Christmas Party Planned

The Tishomingo County Shrine Club will be having their annual Christmas Party December 7, at 7 o'clock, at Tishomingo State Park. If members would like to exchange gifts bring appropriate present. Officers will be installed and there will be entertainment.

Angel Tree Project Begins Today

The Iuka Pilot Club will begin their "Angel Tree" Project on Thursday, November 30, 1989. The tree will be located in the Walmart store and Pilots will man the tree this weekend and until all the angels have been adopted by families.

The "Angel Tree" is patterned after the trees established by the Salvation Army and are in use in various large cities in the area. Angels on the Pilot Club tree are from the Tishomingo County area. Need has been confirmed by the Tishomingo County Welfare Office, and names released to the Pilot Club.

Persons adopting an angel are asked to buy Christmas presents for that child, wrap the gifts in one large box and return to the Pilot Club. When all gifts have been returned they will be taken to the Tishomingo County Welfare Office and distribution will be made from their office.

Shopping for the gifts and selection will be left to the person adopting the child. Sizes, needs, and special requests are listed on the angel forms which should give all the information needed to purchase gifts. The child's first name will be given but complete privacy is assured both for the child and for the adopting persons.

A large number of families have already been adopted by churches and church groups. Angels on the tree will be those children not already receiving help from these groups. These children have great need and your gifts could be the only ones they will receive on Christmas morning. This is an opportunity to help those in need from our immediate area and it is hoped this program can become a yearly tradition in Tishomingo County.

Pilot Club members assisted the welfare office in taking applications also for Christmas baskets. These names and applications have been turned over to the proper committees to see that the families food needs are covered for this holiday season.

Pilot Club members will assist anyone who cannot do the shopping for the children and donations of any amount will be appreciated.

There were applications for approximately 235 children. The need is great and the rewards of providing for these children are even greater. Your help and support is appreciated. For additional information or any questions regarding the "Angel Tree" you may call 423-5252 or 423-1381.

Dr. Harry Cosby, Jr. To Serve As Grand Marshall Of Iuka Christmas Parade

Dr. Harry Cosby, Jr., retired Iuka Physician, has been selected as Grand Marshall of this year's Christmas parade in Iuka, scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday, December 2.

Dr. Cosby and his wife, Babe, have lived in Iuka since 1949. He has been a familiar face to many area citizens as he practiced medicine until his retirement in June of 1976. His contributions to the city of Iuka and Tishomingo County, as well, are numerous.

Dr. Cosby received his medical training at the University of Tennessee. Following graduation, he served in the United States Air Force stationed in France and Germany for 2 years. After returning from service, he moved to Amory, where he practiced for two years.

After the Cosby's moved to Iuka in 1949, Dr. Cosby was able to set up his practice and to open the first hospital in Tishomingo County in May of 1950, called the Cosby Hospital Clinic.

Aided by the Memphis Regional Medical program, Dr. Cosby became project director of the Northeast Mississippi Multiphasic Screening project. For three years, this program provided persons in Tishomingo and surrounding counties the opportunity to receive a complete physical examination at no cost, through use of a mobile medical unit.

Dr. Cosby's greatest desire, says his wife, was to provide good health care to the people of Tishomingo County and surrounding areas.

An associate and friend in every way to Dr. Cosby was Dr. Louie Coker, who worked with him for 22 years in Iuka.

Since his retirement, Dr. Cosby has kept busy by teaching nursing classes at Northeast Community College and by serving as a physician for Tennessee Valley Authority. He has always enjoyed golfing and traveling.

The Cosby's have two sons: Dr. Walter Cosby, a specialist in ear, nose, throat, and plastic surgery, who lives in Columbus, and Dr. Harry Cosby, who practices dentistry in Iuka. Dr. Cosby has two grandchildren. He is a member of Iuka Baptist Church and the Iuka Rotary Club.

Dr. Cosby said that he loves people, and the people of Iuka have surely been good to him. They are "the cream of the crop," he said.

Local 4-H'ers Plan Trip To National Congress

Hard work and persistence have paid off for four Tishomingo County 4-H members. Nancy South, Lori Rutledge, Tammy Bray and Tammie Laird are all 1989 state winners in their 4-H project areas and will be among Mississippi's 54 member delegation to the 28th National 4-H Congress December 2 through 6 in Chicago.

These four young ladies will join 1,700 teenage 4-H members who represent more than 4.8 million youth in 4-H and related programs in the 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Nancy South, the daughter of N.C. and Janice South of Iuka has been in 4-H for six years. Nancy says her main accomplishment in the 4-H Leadership project has been the guidance she has given to younger 4-H'ers. She has been a member of the State 4-H Awareness Team for 2 years, attended State 4-H Club Congress for 4 years and attended Regional 4-H Resource Conference as a delegate and a returnee delegate. She has also been inducted into the State 4-H

All Stars and the State 4-H Honor club. She has also planned and conducted workshops at Northeast Mississippi Resource Conference and also at the Teens Reaching Youth Conference this past summer.

Nancy is a senior at Iuka High School and plans to have a career as a 4-H Youth Agent. Her trip to National Congress is sponsored by the Firestone Trust Fund.

Lori Rutledge, daughter of Amos and Sandy Rutledge of North Crossroads, has been a member of the North Crossroads 4-H Club for seven years. Lori says her main achievements in 4-H have been helping with the landscaping plans at the local Volunteer Fire Department and Community Center. This year she helped construct a health walk on the grounds for the community to use. Lori was also a delegate and a returnee delegate to the Regional 4-H Resource Conference and conducted a workshop at the Northeast Mississippi Resource Conference. She has learned, through her Conservation of Natural Resources project, the importance of conserving our valuable resources so that future generations can enjoy them as much as she has.

Lori is a senior at Burnsville High School and plans to have a career teaching handicapped children. Her trip to National Congress is sponsored by Deer and Company.

