Golden Arches Up - The new McDonald's sign is up near the intersection of Battleground and Highway 25. The restaurant is scheduled to open next Thursday.

McDonald's to Open Next Week

The golden arches have arrived, heralding the long awaited opening next week of the first McDonald's in Tishomingo County.

The McDonald's will open next Thursday morning at 6 a.m. at its newly constructed location on Battleground Drive in Iuka.

The owners are Robert and Jennifer Tomey, of Amory, and they have hired 56 people, according to Mr. Tomey. The Tomeys also operate McDonald's restaurants in Amory, Aberdeen, Houston, Baldwin, Vernon, Alabama, and, as of December 1st, Red Bay, Alabama.

Several Arrested for Recent Burglaries

by Pamela McRae

The sheriff's department has arrested two men in connection with at least two burglaries in the Dennis area.

Two Red Bay men, Jackie D. Eaton, 35, and James L. Patterson, 48, are charged with burglary and larceny of a dwelling according to Tishomingo County Sheriff Glenn Whitlock.

The two have been connected to a burglary of a home on County Road 32 on December 13th. A chain saw and some firearms have been recovered from that incident, said Whitlock.

Stolen knives, camouflage, and outdoor gear was recovered from a hunting club on County Road 961. The Red Bay men are also charged for that burglary.

December 22nd Arrest

December 22nd, at 2 a.m., county deputies arrested Terrance Alan Carder, 39, of Morris Chapel, Tennessee, for driving while his license was suspended. Carder was wanted in McNairy County, Tennessee in connection with an investigation on burglaries in that county. He is also being investigated in connection with some burglaries in the north part of Tishomingo County, said Whitlock.

After the next Tishomingo County Grand Jury meets at the end of January, additional charges may result for these three suspects.

Two Burglaries at Whitfield Park

Tishomingo County authorities have charged Joshua Duane McKinnon, 20, of Iuka, in connection with two burglaries in the Whitfield Trailer Park in Iuka.

Recovered from an October 12th burglary was a flat screen, and from a December 14th burglary, electronics, DVDs, and the owner's National Guard equipment, reported Whitlock.

Investigation into each of these cases, and any suspected related cases, continues. If you have helpful information, please contact the Tishomingo County Sheriff at 423-7000.

Port Preparing Burnsville Site for Future Industrial Prospects

Pamela McRae

The Yellow Creek Port Authority is developing infrastructure at a major industrial site south of Burnsville to help attract an industrial prospect.

The Northeast Mississippi Waterway Industrial Park (NEMWIP) is an 800-acre site just south of Burnsville on the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway. Its governing authority, the Yellow Creek Port Authority is matching a $700,000 Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) multimodal grant with $300,000 of its own funds to construct a railroad spur to the NEMWIP site.

"The addition of rail access would increase the value of the site to prospective industrial tenants; it is already close to a four-lane highway (U.S. Hwy 72), and has a barge dock/terminal on the Tenn-Tom," said Eugene Bishop, Executive Director of the Yellow Creek Port, located in the northernmost part of the county on the Tenn-Tom. The Port Authority also owns, develops and markets the Burnsville property, NEMWIP.

Engineering design is underway, and Phase I of the rail spur construction is projected to be completed in June 2013.

The Port Authority is making an additional investment in the site with the construction of a 20,000-squart foot spec building. Another MDOT grant of $400,000, matched by $400,000 from the Port Authority will build the spec building, which will have the capacity to support a 20-ton crane, and allow for additions and modifications by a future industrial tenant, explained Bishop.

The building is being bid now, and is scheduled for completion this summer.

The Burnsville property is a key prospect for a megasite, which is the goal of the TAP Alliance, an economic development partnership that includes Tishomingo, Alcorn & Prentiss counties patterned after the PUL alliance of Pontotoc, Union and Lee counties that managed, through multi-county cooperation, to land the Toyota plant in Blue Springs.

The Yellow Creek Port is an example of economic success that the county and the TAP Alliance is striving to repeat. Even in the national media's "great recession," the Port has consistently added industries and jobs to the area, including so many steel fabricating facilities and companies that the Port is sometimes referred to as "little Pittsburg."

