccination program for your cat will protect it. The modern vaccines currently available are the best protection you can provide for your cat - whether it has nine lives or just one.

Bill Wheeler For All The People

Hello, my first week in the Legislature was both interesting and exciting. It is hard to explain the gratification I feel in coming to Jackson to represent you. I am impressed with the membership of the House. Most of the individuals are forward looking, interested in serving the people as well as determined to advance our standard of living. I am very optimistic concerning the legislation that this session will produce.

I am in the process of learning pages on top of pages of new and old House Rules. One of the first actions we took Tuesday was to defeat an Old Guard attempt to delay the implementation of the new, more democratic Rules.

Other than that, most of our time was spent discussing new legislation, meeting government officials from across the state, and putting our request in for committee assignments. We should receive our committee appointments by the middle of this week and be into a full legislative work load by the end of the week.

I was certainly disappointed to hear that the federal government left Mississippi out of its list of eight finalist for the Super Collider project.

However, the state government issued a strong protest to the Department of Energy in Washington concerning its method of selection. Whether we get the $4.4 Billion project or not, our attempt has certainly shown the rest of the nation that Mississippi will no longer take a back seat. Today and in the future, the rest of the nation will take notice of Mississippi's competitive nature. I believe we have a bright future.

Mississippi's legislative pace is expected to increase following the inauguration of incoming Governor Ray Mabus on Tuesday. Several hundred bills and resolutions have been introduced in both chambers and are awaiting consideration during the 125-day session.

The State Constitution provides for the first session of a new four-year term to last 125 days. Other sessions are 90 days each year. In the House of Representatives, the session was convened at noon January 5 by Secretary of State Dick Molpus. Following the opening prayer, the oath of office was administered by the Secretary of State to the 122 members, including 35 "freshmen" legislators.

Highlights of the opening week included the election of Speaker Tim Ford, re-election of Speaker Pro Tempore Cecil Simmons, adoption of House rules, and election of two important House committees - Rules and Management.

Ford, a 36-year-old Tupelo attorney starting his third term in the Mississippi House, was chosen by acclamation to succeed retiring Speaker C. B. (Buddie) Newman. He emphasized team effort, a positive attitude, and willingness to work in his opening remarks. He concluded with these words:

"Mississippi does not have the most of everything, but we can make the most of everything we have. Together we can make a difference."

Simmons, a member of the House since 1972, also was elected by acclamation. He was first elected to the newly created office last year following approval of several House rule changes. His responsibilities as Speaker Pro Tem include presiding over the House in the absence of the Speaker, and serving as chairman of the Management Committee which oversees administrative and staffing matters for the House.

The 1987 rule changes were brought forward as part of the House rules adopted for the new term. Under the new rules, a majority of the members of the Rules Committee and Management Committee are elected by their colleagues, with two members chosen from each congressional district, rather than being appointed as in past years.

Charles J. Jackson, Jr., was re-elected Clerk of the House. The House and Senate held a joint session to hear Governor Bill Allain's farewell address. Another joint session was held for the swearing-in of Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye and other state officials.

Major issues in the 1988 session are expected to include teacher salaries, additional funding for higher education, economic development, health care programs, constitutional revision, tort reform, Medicaid, and a mandatory county-unit system of road management for the 82 counties.

One of the biggest responsibilities of any session is the approval of operating funds for schools, universities, prison facilities, health care, and various state agencies and institutions. State finances will be a dominant issue again in 1988.

Legislators recently received copies of the 537-page Legislative Budget Report for the next fiscal year as prepared by the Legislative Budget Committee. The final decision on these recommendations and the Governor's budget proposals will be in the hands of lawmakers.

I look forward to talking to you soon. If you need to contact me call me at 676-2063 or 359-3770.

passing supplies. Supply slowly caught up demand toward the end of 1987 and now has major demand.

"As a result of supply catching demand, Mississippi consumers can expect continued good prices for poultry and eggs throughout the year," Haynes said.

Lower feed prices caused by lower grain prices will maintain good poultry prices. "If producers are paying for feed, then their sales will be passed on to consumers," Haynes said.

In other agricultural farming activities across the state are at a standstill because of cold weather.

"Our firewood is running short," said James R. Mond, Jefferson Davis County agent. "Tender growth and wheat have been burned by cold."

Farmers in Perry County are spraying fruit trees for scales and those in Adams County are putting out for livestock because of pastures.

Livestock feed supplies in Lauderdale County are adequate, said county agent James Hollis.

State Crop Report

Consumers can expect grocery store bargains on chicken and eggs because of a projected increase in supply.

Poultry prices are expected to remain at 1987 levels or even drop as supplies exceed consumer demand, said Dr. Robert Haynes, professor of poultry science and poultry specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Haynes said demand for poultry was strong at the beginning of last year, sur-

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

DR. PHILLIP GRAY

OPTOMETRIST

If you have a low vision problem, your eye doctor can recommend a number of aids to help you have a more visually normal life.

