No Official Reports of Salmonella Cases in Tishomingo County

Pamela McRae
The Magnolia Regional Health Center has confirmed there has been an outbreak of salmonella poisoning in Corinth, but no cases have been reported in Iuka, and no restaurants have been closed by the state health department.

"Magnolia Regional Health Center is experiencing an unusually large amount of gastrointestinal illness cases at this time, and would like to make the public aware that salmonella bacterium has been found in a number of these cases," said hospital CEO Rick Napper in a statement released Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday, the hospital had received eleven positive salmonella cultures since Monday, November 28th, and some of these cases had been admitted to the hospital. They have all been treated and released, Napper reported.

The investigation has been turned over to the Mississippi State Department of Health, who reported early Wednesday that they are diligently investigating the issue. They are interviewing patients and have taken food samples at some local restaurants, but none were specifically identified, nor have any been ordered closed by the Department of Health.

Iuka Hospital reported they have had no cases that seem to be related to the outbreak, Wednesday morning.

The Don Julio Restaurant in the Corinth Commons locked its doors Tuesday, with a note explaining the circumstances of the restaurant's temporary closing.

"Don Julios has decided to close today due to reports of possible contamination of vegetables we received from suppliers," the note explained. "The Health Department has performed numerous inspections and has found no evidence of contamination and did not order us to close our restaurant. However, for the safety of our customers, we choose to close today while waiting for results of further testing."

Salmonella is food poisoning caused by a bacteria. Approximately 40,000 cases are reported annually in the U.S., but many milder cases go unreported. While beef, poultry, milk and eggs are the most common foods infected with salmonella, vegetables may also be contaminated.

Symptoms include diarrhea, fever and abdominal cramps that usually occur within 12 to 72 hours after the infection. The illness normally lasts four to seven days.

While most people recover without treatment, individuals should be mindful of dehydration and continued diarrhea, and seek medical assistance if symptoms worsen or continue.

Dunrobin - Brinkley Home in the Snow - The Brinkley home looked particularly lovely Wednesday morning decorated for Christmas, accented with a beautiful snowfall.

Brinkley Home - Dunrobin a Lasting Monument to Iuka's History

Dunrobin, also known as the Brinkley House, celebrated its 160th anniversary in 2007. The historic structure was one of the first houses built in the town of Iuka, and it is one of Iuka's most recognized and cherished landmarks. Located in Tishomingo County, Mississippi, this historic house was the summer home of the Robert Campbell (R. C.) Brinkley family. The Brinkley family completed the antebellum home in 1847. R. C.'s second wife, Elizabeth Mhoon Brinkley, named the home Dunrobin, meaning Castle Robert. Dunrobin was also reportedly the name of the Brinkley ancestral home in Scotland. Located at 605 Eastport Street in Iuka, Dunrobin is the beautiful home of William J. Brinkley III.

Chief Iuka, the area's Chickasaw Indian Chief commissioned David Hubbard to build a house on the land on which Dunrobin was built. Hubbard allegedly began construction on the original structure in 1837, and then sold the unfinished house to R. C. Brinkley in the 1840s. Chief Iuka's ceremonial grounds were located on a flat patch of land beside the house. Family history notes that R. C. Brinkley and his second wife, Elizabeth Mhoon, married in Alabama, and while enroute to Memphis where R. C. Brinkley lived, the stagecoach stopped at a watering hole in Tishomingo County, Mississippi. The watering hole for the stagecoach road from Tusculumbia, Alabama, to Memphis covered two or more acres and was on the land originally owned by Chief Iuka. At the watering hole, the new bride, Elizabeth Brinkley remarked that she would love to live at that location. To please his new bride, R. C. bought the property and its unfinished house for $860. Unfortunately, before R. C. Brinkley could pay Chief Iuka, the Chickasaw Indian Chief was killed. R. C. Brinkley paid Chief Iuka's wife the first $60, and then she died. He later sent the remaining $800 owed on the property to the Indian tribe in Oklahoma. Current Brinkley family members in Tishomingo County still possess the paperwork for the transaction.