"Yellow Creek Port and the Port Authority is a great example of success for our county and the whole region," said Nicky McRae, Tishomingo County Supervisor for District 2, where the Port and the Waterway Industrial Park are both located. "They have done a great job getting that site ready to show everyone who has shown interest in it. Whoever ends up there will have a great location, and lots of support from the Port, and Tishomingo County."

"The site in Burnsville since the inception of the TAP Alliance is what everybody has talked about as a megasite because of the infrastructure around it with four-lane highway, Tenn-Tom Waterway and nearby railroad," said TAP Alliance President Brandon Grissom, also Tishomingo County District 1 supervisor. "I believe it will be a tremendous impact to this region if we can land a big industry there. It would help all three counties in the TAP Alliance."

Local Historian, Former Teacher Rayma Biggs Dies

Local historian, and retired teacher, Miss Rayma L. Biggs of Iuka died Friday, December 23, 2011 at her home in the Central Community north of Iuka.

Miss Rayma was born November 24, 1916, the daughter of Charley and Blanche Davis Biggs. She was raised in the Harmony Central Community and taught 39 years in schools in Tishomingo and Alcorn Counties. She started teaching at old Central School in the fall of 1939, after graduating from Central in the Spring. She later taught at Crossroads, Midway and at Gift, in Alcorn County. She received her Masters of Education from Mississippi State University and spent most of her long career teaching history and English at Iuka High School. Over the years she touched many young students and is remembered fondly for her witty, yet strict teaching style. She, like many teachers from her era, was respected by the students as well as their parents.

In 1962 Miss Rayma, along with her sister, Mary, began researching their family history and in 1980 published "The Jesse Tree" History of the Biggs-Dexter Fam-lies in America. She continued her genealogy research throughout her life and also published a book on Tishomingo County Cemeteries.

She was an organizing member of the Chief Tishomingo Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and former member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

No Safe Level of

Secondhand Smoke

Limiting exposure to secondhand cigarette smoke is not a property rights issue – it's a public health issue. The 2010 Surgeon General's Report states, "there is no safe level of exposure to cigarette smoke." When individuals inhale cigarette smoke, they are inhaling more than 7,000 chemicals: hundreds of which are hazardous, and at least 69 that are known to cause cancer.

It is a known fact that secondhand smoke causes premature death and disease in adults and children who do not smoke. Eighty percent of Mississippians do not smoke. Eliminating smoking in and around indoor spaces is the only way to protect everyone from the harmful effects of secondhand smoke.

Mississippians have overwhelmingly stated their support for smokefree air. In a recent survey of registered voters in Mississippi conducted by the Mississippi State University Social Science Research Center, 78% of Mississippians likely to vote believe secondhand smoke should be eliminated in all public places, including workplaces. It is abundantly clear that Mississippians support a smokefree environment and it is time for our elected officials to listen!

Petition Needs 472 More Signatures

If you read this article, really listen to what it is saying to you. Ask your friends and your neighbors if they read this article in the Tishomingo County newspaper. This article is very important to each and everybody that lives in Tishomingo County. I know that alcohol taxes won't solve all of Tishomingo County's problems. Stop and think about this. Every dollar that is spent in other counties and states is not coming back to Tishomingo County once it is spent in another county or state, we lose the tax dollars off of it, that money is gone. Look at Wal-Mart in Corinth and look at the people shopping in there? Look at Garden's Super Market in Corinth, at all of the people shopping there. Just think of all of the dollars that are being spent in other counties that could be spent in Tishomingo County. How can you expect Tishomingo County to ever grow when all we are doing is taking away from it? If we had the sale of alcohol in Tishomingo County, at least we would be getting some tax dollars back. We are not just losing alcohol tax, we are losing tax dollars on a lot of other stuff. If we, the people of Tishomingo County, would legalize the sale of alcohol it sure would raise our tax revenue a whole lot. If you would like to sign the petition to vote Tishomingo County wet for the sale of beer, whiskey, and wine the petition is in the Tishomingo County paper today on December 29th, 2011. I have 40 more signatures to take to the courthouse. I don't know how many of these is good. Right now, I need 472 more.