Tammy Bray, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bray of Burnsville has been in the Rainbow 4-H Club for eight years. Tammy says her main accomplishment in the 4-H Food Preservation, Conservation, and Safety project has been to save over $1,300 on her family's food budget by canning and freezing food over the last several years. She has participated on the county and state level in the 4-H Food Preservation Contest and has assisted in several workshops on pickling, jelly making and judging canned fruits and vegetables. She has also won several ribbons on her food exhibits at the County Fair.

However, Tammy's entire 4-H career has not all been spent in the kitchen. She has served as a delegate to Citizenship-Washington Focus, State 4-H Club Congress and Regional 4-H Resource Conference in Fontana, North Carolina.

Tammy is a senior at Burnsville High School and plans a career in Elementary Education. Her trip to National Congress is sponsored by Heinz Vinegar and Dow Brans, Inc. Ziploc Freezer Bags.

Tammie Laird, the daughter of Alton and Amy Laird of Burnsville, has been in the Helping Hands 4-H Club for two years. Tammie says the main accomplishments of her dog care 4-H project is over $1,100 profit she has received from selling her dogs. Tammie has spent the last two years learning about wildlife and their habitat in addition to learning about the care of dogs. Her study of wildlife paid off in a second place win at the Northeast District Conservation Field Day, earning her a trip to State 4-H Club Congress to compete on the state level.

Tammie is a senior at Burnsville High School and plans to have a career as a veterinarian. Her trip is sponsored by the 4-H Club Foundation of Mississippi.

The theme for the 1989 Congress is "Choices," and the event is a celebration of the positive choices youth from across the country are making.

"In an era in which too many youth are choosing alcohol or other drug abuse, early parenthood or even suicide, it is paramount that we celebrate those making the choice for a solid and productive life," said Kenneth Cook, 4-H Youth Development Specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"National 4-H Congress is the showcase for the 4-H program," Cook said. "It recognizes the nation's most outstanding 4-H youth and provides them with continuing educational development."

During the Congress 239 national and regional scholarship winners will be named. The scholarships range in value from $750 to $1,500 each. In 1988 15 Mississippi 4-H members won national scholarships totaling $19,000.

Scholarships and expense-paid trips to the Congress are donated by more than 60 businesses, foundations and other private sector organizations.

Throughout the week delegates will take part in a broad range of workshops and educational field trips, as well as in recognition breakfasts, luncheons and banquets.

National 4-H Congress is conducted by National 4-H Council, the Cooperative Extension systems of the state land-grant universities and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Lucky Winner At "1989 Christmas Fair"--Mrs. Montez Hannon, of the Midway Community, won the Mississippi Extension Homemakers Cookbook "TASTEFUL TRADITIONS" sprays of Roundup to green weeds during any warm weather spells. Treating weeds in November will reduce their emergence next spring.

Do not prune fruit trees, shrubs or vines this time of year. Plants pruned in fall will suffer cold damage in January. Late winter is the recommended time for pruning these plants.

Pecan trees begin dormancy in November as harvest ends. Do not let fallen pecans lie on the ground for any length of time. Squirrels and birds can become bothersome pests as they grab for pecans.

BEEF HERD MANAGEMENT

Set a goal today.

Late fall is a good time for Tishomingo County cattle producers to set goals for their herds. Economic returns from a cow-calf herd are determined by total pounds of calf sold. The goals each producer should set involve a high calf crop percent and heavy weaning weights.

Here are tips to achieve those two goals.

After weaning, feed replacement heifers so they will gain about 1 pound per day and weigh 650 pounds at breeding time.

Turn in bulls with yearling heifers three to four weeks before exposing the older cow herd. This extra time allows heifers to recover from calving. More of them will cycle and breed back during the next breeding season.

Give consideration to breed and type of bull used to breed yearling heifers. Avoid large, thick-shouldered bulls with excessive muscling. They could cause calving problems.

Cull cows that wean lightweight, poor quality calves. This action insures better care going to top producing cows.

Order necessary supplies needed at calving. Such items as medicine, navel dip, dehorning paste, ear tags and implants should not be forgotten. Check with a local veterinarian for advice on calving and suggestions for a herd health program.

USDA SEEKS COMMENTS ON PLANTING APPROVED ALTERNATIVE NON-PROGRAM CROPS FOR 1990

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is seeking public comment on planting approved alternative non-program crops (ANPCs) on land idled under the 1990 production adjustment program.

USDA announced August 7 that production of ANPCs on land in conserving use (CU) and acreage conservation reserve (ACR) would not be permitted. However subsequent interest has prompted CCC to request additional comments. It may be appropriate to permit the planting of ANPCs on 0/92, 50/92 and ACR land which would allow producers greater planting flexibility.

If approved, planting of ANPCs on 0/92 and 50/92 acres would be permitted for the following commodities: Guar, sesame, safflower, sunflowers, castor beans, mustard seed, crambe, plantago ovato, flaxseed, triticale, rye, industrial raw material commodities and experimental crops.

Planting on ACR acres would be permitted for guar, sesame, safflower, sesame, sunflowers, castor beans, mustard seed, crambe, plantago ovato, flaxseed, triticale, rye or other commodities if the secretary of agriculture determines such production is needed to provide an adequate supply of these commodities, is not likely to increase the cost of the price support program and will not adversely affect farm income.

CCC is seeking comments on the following:

--whether production of ANPCs on CU and ACR acreage should be permitted under one or more of the wheat, feed grain, upland cotton and rice programs;

--identification of the industrial raw material commodities and experimental crops that should be permitted;

--justification of planting various ANPCs;

--production cost and market price associated with the ANPCs;

--the impact that production of the ANPCs may have on the existing production of program and non-program crops;

--the availability of processing facilities and marketing opportunities for the various ANPCs;

--whether a fee should be charged or deficiency payments reduced for the privilege of planting an ANPC and, if so, the amount of the charge of reduction; and --any other pertinent data on this topic.

