Supervisors Not Included In Wrongful Death Lawsuit Settlement

The Tishomingo County Board of Supervisors were dropped from the wrongful death lawsuit filed by the Family of Sharon Duckett Williams.

According to Tishomingo County Circuit Court records, the Tishomingo County Board of Supervisors were dropped from the lawsuit on September 30, 1994 by the special judge appointed to hear the case by the Mississippi Supreme Court, Judge Joe Pigott.

In an earlier story, it was reported from Jackson that an out-ofcourt settlement was reached between the Duckett-Williams Family, Sheriff Johnny Nunley and the Board. The settlement was only with Nunley and did not include the Supervisors, records indicated.

The original lawsuit was filed after the April 3, 1993 death of hospital worker Sharon Duckett Williams at the hand of Leon Powell, a trusty serving a 20 year manslaughter conviction. Powell, who was serving his time at the Tishomingo County Jail, drove to the Iuka Hospital in a van owned by the Sheriff's Department to pick up prisoners' meals. While there he shot Williams, who was a dietary worker, then drove a short distance from the facility and shot himself.

Details of the settlement were not released.

Jay - "A Special Angel

A sense of "peace" has entered he grieving hearts of the Darwin amily this week as they have iscovered through pure "fate" hat the tragic death of their oung son has given a new hope of life to another child.

There was little hesitation when Teresa and Sammy Darwin those to donate their 9 year old son's organs following his death on January 3. They knew it was what Jay would have wanted. He had often commented during his short life on the organ donor program "I would want to help omeone, sometime". And he died at LeBonheur Jay Children's Medical Center in Memphis, following a hunting accident near his home in Iuka. After a day on life-support, the amily decided not to prolong his death. They donated his organs.

Sammy, Teresa and daughters, Nikki, Beth and Kinsley did not expect to learn who had received hese organs for some time, if ever. Normally a family has to wait more than a month before ransplant officials will say where the organs went, and even then they might only have received location and progress reports. But because of a column in Monday's Commercial Appeal, today the Darwins know that a young girl in Knoxville, Tennessee has hope of life.

The article was titled "Life Through A Special Memphis Angel" written by Lin Smithwick, a staff writer for the Detroit Lakes Tribune in Minnesota. Lin Smithwick is a granamother who was offering prayers for another child's family she believed lived in Memphis. Her granddaughter in Knoxville, Tennessee had received a kidney transplant from a donor in Memphis. It took only a short time for Teresa Darwin to contact Lin

Smithwick in Minnesota. Teresa knew in her heart that the special angel was "Jay'

Lin Smithwick had found the organ donor and the family in Iuka, Mississippi.

"We've had no doubt that the donated organs would be put to good use, but to have contact with the family.....it adds a sense of peace more than anything else and gives you a stronger belief in everlasting life," said Sammy Darwin.

The Darwins and Lin Smithwick would like to share with our readers the article that brought the two families together. It is a beautiful tribute to those who give life through death.

Life Through A Special Memphis (Iuka) Angel

By Lin Smithwick

DETROIT LAKES, Minn. Somewhere near Memphis there is a new angel.

This is an angel with no name or face for strangers many miles away

Was he a little boy whose parents dreamed big dreams of a day far into tomorrow?

Was she a little girl with magic in her smile and wonder in her heart?

The families whose lives this little angel has touched may never know the answers to those questions.

A long-awaited call came last week.

The holidays were over. Life and the world were getting back to normal, even in the newsroom. The new year had begun bringing with it the normal trappings of fresh starts and resolved improvements.

When the phone on the cluttered desk rang, it sounded intrusive. After a holidayshortened workweek, there was much to do.

A deep sigh rumbled within. A scrambled reach for the phone almost resulted in a spilled cup of coffee.

The voice at the other end of the telephone instantly dissolved any residue of post-holiday overload.

It was the youngest of my two sons. Only 24, his life had already been filled with more than the natural and needed blockades. Always the most intense and serious, he had married too young and unwisely.

A child, a girl, was born a few months after the wedding. She weighed two pounds. Not long after her birth, her weight dropped to a frightening one-pound level.