Low vision refers to several levels of limited sight that can interfere with a person's daily activities. This includes the partially-sighted person whose clearness or sharpness of vision cannot be corrected beyond the 20/70 range. Someone with 20/70 vision can see objects at 20 feet that a person with normal vision can see at 70.

After you have had your vision tested by an optometrist, he can recommend certain devices to help you see better. These may include telescopic lenses for distance vision and microscopic lenses for reading or close detail work. Many large print books and magazines are now available as well as "talking books" from the Library of Congress. Your eye doctor can assist you in obtaining these and many other services that are available to people with low-vision problems.

There's no need to suffer with low-vision problems when there are so many ways your optometrist can suggest to help you see better and more comfortably.

Two ways to save on your electric bills

1. An electric heat pump can help you heat, cool, and save on your electric bill. Besides cooling your home in summer, a heat pump gives you the most efficient form of central electric heating in winter.

2. A heat pump water heater pulls energy out of thin air. By absorbing warmth from the air, it can cut your water heating costs by up to 50 percent.

Mississippi School for Math & Science

Students interested in applying for admission to the Mississippi School for Math and Science will have an extra few weeks in which to complete the application process. Johnny Franklin, school director, says the deadline for applications has been extended from February 19 to March 31, 1988.

Franklin says the extension results from a State Department of Education effort to allow prospective students additional time to take the required standardized tests. A special administration of one such test was scheduled by the SDE for January 9.

Franklin says there have been a significant number of applications from across the state. "So far, we have had students from approximately 60 different counties apply for admission to the school. We hope this extension allows even more students an opportunity to apply."

For more information on the Mississippi School for Math and Science, call 1-800-533-6459, or write to the school at P. O. Box W-1627, Columbus, MS 39701.

MAFES News

Mississippi's early-maturing cotton variety DES 119, officially released in 1985, continued its promising performance last year and the state's cotton growers will find an abundant supply of high quality certified seed available for spring plantings.

Developed in the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station's breeding program at the Delta Branch Experiment Station, DES 119 has consistently outperformed other popular varieties in tests at a half dozen Mississippi locations. Plant breeder R. R. Bridge says the new variety was at the top of the list of 20 cotton varieties grown in four Delta environments last year, averaging 1,279 pounds of lint per acre. Further, it has the best 3-year (1985-87) performance of the top dozen cottons grown at six locations in the state, averaging 1,230 pounds of lint per acre.

To put this in perspective, one only has to compare the new variety's track record with Mississippi's overall cotton crop. Although all the final figures have not been tabulated, the December 1 estimate by the Mississippi Agricultural Statistics Service, predicted that the state's 1987 cotton crop will total something around 1.75 million bales, an increase of more than half a million bales over the year before. The 12

Delta counties will account for more than 1.2 million of those 480-pound bales. Lint yield per acre in the Delta is expected to average 922 pounds per acre. That makes the DES 119 average (1,279 pounds) look even more impressive!

Bridge says the Mississippi cotton breeding program has been working on early maturity for a number of years to give growers better odds of getting the crop harvested during traditionally dry weather months. "In 1978, only 15 percent of the state's cotton acreage was planted to early maturing varieties." Several varieties were developed and released (DES 56 and DES 24 were replaced by DES 422 in 1981) and by 1982, almost 85 percent of the Mississippi crop was in the earlier cottons.

DES 119 shaved about 5 more days off the growing season needed by DES 422. It has some other advantages as well. Bridge says it has slightly longer and stronger fiber. It has a short fruiting branch structure and sets fruit very rapidly. Regional disease tests in Alabama confirmed that it has even more genetic resistance to Fusarium wilt than the resistant check variety McNair 235. It has good resistance to Verticillium wilt. It also appears to have high tolerance to the 'Heliothis' sp. of insect pests, and tests in Arizona indicated good heat tolerance in DES

119. The industry has been quick to recognize the attributes of DES 119. Most of the 2,500 tons of DES 119 seed available for spring 1987 planting was sold. very cotton-growing state except New Mexico included 119 in their 1987 variety tests. Some 12,000 Mississippi acres were devoted to DES 119 seed production this past season (plus 4,000 acres in Arizona, and 3,000 acres each in Louisiana and Alabama).

Chester Milner, executive secretary of the Mississippi Seed Improvement Association, says the variety DES 119 is approved for certification in Mississippi. He reports that preliminary tests of seed certified from last year's crop indicate exceptionally good quality and that there's plenty of certified seed to handle the demands of Mississippi growers planning their new crop.

All certified seed of DES 119 and other varieties and germplasm released from the MAFES/MSU breeding program is available only through Public Varieties of Mississippi, Inc. This non-profit corporation was established by the industry in late 1986 to preserve, promote, and protect public developed crop varieties and germplasm of all species important to Mississippi agriculture.

