near future plans include such training. Dana and classmate Christy Robinson left, were very much impressed to actually meet and talk with Col. Engle as he toured the school Tuesday as guest of and accompanied by Horton Webb, District Marketing Manager of Aerojet Solid Propulsion Company.

The retired Air Force colonel was commander of the second orbital test flight of the space shuttle Columbia and was test pilot in the X-15 project. Lockheed/Aeroflot is one of two contractor teams bidding on NASA's $1.1-billion proposed Yellow Creek Advanced Solid Rocket Motor project.

Prior To Speaking
Tuesday's assembly of Lufkin High School students and faculty members, retired United States Air Force colonel and former astronaut Joe Engle toured several classrooms. He is shown visiting with seniors, Tracy Hayes and Jimmy Smullins.

Mrs. Margaret Gray's Computer Science lab. Colangelo stressed the importance of academic performance in a variety of subjects such as math, science, and computer technology. During assembly, he told the students that astronauts are now being chosen from candidates holding degrees in a large range of fields, whereas the past all astronauts were pilots. Tishomingo County will benefit from immediate jobs and area youth will be motivated to pursue educations related to the space program as the result of the proposed rocket motor plant, he predicted.

Teething Time

Q. What can be done about the baby's ordeal of teething?

A. Bear in mind that, like many other stages of life, teething is a natural process -- something of a rite of passage.

What we call teething is the process of the baby's teeth beginning to break through the gums. It's understandable that the baby often becomes irritable as the gums swell and become tender.

Relief often results when the baby is given a teething ring to bite on. In the same way, gently rubbing the gums with a clean finger or a small, cool spoon may be soothing. If those measures don't help, the dentist may recommend medication that temporarily numbs the gums.

As with other discomforts of babyhood, the teething period will eventually end and, with professional dental care, the stage will be set for the child to grow up with a mouthful of healthy teeth.

The food label may contain a wealth of additional information. For most foods, the ingredients are listed. The ingredients present in the largest amount by weight is listed first, followed in descending order by other ingredients.

Nutrition information on the product is required only if a manufacturer adds a nutrient to the product or makes a nutritional claim. One part of a nutrition label tells the number of calories and the amount of protein, carbohydrates, fat and sodium per serving.

Nutrition information is not required on all foods. However, many manufacturers provide nutrition labels as a service. Certain information is required on the nutrition label-serving size, number of servings per container and the amount of calories, protein, carbohydrates and fat in a serving.

Information about the amount of protein and seven essential vitamins and minerals in a serving is listed under the heading, "Percentage of Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA)." The manufacturer may choose to list additional information such as additional vitamins and minerals, polyunsaturated fats and cholesterol.

Remember, foods also contain nutrients that are not listed on the label. Eating a variety of foods is essential to good nutrition.

Information on nutrition labels can help to make wise eating choices. It is up to you to use them.

CHICKEN PIE

1 chicken, cooked & chopped
1 box sour cream
1 cup almonds, optional
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 box Escort or Tuc crackers

Put 1/2 pkg. crackers, crumbled, in buttered pyrex dish. Cut up 1 stick oleo over crackers. Mix soups, sour cream and chicken and pour over crackers. Put the rest of the box of crackers (crushed) on top. Bake 30 minutes at 300°.

You could add a little sauteed celery and onion.

The death rate from heart attack has declined nearly 34 percent in the last 12 years, says the American Heart Association, but heart attack remains the number one cause of death. The AHA estimates approximately 1.5 million Americans will have a heart attack in 1989, and 540,000 will die.

County Agents Notes

POISONOUS SPIDERS

There are two kinds of poisonous spiders found in Tishomingo County, the brown recluse and the black widow. These pests can be controlled if you know where to find them.

Brown recluse spiders hide in dark, sheltered areas inside the home. Black widow spiders usually stay outdoors under stones and trash, in wood piles and around houses.

Surface applications of dursban, diazinon or malathion will control these spiders. Follow label directions.

PECANS

Flatheaded appletree borer may attack newly planted pecan trees in Tishomingo County. Keep trunks of young trees wrapped with strips of burlap, heavy paper or treated spiral crepe paper.

Wind the material around the trunk from the ground to lower branches. Tie the wrapping with a cord. Remove dead bark from damaged trees and treat the exposed surfaces with pruning paint.

BEEF MANAGEMENT

Watch cows closely during calving season. Catching calving problems early on can mean the difference between a live calf and a dead one.

Try to eat each calf as soon as possible after birth. This period is also a good time to castrate and install growth stimulant implants.

Check cows after calving. The nutritional requirements of cows practically double during lactation (nursing). Cows must have adequate nutrition if they are to give good milk and later be rebred.

Pay attention to mineral requirements for lactating cows, especially when early grazing becomes available. A mineral imbalance called grass tetany can strike mature, good-milking cows that have recently calved.

FORAGE TIPS

February is a good time for applying nitrogen to cool season grass pastures. Temperatures have usually warmed enough for nitrogen uptake and new plant growth.

