County Tishomingo nties found a Carter's h man drowned Monday ing in Cripple Deer Creek, r from where his car had found, burned, on the bridge v before.

The body of Randy Whitson, as found Monday around 9 according to Tishomingo y Sheriff David Smith.

The car of Whitson, a 1986 87 Chevrolet Camaro, had found empty and burned on dge crossing Cripple Deer on County Road 157 by a y Sunday at about 11:30 Smith explained. The rear, rs side wheel of the car was the bridge, the driver's door men and the car was burned a beyond recognition. Smith he officer was unable to find the car belonged to at that because no record was found ent car's tag number. Officers hed the area some Sunday to the driver of the car could be out t however, heavy rains the search to be postponed Monday, according to the ff's report.

Thanks to information found he wrecker driver, the mingo County deputy found that the car belonged to Whitson. Officers then contacted the man's mother, Emma Whitson, who told them her son had not come by to check on her the day before as was his usual daily routine.

"We went back to where the car was found and began searching again," Smith said. "We found his body about 50 to 75 yards down the flooded creek, caught on a root."

According to Tishomingo County Deputy Coroner Tom Richardson, the cause of death was drowning.

Sheriff Smith said they do not know the exact details of Whitson's ordeal, but he speculates that the man probably was traveling through the bottom area and realized it was flooded and attempted to back up. He probably then ran his back tire off of the bridge. This would have left Whitson no where to go out of the driver's side door except straight into the swiftly moving waters of the creek, Smith explained.

"The car, for reasons we don't know at this time, probably caught on fire and Whitson stepped out, right into the creek," Smith said. "The water was too swift to swim in."

Ferrous Metal Processing Off and Running In New Industrial Park On Tenn-Tom Waterway

A 40,000-square-foot Ferrous pleased with the quality of the Metal Processing plant, featuring the largest hot-rolled steel slitter this side of the Mason-Dixon Line, is Iuka, Mississippi's, newest industrial neighbor along the Tenn-Tom Waterway.

Ferrous Metal Processing, which is headquartered in Cleveland and operates a large processing center in that Ohio city, said it has found its new southern neighbors especially supportive as the new plant got up and running four months ago.

"We particularly appreciate the cooperation of the Yellow Creek State Inland Port Authority for our speedy start-up," said Ferrous President Eduardo "Ed" Gonzalez. "We are very pleased with the efforts and assistance provided by our hosts in Mississippi, as they have worked hard to make our entry into the Southern steel industry go smoothly.'

The company also has been

people hired to start operations.

"The local people's work ethic is great and we have been completely satisfied," said Lester general Bridges, Ferrous' manager in Iuka. "Since our business start-up Nov. 20, the employees have shown that they are capable of meeting our customers' requirements.'

Jobs Created

So far, 20 new jobs have been created with the opening of the $15 million plant. Another eight will come on board by mid-year as an additional line - 1/2 inch by 24-inch cut-to-length - begins production.

Future production expansion is scheduled next year. "We're conducting market research now in preparation for the installation of a 1/2-inch by 96-inch cut-tolength line in 2000," Bridges said. The line will be housed in a yetto-be constructed 60,000 - squarefoot building and will enable

Ferrous to penetrate new markets. Close To Customers

Ferrous Metal Processing decided to build in Iuka because of the community's centralized location within the South and its close proximity to its largest customer, the LTV plant, just 10 miles away.

"We took into account the increasing amount of steelmaking capacity that is coming on line in the region and found that being on Tennessee-Tombigbee the Waterway would enable us to serve many steel companies due to the availability of transportation via the river system and a short truck haul," Gonzales said.

Ferrous Metal Processing is ideally located to serve the needs of those who buy from Tuscaloosa Steel Corp., U.S. Steel Group, National Steel, Nucor Steel-Hickman, Gallatin Steel and Trico Steel Co.

The processing plant, the fourth business to locate in the Yellow Creek Port Authority's industrial park, has on-site access to rail and highway transportation as well as river barges, thus making it accessible to a host of centers and service manufacturers.

The majority of Ferrous's customers are steel service centers and manufacturers.

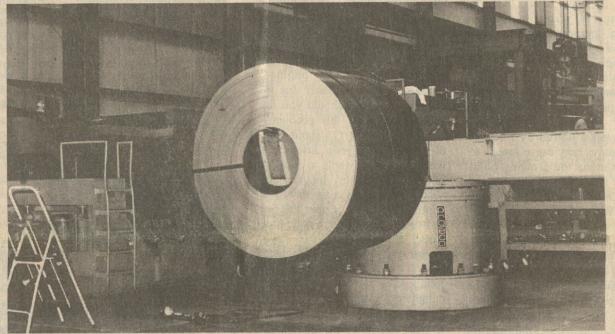

"While our proximity to southern steelmakers is very important, it is the region's service centers and manufacturers who make up the customer base for a toll processor like Ferrous," Gonzalez said.

The processing relationship begins with orders placed at the major mills by the service centers and manufacturers. By nature, a toll processor is an intermediary.

"For Ferrous Metal Processing, our independence is crucial to our prosperity," Bridges said. "We work to make all service centers comfortable in coming to us for their processing. We also have to sell the region's mini-mills on our capabilities because we want them to recommend us to their heat-lot and multi-heat-lot buyers."

Dedicated to hot-rolled processing, the new facility is extremely heavy duty in design. Its slitter is capable of routinely pulling three mults (pieces cut from one piece of steel) of 0.500gauge steel off coils 72 inches wide and up to 80,000 pounds.