DES varieties and those developed from DES germplasm accounted for 70 percent of Mississippi's 1987 cotton acreage and an estimated 10 percent of the nation's cotton acreage. Bridge feels that breeding earliness into cotton varieties has just about reached its practical limit. "If we get much earlier, we risk yield variations. And if cotton bolls open in early September and we get much rain, the seeds will deteriorate or sprout in the boll." Instead, Bridge and his state and federal co-workers at the Delta Branch, North Mississippi Branch, and at Mississippi State are directing their efforts on increasing fiber strength and improving insect and disease resistance in their early maturing, high yielding cottons.

Their long-term goal is to enable growers in Mississippi and throughout the Mid-South cottonbelt, to more efficiently produce higher quality cotton to meet the demands of both the domestic industry and expanding international markets.

Have you ever heard or said, "But Mom, there's nothing to do!" With the recent snow and most families being house bound, I'm sure this has been heard in many homes.

Children have a hard time staying cooped up during bad weather. Their restlessness can make it hard on parents, too.

If you prepare yourselves ahead of time, then perhaps a variety of activities will not leave time for anyone to be bored.

Remember, when planning activities that children generally feel that sport and motor skills are the "most important" learning activities.

In addition, family influence an involvement in the life of the young person was the most frequently stated reason for becoming interested in a learning activity. However, teens rank the influence of friends highest in determining how teens view practical or recreational learning.

The desire for self-accomplishment, interest in the activity, and family influence and support all are important factors contributing to a child or teen's decision to learn about something.

Keeping in mind these factors about children learning, parents can be prepared the next time the weather forecasters predict snow and ice or even for a rainy day when everyone is house bound.

One way to ease boredom is to play games. This game is called "Feather Volleyball". It can be played with a minimum of two people and a maximum of 12. To play, all you need is a feather, two chairs and a piece of string. The group is divided into two teams. The chairs are placed between the teams and the string is tied across the chairs about 3 feet from the floor.

The rules are similar to volleyball, except each person should stay on their knees. The feather is blown back and forth across the string. For variety, drinking straws may be used to blow the feather.

Other activities to ease boredom include cooking. Perhaps you can try the following recipe or allow the children to make it themselves.

1/2 c. butter or margarine
1 1/4 c. firmly packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup self-rising flour
1 cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Grease bottom of 9-inch square baking pan. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat. Remove from heat. Stir in remaining ingredients in order listed; mix well. Spread in prepared pan. Bake 30 minutes. Cool in pan. Cut into 16 squares.

4-H projects offer many ideas to keep young people busy. For example, the recreation project and the foods/nutrition projects were used in today's article.

For more information on how you can be involved in 4-H call me at 423-3616.

The 1988 legislative session has gotten off to a relatively smooth beginning with the opening week devoted, mostly to traditional swearing-in ceremonies, the election of officers and other organizational chores.

The legislative pace was expected to increase this week following the inauguration of incoming Governor Ray Mabus on Tuesday. Several hundred bills and resolutions have been introduced in both chambers and are awaiting consideration during the 125-day session.

The State Constitution provides for the first session of a new four-year term to last 125 days. Other sessions are 90 days each year.

In the House of Representatives, the session was convened at noon January 5 by Secretary of State Dick Molpus. Following the opening prayer, the oath of office was administered by the Secretary of State to the 122 members, including 35 "freshmen" legislators.

Highlights of the opening week included the election of Speaker Tim Ford, re-election of Speaker Pro Tempore Cecil Simmons, adoption of House rules, and election of two important House committees -- Rules and Management.

In addition, an abortive effort was made to raise the salaries of the governor and a number of other state officials. Sponsors said the bill would have enabled lawmakers to consider pay raises for other officials whose salaries are locked in by a law which forbids their being paid more than the state's chief executive. The State Constitution prohibits the governor from getting a salary increase during his term but another move may be made later to give other officials a raise.

Ford, a 36-year-old Tupelo attorney starting his third term in the Mississippi House, was chosen by acclamation to succeed retiring Speaker C. B. (Buddie) Newman. He emphasized team effort, a positive attitude, and willingness to work in his opening remarks. He concluded with these words:

"Mississippi does not have the most of everything, but we can make the most of everything we have. Together we can make a difference."

Simmons, a member of the House since 1972, also was elected by acclamation. He was first elected to the newly created office last year following approval of several House rule changes. His responsibilities as Speaker Pro Tem include presiding over the House in the absence of the Speaker, and serving as chairman of the Management Committee which oversees administrative and staffing matters for the House.

The 1987 rule changes were brought forward as part of the House rules adopted for the new term. There was an unsuccessful move to temporarily delay action on the 1988 rules, but the attempt was defeated by voice vote after a brief but spirited debate.

Under the new rules, a majority of the members of the Rules Committee and Management Committee are elected by their colleagues, with two members chosen from each congressional district, rather than being appointed as in past years.

Charles J. Jackson, Jr., was re-elected Clerk of the House. The House and Senate held a joint session to hear Governor ditional funding for higher education, economic development, health care programs, constitutional revision, tort reform, Medicaid, and a mandatory county-unit system of road management for the 82 counties.