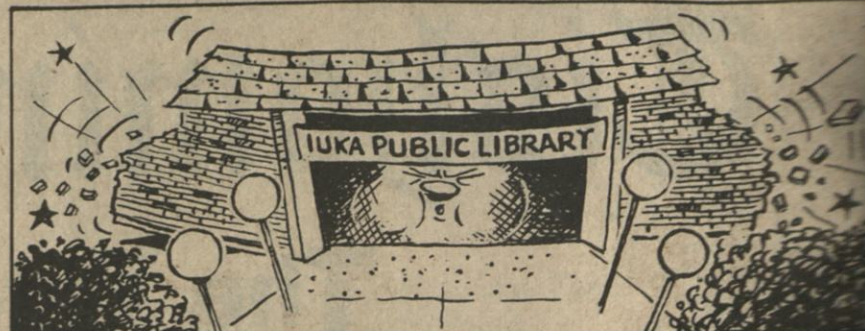

As temperatures warm, graze off any frosted top growth before you apply nitrogen. Then apply nitrogen, either as ammonium nitrate or as a formulation containing urea. The 45 percent granular urea works well for most pastures because the granules readily dissolve and move into the soil with rain.

Ask Ochsner

Q. My six-year-old daughter came home from school recently with a note from the school nurse that she had lice in her hair. I've always kept her hair clean and, in fact, have stressed personal hygiene to my family. How could this happen?

A. In day gone by, lice infestations were almost always associated with the poor and those whose personal hygiene was not very good. However, in the last ten years or so, head lice have made a serious comeback and have been found, particularly in children, at every social and economic level.

Dr. Andrew Thalheim, a pediatrician at the Ochsner Clinic, says that the first

Bursting At The Seams

The 19-year old Iuka Library, a proven Community Asset, is in much need of expansion. The Library Staff and Board of Trustees are in the process of planning to enlarge the present facilities to more adequately serve the community.

The Library needs additional space for many reasons: To house a Genealogy Dept. -- this very active group now operates out of a library closet; the present Children's Dept. can handle only 8 to 10 children at any one time; space is needed for special collections such as Mississippi Authors; present space is inadequate for more and better reference and reading materials, reading and study areas need enlargement. The Library also needs additional storage areas, space for communication access for the handicapped; the Meeting Room is woefully inadequate as only approximately 25 persons can utilize this room at one time -- the Library and the community often need space for larger groups.

Iuka Public Library is a member of the Northeast Regional Library System which means that our Library is part of a 4-County group of libraries; Alcorn, Prentiss, Tippah and Tishomingo. Alcorn County has 2 branch public libraries; Prentiss County has 3, Tippah has 4 and Tishomingo has 4 -- these are the libraries that make up the NE Regional Library System. Each county pays one-fourth of all Regional Library expenses and the funds for this expense is appropriated by the County Supervisors and City administrators from taxes by the population of county. For the last years, Tishomingo County has had the largest circulation of any of the 3 counties in the System. Iuka Public Library is only to Corinth Library circulation even though the library is one-fourth the size of Corinth's. You can see the Iuka Library is such an asset to our community why an addition to existing building is needed.

The Mississippi Library Commission is sending an assessment survey to mine Iuka Library's needs within the next few months and the public will be informed regarding progress of the Library expansion.

symptom of head lice infestation is intense itching. The presence of the bugs can be confirmed by examining the child's head closely for the tiny, silvery clumps of nits (lice eggs) which attach themselves to the hair shafts.

Lice have a long incubation period of a month or more and can spread through a household or a school in a very short time. Children can acquire lice in numerous ways, including wearing hats belonging to others, using someone else's hair comb or trading stereo headsets. Scarves and jackets hung closely together in a school cloakroom can spread the bugs. Lice can even occur in upholstered theater or airplane seats, in department store clothing and coat check rooms.

Since this has happened to your child, don't panic. Dr. Thalheim says there are a number of shampoos recommended for treating lice. Most of the preparations are very effective in killing the bugs. In most cases, it is recommended that everyone in the household, particularly other children, use the shampoo treatment whether or not they have the itching symptoms, Dr. Thalheim says.

There may even come a time when removal of a given tree is best to ensure the safety of citizens, and although it may sort of hurt to have to remove an old favorite shade tree, the removal at least gives us opportunity to

at all because their yards are not that large.

The answer to that problem is to plant trees that will be relatively small at maturity -- such as crepe myrtles, Chinese elms, crab apples, redbuds, dogwoods, purple plums and cherry laurels. These species will form their natural crowns below most power lines. But even if pruning is needed, it is feasible to prune smaller species without spoiling the shape of the tree, and the pruning can be accomplished economically, as well.

Maintaining large trees already existing under power lines is not only expensive, but the repeated heavy pruning you'll have to do will likely cause a decline in the health of the tree and thus make it more susceptible to breakage during a storm.

HARD OR SOFT LENSES?

If you've decided you'd like to change from glasses to contact lenses for the advantages they offer in appearance as well as improved vision, you'll need your eye doctor's help in deciding whether hard or soft lenses will work best for you.

Both hard and soft lenses are made of plastic. Hard lenses can be used to correct most vision problems. The soft lens require a shorter breaking-in period but it is not recommended for all vision problems. It is made of a flexible, water-absorbing plastic that conforms closely to the eye.

Other types of contact lenses are also available including the gas permeable hard lens which has some of the properties of both hard and soft lenses. Another type, the extended-wear contact lens, can be worn day and night for periods up to two weeks without removal.