The halls of the historic home are very wide; the width of the main hall is 25 feet. Four large rooms complete the first floor, and the kitchen was originally separated from the house. When the home was originally constructed, open fireplaces were the sole means of heating. History tells us that during one cold winter, water spilled in the hall, allowing the children to ice skate inside the home. The Brinkley family lived most of the year in Memphis, Tennessee, in a big house called "Home of the Magnolias," at Poplar and Manassas. At some point in time, the family tore down a mansion in Memphis, although it is not known if it was this mansion or not. However, after a major renovation of the antebellum summer home in 1911, much of the family's dismantled mansion in Memphis was incorporated into the Dunrobin estate. The ornate large door facings, the massive columns, lead glass windows, and mantle in the library, as well as the beautiful walnut woodwork still found throughout the home, came from Col. Brinkley's Memphis mansion. Dunrobin's original spiral staircase was also replaced by a walnut staircase in 1910 or 1911. The historic home's intricate hand-carved walnut ceiling in the library boasts the initials RCB. This customization also reportedly came from the Memphis mansion. Although Dunrobin was used as the Brinkley family's summer home, many parties were held at the home in Iuka. During this period in history, tourists flocked to Iuka, Mississippi, for its soothing mineral waters. W. C. Handy, known as the "Father of the Blues," performed at Dunrobin several times.

During the Civil War's Battle of Eastport and Battle of Iuka in Tishomingo County, Dunrobin was used as the Union's headquarters by General U. S. Grant, W. S. Rosecrans, and others. A telegraph line was extended from a window to the town of Eastport on the Tennessee River. Upon leaving the house, General Grant reported that he vacated the home in good condition, even to the pin cushion on the bureau, which was kept as a souvenir. General Grant wrote to R. C. Brinkley, thanking him for the use of his home. It has been reported that General Grant and R. C. Brinkley were both Masons; therefore, the home was not burned.

County Board Asked to Make Better Provisions for Pauper Burials

Pamela McRae
Requests for pauper's oaths have become more common in recent years, and the county board was asked Monday in their regular meeting to make more appropriate provisions for those who cannot afford to bury their own family members in the future.

In cases where there is no money for a funeral, family of the deceased can petition the county for funds to pay the funeral home to bury their loved one. Ideally, family and friends, businesses, and churches gather funds to help a needy family at a time like that, explained Tishomingo County Board of Supervisors President James McDowell. This happens quite often, he said. But with an influx of people in the county without roots here, there are more and more who don't have that kind of support, explained McDowell.

The amount the county pays is $250, and has been since at least the 1980s, according to Diane Biddle, owner of Cutshall Funeral Home, who, along with other funeral home owners in the county, deal with many families who apply for the funds by signing a "pauper's oath."

Such an oath states there are no funds, public assistance monies, nor property that can be sold to raise funds for a burial, and according to Second District Supervisor Nicky McRae are supposed to be completed prior to death. The board receives several requests a year for approval of the oaths, and the payment is then forwarded to whatever funeral home handles the body, as determined by the family. State auditor opinion states that if an estate is opened, or funds are identified after the county has paid for a pauper burial, the family is supposed to reimburse the county's money, too.

When the county approves a pauper's oath, explained Biddle who was quoting from a Mississippi State Auditor opinion, the family is actually supposed to give up the body for pickup at the home, or hospital, or other place of death, and their chosen funeral home buries it in available land, with no further visitation or other funeral services. They can also cremate the body, if the family allows it, which eliminates the need to find somewhere to bury the body. It is against the law for the county pauper's oath funds to be used on any funeral in which the family has paid any part of the funeral.

Biddle informed the board of supervisors Monday, that in larger communities, it is becoming more common that families simply walk away from the deceased loved one, for example, in the hospital, and the responsibility then falls on the county to take care of it. Though Supervisor McRae said that this hadn't happened in Tishomingo County, there is currently no provision, past putting it in the morgue, for what the county would do with the body after the coroner takes it into county possession. Funeral homes, as private businesses, are not obligated to take such cases, though they often do, said Biddle.

Biddle said that in one case she heard of, the family called several funeral homes before finding one that would take care of a burial.

One reason for having trouble finding a funeral home to handle the body is that risk can be great for those who handle the body if the deceased person had diseases that can remain contagious after death, like AIDS, hepatitis B, and staph infections.