For weeks, the mite of a baby struggled, fought and made her way out of an incubator and into a life that would be laden with medical problems.

She was born almost three months before her due date. Her chances were not good; her future even dimmer.

Despite a grim medical prognosis, she did survive. Spunk, the doctors said, she had spunk. Actually, it was probably the Norwegian in her, but Southern doctors would never understand what that means.

Unbeknownst to those around her, it would take all of her Norwegian spirit and many other factors to get her through the next few years of her young life.

There was the lack of weight gain. Repeated eye surgery. Stunted physical growth. A father sent to the Persian Gulf for a war on foreign soil. A young couple with more problems than patience. A failed marriage.

Then it was the kidneys.

Almost a complete renal failure. Daily dialysis stretching for hours on end. Infections and constant problems with the tubes pumping the impurities from her system. Never-ending complications.

Her name was put on the kidney donor list.

She was 4 years old. The list was very long. Could she live long enough to make it to the top of the life-saving list? Many didn't think so. Many others did. Most important, she did.

Those around her marveled at her tenacity and resilience. Looking much like a small walking, talking toy doll, she won the hearts of the medical staff at the University of Tennessee hospital in Knoxville.

She was a doll. A real living doll. But for how long?

The question was never really asked out loud. Family and friends may have wondered privately, but only positive vibes were sent her way in reality.

While the wait and watch went on, there were continual prayers on her behalf from Minnesota to Tennessee. Then the voice of a son many states away brought the news. It was early on January 4. In his customary precise, nononsense way, his words filtered through the telephone wires.

We have a kidney; it's being flown to Knoxville from Memphis. The transplant will take place tonight if everything matches.

Dear Lord, please hear our prayers.

Just one of the many needed tests took more than six hours.

Throughout the day, concentration was impossible. Words needed to meet a deadline bounced across the computer screen, taunting a snapped attention span.

Yes, there was rejoicing and hope. But there was also a deep sense of sadness. A child in The transplant was done. The Knoxville might soon have a jump-start on a new life. Her family was jubilant. A few hundred miles away, another family nameless and faceless to these strangers ---- was grieving the loss of a beloved child.

Who were these people who had the courage and vision to give their child's organs away to strangers that others might have a chance at life? Could they ever begin to understand the gift of life they had given?

That child, too, undoubtedly had grandparents. Probably grandmothers. Now we all shared something in common. Tears of joy for one child; tears of sorrow for another.

How to offer those people comfort and compassion and at the same time say enough words of thanksgiving? Impossible.

A child is living; another isn't. How cruel. How unfair that one child dies and another lives.

The images of other young people lost in our area last year, came to mind. Many of those families, too, had donated muchneeded organs to other names on other waiting lists. They, too, gave many gifts of life.

Today, thoughts of an unknown family many worlds away overshadow a spectrum of other feelings. Prayers are offered for them. Prayers from a grateful Minnesota grandmother's heart.

The effort to try to imagine what they are going through is impossible. Coping with the death of a child of any age is overwhelming.

Much later that night, a team of doctors and miracle workers began the process of implanting one child's kidney into another's little body.

Incredible. Unbelievable.

Long into the night, another call came. The news was good.

new, small kidney began working immediately in a little granddaughter's body.

Now, somewhere near Memphis, forever, there is a new angel watching and looking over the shoulder of a living angel as she takes her own wings and flies into a promising future.

Thank you special angel, thank you.

Thank you to all the angels everywhere who have given life through death.

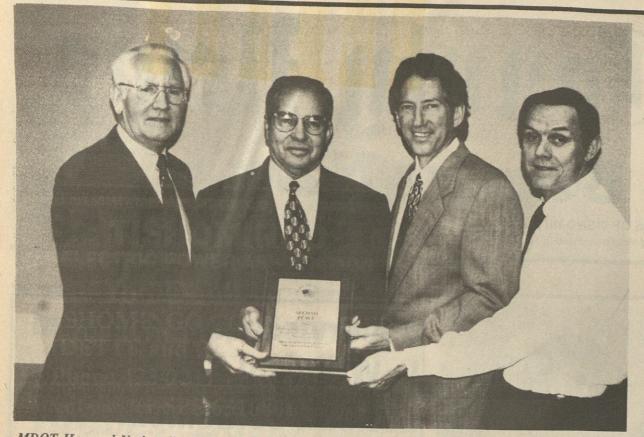

We continue to grieve for the loss of Jay - his smile, his bright eyes, his wonderment, his quick movement, and the spirit of joy he radiated in everything he did. He brought us laughter and smiles and now in death he continues to bring joy and hope through his sharing.