Whatever type of contact lens your eye doctor recommends, you will be instructed in proper care so the lens will be comfortable and clean and give you the vision correction you need.

Southwood Church To Show Film

"A Man Called Norman," a film produced by Dr. James Dobson and "Focus on the Family" will be shown at Southwood Baptist Church, Sunday, February 5. This is a humorous, yet heartwarming true story about love and acceptance. Mike Adkins, evangelist, gave his testimony about Norman, his across-the-street neighbor who was the town outcast, on the radio broadcast of Dobson's "Focus on the Family." It received the 2nd largest response of any other program aired (over 40,000). His experience with Norman challenges one to put his faith on the line and reach out in friendship to those around him. One of the most profound commandments in the Bible is driven home that of loving your neighbor as yourself.

The movie will begin at 5 p.m. in order that visitors from other churches might see the film and be out in time to worship in their respective churches. Southwood Baptist Church is inviting all to come share in this great presentation of the Word. Be prepared to laugh and cry, but please don't miss it.

After the film, there will be a time of food and fellowship as the church honors Bro. James Brown on his second anniversary as its pastor. Southwood Baptist Church is located on Southwood Drive, just off Hwy. 72 East Bypass between Hwy. 25 South and Pleasant Hill Road.

Meeting

There will be a County wide Fire Department Meeting at Midway Fire Department Thursday, February 9 at 7:00 p.m. All Fire Departments should be represented at this meeting if possible. The Tishomingo County Arson Investigator will also be attending this meeting.

Gospel Singing

North Crossroads Community Church will have a Gospel Singing Saturday, February 4, at 7:00 p.m.

Featured singers will be The Celestials from Tusculumbia, AL.

Unemployment Rate Remains Low

"December marks the eleventh consecutive month in which Mississippi's unemployment rate has remained below ten percent," said Linda Ross Aldy, Executive Director of the Mississippi Employment Security Commission. "Although December's rate of 8.9 percent is up four tenths percentage point over last month's figures, and two tenths percentage point over December 1987, the average rate for the year closed out at 8.4 percent, well below the 10.2 for last year," she added.

The manufacturing industry has contributed greatly to Mississippi's growing economy, providing 234,100 jobs for workers throughout this state. This figure represents a slight seasonal decrease but is still above 1987's figure by 1,500. In addition, jobs in non-manufacturing industries numbered 663,000, down 9,200 from last month but still above 1987 by 10,900 more jobs. Most of this increase was found in government, services and in the wholesale/retail trades. The wholesale and retail trade alone provided 3,000 more jobs more than November and 4,900 more than last year. Of a labor force numbering 1,146,300, the number of Mississippians who were employed, stood at 1,044,400, representing a 92.1 percent employment rate. There were, however, 15,300 less people working in the month of December than in November. This was due in part to the lay-offs of 10,000 election workers along with the regular seasonal decreases in agricultural and self-employed workers.

Artifact Hunters Destroying Valley's Past

Archaeologists call them "pot hunters." They are people from all walks of life who indiscriminately dig up public lands in search of pottery and other relics that are sometimes thousands of years old, and sometimes worth thousands of dollars.

One such public land, owned by TVA, is an island that lies in the middle of a major tributary of the Tennessee River in southeast Tennessee. Numerous holes, resembling bomb craters, mar the otherwise scenic beauty of the place. Fragments of bone and shards of pottery lie scattered in the dirt, worthless to the artifact hunters who damaged the relics, and worthless to those who would preserve them.

"Looters are rapidly destroying the only tangible remains we have of the Valley's early cultural heritage, thereby preventing us from learning about the past," said Bennett Graham, TVA's chief archaeologist who inspected the island.

Artifact hunters ravage the island despite signs posted upstream that warn it is against the law to take artifacts from Federal property. They often dig trenches, some as long as 25 feet, 8 feet wide, and 6 feet deep.

Although the island is in an area of heavy boating and fishing, vegetation offers good cover, and the artifact hunters take their chances.

They are unearthing artifacts from the Mississippian period, which lasted from A.D. 900 to A.D. 1600.

Clay bowls filled with food, spears and other personal possessions were buried with the families of this period with the belief that they would help the souls of the dead pass on to another life. The Mississippian period represents the height of prehistoric cultural development in the Southeast, particularly in the Tennessee Valley region.

"The Mississippian period had a greater concentration on permanent, more densely occupied long-term sites," said Richard Polhemus, an anthropology research associate at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. "Through extensive horticulture, the people had more time to devote to making things. Some items, like shell gorgets with rattlesnake design, are sold for several thousand of dollars."

To find artifacts, the hunters usually probe the soil with a 1/4-inch steel rod, which has a T-shaped handle and a ball bearing attached to its end, Polhemus said. "They search for different soil texture and probe for hard objects like bone or shell," he said. "The probe device is tremendously destructive, however."

When an artifact hunter hits a site that may cover artifacts, shovels are used to dig the holes and trenches. The process usually destroys all practical hopes of restructuring a site for archaeological purposes.

On the other hand, the systematic approach of an archaeologist may uncover information regarding the habits of the people, the environmental effects of that time, and medical anomalies that might be detected from the remains.

"Some people believe the artifacts belong to whoever gets there first, regardless of who owns the land," said Graham. "But to an archaeologist, this is like someone walking into the National Gallery of Art and personally claiming any or all art they find."