At full speed, the luka plant will have 20 active OEM and service center customers, all of them moving large quantities of hot-rolled steel. While some of the processing will be for automotive customers, the percentage is small compared to the pipe and tube, construction, farm implement and tank markets. "The South has made it apparent that the steel industry is a welcome neighbor. Regional, state and local authorities have been aggressive in recruiting companies like ours into their community and have been very supportive in getting those companies up and running as quickly and comfortably as possible," Gonzalez said. significant There are differences in the relationships required for success in the South compared to the North, Gonzalez said. In the North processors work for a mix of customers that includes a larger percentage of primary producers than in the South. The reason is that in the North, primary producers are, for the most part, integrated steelmakers. In the South, minimills predominate. Unlike integrated producers, mini-mills sell very little processed steel. For the most part, minis sell each heat as rolled and do not typically contract with processors. "Our Cleveland one-stopshopping facility today features a most complete source of steel processing services," Gonzales said, "In Iuka, Ferrous Metal Processing's many years of experience in slitting and cut-tolength will serve well."

Gosa said they do not anticipate any additional hiring at this time at the Iuka plant, located on Paul Edmondson Drive, which presently has just over 200 employees. The Belmont facility on Front Street, which opened about 10 months ago, is still in the hiring process, Gosa remarked.

Bauhaus is headquartered in Saltillo, Miss. This plant employs 875 people. In addition to that location and the Tishomingo County locations, the company also operates a facility in Amory, Miss. According to company reports, Bauhaus USA had annual sales of more than $85 million in fiscal year 1998. They expect to exceed $100 million in fiscal 1999.

A spokesperson for La-Z-Boy said Bauhaus will be operating as an independent division of La-Z-Boy.

La-Z-Boy is the nation's third largest furniture manufacturer with annual sales exceeding $1.2 billion. They employ about 12,500 people in 31 facilities in the United States, Canada and Europe

Controversy Over Dismissal of Belmont Baseball Players Brought To School Board

by Angela Lambert

In addition to the usual business of approvals of field trips, use of facilities and fundraisers, Monday night's meeting of the Tishomingo County Board of Education addressed a controversy concerning the dismissal of two senior baseball players by their coach from the Belmont High School Baseball Team because they chose to attend a Beta Club convention instead of a game.

The question brought to the Board: What takes precedence-a

Lawmakers in Jackson are giving their support to a proposal which will provide $8 million to Alliant Techsystems, an aerospace industry located at the Tri-State Commerce Park, who will use the funds to make further renovations to the 323,000 square foot building they presently occupy

State Rep. Ricky Cummings explained that Alliant has already spent about $27 million of its own money for renovations to the facility. They have plans to spend $42 million more in the future. The amount sought from the state by the Minnesota-based company will be used to upgrade the facility so that it will be able to build additional rocket parts for its main customers-Boeing and Lockheed.

The investment by the state comes with a type of money-back guarantee by the company, according to Cummings. If the state approves the money, Alliant will

A number of supporters of the two players were on hand at the meeting to hear the discussion about the controversy to be presented to the Board by spokesman Ronny Taylor of Belmont. "We do this all the time when a matter involves personnel and/or students-their character or reputation," Mullins explained to the group.

Several minutes after those attending the meeting were asked to leave the board room, Taylor was called in to address the Board. At least one of the players was also called in after Taylor. After several more minutes, the board re-opened the meeting and those in attendance were allowed to return.

Mullins explained that he dilemma around March 1 and had "wrestled with it" since that time.

"It is a difficult situation," Mullins said. "Every story has two sides with points on both sides. On one side, Coach [Tony] Sparks wanted a commitment from the kids [baseball players]. On the other side, the kids had earned something important and wanted to attend that event. I don't know what this Board will do.'

Events Leading To Controversy

Though the specific details of the incident were not discussed in open meeting, it was reported by some of those involved that Belmont High School Seniors Brent Taylor and Brian Moore were two of four baseball players who were invited to attend the annual Beta Club convention in Biloxi. Membership in this club requires students to excel academically, have character and integrity.

Apparently, the players asked their coach for permission to attend the event which would