Southern Belle Red Hats Enjoy Elvis at Christmas Party

Thanks to the December hostesses for the Southern Bell Red Hats, there was a very special speaker/entertainer at the Christmas Party last week.

Elvis was in the building, at least in spirit, in the form of Jack Curtis, an excellent Elvis impersonator from Tupelo. In addition to all the Elvis favorites, he also sang several Elvis Christmas songs, to the thrill of all the ladies present.

Mrs. Bobby Counce, one of the hostesses, met Curtis as he was giving a program on insurance for the Young at Heart, and arranged for him to come sing for her friends in the Red Hats.

Mr. Curtis also gave a preview of his Willie Nelson impression, which was also just wonderful!

New Year Traditions Celebrated

United States

Times Square is the focus of New York City's celebrations.

New Year's Eve is an occasion celebrated with elegant formal parties and family-oriented activities; New Year's Day is a public holiday in the United States. Celebrations often center upon dropping or raising an item of worth during the countdown, especially in the East coast.

Since 1907 the "ball dropping" on top of One Times Square in New York City is a major component of the New Year celebration. The 11,875-pound (5,386 kg), 12-foot (3.7 m) diameter Waterford crystal ball located high above Times Square is lowered, starting at 11:59:00 pm and reaching the bottom of its tower sixty seconds later, at the stroke of midnight. (After fifty seconds has passed, the crowd will count down the final ten seconds along with the hosts of various New Year's Eve shows. Toshiba's Times Square advertising screen will also tell the viewers when the New Year officially starts, which debuted in the 2009-10 edition.) From 1981 to 1988, the city dropped a large apple in recognition of its nickname as "the Big Apple" [citation needed] Similar ball drops are performed in many towns and cities across the United States. The custom derives from the time signal that used to be given at noon in harbors.

The song Auld Lang Syne has become a popular song to sing at midnight on New Year's Eve, with the Lombardo version being the standard.

New Year's Eve is traditionally the busiest day of the year at Walt Disney World Resort in Florida and Disneyland in Anaheim, California, where the parks stay open late and the usual nightly fireworks are supplemented by an additional New Year's Eve-specific show at midnight.

Over 60 cities nationwide celebrate First Night, a non-alcohol family-friendly New Year's Celebration, generally featuring performing artists, community events, parades, and fireworks displays to celebrate the New Year.

Religious observances

In the Roman Catholic Church, January 1st is a Holy Day of Obligation honoring Mary, Mother of God. It is required that all faithful Catholics attend the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass on January 1st. However, since in the Catholic Church, a vigil Mass may be held on the evening before a Holy Day, it has become customary to celebrate Mass on the evening of New Year's Eve.

Many Protestant Christian congregations have New Year's Eve watchnight services. Some, especially Lutherans and Methodists and those in the African American community, have a tradition known as "Watch Night", in which the faithful congregate in services continuing past midnight, giving thanks for the blessings of the outgoing year and praying for divine favor during the upcoming year. Watch Night can be traced back to John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, who learned the custom from the Moravian Brethren who came to England in the 1730s. Moravian congregations still observe the Watch Night service on New Year's Eve. Watch Night took on special significance to African Americans on New Year's Eve 1862, as slaves anticipated the arrival of January 1, 1863, when Lincoln had announced he would sign the Emancipation Proclamation.

Mexico

Mexicans celebrate New Year's Eve, Año Nuevo in Spanish, by downing a grape with each of the twelve chimes of the bell during the midnight countdown, while making a wish with each one. Mexican families decorate homes and parties, during New Year's, with colors such as red, to encourage an overall improvement of lifestyle and love, yellow to encourage blessings of improved employment conditions, green to improve financial circumstances and white to improved health. Mexican sweet bread is baked with a coin or charm hidden in the dough. When the bread is served, the recipient whose slice contains the coin or charm is believed to be blessed with good luck in the new year. Another tradition is making a list of all the bad or unhappy events from the current year, before midnight, this list is thrown into a fire, symbolizing the removal of negative energy from the new year. At the same time, thanks is expressed for all the good things had during the year that is coming to its end so that they will continue to be had in the new year.