Artifact hunting has been illegal since 1906 when the Ancient Antiquities Act was passed. The Archeological Resources Protection Act (ARPA) in 1979 made offenders subject to stiffer fines and prison sentences. First offense fines range from $10,000 to $20,000, and second offense fines can be as high as $100,000. Costs for restoring the site can also be billed to the artifact hunter. First offense jail terms can be as long as two years, and a second offense could result in a five-year sentence.

However, Graham said the law has been relatively ineffective in stopping the artifact hunters. "The only way to retard looting is through education and public awareness. That's the direction we're going now," he said.

To help protect the sites, TVA is actively involved with other Federal and state agencies in archaeological site stabilization and protection projects.

The U.S. Department of the Interior in 1987 noted TVA's efforts to prevent the destruction of valuable archaeological resources in the region, and designated the agency as the national clearinghouse for such efforts across the country.

Along with its contractor, The University of Mississippi, TVA was given the national clearinghouse designation because of its initiatives in determining ways to protect sites from erosion and looting. "This designation is a real honor for us because it recognizes TVA as a national leader, which we strive to be," Graham said.

TVA has long recognized the ethical and cultural importance of preserving archaeological site information. When the agency was created in 1933, the rich archaeological heritage of the Valley region was recognized, and concerns were expressed about the loss of archaeological resources as the result of reservoir impoundments.

TVA responded to concerns by initiating an archaeological data rescue program to carry out salvage excavations of some of the endangered sites before they were flooded. However, the agency and the archaeological community were only able to excavate portions of the larger sites in the Valley region.

Today a great number of these sites remain under water in TVA reservoirs and are still protected by law. However, scuba divers are finding their way to the submerged artifacts, and Graham said when lakes are drawn down, looters pillage the shorelines.

"People need to understand that when they damage an archaeological site, they are depriving society of valuable knowledge," said Graham. "Our history is being destroyed piece by piece, and we may never be able to put it back together again."

Computer Community Service Project

Members of the Burnsville High School Chapter of Future Business Leaders of America arranged for young community groups to attend workshops on computer awareness in conjunction with the community service project. Not only did the young people learn some basics of the computer but also diminished some "fears" of computers by the hands on experiences. Pictured from left to right are Vera Rushing, Cindy Barnes, Tammy Clark, FBLA Members; Tracy Miller,

Office Of The State Auditor

Pete Johnson
State Auditor

State Auditor, Pete Johnson today released to all Mississippi police departments, sheriff departments, mayors and boards of supervisors the new accounting system for property seized and forfeited and procurement of evidence with drug related cases. This is the first such state-wide accounting system prescribed for this area of law enforcement operations.

Johnson said, "The State Auditor's Office has been very interested in assisting local law enforcement officials in developing these systems. Since taking office there have been a number of complaints against local law enforcement officials concerning the accounting and use of this type property and funds. Upon inquiry, it became obvious that local law enforcement officials were operating without a clear set of accounting guidelines for these type properties and funds. This office, with the assistance of a number of local law enforcement officials, has now developed a set of accounting policies and procedures for these type properties and funds. It is the express intent of these policies and procedures to ensure that all such properties and funds are properly accounted for in the most efficient manner possible while allowing local law enforcement officials the ability to use these properties and funds as provided for by law with as little red tape as possible.

Property seized and forfeited by local law enforcement officials has grown in recent years to include millions of dollars in such assets. These assets are largely the result of related arrest and conviction and local law enforcement officials utilize such assets to provide for an even more aggressive fight against drugs.

DESTINED FOR BIGGER THINGS.

America's space program is again under way. But we've already lost precious time. Other countries and companies, even American ones, have been looking to alternative vehicles to get their space projects aloft. In terms of old-fashioned business sense, NASA is facing stiff competition.

The Shuttle's work is cut out for it. NASA's plan to recapture American preeminence in the space delivery business is to amplify the payload capacity of the Shuttle. Their goal is a 17% increase in Shuttle utilization. With huge programs like the Space Station Freedom in the wings, this harder-working delivery vehicle is vital.

The team of Lockheed Missiles & Space Company and Aerojet, a subsidiary of GenCorp, has the solution: a new, more powerful Advanced Solid Rocket Motor. The Lockheed and Aerojet team proposal is a motor that will be manufactured by a "continuous mix" process, resulting in not only more thrust, but with a more controlled burn. The payoff will be a Shuttle that is both more muscular and more reliable.

America's destiny in space has a glorious future; but to get there takes the right mix: Lockheed and Aerojet.

Cancer Sweepstakes

Some Mississippians apparently have become targets of new fund-raisers whose appeals make then appear to be affiliated with the long-respected American Cancer Society, local American Cancer Society representatives report.

A flood of calls questioning the credentials of the Cancer Fund of America has come in to the Mississippi Division office of the American Cancer Society in Jackson and to local volunteers and staff around the state.

"The answer is an emphatic 'no,' we are not the same," Clint Clappitt, Executive Vice President of the American Cancer Society, said Wednesday.

Callers from throughout the state have reported that in the past few weeks they received letters from a Washington, D.C., attorney informing them they had won prizes in the Cancer Fund of America's sweepstakes campaigns, according to Clappitt.

