Snow Blankets County in Winter Beauty

Tishomingo County & Mid-South, receive the most significant accumulation in 23 years!

by Pamela McRae

People in the mid-South heard warnings all last week about a snow fall with possible accumulations of 8-10 inches - and Sunday night, all the predictions came true.

Beginning around seven o'clock Sunday night, January 10th, snow started falling, heavily, and by morning, most all of Tishomingo County, along with an area from Arkansas to southwestern Virginia, was covered in what many sources are saying was the most significant snow accumulation since 1988.

Tishomingo County schoolchildren were notified Sunday night of a school-free Monday, and that extended to at least Wednesday, as low temperatures in the 0's were predicted all week.

Monday, many Tishomingo Countians spent the day enjoying the powdery, beautiful snow that was from 7 to 10 inches deep all over the county. Temperatures predicted to not exceed freezing all week ensured that the snow would be around longer than usual, as well.

By Tuesday, most of the major roads and highways were clear enough for safe driving, but lesser-used roads in many parts of the county were still treacherous and covered with snow and ice.

Local law enforcement and emergency services reported no serious accidents due to the snow, and power remained on as normal.

In addition to school being canceled, some athletic events, and the county chess tournament, were also rescheduled. Be sure to check with your school for details on rescheduled events. Snow makeup days are built into the school calendar for President's Day (Feb. 21st), the Monday after Easter (April 25th), and May 27th.

Former Burnsville Clerk Pleads Guilty; Must Repay $62,893

by Pamela McRae

A former Burnsville town clerk pled guilty in Tishomingo County Circuit Court last week to embezzling more than $60 thousand dollars from the Town from January 2004 to January 2007.

Elesha Dailey pled guilty to seven counts of embezzlement, and will be sentenced in May, according to Assistant District Attorney Tyler Moss. She will repay stolen funds, a $1,000 fine, and state auditor investigative costs, which are being determined by a pre-sentencing investigation. She remains free on the original bond until the sentencing, he said.

She pled "open" because the two parties were unable to come to an agreement on the investigation costs, said Moss. The amount stolen is agreed upon, he said. Judge Paul Funderburk presided.

The embezzling was identified by an auditing process instituted by Mayor David Nixon in 2005, the first year he took office.

At the end of 2006, the accountant identified discrepancies in the finances, and they called in the Mississippi State Audit Department, explained Nixon.

Dailey took $62,893.82 over a period from January 2004 to January 2007, according to the indictment. The seven counts are for seven six-month periods in which the amounts taken varied from $2,807.19 the first period, to $12,764.56 in the January-June 2006 period.

The funds were taken from various monies Burnsville Town Hall collects, including town taxes and utilities payments.

Nixon said that the auditing process for the town is now more stringent. There are several different checks and balances, and everything is checked on a monthly basis, he said.

"This has been a long process, and I'm glad it's coming to a close," said Nixon.

Tagert and Caldwell to Face Off in Feb. 1st Runoff for Transportation Commissioner

Mike Tagert and John Caldwell will face each other in a runoff election February 1st for Northern District Transportation Commissioner.

With snow blanketing the entire district, the turnout for the special election Tuesday was light. John Caldwell, transportation director for the Desoto County school district was ahead with 10,660 (21 percent) votes by the end of the day. About 287 votes behind was Mike Tagert, of Starkville, who is the president of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Development Council.

Five other candidates were also running, with Warner McBride the closest with 9,983 votes.

The Transportation Commission oversees one of the largest agencies in state government, with responsibilities over highways, bridges, ports and airports.

Supervisors Deal with New Year Agenda in Jan. 4th Meeting

by Pamela McRae

The Tishomingo County Board of Supervisors took care of first-of-the-year business during its rescheduled meeting Tuesday morning, January 4th.

Bids were opened for the usual opportunities to provide the county with mostly road-making materials and supplies - culverts, asphalt, concrete slabs, etc.

The board chose to reject some bids, saying that they would rather buy and haul crusher-run limestone using local companies on an as-needed basis for individual jobs. They also opted to use local suppliers of heavy equipment on a case-by-case basis.