Law requires that a body be buried within 48 hours if it is not embalmed, said Biddle.

Biddle suggested the county prepare a plan for properly handling these cases, and establish a potter's field - a public burial place where such cases can be buried. She also suggested that the county increase the pauper burial amount to make it possible for funeral homes to help the county in true pauper cases. Currently, the board pays $250. In neighboring Prentiss County, the amount has been $450 for some time.

Additionally, the public needs to understand that a pauper burial is a bare essential kind of burial - no visitation, no viewing, only a numbered marker on the grave.

McRae said that the board is considering what action to take regarding the issue.

Check your Charities this Holiday Season

Jackson, MS—With the holiday season upon us, Secretary of State Delbert Hosemann would like to remind Mississippians to make their Christmas by checking their charity with the Secretary of State's Office.

"The holidays bring out the best in most people," says Secretary Hosemann. "Unfortunately, it can bring out the worst in some as well. I encourage all Mississippians to check their charity with the Secretary of State's Office before they donate. Make sure your generosity is not abused this holiday season."

Each year, the Secretary of State's office publishes a Report on Charitable Organizations in Mississippi. This report outlines the financial information of charities registered in the State, in addition to the percentage of charitable funds actually spent by a charity for its charitable purpose.

"It is important to remember those less fortunate over the holidays, and Mississippians are some of the most generous in the nation. Make sure your hard earned dollars are spent where you intend," says Secretary Hosemann.

The Better Business Bureau recommends at least 65% of total expenses of a charitable organization should be spent on program activities directly related to the organization's purpose.

A copy of the Report on Charitable Organizations is available on the Secretary of State's website by clicking here, or, by visiting our website at www.sos.ms.gov/charitiesreport.

Kudzu by James L. Cummins

Introduced from Japan into the United States in 1876, kudzu was originally promoted as a forage crop and an ornamental plant. Kudzu has been given several nicknames such as foot-a-night vine, mile-a-minute vine and the vine that ate the South are a few such nicknames.

Kudzu can be used by grazing animals because it is high in quality as forage and livestock greatly enjoy it. Enjoyed until frost and even slightly after, kudzu hay typically has a 17 percent crude protein content and over 60 percent total digestible nutrient value. Though difficult to bale, the quality of the hay also decreases, however, as vine content increases over leaf content.

Kudzu has also been used as a form of erosion control and also a soil enhancer. As a legume, it increases the nitrogen in the soil and its deep taproots transfer valuable minerals from the subsoil to the topsoil. While the vine does help to prevent soil erosion, the vine also destroys valuable forests by preventing trees from getting enough sunlight. This problem led Dr. James H. Miller of the U.S. Forest Service to research methods for killing kudzu. In his 18 years of research, Dr. Miller found that one herbicide actually advanced kudzu growth while many others had little to no effect. Therefore, at present, for successful long-term control of kudzu, the removal or destruction of the root crown and all rooting runners is the best chance for eradication. But note that if any portion of a root crown remains after attempted removal, kudzu will grow back.

The Harvard Medical School has been studying kudzu as a possible treatment for alcoholism using an extracted compound, daidzin (produces an anti-drinking effect), from the plant. The mechanism for this treatment is not yet established but the outlook is good. Kudzu root compounds have also been shown to affect serotonin which is a key in treating depression. The root compounds have also proven valuable in fighting headaches.

Also recommended for treating allergies and diarrhea, the Chinese consider kudzu to be a fundamental herb and use it to treat things such as tinnitus and vertigo. Research in mice suggests that kudzu will one day be used to control some post-menopausal symptoms such as type 2 diabetes and hypertension.

The problem with kudzu is that it just grows TOO well. The climate of the Southeastern United States is ideal for kudzu, and these conditions – hot, humid summers, frequent rainfall, moderate temperatures and no natural predators – translates to growth totals of over 60 feet each year! This led to kudzu being named a pest weed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1953.

Grief Seminar Scheduled to Help with Holiday Blues

It is during the holidays that the death of loved ones or any other loss can trigger deep feelings of grief. Next week, there is a grief seminar at Iuka United Methodist Church that aims to help community members handle the emotional issues of the holidays.