In this campaign letters are being sent stating that the recipient has won a prize ranging somewhere from 10 cents to $100 and that by claiming it he would become eligible for a $50,000 sweepstakes offering prizes ranging from $5,45 to $16,233.

The letter typically states: "You are not obligated to make a contribution to the Cancer Fund of America in order to claim your cash prize, but since this is a 'charity' sweepstakes, we do hope that as a cash prize winner you will wish to contribute at least $5."

The cash prize appeal is a common method employed by the many fund-raisers who have the appearance of being American Cancer Society affiliates, according to Clappitt.

Now there is additional effort being made by the Cancer Fund of America which additionally confuses the public. In the past week "solicitation kits" have been mailed to homes throughout Mississippi asking residents to campaign in their local neighborhoods for funds. "The confusion is being heightened in this effort," according to Clappitt, "by a close similarity in the materials being used by Cancer Fund of America to those annually used in the April Residential Campaign of the American Cancer Society."

"There are many look-alike organizations that almost border on fraud. But the American Cancer Society has long been recognized by its Sword of Hope logo and has earned tremendous prestige for helping find a cure, educating the public about cancer and providing assistance to cancer patients."

The American Cancer Society is strictly a volunteer organization whose fund-raising costs are kept at a minimum so that the contributed dollar can be applied directly to the cancer control efforts of research, education and service, Clappitt said.

"I have had so many inquiries in the past few weeks that it is impossible to keep up with them, and the unfortunate thing is that people do want to help support bona fide efforts. It is just that people are having a difficult time knowing what appeal justified their support. The American Cancer Society has a long history of cancer control efforts which Mississippians have supported financially and through their volunteer time and efforts," said Clappitt, "and we want to help eliminate the confusion. Just know that if you do receive a request from the Society it will be clearly labeled 'American Cancer Society' and will be identified by the organizations 'Sword of Hope' logo."

Young Men Turning 26 In 1989

Young men who will turn 26 in 1989 will be reaching an important milestone, according to the Selective Service System.

Beginning on January 1, 1989, men who were required to register with Selective Service in 1981 will be turning 26. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept late registrations after a man reaches his 26th birthday.

With few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will permanently forfeit his eligibility for certain federal benefits such as student aid, job training, and most federal employment, in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon. Some states also require registration for state student aid, entrance to state-supported colleges and universities, state employment, and permission to practice law.

Many of the men who have not registered may be unaware of the requirement or do not understand the importance of the obligation to register. Some may even have served in the military but failed to register either before entering the armed forces or after leaving active duty. Others may have been institutionalized or incarcerated at the time of their 18th birthday and did not realize they were required to register if released prior to age 26.

Young men age 18 through 25 who have not yet registered can avoid the risk of prosecution and loss of benefits by registering promptly at any local post office. Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $250,000, up to 5 years in prison, or both.

Music Treat In Huntsville

Several local people traveled to Huntsville with E & S tours January 20 for a musical treat featuring Conway Twitty/Merle Haggard and Skip Ewing in the Von Braun Civic Center. Even though the weather turned rather cold, and the wind chill factor must have been zero or below, it didn't lower our group's temperature. After a good meal in the Madison Mall, everyone was anxious for the music to start. Some people responded so enthusiastically that they could hardly speak (they were so hoarse) on the bus returning home. Those included in our tour were:

NORTHEAST DISTRICT LIVESTOCK SHOW REPORT

On January, eight Tishomingo County 4-H'ers attended the District Livestock and Dairy Judging Contest. Everyone did a good job in judging their species of livestock.

Judging Swine were Michael Hubbard of the Clover 4-H Club who placed 3rd and Heath Lynch of the Rainbow 11 4-H Club.

Judging Dairy Cattle was Valerie Comptom, an at-large 4-H member.

Judging Beef Cattle were John Boothe of the Helping Hands 4-H Club and Sandy Bonds, an at-large member.

Judging Sheep were LaShea Bostick of the Belmont 4th Grade 4-H Club, who placed 7th, and Carrie & Amanda Cain of the Clover 4-H Club. The Sheep Judging Team also placed 8th in the District.

In addition to the judging activities, Tishomingo County was also represented in the

In Service

Airman Archie D. Harville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Harville of Rural Route 1, Glen, MS, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the community college of the Air Force.

Looking Back

The following bits of information was taken from the issue of The Vidette, February 3, 1949.

Tishomingo County had the first snow of the winter season Sunday which began falling shortly after noon. The temperature fell to 14 degrees Sunday night.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Nick LeBlanc of New Orleans a boy on January 22. He has been named Ronny Nicholas. Mrs. LeBlanc is the former Merle Rushing, sister of Mr. Kermit Rushing and Thelma Rushing of Iuka.

Mr. Alfred Morris spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. J.C. Fields.

Mr. and Mrs. Ovel Reynolds spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Powers.

Mr. Leonard Wood had the misfortune of breaking his finger last Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Seaton were Sunday guest of their mother Mrs. K.L. Lambert and W.T. Seaton.

The family of Sgt. Reeder T. Kent has just received word that his body will be returned to Iuka, Saturday, February 5. The body will arrive on the early morning train Saturday and burial will be at Pleasant Hill Cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Guy Watkins is at home recuperating from her recent operation.