One of the biggest responsibilities of any session is the approval of operating funds for schools, universities, prison facilities, health care, and various state agencies and institutions. State finances will be a dominant issue again in 1988.

Legislators recently received copies of the 537-page Legislative Budget Report for the next fiscal year as prepared by the Legislative Budget Committee. The final decision on these recommendations and the Governor's budget proposals will be in the hands of lawmakers.

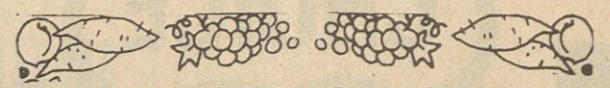

Revival

Beginning Sunday, January 24, the Tishomingo Baptist Church will host a revival. The revival will run through Wednesday, January 27, with services starting at 7:00 p.m. nightly. The visiting evangelist will be Bro. Randy Bostick.

Car upholstery can be protected from greasy work clothes by covering the seats with fitted bed sheets.

Fire Damages Home

The home of Thomas and Donna Curry located on Harmony Road was partially destroyed Sunday night when a fire which may have started from a wood burning heater broke out. The fire started in a room in the end of the house in a wall behind the heater. Volunteer fire departments from Burnsville and Midway responded to the alarm. Damage caused by the fire was more or less contained in the one room and all household goods were saved.

Traffic Fatalities Dropped in 1987

James L. Roberts, Jr., commissioner of public safety, announced that the number of traffic fatalities in Mississippi dropped in 1987 compared to 1986.

A preliminary statistical summary shows that 745 people lost their lives in traffic accidents in 1987 compared to 766 deaths in 1986.

Deaths occurring from injuries sustained in accidents that took place in 1987 will be included in the year's total until January 15.

"Higher public awareness of speed zones and speed limits and an increased speed enforcement effort by the Highway Patrol using non-radar detectable speed monitoring devices and aircraft are the primary reasons for the reduced number of traffic deaths," Roberts said.

"Also, in my opinion, the attention given by the news media to our speed enforcement strategies played a significant role in decreasing the speeds driven by motorists on Mississippi highways and thus aided in the decrease of fatalities in 1987."

According to a report by the Mississippi State Highway Department, the percent of vehicles exceeding 55 miles per hour decreased by 24 percent during the fourth quarter of 1987 (August-October).

"A substantial increase in the manpower of the Highway Patrol during 1987, resulting in higher visibility of troopers on the highways, was also a contributing factor in the decrease," Roberts said.

Seventy-one new state troopers graduated from the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol training program at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy in August of this year and 47 more were commissioned in December.

"Of the 118 officers commissioned in 1987, 105 are assigned to the enforcement division," Roberts said.

"We want to work together with Mississippi's motorists during 1988 to achieve an even lower highway death count in this state," the commissioner said.

During the 102-hour New Year's observance that ended Sunday, January 3, 1988, 10 people died in eight automobile crashes. This compares to seven highway deaths from five automobile crashes during last year's observance.

Highway death statistics from the patrol during the 10-year period between 1978 and 1987 are:

1987 New And Expanded Industry Figures

"1987 was a banner year for economic development in Mississippi," says Jerry McDonald, executive director of the Mississippi Department of Economic Development. "During the past year, the number of announced intentions to locate or expand businesses in Mississippi was 32 percent higher than a year ago. This significant increase in industrial activity is an additional sign that companies are making and strengthening their commitment to conduct business in Mississippi."

Announcements of 704 new and expanding industrial facilities during 1987 are projected to result in 17,904 new jobs with projected capital investments of $808,922,529 in Mississippi, an 11 percent increase in projected jobs over 1986, according to year-end data released by the Mississippi Department of Economic Development.

Announcements of intentions to locate 112 new manufacturing plants in Mississippi are estimated to bring 6,302 new jobs with an estimated $128,719,506 in capital investments. This represents a 18 percent increase in new facility location announcements and a 9 percent increase in the number of projected jobs over 1986.

During the past year, announcements of plans to expand or improve 592 existing manufacturing facilities, are expected to result in 11,601 projected new jobs, a 35 percent increase over the number of announced expansions by existing industries in 1986. An estimated $808,922,529 in capital investments are expected to be expended during these expansion and improvement projects. The 11,601 projected new jobs as a result of expansions represent an 11 percent increase over last year's figures.

All regions of the State participated in this industrial growth and the State as a whole experienced increases in manufacturing categories such as furniture and wood products, plastics, chemical, apparel, metal fabrication, food processing, and paper products.

Major industrial locations and expansion announcements during the year 1987 in our county include: Aluisse Packaging, Iuka; Belmont Homes, Belmont; Garan, Inc., Iuka; K. D. Context, Belmont; Kaydee Metal Products Corporation, Belmont; Lindsey Foam Products, Inc., Belmont; Mid-South Drapery, Iuka; Milligan Brothers Ready Mix, Inc., Iuka; Mississippi Stone Products, Iuka; Prentiss Manufacturing Company, Iuka; Schnadig Corporation, Belmont.