Mexicans celebrate by having a late-night dinner with their families, the traditional meal being turkey and mole, a tradition which has now spanned worldwide. Those who want to party generally go out afterwards, to local parties or night clubs. If you're in Mexico, you can still enjoy festivities in the street. In Mexico City there is a huge street festival on New Year's Eve; celebrations center around the Zocalo, the city's main square. You can expect a lot of firecrackers, fireworks and sparklers. At midnight there is a lot of noise and everyone shouts: "¡Feliz año nuevo!" People embrace and make noise and set off firecrackers. They celebrate January 1 December 31st.

Keep Fitness off your New Year's Resolution List Three Tips to Avoid Starting a Fitness Program in January

(ARA) - You've vowed to get fit with the start of each New Year. This year don't. Why not? First, because resolutions don't work. Second, because fitness isn't something you start, it's something you live. Stop starting. Start living. Here's how:

* Don't wait. Leave the December binge/January purge cycle behind. If you tend to blow off moderation in favor of "treating" yourself and justifying poor choices, it's time to reframe your approach. Vow to conquer the holidays in healthy ways. Start by taking the initiative to cook holiday meals so you can prepare healthy options, and during the party circuit, don't succumb to the pressure to indulge. "Learn to say no thank you," says Tom Nikkola, director of nutrition and weight management for Life Time Fitness. "Not 'No thank you, I'm on a diet,' or 'No thank you, I'm trying to stick to my nutrition plan,' because friends might give you a hard time and egg you on." Keep in mind that the satisfaction of any cookie will only last until you swallow it. "Chances are one cookie - which often leads to several cookies - won't be worth the frustration, or failure, you might feel for hours or days afterward," Nikkola says. "Plus, when you make good decisions you'll feel more empowered. In effect, you remain in control, not the food."

* Find a community. A fit lifestyle is a family and friend affair. So are the holidays. Take the initiative to bring them together. Suggest that your family start a tradition to head out on a pre- or post-meal hike. Recruit a friend to adopt one new healthy habit in December (it takes approximately 28 days for a habit to stick). Sign up for an athletic event in 2012, that will motivate you to keep moving in December - such as one of the 67 indoor triathlons hosted by Life Time. Katie Sloan of Chicago is recruiting friends and family to gather at the Santa Hustle 5K. "Growing up we had so many family traditions especially around Christmas," Sloan says.

"What better way to make sure we spend time together as a family and commence the holiday season?" She has convinced 25 loved ones that a 5K is the perfect mix of exercise and holiday fun. "Whether the race is completed in 24 minutes or 2 hours, it is something we get to do together," she says. Spending time with people you care about, she added, is what makes the holidays meaningful. * Take what you can get. Sure there will be days when the holiday rush feels overwhelming. That's no reason to skip exercising altogether. Even if you have just 10 minutes for a brisk walk, or can only manage a set of pushups as your morning shower heats up, your body will appreciate that small deposit toward your overall fitness. Jake Booth, a personal trainer at Life Time Fitness Omaha, says that any workout, no matter the duration, will keep burning calories once you go back to sitting at your desk. "Even a short burst of exercise - even 10 minutes if that's all you have - is shown to increase metabolism for up to one hour," he says. A short workout will keep the mental momentum going, too. After all, if you skip one day, what will keep you from skipping the next day too? And we all know how stressful the holidays can be. "Exercise increases energy and individuals usually experience better sleeping patterns," Booth adds. Stepping away from the seasonal stress, he says, will also help you return to your task at hand with more clarity and focus. When fitness is core to your lifestyle, as opposed to a chore, you're far more likely to spend the season in jolly good spirits, thanks to exercise-induced endorphins. "These chemicals released by the brain are the body's natural painkillers and usually lead to an increase in feelings of happiness," Booth says. So don't just survive the holidays, or suffer through them with the intention to try harder next year. Start living now, and while you're at it let those endorphins help you have a happier holiday too.