Whether a personal loss is expected or sudden, major or minor, due to death, divorce, loss of a job, the onset of disease, or any other loss we all experience grief as a response to the loss. There are many feelings we experience in times of grief, ranging from anger, fear, guilt, sadness and more. Sometimes we are confused by what we feel or what others tell us how to feel during our experiences of grief. We plan to spend the time in this seminar speaking about the stages of grief and how to respond to someone who is grieving.

On Thursday, December 15th at 7 p.m. a grief seminar will be offered at the Iuka United Methodist Church. The leaders of the seminar, Rev. Jon Kaufman and Mrs. Sandra Skinner, have both experienced deep personal loss and will share their stories of loss and grief.

"On November 7, 1977 our daughter Amy Elizabeth was in a car wreck that involved her father, another driver and Amy," explained Sandra Skinner. "The other driver was killed instantly, Amy lived three days and her father suffered terrible injuries to his brain, his leg, his hip and his hand. It seems like yesterday. I can see her standing at the door of our business, no coat on, complaining because her father made her come back in to get her coat. I agreed with her Dad and as she went out of the door I yelled, Amy I love you, and she responded 'love you too, got to go.' The last words we ever exchanged."

Rev. Jon Kaufman described an event that forever changed his life.

"It had been the perfect spring day that day in May," said Kaufman. "I was in college at the time and at church on a Wednesday night when I received word that my mother had tried to call several times. Not being able to reach her at home, I called my oldest sister who said the words I will never forget, 'Daddy died today.' Some friends at church drove me home to my apartment and more came over that night. It was sudden. I couldn't imagine life without him and how I was going to go forward?"

The seminar is free and open to anyone in the community.

20th Century Club Met in Home of Ruth Ellen Cox

On December 1st, the Iuka 20th Century Club met at 6:30 p.m. in the lovely home of Ruth Ellen Cox for their monthly business meeting. Vice President, Zenobia Oaks presided and Ruth Ellen Cox, hostess, led the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag and gave the devotional. Maxine Wade, program leader, presented a very interesting program on public health issues concentrating on GERMS. She related on where germs are and ways of controlling them. Above all – wash your hands often and correctly – lather well and rub for 20 seconds!!! Our hostess provided each member with a purse-size hand sanitizer to help control germs.

After the program, the hostess asked the blessing and invited members – Nancy Daugherty, Sue Kerby, Joy Kitchens, Vicky Monjeau, Zenobia Oaks, Fredda McCune, Jo Russell, Terry Shea and Maxine Wade to the refreshment table. Everyone enjoyed the delicious food and visiting with each other.

The business meeting began with roll call, reading of the minutes and the financial report. The pecan sale is in progress with hope to finish this month. Plans were made for a birthday party at Tishomingo Living Center. Assignments were made for the "Christmas Under The Stars" project. Several members with the help of Tucker Russell decorated the park gate (by the Youth Building). The park is truly a "Winter Wonderland".

December birthdays were recognized: Maxine Wade, Jo Russell and Terry Shea. Plans were made for our Christmas Social.

Mrs. Dawson Sends the News' Staff a Wonderful Letter of Appreciation

By Ruth Dawson

Recently as we celebrated Thanksgiving we were recalling the things for which we were thankful. I thought of how much the publication of the Vidette had meant to me and I just want to "thank you" for continuing a work that has meant so much to so many down through the years.

I believe that your feature stories tell it like it is. Not all reporters report the unbiased truth but camouflage the truth.

I was never featured down through the years. Correction...I was when I was Tishomingo County Teacher of the Year! But I was/am just a simple, ordinary country girl who grew up on a farm in rural Tishomingo County during the Great Depression. I have never done any great things.

I remember Mom and Dad being featured in the Vidette. They were shopping at Edmondson's Grocery Store and the editor, I guess, needed a filler and chose them. They were the most important people in our lives and now their picture and a short resume was in the local paper for everyone to see. How proud we were!

Another thing I remember in the twenties and thirties someone would choose a good book and a chapter would be in the paper each week, called a serial story. My mom, my sister, Jewel, and I could hardly wait until Friday to get to read the story. The young people today don't realize that common folks had no library books. Only the Bible.