Sunday was observed as "Every Member Day." A large crowd attended this service. 54 members was present. Rev. W.C. Hamilton delivered an interesting service on "How Slackers in the Church will Cripple it."

Rev. J.H. Holder and Bryce Kitchens spent Sunday in Byhalia with Rev. Holder's sister, Mrs. Lester Sharp.

Mrs. Pauline McDougal of Tishomingo, spent several days in Iuka last week.

Mrs. J.C. Thorn is spending a month's vacation in Coral Gables, Florida with her husband.

The Tuesday afternoon bridge club met in the home of Mrs. Ruth McKnight Tuesday afternoon.

Two cars of Iuka basketball fans attended the Kentucky-Ole Miss game in Memphis Thursday night.

The girls team of Holcut High went to Paden, Monday night to practice.

Mrs. Rosie Daily returned with Mrs. Lomenick to visit Mr. Dick Daily and family near Tishomingo.

fall 1987.

Other figures released by the Northeast Office of Admissions reveal a large number of reverse transfers from senior colleges and universities.

Dean of Instruction J. Connie Crown said that while climbing enrollment figures are always good news, the reports are no surprise.

"Enrollment continues to increase because more and more students are realizing that Northeast offers quality education and quality facilities," Crown added.

"Students are aware that they can leave Northeast as well as or many times better prepared than those who begin their education at a senior institution.

"Our advisors are trained to work with students to assure that all their coursework will transfer," Crown said.

"We also have an outstanding student activities program that allows students to grow and develop in many areas. When you put these four things together," Crown suggested, "students will be attracted to the campus."

This marks the third year in a row that community college enrollment has increased, at a time when many education demographers—including the U.S. Education Department several years ago—had predicted a leveling off or decline in college credit enrollment.

Education Department researchers in the early 1980's had forecast a slight enrollment decline, due primarily to anticipated decreased in the number of full-time students. "This just hasn't happened," said Jim Palmer, ASSCJC vice-president for communications. "The number of full-timers has increased steadily, if slightly, since 1985. In fact, we anticipate that percent increases in the number of full-time students enrolled in fall 1988 over fall 1987 will keep pace with the increases in the number of part-timers."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Let us take the means of your newspaper to express to the people of Iuka our gratefulness as we celebrate our second anniversary at Southwood Baptist Church. We live about ten miles east of Muscle Shoals, but find the time and effort spent in coming to Iuka at least three times each week a real blessing. We come to lead a church that loves the Lord, its pastor, and the community. We appreciate the many folks whom we have met who have been so kind to us. They have allowed us to come into their homes to share the message of Christ and to invite them to our church. We have always felt welcomed, and we appreciate the kindness and friendliness so much. We do look forward to getting to know more of you in days to come.

Our desire is to be able to move here in order to spend more time serving the church and the community. We ask the Christians of Iuka to pray with us that God might lead in this direction.

Sincerely,
Bro. & Mrs. James B. Brown

Card Of Thanks

We would like to take the time to say thank you for all the kind words, prayers, food and flowers, from all those who showed concern during the loss of our mother, Mary Corine Johnson Richardson. Your thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated and needed.

May God bless you and your kindness be returned in troubled times.

Governor Urges Health Care Increase

Governor Ray Mabus today urged lawmakers to pass the state's largest ever increase in health care funding to rescue poor Mississippians and struggling rural hospitals.

"Medicaid is the front line of defense in providing decent health care to the needy in Mississippi, and our rural hospitals are the fortresses that protect citizens from immediate harm," Gov. Mabus. He noted that an estimated 45 rural hospitals in the state are experiencing serious financial difficulties.

The governor has proposed an additional $24 million in state money for Medicaid, which will automatically earn an additional $96 million in matching federal Medicaid funds. The proposal is before the Mississippi Legislature.

"This expansion of Mississippi's Medicaid program would bring 30,000 more citizens into the program. In short, it would be a historic commitment to helping poor people throughout Mississippi," Gov. Mabus said.

Governor Mabus also outlined a eight-point plan to protect the needs of poor persons of Mississippi's three charity hospital close. The Medicaid expansion proposal calls for redirecting into the Medicaid program $7 million a year currently going to three charity hospitals.

The governor's "Protection Plan" calls for:

1. Additional physicians from the National Health Service Corps in Meridian, Vicksburg and Laurel, where the charity hospitals are located.

2. Vigorous enforcement of federal laws requiring hospitals to accept persons with medical emergencies.

3. A toll-free, 24-hour telephone, referral service for those needing care through the Governor's Service Line.

4. Operation Reach Out -- a public information campaign to find people eligible for Medicaid and to promote the expanded Governor's Service Line.

5. Establishment of information centers at the charity hospitals to help patients during the period in which the hospitals are being closed.

6. Hiring a full-time professional to implement the transition plan.

7. The transfer of charity hospital telephone lines to community health centers upon closure of the hospitals.

8. Support of legislation allowing doctors at the charity hospitals with limited licenses to practice at community health centers for two years.

Meeting The Cost Of Nursing Home Care

There are about 2.3 million residents in the nation's nursing homes, and this figure is expected to double within the next 30 years. As the number of residents increases, so will the costs.

According to the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association, mortality rates are decreasing while morbidity (sickness) rates are increasing. As medical science learns to postpone death, more elderly persons with chronic illnesses are confined to nursing homes.