Horticulture Tips

1) Now is an excellent time to transplant trees and shrubs into the landscape. Bare root, ball and burlap, and container grown plants will all benefit from the current cool weather. The roots will develop and grow into the new surroundings while the cool temperatures will discourage top growth. 2) Don't be too hasty in removing dead plant tissue left by freezing temperatures this past weekend. Heavy pruning will encourage new growth, which is not desirable now. Additionally the damaged tissue may provide some protection if we have another freeze. 3) The recent warm spell followed by freezing temperatures may cause greens to bolt. Examine the growing point and see if it is starting to form a stalk. Once the seed stalk has begun, the eating quality of the leaves for eating declines rapidly. Harvest bolting plants quickly. 4) Early Dallisgrass outbreaks have begun. MSMA does not work unless air temperatures are above 85 degrees. Do not spray with MSMA now. It will not work. Digging 'up the clump of dallisgrass should be easier now since the soil is wet and the warm season turf is not growing. Hopefully future freezes will eliminate the weed growth. Do keep mowing. 5) There is renewed interest in open pollinated vegetables. Y2K has some people anxious about food supplies and sources of seed for their personal production and consumption. Realize that open pollinated cultivars often do not have the level of disease resistance that hybrid cultivars do. Plan on shorter than normal harvest seasons and reduced yield from past experiences with hybrid cultivars. Garden sanitation and rotation are more important with OP cultivars due to this lack of genetic resistance. 6) It is difficult shady spots in the garden. Liriope forms close mats of dark-green or variegated foliage and is a great landscaping plant. While liriope will tolerate a range of soil types and performs well under a variety of landscape conditions, the plant is susceptible to a fungus foliage blight which often detracts from its appearance during late fall and through the winter. The technical name for the problem is anthracnose, a fungus disease which causes leaves of liriope to turn brown and die back. If your liriope has that blighted appearance, it's probably due to the disease. What should you do about controlling this problem? First, don't worry about the disease killing your liriope. It won't, but who wants to look at blighted liriope any longer than necessary? Here's a tip that will improve the looks of your liriope, and you can get the job done in a hurry. Simply run your lawn mower over the top of the blighted growth to cut off the diseased foliage. The job is a lot easier to complete if you have a sharp lawn mower blade. Cut the diseased growth back to a height of about 3 inches. Be sure to rake and discard flowers each spring. Clipping may help, but in many cases the most economical and practical way to control weeds is to use herbicides. When used according to label directions, herbicides have proven economically safe to humans, animals, and forage crops. Chemical weed control can effectively increase forage quality and quantity; however, you must use other management practices to maintain healthy growing forages. You can use several herbicides and herbicide combinations to control forage weeds. Before applying any herbicide, read and follow the label instructions that come with the chemical.

Cognitive Dysfunction Syndrome A New Look at "Old Dog

Syndrome" Cognitive Dysfunction Syndrome is the age-related deterioration of cognitive abilities characterized by behavioral changes in dogs that cannot be wholly attributed to general medical conditions such as Neoplasia, infection or organ failure. CDS often is referred to by veterinarians as "old dog syndrome" or, simply, "senility," and is manifested by one or more of the following five signs in the absence of any physical cause:

1. Disorientation/Confusion Decreased or altered responsiveness to family members.

3. Disturbances of sleep-wake cycle. 4. Decreased activity level.

Deterioration in 5. housetraining.

The progressive, degenerative course of canine CDS involves a gradual decline of cognitive ability sufficient to produce functional disability in the home and/or as a family member. Dog owners may feel helpless, anxious and frustrated with the notion that the lifelong bonds they share with

Diabetes Can Lead to Dental

Problems Diabetes, a chroni metabolic disease, affects mor than 11 million people in the In addition United States. people have millions of undiagnosed diabetes, symptoms of which may first be detected in a dental exam. The importance of maintaining healthy teeth and gums is magnified in a diabetic dental patient who may be especially prone to oral health problems.

The most consistent oral problem for people with diabeter is the development of periodontal or gum, disease. Diabetic patient may have rapid development of periodontal disease and jaw bone loss in response to relatively small accumulations of dental place and calculus (tartar).

Detection of diabetes in a dental patient is also importan because it may take longer for gum tissues to heal after surgery with an increased likelihood of infection developing. Acute dental problems should be treated as soon as possible in a diabeti individual.

An Easy Way To Revive Liriope

Liriope, often referred to as "monkey-grass", is frequently planted in southern landscapes as an edging material for walkways, flower beds, and groundcover for all cut foliage.

Giving your liriope a "flattop" is a great way to give it a fresh look when the new growth comes out later this season, and it will add to the appearance of your landscape. However, a word of caution: if you plan to mow down your monkey-grass, don't wait too late into the season to carry out the project. It should be done before new shoot growth appears. If you wait too long to cut off the diseased foliage, you'll also remove part of the new growth. Forages

Two things that forage producers may need at this time include: (1) nitrogen fertilizer for cool-season grasses and (2) weed control for cool-season weeds. Without nitrogen, these forages may not produce the needed growth. Without weed control, weeds may rob desired forages of added fertilizer and greatly reduce pasture production and quality.

Nitrogen Fertilizer - Usually, as the weather begins to warm, cool-season grasses are ready to grown following a somewhat slow-growth, cold weather period. If adequate phosphate and potash were applied at planting, nitrogen is the nutrient needed at this time to make these crops grow. If a good stand of clover is grown with the grass, the nitrogen rate may be reduced, depending on how much nitrogen the clover supplies.

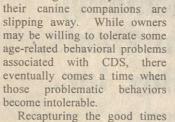

Weed Control - Problem coolseason weeds include dock, wild turnips and mustards, thistles, and yellow flowered buttercup. Buttercup is the one that turns many pastures yellow with

Migraine Headaches

There are two type of migraine headaches: Classic Migraine and Common Migraine. Classic Migraine sufferers have a visual aura called a prodrome (warning signal) which precedes the onset of the headache. The prodrome is often a flashing light in the shape of a starlike pattern which slowly expands over a 20 minute period. This is followed by an intense headache often accompanied by nausea and vomiting.

A Common Migraine is the same as a Classic Migraine except the visual aura is not present The patient experiences the headache without the visual warning. Classic Migraines usually occur before age 20. Common Migraines usually after 20. The nausea usually stops after 40. Migraines are more common in females than males, frequently starting at the same time as the onset of menstruation. Pregnancy usually causes the migraines to cease or reduce in intensity.