One Of The Seven's Scribblings

by Ruth Dawson

When I rolled out of bed this A.M., my mind was flooded with "what if's?" Does that ever happen to you? They are most mind-boggling. They don't solve one, solitary thing. Yet, they are very much with us. Take for instance, I quit working the Daily Journal's puzzle. Why? I didn't think I had time anymore. That, in year's past, was the second thing I did after I had read the comics.

Today, I quickly turn to the obituaries to learn if I have lost any of my friends. Next, I go to the opinion page. Here I read what the various journalists have to say about the topic of the day. Quite a change in the writer's lifestyle.

Maybe the reason I dropped the puzzle is because life to a senior adult has become just that. A puzzle. Too, I'd become dependent upon the dictionary and the thesaurus. My children would say, "Mom, you are cheating." Maybe I was, but I do plan to revert to my old habit. Hopefully it will activate my brain and put things in better perspective. If?

Change? Not always is change better. It seems to me Northeast Mississippi sometimes wants to change something just for the sake of change. I'm referring to the to the changes made in our legislature this year. I don't know personally our new Senator who will be replacing Eric Powell, but I do know Eric Powell. He was a great student/leader at Tishomingo High School and one of my students. When one has observed youth growing up and has a small part in their training one knows first hand what constitutes the character of the individual. We, in Northeast Mississippi never keep a Senator or Representative long enough for them to get indoctrinated in the rules/ways of the legislature to be able to have any clout for this area. Take Highway 25? Still a dangerous two lane state highway. Drive south and see what the highways are like.

Northeast Mississippi is losing Speaker of the House, Billy McCoy. His dad was my teacher at Northeast when he was a State Representative due to retirement. He was an able representative for Northeast Mississippi and the "oldies" from Jackson and southern Mississippi lauded his retirement. Why? McCoy was well known, respected and carried a lot of weight in the legislature — a "big stick" in the decision making. Now, we have lost that, too.

If my sounding off would achieve anything, I have a few other subjects to address, but with the New Year a couple of days away I guess I'd better try to improve my habits in 2012 and Psalms 19:14.

Happy New Year to all and thank you for listening to the opinion of one of the Seven." It sure makes me feel better to have an attentive audience where I can do all the talking! Thanks for listening.

Southern Cornerstones

Transcribed by RaNae Vaughn

This column was published in The Iuka Vidette of Iuka, Miss., and dated February 29, 1912.

An Old Paper

We have before us a copy of The Iuka Weekly Gazette dated February 22, 1868, E. P. Odom, proprietor. It calls itself a Democrat white man's paper and its subscription price is $2.50 per annum invariably in advance. The advertising rates were $1.50 per square of 10 lines or less. Locals double price. All advertisements inserted for a less period than three months were payable in advance. It contains the following list of Iuka business firms: Hammerly & Price; Martin & Martin; James H. Doan; R. T. Marshall, agent for I. M. Hamilton; J. M. Davis & Co.; Bates & Burgess; Matthews & Moore; Iuka Springs Hotel; J. T. Weaver; C. N. Miller & Co.; J. D. James; J. F. Dennis; Henry Ogden. Also the Iuka Female Institute with J. E. Douglass, president. The office where the paper is printed is given as upstairs over Bates & Burgess. The paper is all home print. We searched the paper through for locals and found just one and that was a notice of a candy stew given by Mrs. Hart.

Iuka is called the "most superb place this side of Elysium." That is some but nothing compared with the inhabitants, who are described as follows: "It has more pure-minded, noble-souled, heaven-born and heaven-bound women and a greater number of proud-spirited, big-hearted, high-headed, undaunted men than can be found anywhere on earth outside of the Southland." An editorial says: "We have now in our possession some information which we expect to lay before our readers soon in regard to the interest and prosperity of our town that will send a thrill of joy through the hearts of all its 1,200 inhabitants and make many more regret they do not own property here. We advise those who have unimproved or vacant lots to be in no hurry to sell them for town property 12 months from today will be worth 150 per cent more than now."