Comments must be received by December 11 by the Director, Commodity Analysis Division, USDA/ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013. All comments will be available for public inspection in 3741-S of USDA's South Building during regular business hours.

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

DR. PHILLIP GRAY

OPTOMETRIST

SIGNS OF DISEASE OR INJURY

An optometrist does examine your eyes for refractive errors and does provide vision correction if necessary. At the same time, during the course of an optometric examination, he or she also checks for signs of disease or injury.

First, the lids and surface parts of the eyes are inspected for any signs of trouble. One simple but vital test is to check the reaction of your pupils to light. If the pupils don't react properly, it may be the first symptom of a disease or neurologic disorder.

The optometrist then turn his or her attention to examining the inside of your eyes with an ophthalmoscope. This allows examination of the retina, arteries and veins, and the optic nerve entrance. Because the inside of the eye is the only place in the body where blood vessels can be seen in their natural state, it's not unusual to spot the first signs of hardening of the arteries, diabetes, or hypertension.

FOOD GIFTS FROM THE KITCHEN

Every homemaker knows what a treat it is to receive a gift from the kitchen that is given by a good friend. This gift shows the friend's skill and thoughtfulness in preparing just the right thing as a gift to a certain friend or even an entire family. A gift from the kitchen is never a second-rate gift because it carries the personality, originality and all the qualities that make a thoughtful gift.

Here are some simple suggestions that may help you solve your gift problems for special occasions.

1. Use a large basket as the container for your home grown fruits, nuts, or other home produce for your gardening friend.

2. Pack clusters of evergreen sprigs with jars of your choicest jams and jellies.

3. Sew two mesh dish cloths together to make a bag for fruits, vegetables, or nuts. Decorate with cones or seed-pods.

4. Give fragrant, sugar-coated doughnuts in a gay, red cellophane covered basket.

5. Put salted or spiced nuts in paper cartons covered with aluminum foil.

Wrap individual pies in cellophane. Tag each one for the person to who it is to go.

7. Bake tender loaves of bread in glass bread pans to give to your busy homemaker friends.

8. Make a gift box from an empty cereal carton for your cookie assortment.

9. Assemble small jars to carry a variety of your favorite salad dressing to a special friend.

10. Pack a variety of your baked foods on a nice serving tray and cover entire tray with clear gift wrapping paper.

BULB CARE

November is a good time to plant such spring-blooming bulbs as daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and summer snowflakes. Make sure the soil in which these bulbs will be planted is well-drained. If the bed drains poorly, work a little sand and organic matter into the soil to remove excess water.

If bulbs are planted in locations with plenty of sunshine, they will build up enough energy to form a strong flower bud for spring.

Add fertilizer to bulbs already in the ground. Broadcast an all-purpose fertilizer such as 13-13-13 or 8-8-8 in the bed. A specially mixed bulb food can be substituted for the fertilizer.

Do not divide the clumps of fall-blooming bulbs. Move them to a better location, and divide them in the spring when foliage begins to yellow.

DENTAL PLUS
The touch of personal care

Dr. Stephen Blair, D.M.D.

When Flossing Hurts

Ideally, the use of dental floss should have only beneficial effects on the gums and teeth. Unfortunately, when someone first starts to floss regularly, it is not uncommon to experience soreness and bleeding. It takes a while for the gums to accept the technique of scraping the sides of the teeth with the floss and the contact with the gums. If the flossing technique places too much force on tender gum tissues, damage may result. Learning the right technique at the dental office can minimize the initial soreness of the gums. The type of floss used, wax-coated or uncoated, generally makes little difference. Daily flossing is a basic defense against tooth decay and gum disease. If soreness or bleeding continues after a few days of flossing, see the dentist. Continued soreness or bleeding may indicate the presence of gum disease, which should receive prompt treatment.

Frances Brown Attends Workshop

Frances Brown recently attended two Kumon Mathematex workshops for special training in teaching Japanese math. She plans to open an after-school center to offer to the children of this area an opportunity for intensive Japanese teaching that has self-instruction, speed, and accuracy as the basis of the program. Kumon's unique feature is that 100 per cent is the only acceptable score, in that the students rework every incorrect answer before progressing to the next level. Kumon math is an enrichment program, as well as a remedial one. It doesn't matter what grade the student is in. The program also helps to improve study habits in all subjects and builds self-esteem.

Mrs. Brown holds Bachelor, Master, and Education Specialist degrees in education. She is an elementary teacher in Colbert County, AL. Her husband, James B. Brown, pastor of Southwood Baptist Church, Iuka, will be an instructor. He holds Bachelor and two Master degrees in education.

The Browns plan to open the Kumon Mathematex Center in January. Initially, the center will be open for three hours on two afternoon each week, with a limit of 20 students. If you are interested in more information, please call 205-446-8134.

A Report Card On America's Youth

People small in number might find obstacles if they try to correct the problems of youth, but when the nation bands together, great things can happen.

And it is great things that thousands of people are hoping will result from the national "Making the Grade: A Report Card on American Youth" project. Communities across the nation are banding together to "mark a report card" on their community's youth.

For many the report card will likely reflect the serious issues facing America's youth.

Among industrialized nations, the United States leads the world in infant mortality, juvenile crime, substance abuse and teen pregnancy.

Despite mandatory school enrollment, the nation's literacy rate is below that of other developed nations. Twenty percent of the nation's children live in poverty. Forty percent of the nation's poor people are children.

Through the efforts of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service and its 4-H youth program, several Mississippi communities will be a part of the more than 500

American communities expected to participate in the "Making the Grade" project.

"The Extension Service has a unique delivery system and professional staff members who are interested and working daily to improve the lives of people in the community," said Dr. Ann Jarratt, a 4-H youth development specialist with MCES.