FIBER: WHY YOUR DIET SHOULD INCLUDE IT

Is it necessary to supplement my diet with bran or other fiber?

Before including additional forms of fiber in your diet, you should consult your physician.

Certain medical conditions can be aggravated by fiber, and eating large amounts can cause gastrointestinal tract complications in healthy individuals.

Fiber adds structure to plants, fruits and vegetables. Cellulose, which makes up the plant wall, is the most common fiber in plants. Other types of fiber include lignin, mucilages, polysaccharides, and pectins, which are found in fruit.

The human intestine is unable to digest cellulose and other plant fiber. Bacteria that normally reside in the intestinal tract accomplish this. Fiber absorbs a considerable amount of water as it travels through the digestive tract. Some fiber soaks up several times its weight in liquid. The colon - or the final section of the intestine - can't absorb all of the water and the result is softer, bulkier stools.

Constipation often is well controlled by periodic ingestion of bran and other fiber consisting mainly of cellulose. Several over-the-counter products that are used as laxatives, such as psyllium, are chiefly fiber. Uncooked carrots, cabbage and apples help smooth the digestive process, also.

Fiber may lower the risk for heart disease by lowering the amount of fatty substances in the bloodstream. Whole oats, carrots, and other soluble fiber added to the diet appear to reduce cholesterol and triglyceride levels, both of which are associated with heart diseases. Bran, an insoluble fiber, doesn't provide the right substance for lowering cholesterol and triglyceride levels.

If you need to increase your consumption of fiber, start with fruits and vegetables. A small amount of 100 per cent bran cereal may help, but also may cause some initial discomfort a bloated feeling and increased flatulence or intestinal gases. Fiber should be a part of healthful diet, but should be added cautiously and in moderation.

Birth Announcement

Skip and Michelle Fletcher of Booneville proudly announce the birth of their son, David Andrew Fletcher. He was born on Monday, December 21, at North Mississippi Women's Health Center in Tupelo, at 6:21 p.m., and weighed 7 lbs. 2 ozs. and was 20 inches long.

Grandparents are Willard and Virginia Fletcher of Baldwyn and Kenneth Nunley of Iuka and Barbara Nunley of Iuka.

Tree Trimming Program

Trees can post a serious problem for power companies during an ice or snow storm. It has been reported that more than 94 percent of the power failures during these storms are caused by trees.

Ice storms over recent years have caused several North Mississippi power companies to take a closer look at how they have been trimming the trees along their lines.

Robert Grondin with the Columbus Light and Water Department reported only one main line down from limb breakage during Mississippi's most recent winter storm.

"This," he said "was a direct result of a new tree trimming program the company initiated in July of 1984." Grondin said if they had not had the program, it would have taken them three to five days to restore power to all their customers. Instead, all service was restored by 5 p.m. the same day. The first trimming cycle for all Columbus Light and Water Department lines was completed in 1987.

What did they do that worked so well? Pruning techniques were employed that encourages tree growth away from nearby lines and problem trees were removed completely.

In an earlier article in the Columbus Dispatch, Bruce Verduin with Asplundh Tree Company, who contracted with Columbus to carry out the line clearance program, was quoted as saying "the techniques employed are approved by the National Arborist Association and will help the tree in the long run."

According to Grondin, the program caused quite a stir of controversy during its implementation but, even those folks who were against the program initially expressed gratitude during recent storm days.

Trees Suffer Winter Storm Damage

Three become a focal point for many of us during ice and snow storms. The beauty of the white glaze on pine bows or dangling from the branches of hardwood trees have charmed young and old alike for centuries. But the weight of the ice or snow can cause serious problems for the trees themselves. Young trees are often deformed, limbs are broken, and sometimes whole trees will topple as a result of the added weight.

Evergreens (pines, etc.) are usually more susceptible to damage due to their having more surface area to hold the weight.

We often influence the amount of damage to trees by our choice of plantings. Trees planted north of their natural range often fall victim to ice and storm damage. Two examples here in Mississippi are the long-needed slash pine and the live oak. Top and limb breakage are common in slash pine. The live oaks, though tolerant of hurricanes, will sometimes break under the weight of the ice, or suffer cold damage, later resulting in dieback of parts or all of a tree.

Dead, dying or diseased branches are frequently the first to break under the additional weight of ice or snow. Unattended street or yard trees can and often do, become hazardous during winter storms or even high winds.

Trees with diseased or malformed trunks are more likely to break than those of healthy trees. Branches that separate from the tree trunk in a narrow v-shaped pattern may split off due to the weakness of the juncture. Shallow-rooted trees can fall from the weight strain.

Tender loving care is needed after a tree has experienced the stress of a winter storm. Broken limbs should be pruned back to the parent limb in order to heal properly and reduce fungal infection. Wounds resulting from broken branches peeling back the bark should be traced with a sharp knife creating a smooth, not jagged edge. This also improves the tree's ability to close a wound.