Migraines are caused by the constriction of tiny arteries supplying the brain. This results in reduced oxygen which triggers the attack

The test results concluded that David is having a major problem with malabsorption, damage to the intestinal lining, Anemia, and severe abnormalities in his liver, the way his liver is filtering and functioning, along with allergies to most of the foods he was eating, just to name a few.

These test also concluded that David is not absorbing amino acids appropriately, and therefore cannot produce immune system cells or other structures such as enzymes. This causes him not to receive the vitamins and nutrition's that his body needs. Also this causes his immune system to fail to fight against infections and toxins both of which he may come in contact with in the environment as well as those produced within our own bodies. The tests also showed that caused by iron deficiency, but that his body was not digesting the nutrients and vitamins from food that your body has to have to survive, which in turn is the reason his blood level keeps dropping to as low as 22 within the last 6 months - normal level, or out of danger level, is anything above 35. David does not talk at the present so he cannot tell you how he feels or if he is hurting, but the doctors are expecting a great improvement in his cognitive levels after his treatment for these life threatening problems he will have to fight. As you can see the importance of these treatments.

The family does have hope. Doctors have stated that "if you (the family) desire David to be healed, it will be hard work for the next two to three years to get him to that point. We know how to do it, but you must do the work." The good news is that David can be healed - Praise The Lord! It will take a lot of money, patience and care. It is also detrimental that David receive the care he needs on a timely basis. Lack of money would prevent him from receiving this important care!

The cost of David's first visit was $8,000.00, which the family was able to pay. Consequent visits, treatments, and equipment (at the clinic and at home), are expected to reach as high as $20,000.00. The clinic requires that payment be made before any treatment is administered. Because of lack of insurance it will be impossible for this family to compensate all the necessary treatments needed for this child. There has been an account set-up at the First American National Bank, in David Whirley's name, and any donations on his behalf will be greatly appreciated. Donations may be made at any First American location.

Please help us give this little boy a chance by helping him to fight these problems which will make him a healthier child and to be able to have something to look forward to in his future. Many events are being planned throughout the county in support of David's medical needs. We encourage families, churches, clubs and organizations and others to assist us with fundraising drives (car wash, bake sales, benefit singing, cook outs, etc.). Anyone who would like to volunteer in any way is asked to contact Brenda Blakney at 427-9212 or Cindy Nelson at 423-2543.

If you have any questions concerning David's medical problems or treatments, please feel freee to contact his parents at 427-9143. They will be happy to answer any questions you may have or provide additional information.

It will be hard for David as he endures the necessary steps which will be required to correct these problems. If you have ever met David, you know what a special child he is and how he touches the hearts of everyone he meets. Please remember David and his family in your prayers. Thank you for taking the time to read this. We will keep everyone informed of David's condition.

Local Resident Participates in AQHA Horseback Riding Program

Susan E. Wallace of Cherokee, AL, recently enrolled in the American Quarter Horse Association Horseback Riding Program. The program provides AQHA MEMBERS recognition for time spent riding or driving American Quarter Horses.

A unique aspect of the program is its simplicity. Current AOHA MEMBERS complete a program application and pay a one-time $25 enrollment fee. Each enrollee receives an official AQHA log sheet to record their hours driving or riding their American Quarter Horse. Participants need not own their own horse, but all official hours must be accrued with a registered American Quarter Horse.

The first award, a program recognition patch, is given after only 50 hours have been logged and verified. Patches and nine subsequent awards are presented at 100 to 5,000 hour levels and range from merchandise gift certificates from Drysdales Western Store to a Montana Silversmith trophy belt buckle at the highest level.

Jim Bret Campbell, AQHA Manager of the Horseback Riding Program, said, "The Horseback Riding Program is a unique opportunity to earn rewards outside of traditional competition. In some cases the program rewards outside already spend many hours riding American Quarter Horses. For others, the Horseback Riding Program is an incentive to get out and ride."

Horseback riding provides good exercise. According to the U.S. Department of the Interior, more than 27 million people participate in horseback riding nationally.

AQHA actively encourages horseback riding as a relaxing recreational activity that can be enjoyed alone or shared with family and friends.

"NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO AID OF THEIR COUNTRY," was a quote typed over and over again in Mrs. Lana Harrelson's typing class when I was in school. I never stopped to think about what that saying meant until I was an adult and began talking with the men and women who served their country when their country needed them most.

THE

One of thee humble men who answered the call was Mrs. James A. Jackson, Jr., of Iuka. Though many stories of service have illustrated courage under extreme circumstances, Mr. Jackson's saga has a timeless theme of a boy going off to war ... and returning, a man.

Jackson had just turned 18 when he was first called up in the draft. At that time he was rejected. "That could have been the luckiest break I ever had to that point," he said as we discussed his recollections recently. He was sent home in early 1943 but was recalled a short time later. "That first time, I could have been sent into a unit where I would have surely been killed, like some units in the Pacific," he remarked. Humbly, he said, "It was God working His will that I survived at all!"

He was sent to Camp Wheeler Georgia where he received basic training. He was then transferred to Ft. Meade, Maryland where he continued training until being shipped out for the Italian Campaign. Jackson was an infantryman in a rifle squad assigned to the first squad, third platoon, Company F, 179th infantry, 45th Division, 7th United States Army in the European Theatre. What would that mean? To Jackson and thousands of others, it meant he was a Private heading off to World War II. Where they went, what they did would leave their mark on the course of world history.

On January 22, 1944, the 45th Division landed on the beaches of Anzio, Italy on the west coast only weapon that played a limited but deadly role in the enemy strategy.