"One of our national initiatives is youth at risk, and this project ties in with what we believe and want to achieve," she said.

The Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies and the National Collaboration for Youth, a non-profit organization made up of representatives from 15 national youth-related organizations, laid the ground work for this project and are providing national leadership.

In Mississippi, county extension agents served as facilitators to organize ad hoc committees to evaluate and access the youth situation. These committees looked at the services and agencies available to youth and compared these with the needs and problems of the community's youth.

The six issues identified as crucial to American youth are: substance abuse, teen pregnancy, functional illiteracy, school dropouts, juvenile crime and youth unemployment.

The next step is ABC's Sept. 14 broadcast of "American Agenda: Youth in Crisis." The one-hour, prime-time broadcast will be hosted by Barbara Walters and will take an in-depth look at youth issues.

As soon as possible after the broadcast, participating communities will hold town meetings to mark the report card on their youth.

The town summit meetings, organized by the ad hoc committees, will include a wide representation of community citizens, all with the same objectives in mind—to fight the problems facing their youth.

The immediate outcome of the town meetings will be a blueprint for community action to address the major problem areas of youth; ideas or plans for new or continuing cooperation among community organizations and agencies; local data on youth issues and as many task forces as needed to do something about youth issues in the community or county.

"Our overriding objective is to improve the situation of youth—to improve their possibilities for quality life," Jarratt said.

"We hope by focusing attention nationwide that it will reveal more resources and will cause agencies, groups and individual efforts to be complimentary, and by pooling our resources, youth will be the beneficiaries," she said.

Mississippi communities are responding to the project. In Stone County subcommittees have been formed, the date for the summit meeting is set, and a directory of youth services is being developed to aid youth in finding the help or counseling they may need.

Washington County citizens have scheduled their summit meeting for Sept. 20, and the local television station will broadcast the meeting so viewers can participate by telephone.

Sept. 26 is the date set for the Lowndes County summit meeting, and organizers are expecting the meeting to involve a wide representation of the county's population.

Any interested county or community group can still get involved in Making the Grade. Organizational materials are available through the local county extension office.

Fight Illiteracy

Mississippi Job Service and Unemployment Claims Centers have joined forces with the Governor's Office for Literacy to fight illiteracy and strengthen the state's labor force, said First Lady Julie Mabus and Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director Linda Ross Aldy.

"This partnership will allow the Office for Literacy to work closely with Job Service to find those who need literacy training," said Mrs. Mabus. "It will further allow us to catch some of those Mississippians who are currently falling through the cracks."

The executive director of the MESC agreed, "This enables our staff to become a vital link in the state's battle against illiteracy. Mississippi is the first state in the southeastern region and among the first in the country to take formal steps through its employment service to become part of the solution to this problem."

Studies show that about 400,000 Mississippians or 27 percent of the state's population are functionally illiterate.

"A portion of the recently released education reform program called Mississippi's BEST seeks to raise Mississippi's literacy rate to 90% by the year 2001. Programs such as this will help us to meet that goal," Mrs. Mabus said.

Employment counselors will refer job-seekers who want to learn to read or to improve reading skills to local literacy programs and provide office space for client assessment and enrollment where needed. Job Service staff will also provide information to encourage employers to sponsor literacy training for workers and will emphasize the relationship between literacy and the strength of the local and state economy.

"Employers have a vested interest in improving the quality of skills of Mississippi's labor force," Aldy said. "Studies show that future jobs will require even higher skills than today while fewer qualified workers will be available. This is our effort to bridge the gap in our changing workplace," she said.

Employers may get a tax credit for sponsoring literacy training or interested business may contact the Office for Literacy at 7323 for more information. Call the local Job Service office.

Kids & Cash At Christmas

"I want, I want, I want." After hearing your children tell you of all their wants, it sometimes is a relief to hear them ask, "What can I give?" The question is more than a sign of sharing. It is an opportunity to teach your children about better buying - the art of being a good consumer.

Even five and six year old children can understand what money means, and they can begin to learn how to choose items that bring satisfaction. What better time than Christmas to teach these all important lessons? Here are some tips that you might try:

1. Be ready when your child asks, "What can I buy for Mommy or Daddy?" Be ready with a few gift ideas. Suggest gifts that are simple and familiar. Keep the price low.

2. Write down the gift ideas when you are ready to take your child shopping. If you want this to be a learning experience, PLAN your shopping trip carefully.

3. Go when you are not hurried and can spend some time on the child's gift list.

4. Shop when stores are not crowded.

Plan your shopping in the morning when your child isn't tired.

6. Keep the shopping time short. Do not shop for many gifts in one trip.

7. Let your child carry the gift money in his or her pocket.

When you arrive at the store, look the gift ideas you talked about at home. Help your child find items that are in his or her price range. You may have to say, "No, you can't buy that one because it costs $2.00, and you only have $2.00 in your pocket." It is good for children to learn that they can't buy what they can't afford.

9. What if there are several good choices? Let your child choose.

10. Let your child give the money to the salesperson and receive the change. This teaches the direct relationship between money and goods.

11. What if your child later has second thoughts about the gift? That is an important lesson, too. Not being happy about a purchase teaches children that careful buying and planning is important.

12. Try to avoid running down your child's gift choice. Instead, praise selections made wisely. Or say something good about the gift - "You're right, the tie doesn't have red circles on it, but Daddy always has liked blue stripes, too."

Student Space Station

While the fate of America's future Space Station remains uncertain, students in Mississippi are making their own future in a reknown project called Student Space Station. Now in its 3rd year of existence, this extraordinary venture emphasizes the experiential approach to learning, providing students tremendous amounts of time in the laboratory developing and practicing an assortment of "flight experiments".