During these years this paper was the only outlet for us to know what was going on in the world. Too, several communities had local reporters who reported each week. We almost felt like we knew them as they regularly reported, church and school happenings.

Again, thank you for keeping Tishomingo county informed. I feel I'm a more intelligent person from having read this newspaper all my life and I still enjoy it. It has really grown with lots of pictures and I even read Tubby Aldridge's articles each week. He was my student in English at Tishomingo in seven through ninth grade. I believe the teachers did a good job teaching Tubby. He doesn't give up easily. Just think? If he reaches his quota of signatures we will miss his article each week.

I hope I will always be able to go to the mailbox on Thursday and get The Tishomingo County News - Vidette. We are better informed citizens because of your publication.

Mrs. Ruth Dawson - with two of her biggest fans, great-grands Zoey and Carri Beth Dawson.

Thanks, Mrs. Dawson, for Memories & Contributions

We would like to thank Mrs. Dawson for her kind words about our small town newspaper. Especially at this time of year, it is heartwarming to receive compliments. Although the occasional complaint keeps us on our toes, we love to know that people feel that our paper is special.

The staff at the Tishomingo County News works hard to keep our readers informed and we appreciate people like Ms. Ruth who contribute their remembrances to our publications for the enjoyment of us and our readers. Mrs. Dawson and many others in our communities possess a wealth of information from a lifetime in Tishomingo County. We love to hear her stories of the life of a farmer's daughter, and as the baby of her large family. She shares from childhood memories during the time of The Great Depression and her many years as a teacher in Tishomingo County. Thank you again,

The News Staff

The Best Reason To Rejoice In Any Season

People often think of the Christmas season as a time to rejoice and enjoy the company of family and friends, and I do not think this is bad, for most of us do enjoy such times of rejoicing. Jesus, however, gave a better reason for rejoicing, which may not have entered the minds of some people. In Luke chapter 10, we have the record of Jesus having sent 70 people out to publish the message of His kingdom. Luke 10:17-20 shows what happened when the 70 returned to Jesus: "And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through Thy name. And He said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold, I give unto you power to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven."

It has always interested me that some people love to talk about the "power of God on their lives", even though such "power" may not be evident to others. It is also interesting to me that God chooses to use whom He will in whatever way He chooses, and all of us do not do the exact same things in the kingdom of God. Even though the main work of God in time is to bring men into reconciliation with Himself, as II Corinthians 5:18-20 so clearly shows, yet not all of us do the exact same things to bring men to God. The 70 in our verses were more than pleased that God had made demons to be subject to them, but Jesus said that should not be their biggest reason for rejoicing. He told them that they should rejoice, because their names were written in heaven. The very language of this statement indicates that not everyone has his name recorded in heaven. Only those who are saved would be included in such a record. If, as some suppose, we cannot know that we are saved in the present time, how could anyone know that his name is recorded in heaven, so that it would be a real reason for rejoicing? The fact is that we can know that we belong to God and that our names are already written in heaven, thus we can rejoice over this fact at any season of the year and under any circumstance! Is your name written there?

Delores Gasaway

Dimple Delores Gasaway, 67, of Dennis, met her Lord and Savior Jesus Christ early Saturday morning, December 3rd, 2011. She was a faithful member of Mt. Zion Baptist Church for over 30 years. For the last several years she taught a very lively women's Sunday school class who loved her dearly. She was often thought of as the model Proverbs 31 woman.

Delores was born on March 25th, 1944 in Kennett, Missouri to Chester and Isabell Hill. Later the family moved to Florence, AL and eventually to the Holcutt/Paden, MS area. Soon after she met Gene Gasaway, the man she would spend the rest of her life with. Gene and Delores were married on February 18th, 1961. They later made their home in Dennis, MS where they raised two sons, Scotty and Lanny. They recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Delores enjoyed fishing, watching her hummingbirds and cooking for her family, but serving and meeting the needs of her family was her true passion. She especially loved spending time with her two grandchildren, Reed and Brittan. Her smile lit up every room and brightened every life. Heaven just got sweeter.