Split limbs or crotches can sometimes be saved by artificial bracing with trees that are partially uprooted may be resection is taken soon after storm. They should be straightened, soil repacked around the roots, then or braced. These two should probably be tried on young trees or trees of extreme high value due to increased possibility of damage occurring again.

Deformity of young can sometimes be prevented if actions are taken during snow or ice period or thereafter. Carefully know the accumulation of snow with a broom or other can reduce the stress, the temperatures have above freezing, spraying most heavily coated branches with water can speed melting process and, temperatures are expected drop again, reduce stress.

Jackson State Receives Grant

The Alcohol/Drug Abuse Center at Jackson State University has received a $34,500 grant from the Mississippi State Department to conduct AIDS education and minority project within minority communities.

"We will begin the project by conducting a field study on knowledge, attitudes, sexual behavior as related to aids," said Dr. Bettye K. Scher, project director of the center.

"We will also conduct state-wide conferences and develop informational materials on the HIV virus," she added.

English Pea Planting About A Month Away.....

By: Milo Burnham Horticulturist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

English peas are those little, round, green things that you push around your dinner plate with a fork. Most Mississippians call them green peas and only occasionally English peas. The name pea by itself is generally interpreted as referring to blackeyes, pinkeyes or crowders.

Green peas hold an honored place in the history of genetics since Gregor Mendel used them in working out the laws of genetic inheritance in the mid-19th century. Since that time, and with the development of genetic improvement by plant breeding, more than 2,000 varieties of green peas have been developed. Fortunately, gardeners do not have to contend with all these varieties when trying to select a variety to plant.

A favorite old seed catalog of mine that dates back to 1914 lists varieties such as Alaska, Fillbasket, Improved Extra Early, Gardus, Laxtonian, Little Marvel, Nott's Excelsior, Surprise, Thomas Laxton, Bliss verbeering, Horsford's Market Garden, Stratagem and Telephone. Surprisingly, some of these varieties have withstood the test of time and are still available and planted by gardeners.

The green pea, Pisum sativum, is a cool season, hardy annual and tendrill climbing plant. Two recently released varieties, Novella and Lady Lady have almost completely replaced leaves with tendrils.

Green peas are grown for both fresh and dried use and are also frozen and canned. I remember that as a child I hated those gray-green canned peas and would rather go hungry than eat split pea soup even though it had a ham bone in it. Today, even after all these years I'm still not fond of canned peas, but have developed an appreciation for split pea soup. However, I prefer my peas frozen or better yet, fresh picked and raw.

Horticulturally, there is a lot of variation among green pea varieties. Peas can be light or dark green in color and the dry peas can be wrinkled or smooth. While some varieties have tall vines, other are dwarf. Green peas are eaten shelled but with snow and sugar peas, the pods are eaten before the peas enlarge. With edible pod types like Sugar Snap, sugar-bon, Sugar Daddy and Sugar Ann, the pods, filled with peas, are eaten without shelling.

Green peas are one of the first vegetables planted by Mississippi gardeners because they require cool weather to perform well. Most gardeners stake their peas for support, but some plant in double rows and allow the intertwined vines to support themselves. This works best with the short vine types. The varieties most commonly planted are Alderman (Telephone) a tall, late maturing variety; Progress No. 9 (Laxton's Progress) an early, large podded variety; and Thomas Laxton, an old, but early variety that served as the standard of excellence for many years. Gardeners are now also planting, in addition to these varieties, some of the newer varieties such as Green Arrow, Spring, Novella and the edible pod types.

Green peas demand a well-drained soil since they do not tolerate wet feet, moderate levels of fertility, and a slightly acid soil. Once pound of seed is enough to plant 100 feet of row or more since seed size varies with variety.

Space the seeds about one inch apart and cover them with an inch of soil. Watch for early insects since aphids spread yield reducing viruses.

Gardeners in the southern half of the state, weather permitting, can plant English peas in January while the rest of the state will wait until February. Check local seed sources for their supply of green pea varieties and seed for 1988 before ordering from a catalog. To new varieties for 1988 that you may want to evaluate in your garden this spring are Petit Pois Giroi, a disease resistant European variety that produces 9 or 10 tiny peas per pod and Curly which is reported to be an improvement over Novella and twice as productive.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER
By Michael A. Guido, Metter, Georgia

A young lady was asked to do something, but she answered, "Not now, maybe tomorrow."

"Pile up your tomorrows," cried the professor, "and you'll find you've collected nothing but a lot of yes-tomorrow. I don't know about you, but I'd like to make today worth remembering."

Tomorrow is a lamp without oil that has left many in darkness. It is the key that has locked many in dungeons of despair. It is a ship that has carried many to destruction. The spirit of tomorrow has been the ruin of millions of bodies and souls.

Wise use your today, and your tomorrow will be wonderfully kind to you.

Today, by the grace of God, turn fear into faith, greed into gratitude, demands into dedication, getting into giving, selfishness into service, and you will make today a day worth remembering.