"Every night, we would fire off all the guns for fifteen minutes to make the Germans think we were breaking out. After a few months, the Germans would hopefully lighten up their defense," Jackson said. Finally, on May 2, 1944, the Allied forces made a breakout. They drove the enemy back eight miles to Rome. Under a coordinated effort, the allies took the city without destroying the ancient buildings and other landmarks. This was also due to the location of the Holy Vatican City there.

There was a lot of heavy fighting there, and Jackson was right in the thick of it. "A Squad I was in caught a ride on a tank. We were exhausted and were trying to relocate to another frontal position. Several times we had gone behind enemy lines and had to fight our way out. This time, we thought we were pretty safe on that tank," he laughed. Nowhere is safe in a war zone. The tank was on a narrow road and was hit. The vehicle was heading over an and were lost or escaped. They laid down their weapons. Jackson stayed with his wounded soldier as long as he could. Jackson never knew how the man he stopped to save ever made it out.

The men were lined up, divided in two groups of forty and twenty and were told to march. The group realized they were not far from Germany and would likely be headed to the feared Prisoner of War Camps. This was

The group was aided by the French underground who helped provide boats for a night crossing of the Rhine River. They were still deep in enemy territory. Still, the odd cooperation between the captive Americans and the Germans worked. The group reached the Allied lines where the Americans interceded on behalf of their former captors with the Military Police. The now German Prisoners of War were to be treated with the same courtesy and respect they had given the Americans. The former American Captives were hailed as heroes for returning safely from a perilous situation. Jackson was proud to be returned to his duties as a fighting soldier. Reported missing September 1, 1944, Jackson was now safe and back with his unit ready to go.

Back home, the Memphis Commercial Appeal ran a story on Mid-South native Jackson captioned, "Mississippi Captive Helps "Captive" Nazis". The war was far from over for Pfc. Jackson. He would be in other harrowing situations. He was wounded but remained on active duty. He was involved in heavy fighting as the Germans were pushed back deep into their own country. Jackson looked through his pictures and notes recalling vividly this time in his life, "Seems like now, it was constant patrols, foxholes, cold and wet advancing. We didn't go but just a few feet, a few yards, one fast step at a time."

Over the next eight months, the enemy was in disarray. They finally surrendered in May of 1945 after Hitler committed suicide and the allies had surrounded what was left of the crumbled Third Reich. Jackson was in Munich when the surrender came. All he and the thousands of other G.I.'s wanted was to go home. Soon, the occupation force would be in place while thousands of other soldiers would be brought back to the United States for redeployment in the Pacific. It was widely known that an invasion of Japan itself was imminent. Fortunately, that never happened. The war ended in September of 1945 with the unconditional surrender of Japan.

"We were camped in rows of pup tents, two to a tent, in Marseilles, France fixing to go home, "says Jackson of an unusual chance meeting thousands of miles from home. "My tent buddy and I were setting up our tent when he said, "Hey, bet you would like to be waking up in Iuka, Mississippi in the morning wouldn't you" About that time a man from two tent rows back came bolting out of his tent and ran up to us asking, "Which one of you is from Iuka?" The man turned out to be Melvin Honeycutt from Burnsville. The men had fought in the same division for over a year and a half but just at the end crossed each others path. Mr. Jackson smiled as he remarked, "Even then, it was so good to see someone from home."

twenty broken bones, two punctured lungs, a ruptured liver, internal bleeding and months of hospital stay, it is but by God's grace that this man did return to work.

In time, he would have to retire from G.M. on disability but he had proved that he had the same courage, determination and faith that got him home from war at 20 years old. He never lost that courage. Retiring back home in Iuka, Mr. Jackson fights a daily battle with his health. He gets up and goes about his daily routine without fail. He and wife Doris are members of the Iuka Baptist Church.

He has a host of family that love and care for him as I found out recently when invited to attend a dinner for one of the Jackson sisters. There were thirteen people at this dinner. All were Jackson family brothers, sisters, and inlaws and, like me, a couple of friends. There are a host of children and cousins too. All are greeted by one another with hugs whether they had not seen each other for a month or had just seen them that morning. I could see how much happiness this brought Mr. Jackson who could have easily been missing from that table several times over if not for the protection of his Lord.

After dinner, we all met back at his brother, Bill Jackson's house and talked about memories, told stories and just laughed and fellowshipped until nearly ten 'clock. I learned that this family is a strong reason for James Jackson's survival. He is a part, a very important part, of a close-knit family who depends on each other. He has been a good husband and father, a hard worker, a faithful Christian and a dedicated American.

The afternoon I sat down and first spoke with Mr. Jackson, he pulled out a number of, photos, documents and even a video taped interview he had given to a local school student for a history class project. Proudly, he showed a framed collection containing his medals, insignias and service photos and a certificate from the state of Mississippi honoring Jackson as a P.O.W. during the nations Bicentennial by then Gov. Cliff Finch.