Services were held on Monday, December 5th, at 11 a.m. at Deaton Funeral Home Chapel with Bro. Ed Young and Bro. David Gould officiating. Burial was in Joel Cemetery. Deaton Funeral Home of Belmont was in charge of the arrangements.

Survivors include her husband of 50 years, Gene Gasaway; two sons, Scotty Gasaway and Lanny Gasaway; daughter-in-law, Heather Gasaway; two grandchildren, Reed Gasaway and Brittan Gasaway; several nieces and nephews; and more friends than can be counted.

She was preceded in death by her parents; and a sister, Willodean Cox.

Pallbearers were Ronnie Cox, Doyle Hill, Gary Gasaway, James Gasaway, Chan Gasaway and Ray Lambert.

"Thorns"

As I trek these paths filled with thorns,
May I not complain.
But lend a hand to those in need
Whose feet have commenced to bleed.
Give me the strength and compassion
To pick them up and carry them on their way.
If I pick the thorns from another's feet
I'm sure God will know and He will prepare for me
A place where thorns will never grow.

Harold Murphy, 1984, Resident of TCLC

8th Grade Enjoys Victories Over Fairview Tuesday

This week has been very cold and damp, but great all the same.

Congratulations to the 8th grade boys and girls on their Tuesday night victories over Fairview.

We encourage all our fans and parents to be positive, and show all our students how important it is to show visiting teams, and host teams and fans when we are on the road, good sportsmanship. Behaving with grace and class no matter the outcome of a game is one of the most important lessons student athletes can learn.

We had basketball games last week against Iuka, and lost all four games, but tried our best. Also, there were games last Tuesday night against Alcorn Central. We lost all those games as well, but they were close, and the crowd was on the edge of their seats.

There are some leftover cups left from our cup fundraiser. If anyone would like to purchase one, please see Mr. Roberts.

Christmas break is coming up soon, which also means mid-term exams are coming up too. They will be held the 12th-16th. Please try your best and get a good grade on these tests!

Don't forget Scrabble is every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in Mrs. Green's room. I'm sure

The Beta club will be doing a can drive to help feed families in Tishomingo County. We will be collecting cans until tomorrow! The class with the most cans will be rewarded with a cupcake party! I would like to congratulate our Burnsville cheerleaders for getting 2nd place in the Iuka parade. Great job girls! Congratulations to the 8th grade girls on a thrilling win over Savannah Christian this past Monday. We will be playing at Tishomingo today with games beginning at 5 p.m. Semester exams start next Wednesday December 14! I hope everyone studies and does well. Only one more week until we are out for Christmas break, please continue to work hard in all your classes.

Hello again, Belmont High School students. Only two more weeks to go of this first semester of school. It is so hard to believe that the school year is almost half over!

Congratulations to the Belmont Lady Cardinals Basketball Team in its win against Collinwood Friday evening. The girls won 68 to 44, defeating Collinwood for the second time this season. Congrats especially to high scorer Senior Angelia Allen! Although the Lady Cardinals were victorious Friday evening, the team fell a little short against the Pontotoc Lady Warriors on Saturday evening 57 to 55 in the "Battle of the Best" and against the Myrtle Lady Hawks last Tuesday evening 64 to 63.

Although the team had a great night against Pontotoc, and Angelia was again the high scorer, the Lady Warriors handed the Lady Cardinals their second loss of the season.

The BHS Cardinals Basketball Team came up a little short against the Myrtle Hawks Tuesday evening at home as well with a score of 67 to 62. Friday evening Collinwood defeated the Cardinals for the second time this year in a very

up with a score of 62 to 59. However, the Chatter would like to say, "Congratulations!" to Senior Micah Page, who had nine rebounds in the Cardinals' win against Itawamba in November making him the "Player of the Week." This week the Cardinals and Lady Cardinals have a busy schedule with games at Baldwyn Tuesday and the Nettleton Tournament on Thursday and Friday. Good luck to our teams!

The Chatter would like to congratulate the Charleston Tigers for winning the State 3A Football Championship on Saturday in Jackson against Hazelhurst. This school, its players, cheerleaders, and fans showed nothing but class during our visit there at the end of our season, and we are proud to see them take home the trophy!