Following eight days of intensive training, eight of the 32 students per mission, called Science Officers will "blast off" for four days of "in-flight" study. The Space Station Simulator provides all facilities necessary to eat, sleep, exercise, bathe and work productively for several days at a time. Their only contact with "earth" is via radio and video communication with the remaining 24 students who monitor the "flight" from the Mission Control Center located in the Planetarium. Everything the students learn in training is put into practice during the mission.

Both the Space Station and The Henderson Mission Control Center incorporate computer terminals and consoles very similar to those at NASA, and allow the students controllers to monitor space systems and crew health, direct the experiments, manage anomalies, and interact with the news media.

A major benefit of the project is that each student, whether he serves as a Science Officer or Mission Controller, leaves with a new definition of teamwork, increased understanding of personal responsibility, and unparalleled experiences in real time decision-making, analytical thinking and advanced planning.

Students strongly interested in science, mathematics, or engineering and currently enrolled in the sixth or seventh grades in a Mississippi school should write immediately for an application form or call 960-1550. Completed applications should be returned, along with a $2.00 application fee, to: Davis Planetarium Foundation, 201 East Pascagoula Street, Jackson, Mississippi 39201, and must be postmarked no later than December 15, 1989. Applications will be reviewed by a committee of specialists in science education, and semi-finalists will be announced by March 1, 1990. The semi-finalists will be invited to Jackson for in-guest house by owners, G.E. and Eugenia Messick of Memphis. Furnished with many beautiful antiques, this holiday house, which has never been on tour before, will be particularly beautiful during the Christmas season festooned with its Christmas array. One hundred, fifty years of existence thru Holly Springs history has left this elegant house much the better for wear. RUTLEDGE began as a small cottage in 1880 and emerged as a "Queen Anne" Victorian with lace trimmings and porch in the 1890's. It has been authentically restored and now boasts every modern amenity. It has superbly landscaped grounds and rear garden. Walter Goodman, Pres. of the Mississippi Central Railroad, built the original house for his son. Other families who have lived here were the Ratherns and the Woods. It is now the home of Kathryn R. Mackie. THE PINES, home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam McClatchy, Jr., is a perfect example of Italianate Victorian architecture, having the characteristic brackets under the eaves, the heavy ornamentation above the windows, the high pitched gabled roof and the bay window on the front. It was built soon after the Civil War by Addison Craft, a Confederate Pilgrimage 52 years ago; it seems to have discovered the fountain of youth thru enlightened and sensitive renovation. While Mr. Craft was mayor, Adele Stevenson (Vice President of the United States) stayed overnight here. LOMENICK PLACE was built in the 1890's by I.C. Levy. Originally, the structure was two story Victorian. In the 1920's, the home was struck by lightning and the top story burned. This house is credited with having the first running water plumbing in town. The home was undergone recent renovation and modernization, and is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lomenick and their two small children. This is the first time on tour. THE MARSHALL COUNTY MUSEUM building was constructed in 1903 as a dormitory for the Mississippi Synodical College, which merged with Belhaven in

GIFTS FROM THE KITCHEN
"It's better to give than to receive" is an old saying we have heard many times, and one that parents and other adults try to teach children. As we approach the holiday gift season, the value of this saying can be taught through "learn by doing" activities of 4-H members. 4-H members are accustomed to making things with their hands, so why not turn their creative energy toward making holiday gifts for friends, family members and teachers - plan a gift making workshop. The food projects offer many opportunities to give of one's self through a homemade gift from the kitchen. A tin of cookies or candy, a mug of hot chocolate mix, a loaf of bread, jams or jellies, snack mixtures and many others are excellent gifts for children to make and give. The choices are limited only to the 4-H member's imagination. This type of workshop or activity gives the 4-H members an opportunity for project work, to fellowship with others and is a good citizenship activity. It also

NEW TIMBER TRESSPASS LAW TOOK EFFECT JULY 1
A new 1989 law covering civil liability for cutting trees without the consent of the owner went into effect July 1, 1989. The new statute, Section 95-5-10 of the Mississippi Code-1972 annotated, repealed and replaced five older laws dealing with varying kinds of civil timber trespass.

Sub-section one of Section One, 95-5-10, provides for the tree owner to collect "a sum equal to double the fair market value of the tree cut down, deadened, destroyed or taken away without consent, together with the reasonable cost of reforestation..." up to a maximum of 250 dollars per acre. The fact that a person cut down, deadened, destroyed or took away the tree by honest mistake will not be allowed as an exception or defense to liability.

The owner of an illegally cut, deadened, destroyed or removed tree only has to prove ownership and that the tree was taken without his consent to have grounds for civil action.

Sub-section 2 of Section One of the new timber trespass law provides that if a tree is illegally removed (by cutting, etc.) in a willful manner, or in reckless disregard for the rights of the owner, then the guilty party must additionally pay the owner as a penalty, 55 dollars for every tree cut that measures 7 inches or larger in diameter at 18 inches above the ground. Trees cut that are smaller than 7 inches carry a penalty of 10 dollars per tree.

In addition to the aforementioned payments and penalties the guilty party may also be liable for expert witness fees and attorneys fees in the discretion of the court.

Section Two of 95-5-10 repeals five old sections on civil timber trespass which were more specific as to species, but unclear on defining what a "tree" was. Repealed Section 95-5-3 of the old laws also provided that the defendant could establish "good faith" as an affirmative defense.

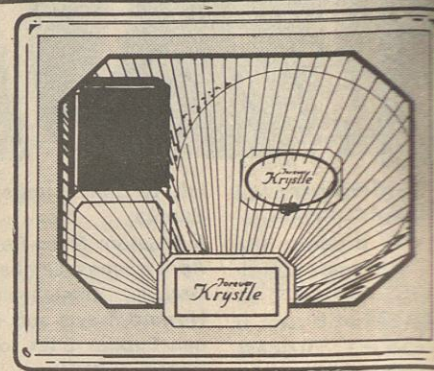

The Mississippi Forestry Commission's Forest Conservation Laws booklet is currently being revised to include this new Civil law for timber trespass and should be available on request about December 1 by writing the State Forester, 301 N. Lamar St., S-300, Jackson, MS 39201.