As family mobility and the number of dual-income families increase, fewer family members will be caring for the elderly and even more of the aging will rely on nursing homes.

The cost for nursing home care averages $22,000 per year. At this rate, a family's financial security can be quickly wiped out. So, who pays the bill? About one-half of the $38 billion per year costs are paid by the Medicaid program which provides health services for the poor.

The other half of the burden is carried by families of nursing home residents. Despite beliefs to the contrary, the federal medicare program provides only about 2 percent of total nursing home costs.

In order to meet the increasing need for a way to cover nursing home costs, some 70 insurance companies now offer long-term-care insurance. Those age 60 or older with assets of more than $10,000, in addition to their home, may be candidates for this type coverage.

Buyers shopping for a long-term-care policy should beware. Most new policies are still in the experimental stages, and some older policies are extremely inadequate. Some experts believe that as many as one-half the current long-term-care policyholders who enter nursing homes will never see benefits. This is because of the requirement of many policies for hospital stays or skilled nursing care prior to entering a nursing home.

When shopping for long-term-care insurance, shop with care and be sure to look for and compare the following:

- *Premium amount.
- *Daily benefit.
- *Waiting period.
- *Number of days paid by the policy per period or stay.
- *Number of stays paid by the policy.

the policy.

*Type of care covered.

*Is prior hospitalization required?

*Is home care provided? Is Alzheimer's Disease covered?

*Is the policy guaranteed renewable?

More information on choosing the right insurance coverage is available from local and area extension home economists.

House Of Representatives

By Representative
Mack Loyd Waddins

Several appointive boards and commissions would be eliminated and the duties of various state agencies shifted to five new departments under the government reorganization bill approved by the Mississippi House of Representatives in the past week.

Passage of the hotly debated reorganization measure was among the highlights of a busy week which also saw the House turn down a mail-in voter registration plan after earlier passing the bill. Committees approved scores of bills ranging from tort reform to beaver control. More than 100 bills were on the House

calendar by the week's end.
Lawmakers faced a key deadline this week as its 1989 session moved into its fifth week. Tuesday (Jan. 31) was the last day for House and Senate committees to act on their own general bills.
The cutoff also applied to constitutional amendments.

The reorganization bill triggered a lengthy floor fight before it was finally passed, 73-46, narrowly getting the 3/5ths majority for passage.
Backers said the bill is an effort to promote efficiency and make state government more accountable. Opponents argued it gives too much power to the Governor and predicted it would mean little if any savings of taxpayers dollars.

The legislation was a modified version of the bill recommended by a Select House Committee and contained several -- but not all -- of the broad changes sought by the Governor. A separate reorganization bill has been passed by the Senate, and differences must be resolved between the chambers before the measure is sent to the Governor.

New departments to be created under the House-passed bill are Finance and Administration; Economic and Community Development; Human Service; Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks;
and Environmental Quality.
The directors of each department would be appointed by the Governor, subject to Senate confirmation.

The bill also would expand the existing Department of Public Safety to include the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency and the scales operations, now under the State Tax Commission.
An unsuccessful attempt was made to block the transfer of the scales operations.

The House rejected amendments to delete sections calling for a new Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks; to leave the State Aircraft Pool under the Adjutant General rather than placing it under the Department of Finance and Administration; and to strike provisions shifting the administration of the Schools for the Deaf and Blind to the State Department of Education.

Overall, 23 amendments were considered and 17 adopted.
House members voted to remove sections that would have placed the Employment Security Commission under the Department of Economic and Community Development, let the Attorney General's Office charge a fee for legal opinions, increase the fees for state audits, and transfer the duties of the Animal Diagnostic Laboratory
to the College of Veterinary Medicine at Mississippi State University.

The House bill makes not changes in a number of existing agencies including the State Personnel Board, Central Data Processing
Authority, State Tax Commission (except for the transfer of the scales operations), Board of Health, Board of Mental Health, Mississippi
Library Commission, Forestry
Commission, and Highway Department.

Backers estimated the bill,
as passed by the House,
would eliminate about 146
jobs and produce an overall savings of around $9 million.
A large part of the projected savings would come from a change in the manner of investing state funds.

Other major House action during the past week included the turn-around defeat of a proposed system of mail-in voter registration, to have begun in July 1990. The bill, recommended by an interim study committee, was approved the first time it was called up then reconsidered, amended, and defeated on the next day.

The amendment sought to let counties borrow money to computerize registration lists, as required by the bill, this making the bill a revenue measure. The vote was 63-56 but a 3/5ths majority or 72 votes was needed for passage. Another motion to reconsider kept the bill on the calendar as last week ended.

The House also voted to allow the Public Service Commission to authorize utility companies to adopt a formula-type plan for increasing or decreasing rates.
The legislation follows a recent Supreme Court ruling which overturned a rate plan, called the Performance Evaluation Plan, adopted in 1986 by the Gulfport-based Mississippi Power Company. A House amendment would limit rate hikes under a formula-type plan to not more than 2 percent or $100,000 within a year without a hearing.

Other bills winning House approval included proposals to:

--Create a special arbitration council to handle complaints between consumers and people or firms selling agricultural seed.

--Require that vehicles in which maximum security prisoners are transported to be equipped with a partition to protect the driver.

--Provide that grain producers may have samples graded by an official inspector.