There is an obituary notice that tells of the death of Dr. John Henry Atkinson at Eastport, aged 45 years. The notice states that Dr. Atkinson is from County Kildare, Ireland.

D. T. Beall was Sheriff then and advertises the Trammel & Washburn steam saw mill for sale under execution, situation about eight miles south of Iuka. P. W. Nash was the Chancery Clerk at that time and his name appears to a non-resident divorce notice; also in the non-resident notice of an attachment suit of Jackson Akers vs. L. F. Williams, the complainant having lived on the S E ¼ of Block 42 in the town of Iuka. These constitute about all the items of interest in the old paper.

After all, they acknowledge Bryan was right about probing the money trust, but not until they began to hear from their constituents. We are talking about the Democratic members of Congress, headed by Oscar Underwood who voted down Henry's resolution to appoint a special committee to investigate the money trust. They consented to do the very thing now that they voted down. Underwood is against anything Bryan favors. Bryan's name is as a red flag to a bull with Oscar. Nevertheless, Bryan is usually right. Strike out the silver plant and Bryan's platform of 1896 is the platform for the progressives of all parties.

Miss Kate Brown

This information was prepared by Mrs. Vivian Skinner of Iuka, Mississippi, on March 22, 1940, for the WPA Mississippi Writer's Project. This original paper is on file at the Tishomingo County Archives & History Museum. It was transcribed exactly as it was written by RaNae S. Vaughn, August 8, 2011.

Miss Kate B. Brown was born two miles north of Iuka, Mississippi, near Browns' Water Mill, located on Indian Creek, October 20, 1879.

She was educated in public schools of Tishomingo County, graduated from Iuka Normal College approximately 1896.

After having taught school in Tishomingo County, rural schools two years, she taught in Iuka Grammar School for two years, from there she taught in the following schools at Corinth, Miss., Blue Mountain, Miss. (Mississippi Heights Academy), Durant, Mississippi, Mosspoint, Mississippi. When the college at Hattiesburg was founded she was a member of the faculty for 25 years in succession. For one year, she did research work at the university in Oakland, California. For three years, she did extension work out of Tupelo and Amory, Mississippi, for Southern College, Birmingham, Alabama, and the last three years of her life she taught in College, Hattiesburg, Mississippi. At one time, she was president of the State Teachers Association; she also organized a club through which she won a trip to Europe.

She was the daughter of John B. Brown, who came from Anderson, S.C., 1840, at the age of 12 years, to Tishomingo County. Her mother was Elizabeth (Akers) Brown, born in Tishomingo County, Mississippi. Grandparents were maternal Jack Akers and Miss Sarah Castleberry before her marriage to Jack Akers. Paternal, Robert C. Brown and Miss Emily Day, before her marriage to Robert C. Brown.

Miss Kate was one of nine children, whom were seven girls and two boys. The older Mrs. Ellen Luker, Memphis, Tennessee. Professor J. E. Brown, Blue Mountain, Mississippi. Mrs. Lizzie Robinson, Iuka, Mississippi. Miss Annie Brown, who departed this life at the age of 28 years. Mrs. E. A. Payne, Iuka, Mississippi. Miss Nina Brown, who departed this life at the age of 28 years. Dr. Robert J. Brown, M.D., Iuka, Mississippi. Mrs. Joe L. S. Rodgers, New Albany, Mississippi.

Letter from Lizzie

This is a handwritten letter from an Iuka Normal Institute school girl named Lizzie. It is not dated, and Lizzie's surname is not known. It was transcribed exactly as it was written by RaNae Vaughn on August 18, 2011.