Employees Receiving Bonus Checks

Thanksgiving At Heil

As part of its annual tradition, The Heil Co. in Tishomingo hosted a Thanksgiving dinner for its employees. The feast was held on Wednesday, November 22, 1989, and featured all of the trimmings. This is one of the more pleasant duties of the Plant Manager, Glen Nelson.
This is the time that he personally gets to thank all employees for the effort that they made during the previous year.

Adding a few more trimmings to the holiday celebration was the announcement of the production bonus and wage increase. This year the bonus came to $1.00 per hour for each hour that each employee worked. For most employees, this gave them an average of $1,900 to $2,000 extra in the pay check just before Christmas.

Because Heil is on a "bonus-system," there had not been a wage increase for a few years. In order for The Heil Co. to remain competitive, Glen Nelson announced that all employees would receive a 35 cents per hour general wage increase. This means that the rate for the majority of employees will be $8.01 per hour effective January 1, 1990.

The reaction from the employees was very favorable. Employees were heard to say, "That was great!" Others said, "We did not expect it, but it is really appreciated!" Just about all employees expressed their thanks. "Heil is just happy that we could make this season a little bit brighter for our folks," said Nelson. "I know that when we announce the E.S.O.P. value when it is available, that this will add to the em-

The Heil Co. is the largest full service manufacturer of Dump truck Bodies and Hoists in the United States. Additionally, Heil manufacturers Refuse Bodies and containers and Bulk Trailers. Heil has 12 plants and offices in the United States and one subsidiary in Scotland.

future forests can consume up to one-quarter million tons of carbon dioxide per year.

If other states and countries will practice sound forest management and follow our example of regenerating forests the earth's ability to consume carbon dioxide will be tremendously increased. The large green carbon dioxide sponge provided by those forests could provide short-term relief while scientists continue their efforts to fully understand the interactions between greenhouse gases and global climate change.

HOMEWORK IS IMPORTANT
Dear Dr. Morris:

We are having trouble with a 9 year old son who will not do his homework, and when he does he drags his feet. We are getting reports from his teachers that he is not bringing his work to school from home. Do you have any suggestions.

(Identity withheld by request)

RESPONSE:
Believe me you are not alone! This is a frequent complaint from many parents.

In getting children motivated to do their homework, several general guidelines should be considered:

--Homework is an excellent opportunity to teach a child responsibility.

--Parents can also encourage self-motivation which increases independent work and study skills by allowing the child to be a self-evaluator.

--Parents should not do work for children, but rather show them how to find the answers. For example, help a child to find a word in the dictionary rather than telling them the definition of the word.

--Organization is important. By having a calendar close to the study area you can help your child remember important tests and assignments.

--A specific time should be set aside each day, using that time very consistently.

--Consider using "wind down" time, allowing the child to "wind down" between the time he gets home from school and the time homework begins.

--Encourage taking the most difficult problems first or the most difficult assignments as the beginning. This can help foster feelings of self-confidence and increase motivation in finishing other tasks which are now easier.

--It is not a good idea to allow your child to skip difficult problems, returning to these once the easier tasks are done.

--Teach children how they can divide big assignments into smaller tasks. (For example, breaking writing a report into smaller segments which are easier to handle.)

--Make your entire house a learning laboratory with dictionaries, maps, globes, books, chalk board, magazines, and computer (if available) handy. The kitchen is a great place to teach fractions, amounts, and measurements.

--Encourage a daily review of notes and strongly discourage procrastination. Tape recorders can be very useful in recording notes and having children listen to them since some children learn better by listening through their ears rather than through their eyes.

--MOST IMPORTANT! Rave about your child's successes and avoid focusing on mistakes and failures. Positive verbal reinforcement can help your child know he or she is doing well. It is extremely important they know this.

FORESTS FOR OUR FUTURE

Every city street in America lined with trees by the year 2000? Campaign promises of "a tree in every yard"?

These notions may appear a little extreme, yet they may one day come true as man begins to pay increasing attention to the way trees (or lack of them) affects the world's climate. Forests are already closely linked to the popular issues of "greenhouse effect" and "global climate change". Deforestation in Central South America and in several other key nations are purported to be one of the potential causes of these disturbing trends. But through reforestation, trees will become part of the solution.

Experts on the greenhouse effect say that a build-up of greenhouse gases, such as carbon dioxide and other heat-trapping gases produced by burning of fossil fuels, will increasingly trap heat from the sun's rays in the atmosphere, gradually raising temperatures. The hypothesis further predicts that an accompanying slow increase in temperature may cause slight melting of the polar ice caps, resulting in such dramatic global changes as rising sea levels and the resulting loss of shoreline and coastal wetlands.

In addition, there may be a northward migration of the earth's vegetation as once-temperate climates warm, allowing tropical and temperate species to flourish further north.

The greenhouse effect is increased, according to some scientists, by deforestation via the "slash and burn" method -- currently being utilized on a widespread basis in the tropical rainforests to convert forest land to agricultural uses. Forest clearing on this scale adds large quantities of carbon dioxide to the atmosphere.

Although few scientists dispute the likelihood that increased concentrations of greenhouse gases will result in rising temperatures, the big question is how much of a rise will occur, and when. Some have cited evidence of dramatic temperature increases of up to one degree Fahrenheit since the turn of the century. Other scientists report actual decreases in temperature during the same period on rural areas, raising the possibility that temperature increases will be restricted to urban "heat islands".

Some experts theorize that the greenhouse effect can be offset or delayed if more of the atmosphere's carbon dioxide can be consumed or converted. They point out that trees are nature's most efficient converters of carbon dioxide to oxygen.