Wait for tomorrow and you will have an empty yesterday.

Winter Wonderland

Area students got an extension to the Christmas Holidays as a winter storm moved through Northeast Mississippi on Wednesday dumping up to a foot of snow in some places. Pictured here are Chris Gray and Robert Lambert enjoying the winter wonderland of 10 1/2 inch deep snow. Snow of this magnitude is very unusual for our part of the country.

Property Damage Reported

The large and heavy accumulation of snow has been blamed for some property damage in Tishomingo County. There has been reports of roofs and sheds collapsing from the weight of the snow. No injury or extensive damages have been reported.

20th Century Club Christmas Party

The Twentieth Century Club met on December 17th in the beautifully decorated party house of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Daugherty.

The Party House is a cottage adjacent to the Daugherty home and to the pool, making this a perfect place for our Christmas Party. As guests arrived, the lights around the pool cast a very festive atmosphere and once inside, the Christmas Spirit was spread all around. The tables were beautifully decorated with Christmas table cloths and a candle glowing in the center. The whole room was warm and cozy with Christmas decorations throughout, including a small Christmas tree with beautiful wrapped gifts lying underneath.

Each club member brought a dish of food and a gift for their Secret Pal of 1987. As each club member served their plates with baked ham and a variety of other food, including coffee or tea, soft Christmas music could be heard in the background.

After everyone had enjoyed the fellowship and a delicious dinner, the gifts were handed out and each of us discovered who our Secret Pal had been in 1987. Prior to receiving their gift each member tried to guess who their Secret Pal was but only one person guessed correctly. Everyone else was totally surprised to find out who had been responsible for all the wonderful thoughts and gifts during the year.

To conclude our Christmas Party we all sang Christmas Carols and truly enjoyed sharing the joys that the Christmas season brings. Everyone had a very enjoyable evening and each left the party in a happy holiday spirit, with a feeling of thankfulness for a wonderful club year.

As we enter the New Year, we pray that 1988 will continue to bring PEACE, JOY AND HAPPINESS TO EACH AND EVERYONE!

All members, prospective members and guests are encouraged to attend.

The sixth Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up will be held February 1-19 at ASCS offices throughout the area. The CRP has been very popular with landowners in northeast Mississippi, where in a twelve county area over 150,000 acres have been enrolled in the program. This region leads the state in participation with over 30 percent of the state's total acreage. Under the program, landowners agree to remove "highly erodible cropland" from rowcrop production by planting grass or pine trees and receive ten annual rental payments which have ranged up to $45.00 per acre in previous signups. The CRP is a part of sweeping changes enacted in the federal farm bill of 1985. For the first time, federal farm programs such as crop price support payments, crop insurance, and certain FmHA loans are limited to land with adequate conservation treatment. The CRP is one of several alternatives available to landowners that will provide the adequate conservation treatment.

The Soil Conservation Service has recently notified many landowners of fields that are classified as highly erodible and will be subject to the new legislation if the individual chooses to participate in the affected farm programs. According to Bill Lipe, area official with the Soil Conservation Service in Tupelo, over 250,000 acres in this twelve county region have been classified as highly erodible to date. Lipe also encouraged anyone who has received a notice to contact the local SCS office to receive an explanation of the various alternatives available to remain eligible for federal farm program benefits.

UNA Faculty Funds Scholarships

The University of North Alabama not only has a chemistry and industrial hygiene department that is nationally certified but also a faculty who is willing to reach into their pocketbooks to recruit quality students.

Dr. Raymond E. Isbell, head of the department, said each faculty member and the secretary contributes $12.50 per month from their salaries to fund scholarships to recruit "high academic quality students."

The scholarship should "strengthen the quality of our academic program and the number of majors and minors in chemistry and industrial hygiene. The quality of our program affects the ability of our graduates to compete with graduates from other colleges and universities as well as our reputation with employing industries, professional schools and graduate schools," he said.

The UNA chemistry and industrial hygiene program is certified by the American Chemical Society.

The department offers majors in industrial chemistry, general chemistry and industrial hygiene and a minor in chemistry. The general chemistry degree prepares students for professional study in medicine, dentistry and medical technology.

The industrial hygiene program is one of less than 10 such degree programs in the nation.

Students also have cooperative program opportunities in chemistry with the Tennessee Valley Authority's National Fertilizer Development Center, the International Fertilizer Development Center and various industrial companies.

Dr. Isbell is a past president of the Alabama Academy of Science. He holds degrees from Florence State Teachers College and the University of Alabama.

Dr. Robert Gaund, professor of chemistry, oversees the preprofessional program and has had good success in placing UNA students in medical and dental schools. He has degrees from Denison and Stanford universities.

Dr. Michael Moeller, professor of chemistry, has degrees from Dartmouth College and the University of Pennsylvania. He annually coordinates the North Alabama Science Olympiad with the UNA School of Education for junior and high school students and is the sponsor of American Chemical Society - Student Affiliates.