MDOT Receives National Award

According to MDOT Executive Director Robert L. Robinson, the Department placed second behind the Virginia Department of Transportation in the 22nd Annual Federal Highway Administration/Keep America Beautiful Awards competition for its "High quality and extensive public awareness and environmental improvements efforts." The Tennessee DOT placed third.

"This is the second consecutive year MDOT has received national recognition for its anti-litter program," Robinson said. "It shows a dedication and commitment on the part of the Mississippi Transportation Commission, MDOT employees and the citizens of this state who participate in such programs as Adopt-A-Highway and Adopt-An-Interchange."

Robinson said in addition to the adoption programs, MDOT's focuses on changing behavior through education. Represen-tatives from the Department present a program to children in grades K-3 about the detrimental effects of litter. The kids are shown a cartoon and given a coloring book, a pencil and a book marker to keep.

The Department also helps fund People Against Litter (PAL), a non profit, statewide affiliate of Keep Mississippi Beautiful. A majority of PAL's efforts focuses on training educators so they can pass the message on to their students.

To create a more favorable first impression, the Department last year implemented a program to enhance major entrances into Mississippi. Mowing, litter removal, landscaping and improved signage and road surfaces are given top priority.

The Mississippi Transporation Commission, Zack Stewart, Wayne Burkes and Ronnie Shows, feels a litter-free state makes a favorable first impression in the eyes of both visitors (tourists) and industry, thus enhancing the overall economy.

Home Economics Tips

By: Barbara F. Guinn, Extension Home Economist SERVICE CONTRACTS

DO YOU NEED THEM? When you buy a car, electronic equipment or a major appliance, you may be offered a service contract. Although often called 'extended warranties," service contracts are not warranties. Warranties are included in the price of the product. Service contracts are separate from the product and cost extra. Service contracts are like insurance--you are paying a 'premium'' to insure against loss. As with other insurance, first dollar coverage (insuring against even small out-of-pocket losses) can be expensive. You need to carefully weigh the cost of this "insurance" with the likelihood of the product needing repairs, the potential cost of repairs, your ability to pay for repairs when needed, and the value you place on the security of not having to worry about unexpected repair costs. To decide whether you need a service contract, consider several questions. What does the service contract cover? Does it cover repairs that already would be covered by the warranty? Does it cover routine maintenance? The service contract may cover only certain parts of the product or specific repairs. Read the contract carefully. If the contract does not list something as specifically

Other bills awaiting floor action in the House at the end of the week included a measure to establish attempted murder as a separate offense under the state's criminal laws, a proposal to extend the laws creating the Department of Health to the year 2001, and increase to $200 the amount paid by a mortagee for failing to cancel a mortgage or deed of trust after full payment of debts. The House approved a bill to correct a Code reference in an old law concerning finance charges under a revolving charge agreement. Officials from the Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) conferred with the Ways and Means Committee during the week regarding their legislative recommendations including a series of bills to promote future growth of the telecommunications industry. If enacted, the bills would extend certain tax exemptions and jobs tax credits to the telecommunications industry, and specify criminal and civil penalties for the theft of telecommunications services and devices. Other DECD legislation would encourage revitalization of railroads and railroad yards; support expansion of the Port of Gulfport; and provide an increase in bonding authority for several on-going economic programs.

In other committee action, a Judiciary "A" subcommittee approved a proposed Alcohol Boating Safety Act seeking to make it unlawful in Mississippi to operate a motorboat on public waters while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or illegal drugs. The so-called "BUI" bill is patterned after the state's law on driving under the influence of alchol. As recommended by the subcommittee, it would not apply to boats with a motor of less than 25 horsepower.