For road-building materials the board opted to reject bids, and also go on a case-by-case basis for those. They accepted the low bid for hot mix from APAC ($79.50 per ton), in an effort to lock in prices that could be affected by petroleum price fluctuations.

The board approved an addition to the ATK building, which ATK is building at no cost to the county.

The board voted to restore Dean McRae Engineering, of Iuka, to do all the county work, which generally includes the engineering work for industrial prospects and tenants of county owned property. Cook Coggins, of Tupelo, will continue to perform state-aid road jobs and administration. Since a decision earlier this year, each supervisor could choose what engineer they used for emergencies. On a motion of Steve Thorne, they removed the emergency clause.

The board voted to include the county election commissioners in the county insurance coverage. Supervisor Danny Ryan said it was a state mandated requirement.

After two days of hearing insurance proposals to provide county employee coverage, the board chose to stay with the current provider, United. Board President James McDowell said that employees will have less taken from their check than last year.

Chancery Clerk Peyton Cummings said that scanning is complete on records from 1997 to the present, making available, electronically, deeds and other documents filed with the chancery clerk's office since 1977.

First District Supervisor Brandon Grissom asked Cook Coggins engineer Roland Humphries to investigate placing a flashing warning light on the right-of-way near where a new daycare is scheduled to open soon.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be January 18th, since the courthouse is closed for the Martin Luther King Birthday holiday the 17th.

Mississippi Magnolia at the Iuka Public Library Friends Lunch

Patricia Neely-Dorsey will present the program at the Friends of the Library lunch break on Tuesday, January 18 at noon.

Patricia graduated from Tupelo High School in 1982. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology from Boston University and worked in the mental health field for almost twenty years in Memphis before returning to Tupelo in 2007. At this point in her life, Patricia chose to write a book, or perhaps it's more accurate to say, "The book chose to be written by Patricia."

Reflections of a Mississippi Magnolia - A Life in Poems started its journey into existence in 2007.

Patricia says, "I woke up on Valentine's Day, February 2007 with a poem dancing around in my head. I quickly got up and scribbled it down. After that day, poems just started pouring out."

Amazingly, one year later her poems became a published book that has been called "a poetic love letter to the south" and "a poetic autobiography." Patricia invites readers to get to know the Mississippi she knew growing up, and hopes that through her writing she might have a conversation with readers, giving them an up-close and personal view of the southern way of life.

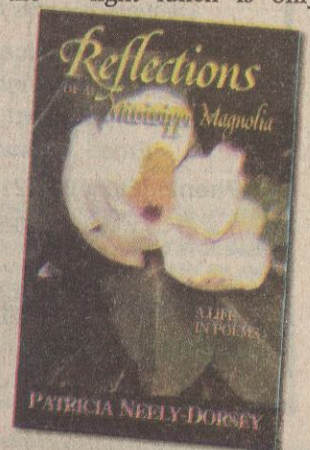

Patricia is a bridge builder who believes that we can overcome misunderstandings that spring up across regional, racial, cultural, generational and economic lines by simply sharing our stories. Through her own storytelling, she hopes to preserve the history, heritage and rich southern culture that she knows so well, while at the same time fostering an appreciation for the importance of cultural diversity, individuality, self expression and regional pride.

Everyone is invited and encouraged to attend. When the snow melts, shake off that cabin fever and come to the Iuka Library at noon on Tuesday, January 18. It sounds like a great program, and the light lunch is only $2.

Belmont Basketball Rolling On

Hello again, Belmont High School. I hope you all had another great, productive week and enjoyed building snowmen and making snow angels on your time off.

The BHS Varsity Basketball teams had much to celebrate last week when they defeated their cross-county rival the Tishomingo County Braves. You go, Cardinals! The girls continued their winning streak with a very sound victory over the Booneville Lady Blue Devils. The girls put forth their best efforts, and the final score of 66 to 18 definitely reflects their determination.

The boys put forth their best efforts against the Booneville Blue Devils, as well, but were defeated.