Forests act as giant carbon dioxide converters and storers. Scientists calculate that for every ton of wood a forest grows, it removes 1.47 tons of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and replaces it with 1.07 tons of oxygen.

A tree's ability to convert carbon dioxide to oxygen largely depends on that tree's age and health. A young, vibrant forest is a veritable oxygen factory. But as the forest ages, the conversion ratio slows and eventually reverses itself. As older trees begin to die, they release stored carbon dioxide.

Even individual trees can make a potential contribution, particularly in an urban setting. Planting more trees in cities can help reduce the "heat island" effect by producing shade, thus dropping both the temperature and cooling costs.

In Mississippi we have an outstanding reforestation and forest management record. Our private forest landowners plant an average of about 60 million seedlings per year, covering tens of thousands of acres. These

Ark Mountain Christmas Tour

The weekend of November 24-25 were the dates of an All-Christ sponsored tour to Branson, MO, in the Ozark Mountains. There were two buses loaded with the forty passengers on the other from Athens, AL, with exclusive of three overflow buses. The first stop on the trip was Hardee's in Corinth for a breakfast of sausage and cinnamon roll, and pre-arranged and paid for by Johnny Tuten, Tour Director for Basden Transportation, Inc., who was traveling with the Athens group.

After an all day trip on the bus which included group singing and jovial banter, the travelers arrived at Branson just in time for a bountiful buffet dinner at Mr. Lou's - complete with dessert. Then, the entertainment for the evening was two hours of delightful comedy and music at the Presley Country Music Show.

The next morning - after a staggering buffet breakfast at Mr. Lou's, the group traveled to the Shepherd of the Hills Farm for a tour by motorized trams which included visiting such places as Old Matt's Cabin, a trip to the top of the 230-foot Inspiration Tower, a thirty-minute daytime family play, "An Ozark Christmas Carol," The gift shops, and other points of interest.

From the farm the group visited Silver Dollar City, dressed in all of its Christmas splendor, and then on for a shopping spree at the factor merchants mall.

Saturday night was the highlight of the trip which included another beautiful and delicious feast at the Apple Mill restaurant, and a return trip to the Shepherd of the Hills Farm's amphitheater to attend the Christmas nativity drama "The Newborn King." The one-and-a-half-hour performance included real sheep, horses, camels, a donkey, actors dressed as shepherds, wise men, Roman soldiers, and chariots that were authentic in every detail. Also, an added treat were the decorations. The farm, as well as the city of Branson, were decorated beautifully for Christmas.

Sunday morning the group returned to Mr. Lou's for another breakfast feast and then started the return trip home. On the way to church services at First Baptist Church in Conway, AR, the group sang Christmas Carols and enjoyed a trivia contest. Everyone was graciously welcomed at the First Baptist Church after the services, the tour proceeded to North Little Rock where Sunday dinner was also enjoyed on the way home.

There were forty-seven in the A.F.C. group, including Tom and Afton Minga, who served as Tour Directors: The other passengers were: Dorothy Adams, Zelma Allen, Jane Barnard, Evelyn Barnes, Jo Ann Bolton, Lila Boyd, Nancy Brinkley, Fannie Burns, Susie Chesnut, Hattie Choate, Billie Coker, Babe Cosby, Doc Cosby, Esther Crabb, Opal Dean, Elizabeth Durbin, Clea Gann, James Grisham, Martha Grisham, Barbara Hamilton, Pam Hatcher, Necie Horn, Nellie Horton, Olivia Jones, Clara King, Ervina Kuehn, Joyce Lamme, Nell Landrum, Julian Long, Mary Jo McAnally, Carolyn McHafey, Carolyn McNabb, Helen Meiggs, Dora

Morris, Boyd Phillips, June Pruitt, Nellie Rue Robinson, Willie Mae Robinson, Velma Taylor, Allen Tompkins, Floye Tompkins, Helen Vaughn, Mary Sue Wiley, Riila Wiley, and Richard Worsham.

The driver for the All-For-Christ group was Earl Smith, Russellville, AL.

Eastport Homemakers Club

The Eastport Homemakers Club met Monday Night November 13th in the home of Mrs. Sue Borden.

V.P. Jimmie Hampton called the meeting to order with the thought of the month. "True friends are like diamonds - radiant and rare. False friends are like autumn leaves found everywhere."

Sue gave the devotional from John 14:1-4 Dottie Patterson led the ladies in prayer.

Margaret Smith gave a very interesting educational report on nutrition. Losing weight is a going thing now days. If you gain a pound a year in 30 years that's 30 extra pounds. Then she read an article of 9 reasons not to lose weight.

Ellen Robinson gave a article on Family Relations and traveling with children. Be sure you have games, books or coloring books and crayons to keep them occupied during the trip.

Roberta Luttrell gave the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurers report.

Jeanette Miner gave the program on Christmas. First she passed out a Christmas cross-words puzzle. Then she explained how everyone thinks of Christmas as a time when everyone is happy and joyful but there are more people who have deep depression and blues during this time of year.

There was a good discussion on how to help older people get through the holidays.

Special guest was Barbara Sweeney social worker from the Dept. of Human Services in Iuka.

Barbara discussed the protected services to women and children and the need of Foster parents in Tishomingo and Prentiss Counties.

She explained that if a person has been abused as a child then he or she will probably do the same or down the line. There needs to be more programs to educate young parents and to help stop the cycle.

Child abuse can be mental, emotional or sexual abuse. It doesn't have to come from poor families it happens in middle and upper class families also.

It was very educational and interesting and all the ladies enjoyed it very much. Thank you Barbara for coming and speaking to us.

Our next meeting will be our Christmas party. It will be at Jeanette Miner's, December 11th, everyone will bring a

In Memory Of Casey Clay!