The House Appropriations Committee received a briefing on the state employees' health insurance program, including efforts to resolve problems regarding handling of claims under a new contract with a third-party administrator. Officials of the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks met with the Game and Fish Commission to discuss hunter education, boating safety, improvements at the 27 state parks, and related matters. Various education-related groups went before the House Education Committee, officials of the Department of Transportation met with members of the Transportation Committee, and the Ways and Means Committee heard presentations by the State Gaming Commission, Tax Commission, and State Treasurer Marshall Bennett. Meetings also were held by numerous other committees and subcommittees.

Among other things, the bill approved by the House Insurance Committee provides for a $1,000 fine against any motorist who causes an accident in which the damage to others' property exceeds $500 and the driver fails to show financial responsibility. The fine would be in addition to suspending the driver's license and/or registration as currently authorized by law. Under the House proposal, no changes would be made in the minimum amounts of liability insurance necessary to show financial responsibility, which would remain at $10,000 for bodily injury or death in an accident, $20,000 for bodily injury or death to two or more people, and

"Promises"

Dedicated To Johnny S. Nunley You started dreaming many years ago, You never gave up and worked hard for your goal, Hard work, long hours and dedication Got you where your heart longed for, But with much pain and humiliation.

You did your best and strived for more, YOU never gave up even when the job asked for more.

You made us promises and kept each one. You saw to the needs of almost everyone. You made us proud, we expected the best, You gave us your all with no regrets. But some saw your progress and hard work as a threat, A bitter brick wall too tall to scale, so they plotted, and probed and "swore revenge", they said, "WE'LL STOP HIM NO MATTER THE COST", he's ruining our plans to "TAKE OVER IT ALL".

We sometimes forget the oath of the law, they pledge to stop, no matter the cost. Their life they lay on the line, not only for you, but all man kind.

You never stopped to think of yourself. Sometimes you even let people draw you into their webb. It's hard to do it all alone, so sometimes there were others you depended on.

The hours, the pain, the nights without end, the threats on your life, your family and friends. The sleepless nights of lying awake, wondering if their promise they might just The suffering of your family your heart felt so much, but you had made a promise, "YOUR JOB WOULD COME FIRST".

You somehow kept us at the end of the line, but we all knew who was in the back of your mind.

Your hard work, the help you gave to each man; the classes and speeches on drugs you did for our kids.

Not many know you like some of us do, you are like us all, "WE MAKE MISTAKES TOO".

We still hold you high on the top of our list, your dedication to this county will not be forgotten, but only missed.

The people you've helped, the friends you've made, they'll all be there for you through those long sad days.

To have been there, to have helped so many, is something few will ever see, so to have been there somehow is better than never having been there at all.

So keep your head high, bear your grief, few stones will be cast and surely not by me. You were elected, you served, now you are accepting your mistakes.

You've made me proud of the job you have done, we've suffered it through, and I feel we have won. The good you have done will not be forgotten for a long time to come. So bear your burdens and keep to the wind

Through good or bad, beside you I'll be, just holding your hand for you to see.

For you see, I know you better than anyone. I'm not only your friend, I'm your wife and we are one.

The one who grieves with you through those long sleepless nights, through the pain and suffering of what was wrong and what was right.

We cry, we pray, we say how can it be, but with God's help we'll make it. For you see, it's a long hard road, but when all else fails, we've got each other and that's something they cannot take from us.

I know you, the man who was so dedicated to his job. I know the man who worked day and night to make this county a place for all of us to be proud of. I believe your hard work and long hours paid off in the end. Our county is better than it has ever been. I've seen you through times after telling the parents, or our friends that their child lay dead after a wreck his life did end.

I guess somehow our enemies did win, they cost you your job and destroyed your soul. We will lose it all most likely in the end, our home, our pride, even some of our friends. But things of this earth are given by God, as trinkets to play with till our time is up. We work, we play, we strive to have it all, but in the end, only one thing matters and that's God's call.

They say in the long run God has his plans, all things are for a reason and no questions we should ask. But sometimes we wonder, how can it be? Why do things happen so bad to me? I hope and I pray that God has us in his plan. Maybe someday we will understand.