With all these accolades, James Jackson remains humble, stating that he only did what he was supposed to do. He thinks about the young boys, on both sides, who left wives, mothers, brothers, sisters, and children when they gave their lives. Jackson said, "As old and tired out as I am, I would go again if the call went out, not for war or glory, rather in place of a young man who has his whole life ahead of him. I am grateful to God for the life I have been given." Just then, Mr. Jackson unrolled an American flag he flies proudly from the front of his home. "This is what it is all about!' He declares. "I was patriotic before I went into service but after seeing that war and fighting an enemy that could have taken that all away, what a privilege I feel to see this flag wave and know that I did my part, like millions of others, to keep this country strong!"

comprehend what struggles country has endured, yet, with selfless men like Mr. Jackson remind me of this, I am even may deeply proud of the men with served for me. Each of the including my friend James Jackson Jr., will always be HEROES!

eight miles from Rome. The area was heavily fortified with enemy pill-box machine gun nests, mortar and artillery emplacements and a Panzer tank Corp. The Division took a beach head at Anzio but were stalled at a point just off the beach. There were a number of skirmishes in the next few months but the heaviest fighting that set the offensive positions was done in that first push.

This was James Jackson, Jr.'s, first time under fire. "You did not have time to think, you just did as you were ordered, he said. From a point high above the harbor of Anzio, Jackson looked back to count no fewer than thirteen American tanks burning. Earlier that afternoon, the shelling had gotten rough. "I was running with a guy from my unit, we were being shelled and picking up heavy machine gun fire in an open area. We saw a burned out tank and tried to crawl under it to hide from all that flying lead," he says with a shake of his head, "There were already two of our boys who had had the same idea and ducked under there. They were dead!"

The beach was secured even though the perimeter was only a mile or less off the beach. For the next four months, supplies were brought in to Anzio's harbor. The Germans had a large gun that spanned two boxcars of a train. It was only used when necessary due to the expense and potential for making the big gun a target. "We called that thing "the Anzio Express," Jackson laughed. The big gun was also called "Anzio Annie." It could deliver projectiles several miles out to sea with deadly accuracy. The gun was hidden in a railway tunnel in the daytime. The huge cannon was usually used at night as to avoid daytime air attack on it. It was also used to hit some strategic points on the beach. The big gun is said to have been able to cover every acre of Anzio Beach with amazing accuracy. It was a complicated embankment when the soldiers bailed off the rig. Jackson got caught in an antenna in his hasty departure. He flipped over the side striking a piece of metal on the side and breaking his arm. This got him some time to heal, but was back on the front lines within a month.

Soon, Rome was occupied. The invasion forces were moved back to Anzio for three weeks of intense amphibious training to prepare for the June invasion of Southern France. The assault on the south of France was costly to the allies who fought the Germans for feet of territory. The Germans pulled back to form a line between the southern beaches and the borders of the Rhineland. On August 31, 1944, Jackson's unit set up a roadblock between the French villages of Dagneux and Meximieux. The unit was engaged in a severe battle for Meximieux with frontline units of the German 11th Panzer Division.

During the heated battle, Jackson stated that a breach in the enemy lines allowed for the unit to push forward through the break in hopes of cutting off the retreating enemy. The group of over seventy men were swept up in a desperate fight against a German force far underestimated in strength. "We were cut off at this point and on the verge of being surrounded," said the former solider. "There was a young man cut down just ahead of me as we went up this road. I stopped to help him. He was hit in the leg pretty bad. All we had were some gauze and a little bandaging with a pain pill and some (sulfur) powders to put on the wounds. My unit went on ahead. I did what I could for the man but he was bleeding pretty bad," Jackson said with a trembling voice. "I was afraid he was going to bleed to death before a medic got to us, I just did what I could."

Pfc. Jackson was among sixty members of Company F who were captured in the twenty four hour battle by the retreating German Army. Others dispersed in chaos

NOT "Hogan's Heroes" or "Stalag 17", THIS WAS A REAL PLACE! While marching, the prisoners were devising a plan for escape. They planned and waited for an opportune time. The risks were high but escape at this point looked better than their chances of survival if they ever reached the P.O.W. Camps.

Four days into the ordeal, the four German guards along with an officer had been discussing the situation. The German Army was on the run. When the war came home to the fatherland of Germany, they knew it would just be a matter of time. The brutal end was close at hand. This is when the handful of men guarding the sixty prisoners made a deal with their captives.

For returning them safely to the allied lines, the captors asked for fair treatment when they surrendered. The deal was struck. The prisoners were given the weapons until the marching unit met with German Army Units. At that point, the Germans acted as if they were guarding the captured Americans. When the danger passed, the weapons were readily returned to the allies.

We had no food for two days but neither did they, " says Jackson. "We marched back toward our lines slowly, mostly by cover of night," he said. The entire group was hungry when an allied plane strafed a supply train, destroying it, near the captives. The German guard helped the captives forage the train for food and supplies. Surprisingly, the train was carrying Red Cross supplies for Canadian P.O. W.'s. The relief packages were put to good use, "the packages were lifesavers to us," said Jackson, "right down to the cigar in each box!'

Jackson returned home, just another G.I. to him. He received the European Theatre Medal with six stars and an arrowhead for the campaigns and invasions he was involved with. He also received a good conduct medal, the German Occupation Medal, a Purple Heart for being wounded and the Bronze Star for Bravery. Forty years later, it was discovered that he had not received his P.O.W. Medal. It was then awarded to the former servicemen on behalf of a grateful country. Jackson's P.O.W. status was not documented on his discharge papers due to the haste in which outgoing soldiers were processed at the end. It did not matter to Jackson, this was just the last step in going home.

He made it back to Iuka where he soon found a job driving a truck. He met 26 year old Doris Thorn and just a few months later, they were married. Jackson worked several jobs over the next couple of years with the same company. He ended up moving with his wife and young son, James H. Jackson, to work for the G.M. Motor Company in Michigan. Jackson was employed with them for over twenty years.