Sunday morning, 10 o'clock

Just taking it easy — but the morning seems so long — had breakfast at 7:30 wore the brown challis (?). Is that the way to spell it? We had half orange, corn flakes, toast, biscuit, coffee, butter. Molasses is always on the table and they say it's real good. I haven't tried it because I had plenty of the other. Last night we had fresh pears on the table. I didn't want mine then and brought it to my room. Haven't eaten it yet just haven't had time to get hungry. I'll have to eat it soon for its good ripe. From breakfast I went by the post office and got the Vidette — didn't get it with the letter yesterday. After reading it, I hung up my clothes, straightened up the room, worked on my finger nails — now in my kimono on the bed — it's warm this morning — no breeze — the last 3 days have been so oppressive — followed by rain in afternoon. I felt it most Friday — guess I got used to it and didn't feel it so much yesterday. Saw the rainbow Friday clear across the sky so plain like this — never had seen it unbroken before. Are you cooking on the new stove yet? Are the grapes in the garden lasting yet? And do the young chickens still get out of the chicken yard? I had thought I would look for thread at Kress but if you can get it at the store guess this wouldn't be a bargain. Wish I hadn't brought Eula's milan for I don't need it — have had it on once & I didn't need it then — so many go to town bareheaded or wear little hats. I know Eula needs this and I don't know how I'll pack up. I'm looking forward to that now — thundering now — & I'm not surprised. What is Miss Emma going to do? Who is staying with her? Am sorry Mr. Miller lost out. I thought he was a good man for the place — the paper didn't say who was leading — glad Miss Ollie is in. Did you have to go to the court house to vote? So I'll be there in time to vote next time. Miss Campbell, the girl from Dennis or Belmont, never did get her ballot & she sent her application in before I did mine. Heard someone down the hall this morning singing "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming." Didn't expect to hear that song here. Not surprised to hear "Prisoner's Song," etc.

9 o'clock, Sunday night

Slept about 15 minutes before dinner. After dinner, undressed & rested some more, slept a little, company came in and stayed till the first bell for supper 5:15 on Sunday nights. Supper at 5:30. The first bell is for the girls — waitresses — to come. Went to vesper service in the chapel — as it has been raining the lawn was too damp. Dr. Bassett talked. He had charge of Mr. Hurst's work while Mr. H. was in Peabody. He married one of the students here in the spring — a widow with a little boy. I think they are waiting for her to complete her course. They say he was a grass widower — he made a very good talk. Put on the blue crepe for supper — must get up the laundry so I can take it as I go to breakfast. Mrs. Korb took it last week after breakfast as she did not have an early class. But she won't be back until Wednesday. Here school opens tomorrow & she will stay for that and get someone to carry on her work until next week. I haven't decided whether or not I'll put in any laundry next week — afraid we might not get it back before we want to leave.

I spent nearly all of Saturday in the library but still I'm not ready for work tomorrow.

I know the house & grounds must have been "spic & span" and looked mighty pretty for the Galloways.

Love, Lizzie

Start Your Journey And Keep On Trucking...

Written by: Kim McCoy, ABE student

This is a story about a high school dropout that after seventeen years and two children later decides to go back to school and make something of herself. By writing this maybe I can inspire someone else to do the same. I am an only child, and "no I was not spoiled"! My parents divorced when I was ten. My mother remarried six months later. I had to change schools and along with having to adjust to everything else it was extremely difficult. I started developing depression at the age of 11. I still have problems with it today. I had trouble with the school I was attending. After four years my mom let me change schools but I still had trouble. At the age of 16, I decided I was not smart enough to pass the test and gave up. In February of 1996, I got married, and by October of 1996, I was blessed with my son, Nicholas. In 1999, a baby girl, Kaitlin came along. After 10 years of roller coaster events, battling depression, and losing my Dad (I was a "Daddy's Girl") my marriage ended. After the divorce I realized that my children needed me. When Nicholas reached high school I realized that school was important and I decided to enroll in Northeast Mississippi Community College Adult Basic Education Program. With encouragement from my mother, my children, my teacher, and Doc I have passed my GED with flying colors in less than three months! This proves that no matter how old you are you can go back to school and complete this journey. My journey is actually just beginning because I am going to enroll in Northeast Mississippi Community College and keep on trucking... If you are interested in FREE GED classes contact 662-424-9977 or stop by 1208 Bettydale Drive, Iuka.