--Increase penalties for certain violations of oil and gas laws, and raise the permit fees for drilling of injection wells.

Among the countless bills approved by House committees last week were proposals to close the state-funded charity hospitals at Laurel, Meridian and Vicksburg and shift the money into the state Medicaid program; establish a new program for beaver control; authorize a fulltime State Parole Board; provide for compensation to crime victims; help combat abuse of nursing home residents; and increase soybean assessments by 1 cent a bushel to help finance soybean research.

Various committees also approved a proposed landlord-tenant rights act; a proposed constitutional amendment to allow for a state lottery; and a tort reform bill that, among other things, would reduce the general statute of limitations on damage suits from six to three years.

Floor action was expected this week on many of these bills.

three earthquakes a day.

Service Offered To Teachers

NASA Spacelink, a new computerized space information system, is now operational and available to anyone having a computer and modem.

NASA Spacelink is primarily aimed at assisting teachers and researchers to access current and historical material on NASA aeronautics and space
research activities.

Information on NASA scientific projects and educational programs is fed into NASA Spacelink by education specialists at NASA headquarters and the agency's nine field centers. In addition to current news and historical information, NASA Spacelink also features lesson plans and suggested classroom activities to help teachers use information on

NASA projects to interest students in science and other subjects.

Scholarship Deadline

High school students who are interested in applying for $1,000 college scholarships should request applications by March 16, 1989 from Educational Communications
Scholarship Foundation, 721
N. McKinley Road, Lake Forest, Illinois 60045. To receive an application, students should send a note stating their name, address, city, state and zip code, approximate grade point average and year of graduation. Sixty-five winners will be selected on the basis of academic performance, involvement in extra-curricular activities and need for financial aid.

TVA Experiment Taps Secrets Of Underground Water

An experiment in Mississippi has quietly overturned conventional thinking about the way water moves underground, yielding important information for a Nation that gets nearly a fourth of its fresh water from wells.

"Government, industry, and the average citizen are concerned about the threat of pollution in the underground water supply," says M. Paul Schmierbach, Manager of Environmental Quality for the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA). "It's a hidden resource we can't afford to lose. Our research is already providing answers that help protect it."

The research has been underway for the past two years on the Columbus, Mississippi, Air Force Base reservation. The 70-acre site, the largest field-test site of its kind, was chosen for its security and for geologic features that closely resemble many industrial sites across the Nation.

Protruding from the grassy tract at regular intervals are the tips of more than 250 white pipes. Each pipe fits in a borehole down which a bundle of tubes is inserted to draw water samples from 30 levels simultaneously, for analysis. Some readings are made electronically and fed by underground cable to a nearby collecting point, then beamed by satellite to a computer station in Knoxville, Tennessee.

In addition, water samples taken regularly from each borehole are sent to a TVA laboratory in Chattanooga, Tennessee as many as 3,000
at a time for analysis.

Harmless but clearly identifiable tracer elements, simulating pollution, were injected into the ground at the top of the field in 1986 and since then their movement and concentration have been measured.

"What this gives us is a three-dimensional view of their movement in the various strata," says William R.
Waldrop, TVA project manager, who directs the TVA experiment.

Waldrop says TVA has found that the tracers move much more rapidly than prevailing theories predicted.

But the heaviest concentration of these "artificial pollutants" stays very close to the original injection site.
"They dilute very rapidly as they move," Waldrop said.

This finding indicates that where conditions are similar,
a contaminant in ground water would tend to remain concentrated near the injection zone, and cleanup could be less difficult.

Schmierbach, a veteran of 19 years in environmental compliance work at the State and Federal level, says the findings are very important because States are having to develop groundwater protection plans at a time when very little is known about it.

"There isn't a whole lot of expertise on groundwater," he says. "There's a lot of theory out there and some laboratory work, but very little research under real-world conditions like we have at Columbus Air Force Base."

The work at the Mississippi site is part of a larger study commissioned by the Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI) of Palo Alto, California.

The electric power industry is interested because of the prospect of increasing regulation.

"Everybody is concerned about costs, and environmental protection can be very expensive," Schmierbach says.

"Everybody who pays an electric bill will suffer economically if hastily drawn regulations require us to spend more than is necessary. Furthermore, without a clear understanding of the physical processes associated with ground water contamination, we have no assurance that certain protective measures will be effective."

Schmierbach says, "We want to protect the groundwater resource, and we will protect it," but he adds, "We want to know what we're doing."

The Air Force is closely following the experiments to see if the results will help handle the problem of spilled jet fuel that has seeped into the groundwater at a number of locations across the country.

Waldrop says engineers from other countries have visited the site, and there is a list of requests for the technical data being churned out.

"What TVA is doing is really on the leading edge of research," says Jim Hoffman, of the Mississippi Bureau of Land and Water Resources.
"It's state-of-the-art."

Educational Talent Search

The State Department of Education currently has a program that provides free academic and career counseling services to area high school seniors and other individuals who wish to continue their education to the college level. The Educational Talent Search purpose is to provide career counseling, information on occupational choices, information and by assistance in filing financial aid applications, college materials and information

along with a variety of other services. Parents of high school seniors will be receiving notification of their students' application to the program. This notification will require the parents complete and return an information sheet to the area counselor to determine student's eligibility.