To All Parents

"I'll lend you, for a little while, a child of mine." He said, "For you to love while he lives, and mourn when he is dead. It may be seven or eleven years, or eighteen, or twenty-three, "But will you, 'til I call him back, take care of him for me?" "He'll bring his charms to gladden you, and shall his stay be brief, "You'll have his lovely memories as solace for your grief."

"I cannot promise he will stay, as all from earth return, "But there are lessons taught down there I want this child to learn. "I've looking the wide world over in my search for teachers true, "And from the throngs taht crowd life's lanes, I have selected you. "Now will you give him all your love - not think the labor vain, "Nor hate me when I come to call to take him back again."

"I fancied that I heard them say, 'Dear Lord, they will be done.' "For all the joy this child shall bring, the risk of grief we'll run. "Well shower him with tenderness and love him while we may, "And for the happiness we've known, forever grateful stay. "And should the angels call for him much sooner than we planned "We'll brave the bitter grief that comes, and try to understand."

Our son died in a tragic accident on May 22nd, since that time I have closer observed parents and children. I have felt good about you parents who take time to show your children how much you love them, you give them the words to build them up and never berate them when they make a mistake, you just use it to show them how to do better next time. You are consistent with what discipline is needed and show them how to think on their own, you also are careful not what things your children get, they earn in some way so they take pride in it rather than giving them everything they want but most of all you teach them about God and what is needed in their lives to have an eternal home someday.

I have felt so sad when I saw you parents who ignore your children or act as if they are just a burden, you mentally abuse them, and sometimes physically abuse them even in stores in front of people, if its that way there, what do they have to put up with in private. First remember they did not ask to be born, and they are a gift from God, and most of all they have to rely on you for their daily needs and most of all they need you to seek help to do better if you can't truly love them and provide that. There is nothing shameful about asking for help and especially seek out God who can be your greatest strength.

Compare your child to a flower, all pretty and fragile at birth, but left unattended it doesn't turn out well but with love and care it blossoms forth as something to take pride in.

To you parents who have lost a child as we have, our hearts go out to you as only the ones who have experienced the pain can know. We still need your prayers.

In Christian Love,
Travis & Carol Clay

Pre-Planning Provides Peace of Mind & Substantial Savings

Because some day, someone in every family will be faced with making funeral arrangements for a loved one, a Pre-Need Plan offered through Cutshall Funeral Home is designed to take unnecessary hardships out of a death in a family.

One big advantage of planning in advance is that a funeral is planned at today's values. While prices are escalating, your cost remains the same. You have greater flexibility than a pre-need trust or pre-paid funeral.

Example: A person pre-planning a $3,000 funeral at age 65 would pay $2,223, saving $777.00. At age 50 that person would pay $1,771, saving $1,229. (These figures are for example and funeral of different price and for persons of different ages would reflect similar savings. This pre-need plan offered through American Funeral Assurance Company is available from age 0 to 100)

Remember the Cutshall Pre-Need Funeral Plan offered through American Funeral Assurance Company guarantees future values at today's prices, regardless of the rate of inflation.

Find out how easy and beneficial a Pre-Need Plan provided through Cutshall Funeral Home can be. Mail this coupon or call for an appointment with one of our professional planners.

USGS Official receives Award

National Center auditorium in Reston, Va.

Frederick was honored for his recent work at the Interior Department during 11 months of temporary duty, serving in two key positions -- acting Assistant Secretary for Water and Science and acting principal Deputy Assistant Secretary for Water and Science.

Frederick, 54, has been with the USGS for 16 years and has been Associate Director since 1980.

In presenting the award to Frederick, Lujan described him as an exemplary federal employee and expressed admiration for his work at the Interior Department during the crucial transition months early in the Bush administration.

Frederick recently returned to his post with the USGS as Associate Director, where he is responsible for management of the programs and budget of the 10,000 employee federal agency, with an annual budget of about $660 million.

Frederick is a native of Iuka, MS. He worked for the Aeronautical Chart and Information Center in St. Louis, Mo., and for the Department of Defense in Washington, D.C., prior to joining the USGS.

Other awards Frederick has received include the Presidential Distinguished Executive Award in 1987, Department of the Interior Distinguished Service Award in 1982 and the Department of Defense Meritorious Service Award in 1973.

Frederick received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics from Bethel College in McKenzie, TN, in 1957, and attended the University of Cincinnati graduate school from 1960 to 1961.

The Fredericks live in Vienna, Va. They have two sons, Michael and Jeffrey.

Birthday Celebrations!

A series of birthdays were celebrated recently by the H.P. & Lilly Price family. On October 16, the remaining family members met at the home of Arvil and Shirley Bullard (the old family homeplace) for the celebration of Ruthie "Snooks" Kemp's birthday. Many memories were shared at this time as everyone gathered around the table in the familiar setting of the kitchen. "Snooks" led in prayer thanking God for their blessings and remembering their deceased parents, brothers, and sister; Phin & Lilly Price, Hubert Price, Lester Price, Melvin Price, Perry Price, and Billie Joslin. Pictures were taken and family tree charts completed. Those present were Lou Morris, Norman and Ruby Bowling, Allie Honeycutt, Dona Johnson, Esolene Dawson, Elev McMasters, Bernice Price, Verble Tomme, Euna Mae and Noel Whitfield, Brenda Whitfield, Ruthie Kemp, and Shirley and Arvil Bullard.

On October 17, the group met at the home of Mrs. Lou Morris to celebrate her 80th birthday. Another good time and delicious meal was enjoyed. On October 21, Verble Tomme's birthday was celebrated at the home of Lawrence and Allie Honeycutt. Pictured above are: Lou Morris, Allie Honeycutt, Dona Johnson, Elev McMasters, Verble Tomme, Euna Mae Whitfield, Ruthie Kemp and Shirley Bullard.