Spanish Moss by James L. Cummins

Despite the root of its name, Spanish moss is not biologically related to either mosses or lichens. It is an epiphyte - a plant that lives upon other plants, absorbing nutrients and water from the air and rainfall. The pineapple is in this same family. It is not a biological parasite - as is mistletoe, which actually burrows into the tree and sucks out nutrients. Spanish moss uses the tree's structure to gather sunlight that would otherwise fall on the host tree's leaves. Nicknamed "gray-beard," Spanish moss has grayish-green leaves which can measure up to 2 inches in length and are covered with silvery-gray scales. Spanish moss is a fibrous perennial herb. It hangs from trees in long, thick masses that reach up to 20 feet in length. Lightly fragrant and formed in the axils of the leaves, the flowers of Spanish moss are tiny, inconspicuous blooms of pale greenish-blue that blossom in late spring/early summer. The seeds of Spanish moss develop in tiny capsules after the appearance of the flowers and these capsules eventually split open to release the seeds for fertilization. Spanish moss ranges from Texas east to Florida, north to Virginia along the Coastal Plain and south to Argentina. Though it grows well in partial shade, it prefers moist environments, flourishing when near bodies of water. Most commonly adopting oak and cypress trees, Spanish moss is found on other species too. At one time, tons of Spanish moss were harvested and used in the United States alone. Sometimes bought for use in arts and crafts and beddings for flower gardens, Spanish moss has also been researched for use in medicines to treat type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hemorrhoids and edema. Though commonly thought to be a habitat for chiggers, it only collects these mites after it has touched the ground. Along with chiggers, Spanish moss is also known to shelter other creatures such as lizards, frogs, rat snakes and three species of bats. Birds, such as chickadees and the prothonotary warblers, use the moss to construct or conceal their nests while the Parula warbler actually makes its nest in the hanging clumps. Other animals also use Spanish moss for nest bedding, including mockingbirds, egrets, squirrels and owls. A collection of Spanish moss taken by the U.S. Department of Agriculture from May 1985 to May 1986 at Leroy Percy State Park in Washington County, Mississippi, netted 600 spiders which were represented by 13 families, 22 genera and 29 species. Other insect counts from this study included 600 beetles, 500 chalcidoid wasps and 300 miscellaneous species. Therefore, it is a good idea to inspect the moss before taking any home.

When Did The New Testament Actually Begin?

I think there is much confusion among even believers concerning the division between the Old Testament and the New Testament. Part of this confusion revolves around the words in the fly leaves of our Bibles that say, "New Testament". Even though men meant well by adding these words to the inspired Scriptures, they still may confuse some people. I am saying that the new testament, or covenant, does not begin with Matthew 1:1, nor do the other gospels begin with the new testament. The actual new testament, meaning also a covenant or an agreement, does not begin until after Jesus' death. So, we would have to say that the new testament begins with the death and resurrection of Christ, which is not recorded until Matthew chapters 27-28; Mark chapters 15-16; Luke chapters 23-24 and John chapters 19-20. This means that many things that were taught and practiced in the earlier parts of these books were really "Old Testament teaching". When Jesus told a healed leper to "go and offer the gift that Moses commanded for a testimony unto them", He was teaching Old Testament truth (see Matthew 8:4). We are not being commanded to do such in our day, yet many people look at everything taught in the four gospels as being for church practice in our day. This is why some denominations are confused on sabbath keeping, which is never commanded for the church. We observe the first day of the week, the day on which Jesus arose.

Now we will look at Hebrews 9:16-17 for clear teaching on when the New Testament actually began: "For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator. For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth." We speak of "the last will and testament" of men, a means by which men leave their possessions to those whom they choose. Such wills are of absolutely no strength as long as the maker of the will is still living. This is exactly the same thing that God is saying in our verses above; Jesus had to die, before the new testament became effective, so the old testament was still in force, until Jesus died. Those of us who teach the Bible need to pay close attention to this truth, for it will help us to rightly divide the word of truth! By the way, the old covenant lost its power when the new covenant was ratified by Jesus' death, so that we are not under the laws of the Old Testament (Hebrews 8:13).