There are those who will scorn you, they gossip, they laugh, but for us whe know you, it's their loss in the end. You made some mistakes and suffer you will, but always you will have the good you did that somehow will outweigh the bad. Those people you have helped, that hand you did lend, they will always remember you, even to the end. You had an excellent department, each one a hand you did lend, they all should respect you and never forget you did your job, and a good leader you were for your men. The common man will stand by you. They know where you've been. They know that no man on this earth is without sin.

They say a true friend is someone who is there for you when you are up and when you are down. A friend will not forsake you and cares for you you are good or if you are bad. A friend understands you and stops to pray for you, not to gossip about you. A friend stands by you, they hold your hand, not ashamed to be seen with you, but giad to lend. A friend would offer his soul and comfort you so dear. They are there to with you when you shed those tears. I believe you have many, many friends. You are a good, warm hearted man, and I hope God helps you through your hard times and sorrow. I not only say this as your wife, but as "YOUR BEST FRIEND".

4-H Communicates

By: Mary C. Baldwin Extension 4-H/Youth Agent TEEN SPENDING POWER

Teenagers are spending more money today than at any other time in history. In fact, last year American teens spent about $89 billion. Most of these purchases were spent on things like entertainment, food and clothing. This is more than three times teen expenditure figures of 1975 ($25.3 billion).

Not only do teens have more of their own money to spend, they are often given the family needs list with funds to purchase such products as food, paper products, detergent and other household goods. This fulfills a huge need for working parents and also teaches teens shopping skills and responsibility.

Studies also show that teens influence general family purchases. Often referred to as the temporary affluent, teens are acquiring more comfort and luxury items such as televisions, video cassette recorders, compact disc players, clothing, snacks, cosmetics and entertainment. Much of this increase in teen ownership occurred during the 1980s, and most of it can be attributed to teens entering the work force with evening and weekend jobs. Today's teens are also purchasing large ticket items such as used cars and insurance. Teen car ownership has tripled in the last 15 years.

Taking The First Step

Long ago, all it seemed you needed to know about money was how to make it. Today's world has it much more complicated, both the world of the individual and the financial world.

Most people are concerned about their financial security and want to plan for their future. However, instead of planning ahead, many tend to deal with their financial needs as situations arise. Others realize that there is a need for some level of financial planning but look at financial planning as an isolated event - investing in a mutual fund or buying insurance. Financial planning should be based on careful examination of your expected financial situation over the course of your entire lifetime.

There are six basic areas that should be addressed by comprehensive financial planning, regardless of your age, financial circumstances, or net worth. Financial position - understanding your present situation will help determine your current needs as well as what will be required in order to meet your future goals. Protection planning - assessing your needs, including adequate income in the event of death or disability. Investment planning · pinpointing your specific objectives for accumulating money and determining the amount that will be needed to achieve those objectives. Income tax planning - reviewing your federal income tax status and uncovering areas where you Possibly could save money on taxes. Retirement planning identifying strategies to help ensure your security, no matter what your age. Estate planning - preparing for the settlement of your estate to minimize taxes and maximize what is passed on to your heirs.

When you make the decision to start implementing your financial plan, don't get frustrated. Sometimes people try to do too much too early and end up frustrated; then they give up. Save as much as you can, but don't make it impossible. By having a plan in place, you have a better chance of reaching your goals and coming out ahead.

If you would like an opportunity to discuss financial planning, or get an answer to planning financial vour questions, I may be contacted at 1-800-455-7532.

Report From Congress

By: Representative Roger Wicker

The first session of the 104th Congress got underway on January 4th with a historic day of accomplishment which finally concluded at 2:25 a.m. the first order of business was to enact the rules package contained in the Republican Majority's Contract with America which included provisions to (1) force Congress to live under the same rules as every other American (2) cut the size of Congressional committee staffs by one-third and (3) reduce the Congressional budget.