The Belmont Christmas Parade was held last Thursday evening with several BHS students participating. Congratulations to this year's Christmas Queen Halie Bell and to the BHS Cardinal Marching Band for a fantastic performance. The Band also participated in the Tishomingo Christmas Parade Saturday evening. This was the final parade for this year's seniors, and I, for one, will miss these parades greatly!

Speaking of the Senior Class, this group held its Senior Christmas Bash on Thursday following the parade. A great time was held by all, especially during the games. Thanks, Parents, for doing this for us--we had a fantastic time! Thanks, Mrs. Alicia, for planning this, and we hope you are feeling better.

The BHS Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Christy Griffin, held its Christmas Concert Sunday afternoon. The Chorus entertained a large crowd of family members and friends with Christmas favorites such as "Christmas Time is Here" and "Carol of the Bells."

The 2011 Belmont Elementary School Christmas Musical will be held on December 14th. The showing for parents and family members of 3rd and 4th grade students along with those families with students in multiple grades will begin at 1:00.

Students, unfortunately, exams are coming up, so get busy now preparing for these. Exam days will be December 13th-16th. 1st and 2nd period exams will be Tuesday, 3rd and 4th period exams will be Wednesday, 5th and 6th period exams will be Thursday, and 7th period and make-ups will be Friday. Don't forget to attend the review times as well--these will be very beneficial.

The BHS FCA would like to remind parents that it hosts an after school tutoring and devotional program each Monday immediately following school until 5:00 at Calvary Baptist Church. Students are provided a snack, a devotion, and help with homework. Transportation from school is provided. If interested in this please contact the building office where your child attends.

High school students, don't forget about the ACT testing session on Saturday, December 10th. Stand-by testing is still available. Good luck, everyone!

Seniors, keep informed of scholarship applications and financial aid opportunities offered throughout this year. Also remember to submit your design for your Senior Yearbook Ad, along with your fees, as soon as possible. Mrs. Gina, Emily and Tori would like this before Christmas Break.

And speaking of Christmas Break--this will be December 17th through January 3rd. Classes will resume January 4, 2012.

Ways to Keep Small Business Registers Ringing During the Holidays

(ARA) - The holiday shopping season is the time of the year that service and retail businesses big and small look forward to all year. In fact, National Retail Federation research shows that the last two months of the year can account for between 25 and 40 percent of all annual sales. For small businesses especially, the holiday season is often a crucial make-or-break opportunity to earn the revenue required to sustain the business the following year.

Fail to plan, plan to fail

Smart planning is essential to keeping the registers ringing during the holidays. For starters, a spike in customer traffic often means needing to hire seasonal help. While that's a good problem to have, managing scheduling, payroll and other concerns for an expanded group of employees can put additional strain on already stretched resources. According to small business expert Steve Strauss, identifying and implementing tools they can trust to manage operational demands effectively can help small business owners focus on what's most important - serving customers and making sales - during the holiday season and beyond. "Running a small business is a complicated juggling act," says Strauss. "To keep all the balls in the air, small businesses owners should take advantage of the many easy and affordable resources available to them today. For example, Bank of America small business customers have access to Intuit Full Service Payroll. This payroll support program can relieve a major stress on small business owners by taking on the responsibility of staff paychecks and payroll taxes." With peace of mind that workers will be paid error-free and on-time, here are some ideas to ensure that your small business will stay busy: * Make sure you have an online presence - Review your website, especially if you use it to make direct sales, to confirm that your interface, search and payments functionality is fast and user-friendly. You may also want to consider optimizing your content and key words to appear more frequently in Web searches.

* Use your size to your advantage - Your competitors may have larger advertising budgets, but they don't have the flexibility to personalize their promotions to the community. Tap into what's unique to your city or neighborhood to design special discounts and use your network of relationships to enhance visibility and loyalty by hosting demonstrations/tastings at local events or donating items to charity auctions. * Shout it from the digital rooftops - Twitter and Facebook are easy, fast and free tools to announce sales, showcase products with videos, photos and testimonials, and run contests to keep interest and excitement going throughout the holiday season. For example, you can feature surprise discounts every day for a week or encourage customers to shop with you by giving a certain amount of proceeds to charity from any purchase made with a special Twitter or Facebook code.