They did, however, prove victorious in the Hickory Flatt tournament on Saturday against Myrtle. The teams faced off against Kossuth on Tuesday, but due to the deadline for this article, the results of those games are unknown. They will both participate in the MS vs. AL Shootout this Saturday.

Congratulations are in order for both the girls and the boys for their hard work this season.

Belmont High School's Fellowship of Christian Athletes is hosting a rally at Calvary Baptist Church in Belmont on Wednesday, January 12, at 7:00 p.m. Former Ole Miss football player, Jason Cook, will be the guest speaker for the event. The Golden Central Baptist Church Band will Students, FCA meets every Wednesday morning at 7:30. Your presence is welcome, and remember, you don't have to be an athlete to be in the Fellowship of Christian "Athletes"!

Students, remember the blood drive will be on Friday. School will be out on Monday, January 17, in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday. Also, remember only one more semester until we are out for summer vacation!

Kick the New Year Off Right by Kicking the Habit

If quitting smoking has been at the top of your New Year's resolution list for the past several years and you haven't been able to make it happen yet, don't give up.

Help is only a phone call or a click away for any Mississippian who wants to stop smoking. The Mississippi Tobacco Quitline offers cessation services for those who want to jump start their journey to living a cigarette-free life.

"Any Mississippian can call the Tobacco Quitline to receive telephone and online counseling at no cost," said Melissa Nash, Director of the Mississippi Tobacco-Free Coalition of Prentiss and Tishomingo County. "Smokers may also be eligible to receive free nicotine replacement therapies, such as the patch or gum."

Experts agree that getting professional help can make a huge difference for those trying to quit smoking.

"Nicotine is an incredibly addictive drug and the cravings and withdrawal symptoms can overpower even the strongest will," said Roy Hart, Director of the Office of Tobacco Control at the Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH). "Those who seek and receive professional help are twice as likely to quit for good."

Nearly 509,000 Mississippi adults smoke cigarettes and 4,200 Mississippi kids under the age of 18 become smokers each year. About 4,700 Mississippi adults die from smoking each year and 69,000 Mississippi kids under the age of 18 will die prematurely from smoking.

"The New Year is a great time to plan to quit and you can succeed by understanding that quitting isn't easy, making a plan to quit and getting professional help," said Nash.

Mississippians can call 1-800-QUITNOW or visit www.QuitlineMS.com to take advantage of the services offered by the Mississippi Tobacco Quitline.

For more information about tobacco cessation, call The Tobacco-Free Coalition of Prentiss and Tishomingo Counties at 662-728-2450.

What's Topping the List of New Year's Resolutions for Cub Scouts in Luka?

Winning the 2011 Pinewood Derby, of course. On Sunday, January 23rd, at 1:30 p.m. The Cub Scouts of Pack 26 will converge on the Tishomingo County Fairgrounds to contest this eagerly anticipated annual event. The grueling Pack Derby will pit Scouts from every Den in a double elimination shoot-out for a chance to represent our fair city in the District Derby, held the following month.

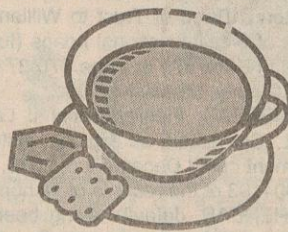

The first Pinewood Derby was held in Manhattan Beach, California, in 1953, and has been an exciting part of Cub Scouting ever since. Cub Scouts, with the help of their parents, build their own cars from blocks of pine, four plastic wheels, and four axles. Each Pinewood Derby car must conform to regulations for length, height, width, materials, and weight. But, creativity abounds as each car design and paint scheme are creative and unique. Through this time of discovery, working, and competing together, Cub Scouts learn about: sportsmanship and good citizenship, personal achievement, and family understanding. However, most of the Cub Scouts would tell you it's just about the fun.

Created in 1916 by Lord Robert Baden-Powell, the emphasis of Cub Scouting is to learn and have fun at the same time. In Cub Scouting, boys in 1st through 5th grade learn ideals like honesty, courage, and respect. If you would like to learn more about the values of Cub Scouting, contact Cubmaster Jon Riley at 662.423.6709. You can also follow the pack on Twitter and Facebook!