Members of the House of Representatives are now engaged in important committee hearings to consider legislation which will be voted on during the first 100 days of the session. As a member of the Appropriations Committee, I am pleased to report that we are in the process of considering rescission bills designed to find savings in programs during the current fiscal year. Members of the Appropriations Committee believe we can start immediately saving dollars for American taxpayers and that we do not have to wait until future fiscal years to begin.

Our commitment to cut the budget and transform the role of the federal government was echoed during the initial meetings of my three assigned Appropriations Subcommittees: (1) Labor-Health and Human Services-Education (2) Military Construction and (3) Legislative Branch.

The earliest clues to the new Congress's dedication to cut spending may come in the Legislative Branch Subcommittee. Although the jurisdiction of this committee is relatively small in terms of actual dollars, the subcommittee is poised to build on Congress's earlier decision to lead by example.

While it is always difficult to reduce government spending, we are committed to CUT SPEN-DING FIRST. To that end, I believe a Balanced Budget Amendment to the U.S. Constitution is necessary to impose discipline not only on the present group of Congressmen but also on the Congress for decades to come.

I want to emphasize that there are several versions of the Balanced Budget Amendment being considered. The one which I favor contains a requirement that Congress cannot enact any future tax increases without a 3/5 vote of both the House and the Senate. We need to make sure the Constitution discourages higher taxes. Many states, including Mississippi, already have such provisions in their constitutions.

The exact wording of the balanced budget constitutional amendment will be a very important fight during the next few weeks. I want to assure you that I am working hard for an enactment of an amendment which limits both spending and higher taxes.

The Balanced Budget Amen-

Is this really what happened?

Are you the result of billions of

Are you the result of spontaneous

Are you a descendant of an ape-like creature that lived millions of years ago? Did your forbears swing through the trees on some remote island a few million years ago? Can you trace your "roots" back to some primordial slime that evolved, by environmental chance and pressure, into the human being you are today?

We see television specials and read textbooks on the "history of man" in which we see mankind move from the swamp on all enough, the Earth will die a "heat death" because energy is becoming less available for use as time goes by.

If you would like to take an in-depth look at organic evolution versus creation, we invite you to attend a 3-day seminar being held at the Iuka Church of Christ on Feb. 3-5. The seminar, entitled SCIENCE & NATURE: TWO VOTES FOR GOD, is an examination of both organic evolution and special creation. The seminar begins at 7:00 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 3 and runs many friends and neighbors who came to us with kind words and deeds of comfort during our bereavement.

Uncle Sam Mails New Year's Present To Taxpayers

The Internal Revenue Service today announced that more than 109 million taxpayers will receive tax packages and 23 million will receive postcards on or after January 3, 1995.

"Taxpayers who receive the postcard have two options. Those who want to prepare their own returns can send the postcard back to IRS and request that a tax package with forms and instructions be mailed to them," stated IRS Commissioner, Margaret Milner Richardson. Or, those taxpayers who plan to use a professional tax preparer can give the postcard to the tax preparer. The postcard has a pre-printed label that the preparer can use on the tax return.

In response to the National Performance Review (NPR) report, headed by Vice President Gore, the Internal Revenue Service has issued customer service standards to assist taxpayers in meeting their federal tax obligations.

"Taxpayers will have more convenient access to tax law and account information. Our prerecorded tax information will continue to be available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Toll-free telephone hours of operations with contact of our assistors will be .extended to 10 hours each business day," added Richardson.

The IRS Commissioner offers a list of reminders in filing your taxes this year:

1. List the correct names and social security numbers of all dependents.

2. You must report the name, ~ address and social security number or employer identification number of your child care provider(s) in order to claim the child care credit.

3. For 1994, you are allowed to $2,450 deduction for each exemption to which you are entitled. However, your exemption amount could be phased out if you have high income.

4. The maximum amount of money you can receive from the earned income credit has increased to $2,528.

Electronic filing is still being offered by preparers and transmitters who have been accepted into the program by IRS. Tax returns filed electornically can be processed through the system more quickly than those filed on paper. Also, taxpayers can save time and a trip to the bank by having their refund deposited electronically into their bank account.

Those who need forms other than those in their tax package can call toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676) or visit their local IRS office. Forms are also available at many banks, post offices and libraries.