A terrible auto accident on the way to work one morning in 1969 placed Mr. Jackson in another fight for his life. With the lessons he had learned from life, war and with a strong trust in God that had carried him through the battlefields of Europe, Jackson miraculously pulled through. Over

From "Blast" To "Bust"

All of the preparation were made. Plans for a "1950s" Sock Hop" were made and a lot of people worked hard to make it a fun time and to raise some money for a very worthy cause. "Our Kids"

The Middle School along with John Mullins and Benny McClung could not have been more cooperative. They are both fine men and we thank them. Jean Davis went out into our community and raised money from some very gracious merchants to help with the finances.

The Joe Davis family and the Jimmy Durham family were all on hand along with myself and Jim Walker Jr. to decorate in a festive 1950s style.

Charles Swimmer came to take pictures so memories could be documented.

The music was at some of the "Mornin Show" band were there with other top grade musicians. The publicity was good. The Vidette and the Corinthian published everything they were given. Paul & Bobby Nunley went to Tupelo to appear on the "Mornin Show". Scotty James was also there to speak about our softball girls.

Tickets were available for weeks ahead of time. Fliers and banners were put out by Carolyn Ramey and her children.

The Girls Dixie Softball Inc. organized the old gyms activities to delight and entertain the children. They were also there with lots of good food to help us fuel up and build energy. They are a very hard working group of parents who are doing a great job. I urge everyone to support them in any way you can. Scotty James and family, Dale Moore and family, Malcolm Brown and family and others are all moving forward to make the "Girls Softball World Series" that is coming to Iuka this summer not only possible but also to make Iuka a proud host to hundreds of visitors.

Well, bottom line is it didn't work well. "No one is to blame". It just flopped. Who knows why. The few that were there had a good time but we would have welcomed some company. I am grateful to all who helped and look forward to working towards Heritage Day "99"

As usual it will be on the first weekend in June. We will be honoring the "20th Century Club" this year, The 1st American National Bank will be sponsoring the 2nd annual youth talent show. The crafters are already asking for a space. There is a lot of room and is a opportunity to put your project in the park. If you want to make money, advertise or just display your wares you are welcomed to do so. Call Judy Walker at 423-3047 or Vicky Durham at 423-9571 to reserve your spot. We are also considering adding a flea market area if enough people are interested. This is for good used merchandise only. Thank you all for all you have done. I hroughout 1999, The Peoples Bank & Trust Company plans to publish a series of simple question and answer messages to keep you informed of the progress we are making toward our goal of eliminating the Y2K threat at this institution. Please follow our progress in order to determine the bank's degree of readiness and the safeguards that will protect your funds as we approach midnight December 31, 1999.

- Q: How does The Peoples Bank & Trust Company (PB&T) use computers in its operations?
- A: Most bank processing today is done on either one or more mainframe computers located in-house or outsourced to a computer services provider; or, on any number of personal computers located throughout the institution.
- Q: If banks have been operating on computers all these years, what is the problem with Y2K?
- A: When computers first began to be a factor in daily business operations (the late 1960's and throughout the 1970's), internal operating space was at a premium because it was very costly. One piece of information that was almost always abbreviated was the date. For instance, February 15, 1999 would have been written as 990215. This permitted addition and subtraction using the date. Imagine what will happen on January 1, 2000 when the date changes to 000101. Without changes, what will the computer do with this new information?

- Q: I see the computer as a plastic box with a screen similar to a television screen. Exactly where does the Y2K problem manifest itself?
- A: The computer is made up of two basic components:

Hardware - The part of the computer you can touch. This includes the part that looks like a television screen, the central processing unit, the printer and other items you can feel. Software - The brains of the system that tell the computer how to respond to your instructions. Computers contain a variety of software programs. Some are called internal operating systems and others are called application programs. The problem manifests itself in the software.

- Q: How can changes be made to bring those systems into compliance?
- A: While there are several acceptable methods for correcting the problem, we believe the best way is to write new systems in what is referred to as expanded code. If this is done, the aforementioned date field would be rewritten 19990215 which means that after December 31, 1999, it would appear as 20000215 which would allow reliable addition and subtraction.
- Q: Are PB&T efforts to become Y2K compliant in the hands of capable individuals, and are those efforts being monitored by others?
- A: About 2 years ago, the task of conforming PB&T was assigned to a committee made up of its most capable computer people and headed by an Executive Vice President with the assignment of removing obstacles to compliance. In addition, the bank's external auditors and the FDIC and state examiners are following its progress and making suggestions where appropriate.

- Q: You mentioned that some of the work was done on personal computers throughout the institution. What has been done to make those units compliant?
- A: All in-house computers have been tested for compliance and software vendors have been contacted to determine whether software considered critical to Peoples' ongoing operations is compliant. All computers that were not compliant are being replaced and/or compliant software is being acquired and installed.

We encourage you to clip and save this information for future reference. More information will be forthcoming periodically as we answer additional questions about the Year 2000 computer date change.

Tishomingo County EPA consumers

During power outages, here are some suggestions to assist TCEPA employees in restoring your service:

- 1) Before calling TCEPA, check your fuse or breaker box for blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers. If you don't see any, ask your neighbors if they have lost their power, too.
- 2) When you call to report an outage, be prepared to provide the name on your account, your 911 address (house and road number), and your telephone number.
- 3) In an outage during extreme cold or hot weather, turn off all major electric appliances, and heat or air conditioning. Leave a single light switch turned on so you will know when the problem is solved. Five to ten minutes after power has been restored, you may begin turning on electrical appliances and heating or cooling as necessary.
- 4) Put up a 911 address sign to help us locate you.
- 5) Turn on an outside light after power has been restored so that repair crews will know that their work has been successful.