Catalogs

How many catalogs did you receive this holiday season? Catalogs arrived daily at our house from Thanksgiving to December 31. I tossed them into a basket to look at later. Later never came. It was amazing how they kept flying in. Soon I had to toss some to make more room for new ones coming in the mail every day. As I threw 98% of them in the trash can, I decided to tally them to see how many I had received to date. I did this the day I took my real Christmas tree - which had almost bare branches and was leaning precariously - down on December 31, 2010.

I had two yellow lined pages filled with names of catalogs. Where did these people get my name and address. Why do they feel this is necessary? Most I never looked at even once. Many are far above my economic standing in life. Others must not know that Mississippi is in a warmer climate zone. Isn't this policy of flooding us with catalogs just as bad as those people who called our telephones before we could block them? I think it is a waste of our natural resources. The advertising firms are salivating with all this excess and their profits must soar in November and December. I bet they laugh all the way to the bank and never think of a "green Earth."

The money spent on catalogs could be used to lower the prices so more people could afford their products advertised. The dumpsters would not be brimming over with unnecessary waste.

Cody Melton, an 8th grader at Iuka Middle School, received an honorable mention in the annual Christmas ornament contest held by the Governor and his wife in Jackson. Students in Mrs. Dawn Robinson's classes were encouraged to submit a drawing representing Northeast Mississippi. The chosen drawing was made into an ornament and placed on the Governor's Christmas Tree. Since Cody's picture received honorable mention, he will travel to Jackson later this month to meet the Governor and his wife. We are very proud of Cody's accomplishment.

Managing Horse Pastures To Prevent Soil Erosion

How many of you have driven down a road and seen a small pasture with bare ground mixed with small patches of tall grass and weeds, plenty of mud during wet weather, and gullies forming? I'm sure most of you have, and can guess what kind of livestock is being pastured there, a horse of course. If you are a horse owner you know how destructive a horse can be on a pasture's sod. Here are a few facts and tips to help you maintain a healthy horse pasture while preventing soil erosion.

The reason horses are so destructive on a pasture's sod is due to their grazing habits and the way they eat grass. A horse is inclined to graze in the same place every day much worse than other livestock. After the grass gets very short in that area, the horse has the tendency to pull the remaining grass up by the roots permanently destroying the sod which starts the soil erosion process.

The first thing to do is to soil test the pasture and then lime and fertilize accordingly to maintain a healthy sod and maximize forage production. Weeds should be controlled to prevent competition for the soil nutrients. If possible, divide larger pastures into smaller pastures and practice controlled grazing. Having smaller pastures will cause more uniform grazing within the pasture and allow for a period of rest and recovery for the grass so stand losses will be minimized. Controlled grazing means letting the horses graze for a period of time and then removing them from the pasture to a sacrifice area (dry lot) or a stable preventing the animals from trampling and wasting usable forage.

The biggest factor in maintaining a healthy horse and pasture is the pasture carrying capacity. The average carrying capacity for this area is two to three acres for a mature horse. With a properly maintained pasture the carrying capacity can be as low as one to one and a half acre for a mature animal.

A sacrifice area is a small area set aside and used to keep horses if using controlled grazing or as an exercise area for stabled horses. These areas should be only a temporary area and used in conjunction with pastures or stables. They need to be located well away from any streams or ditches and have a vegetative barrier to catch any runoff from them. The area should be covered in some sort of material to prevent mud and erosion from occurring. If these areas are used continuously (no other pasture or stables) for a period more than 45 days, they could be considered a continuous animal feeding operation (CAFO) or if they pose any threat to nearby streams or surface water, it may have to be permitted by the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) and a manure management plan be implemented.

CONSERVATION CORNER

Hypothermia by James L. Cummins

While for the most part we live in a warm state, Mississippi can get very cold, especially when considering our high humidity. For example, a few years ago a friend came to visit from Colorado and wanted to go for a jog early one January morning. I told him it was cold - about 35 degrees Fahrenheit - and he reminded he was from Colorado and could handle it. When he returned, he said if felt much colder than what he was familiar with out West.