Dr. Thomas Murray, professor of chemistry, is active in research with scientists with TVA, IFDC, Morrill Chemical Company and other companies. He holds degrees from Western Carolina University, Appalachian State University and Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Thomas Pierce is an associate professor of chemistry and director of the UNA Occupational and Environmental Health Laboratory, which offers many research opportunities for undergraduate industrial hygiene majors. He has degrees from Northwestern State University, Pittsburg State University and the University of Oklahoma.

First Tax Credits Approved For Low-Income Housing

The Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs (FSP) has approved tax credits under the Low-Income Housing Tax Credits program for 26 projects that provide multi-family rental housing for low-income Mississippians. They are the first projects in Mississippi to qualify for credits.

"The tax credit is a very valuable incentive for low-income housing," said Jeanie Smith, director of FSP's Department of Community Development (DCD). "A tax credit provides a dollar-to-dollar reduction in federal income tax, making it much more valuable than a tax deduction, which merely reduces the amount of income subject to federal tax. Therefore, tax credits should increase the development of quality, affordable housing for low-income Mississippians."

The 26 projects approved will provide 18 developers with $659,562 in tax credits for the development of 580 units at a cost of $14,332,038. The projects are in Aberdeen, Artesia, Cleveland, Edwards, Florence, Greenwood, Granda, Jackson, Long Beach, Marion, Nicholson, Ruleville and Vicksburg.

Tax credits result from the federal Tax Reform Act of 1986. Gov. Bill Allain designated DCD as the administering agency for up to $3,150,798 a year for three years in tax credits available to developers of multi-family housing for low-income Mississippians.

Housing projects must meet one of two criteria to qualify for a tax credit. At least 20 percent of the rental units must be occupied by tenants with incomes no higher than 50 percent of the county's median income, or at least 40 percent must be occupied by tenants with incomes no higher than 60 percent of the county's median income. Also, rent cannot exceed 30 percent of a tenant's income.

Tax credits of 4 percent are awarded for projects that are federally financed and 9 percent for privately financed projects. Qualified developers receive credits for 10 years, but guidelines must be met for 15 years. A developer with a 9 percent credit on qualified expenditures of $100,000 reduces federal income tax by $9,000 a year, which is $90,000 for the 10-year period.

Because of a delay in the release of federal regulations for the program, DCD awarded only a portion of the state's tax credit allocation during 1987, but Mrs. Smith is hopeful the entire amount will be allocated for 1988 and 1989. There were 10 applications in 1987 for projects that were not completed during the year. If the projects are completed successfully during 1988, the developers will receive tax credits.

DCD is taking applications for 1988. Local officials and others desiring information on the program may contact DCD at the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, 301 W. Pearl St., Jackson, Miss. 39203, telephone 949-2189.

Ask Ochsner

Q. Is there any truth to the recent claims that a poor diet can cause cancer? Mrs. B., Baton Rouge, La.

A. About one out of every four Americans now living will have cancer. And many experts agree that it is true that as many as one-third of those cancers may be caused by what we eat.

According to Dr. John S. Bolton, an oncology surgeon and co-director of the Ochsner Cancer Institute in New Orleans, cancers of the large intestine, cancer of the breast and perhaps cancer of the prostate can most likely be blamed on the American diet, with its high fat, low fiber content.

The American diet is so bad, says Dr. Bolton, that when people move from other countries to the U.S., their chances of getting breast or colon cancer increase as they adapt to the American style of eating. One study, done on Japanese who moved to the United States, proved just that. Dr. Bolton says this group is discovering that forty-percent of the typical American caloric intake comes from fat, a number three times higher than most countries in the world.

According to Dr. Bolton, dietary fat passes into the large intestine, where bacteria chemically converts some of the fat molecules into cancer-causing substances (carcinogens). If these carcinogens remain in the intestine for a while, they begin to act on the cells exposed to them. It also seems plausible that some of the carcinogens produced in the intestines are absorbed and carried to other parts of the body, such as the breasts, where they may accumulate and initiate cancers.

Currently there is no effective way of reducing cancer but there are measures you can take through diet to lower the risks of cancer: cut down on fats, increase fiber-containing foods and keep trim, Dr. Bolton says.

Cutting out a lot of fried foods is the best way of reducing your fatty intake and if you are eating meat, choose a leaner cut and reduce the size of the portion you eat. Always trim off the fat.

Poultry without the skin is very nutritious and is low in fat, but remember not to deep fry it in a batter as is done in fast food restaurants. You lose the advantage of the leaner poultry, you are eating a tremendous number of calories and you are getting the fatty acids that you don't need, he says.

Fiber-containing foods, such as fresh or frozen fruits, vegetables, whole grain cereals and whole grain breads, may reduce your chances of getting cancer. Dr. Bolton advises choosing non-fat dairy products, low-fat salad dressings, and fruit for dessert instead of high fat dessert. It's impossible to control all risk factors, such as your family history, but you can protect yourself by taking control of your lifestyle in a way that may reduce your cancer risks, he says.