At my first answer no man stood with me, but all men farsake me: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge. Notwithstanding the Lord stood with me, and strengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion. (A dangerous position). this is Paul's deliverance from Satan and wicked men. Roman's 16: 20; Corinthians 1:10. Ryan sang. Ain't gonna grieve my Lord no more. Paul was one of the greatest preachers the Gentiles ever had. At first he was a wicked man, hunting down and killing all the christians, but when he met Jesus on the road to Damascus and it turned his life completely around and he began to preach to the Gentiles instead of killing them. Needless to say he was very successful.

Lesson Text: Galations 1:11-24 Titled: A Personal Defense. Central Truth for this lesson. Guard against foes who would discredit the gospel. Gospel, Paul's direct revealation from Jesus Christ. Paul says, verse 1. But I certify you, brethern, that the Gospel which was preached of me is not after man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ. Do you preach or teach God's Gospel or man's? This is very serious. The one's that are using a man made gospel will not go to heaven unless he repents and turns his life in the right way.

Bro. John took his message from the book of Isaiah 45:1-13. today we have a creator. We couldn't have been here any way else. The plan of creation didn't just happen, it was planned and put into existence by God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit. Genesis 1:1. In the beginning God created heaven and the earth. We do not know when the beginning was, but we know that God was there. We all understand it all by and by.

Sunday night's service was cancelled on account of the weather and sickness.

The tops of my buildings were so pretty this morning, but I am sure the snow will be gone before noon.

What On Earth Is God Up To

Galatians, 6: 7, 8, 9; Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap life everylasting.

And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. Matt. 13-1-Jesus went out of the house and sat by the sea side and great multitudes were gathered together unto him. So that he went into a ship and sat: and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, behold a sower went forth to sow:

And when he sowed, some seed fell by the way side, and the fowls came and devoured the up.

Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forth with they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth.

And when the sun was up they were scorched and be caused they had no roots, they withered away.

Some fell among thorns: and the thorns sprung up, and choked them. But others fell into good ground and brought forth fruit. Some an hundredfold. Some sixty fold some thirty fold who hath ears to hear let him hear.

runs. The next game saw TC take on Nettleton. Nettleton was victorious 2-1 in the game the Braves should have won. Jarrad Robinson struck out 11 in taking the loss. Nettleton had only 3 hits to win the game. Leading hitters for the Braves were Daemon Dial with 2 hits. Blake Lomenick stole home for the only Brave run. The Braves finished the tournament with a 3-2 record.

TC again hit the diamond against Corinth. The Braves' bats came to life in this win. Jordan Vaughn pitched a complete game for the win striking out 7. Leading hitters were Bryan Robinson who had 3 hits including a HR.

The Braves lost a heartbreaker with 2 outs in the last inning. Jarrad Robinson suffered the loss, but he deserved a better fate. Robinson pitched 9 innings striking out 13 batters. Leading hitters were Jarrad Robinson with 3 doubles, Bryan Robinson, and Jordan Vaughn had 1 double each.

The Braves suffered a NO hitter in their worst performance of the year. Jason Crum deserved a better fate as he took the loss. The Braves hitters never adjusted to the slow stuff thrown by Kossuth pitcher.

During spring break, the Braves traveled to McComb for the McComb Tournament. In the first game of the tournament TC tangled with Brandon, a 5A school in Jackson. Jordan Vaughn suffered the loss, but the Braves battled back to make a game out of it. Leading hitters were Bryan Robinson with 2 hits including a triple, Jarrad Robinson with 2 hits including a HR and Blake Lomenick with 2 hits in the 17 - 9 loss.

The second game saw Natchez defeat the Braves 4-0. The Braves' bats were once again silent against Natchez. Once again, Jarrad Robinson pitched a good game only to lose. The Braves managed only 3 hits with Brad Guthrie getting one of those hits and a stolen base.

In action against Warren Central, the #3 team in the state, the Braves hung tough. Rookies Matt Locke and Seth Howie threw a good game in defeat. The Braves batters did a good job against this top-rated pitching staff. The Braves had the chance to win this game when Bryan Robinson' long shot to right field hit the fence instead of being a HR. The Braves settled for 2 runs instead of 3 and lost by 2. Leading hitters were Bryan Robisnon and Jarrad Robinson with 2 hits. Damon Dial had a double.

In the final game of the McComb venture the Braves won 10-8 over Loyd Star. In this game Jordan Vaughn and Jason Crum came through on the mound. Both pitchers pitched with sore arms and lots of guts. The leading hitters were Grant Smith with 3 hits; Bryan Robinson, Damon Dial, Jarrad Robinson, and Jordan Vaughn had 2 hits each. Blake Lomenick and Damon Dial played great defense as Jason Cram picked up his first high sch win.

The Braves were involved District action this week age New Hope. On Saturday they again see action at home.

To live without a memory is to live all alone. And our memory is the key to not only the past, but the future. We should all look back on the past with as much pleasure as we look forward to the future. It surprises me how much of my memory is built around things unnoticed at the time. We may not remember days, but we all remember moments. These special moments may be