When we are in a cold environment, our bodies can lose heat faster than it can generate it. The body will adjust by constricting blood vessels at the surface of the skin, shutting down perspiration and increasing muscular activity, which we call shivering. This is the beginning of hypothermia. Hypothermia is one of the leading causes of death among outdoorsmen. Windchill can also greatly reduce the time it takes for hypothermia to set in.

Some symptoms of hypothermia (defined as body temperature of less than 95 degrees Fahrenheit) may also include slurred speech, incoherence, numbness and impaired gait. Shivering is valuable clue, but hypothermic individuals whose body temperature is lower than 90 degrees Fahrenheit may not shiver or even feel cold. The individual may appear corpse-like due to the pale color of his or her skin, lack of spontaneous motion and a faint pulse.

Odds are, medical attention is needed, but until that can be accomplished, you need to begin gradually rewarming the affected person. First, remove all wet clothing and place the victim in dry blankets in a warm environment. Offer warm, nonalcoholic fluids. Movement involving the victim must be limited and done gently. The goal should be to get the victim to a hospital as soon as possible, for the potential complications are many and some can even be fatal.

To help prevent hypothermia from happening to you, wear suitable clothing and protect your exposed areas. Mittens are preferred over gloves. Wear multiple layers of loose clothing. Wearing two pairs of socks - cotton next to skin, wool on top will help protect your feet. Wear a scarf or head covering.

Remember that certain persons are very susceptible - the elderly, those with circulatory problems (peripheral vascular disease, diabetes, peripheral neuropathy, Raynaud's syndrome) and those on certain medications such as beta-blockers (for hypertension and/or heart problems). You certainly want to stay on your medication, but be aware that it may put you at increased risk for cold injury should you have prolonged exposure to the cold. James L. Cummins is executive director of Wildlife Mississippi, a non-profit, conservation organization founded to conserve, restore and enhance fish, wildlife and plant resources throughout Mississippi. Their website is www.wildlifemiss.org.

Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum

As we enter the later part of deer season and enter February, I am always mindful of the late-winter blues creeping up on me. So, I try to stay active. And that includes exploring things I have put off.

Near one of the busiest intersections in Jackson, Mississippi, you can park your vehicle, walk across a rustic bridge, and enter a bygone era. At the Mississippi Agriculture & Forestry Museum, or Museum for short, you will discover Mississippi's proud agricultural legacy as you step back in history. What a great way to kill those late-winter blues!

To the casual visitor, this place may seem like a peculiar attraction, but not when one considers the role that Mississippi's two most significant industries have played in the history and economy of the state. The Museum features over 40,000 square feet of exhibition space, displaying many artifacts, machinery and documents that pay tribute to farmers and lumbermen throughout Mississippi's history. It even includes a Model T Ford that was donated by my father-in-law, the late Arch Dalrymple III of Amory. The museum gift shop serves a limited menu of refreshments and offers a variety of unique and educational souvenirs.

As you take a journey through time, it will be revealed how agriculture and forestry molded the history and heritage of the state and the Southeast. You will be able to explore the various sections of the Museum such as the Ethnic Heritage Center, the Fitzgerald Collection, the Fortenberry-Parkman Farmstead, the Heritage Exhibit Center, the National Agricultural Aviation Museum and the Forestry Auditorium.

In the section of Small Town, Mississippi, you will not only be able to witness the charm and hospitality of rural life but you can visit the General Store, which offers visitors a shopping experience like nowhere else. One can buy cold Coca Colas, Moon Pies, old fashion candy sticks, toys and souvenirs, as well as see many artifacts reflecting what one might have seen in a 1930s General Store. The store specializes in Mississippi Gift Baskets, offering food products and crafts.

Your visit will be even more rewarding during any of the festivals that are scheduled throughout the year. The Agriculture & Forestry Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive, Jackson, Mississippi. They are open Monday through Saturday from 9 AM - 5 PM. Admission is $5.00 for adults, $4.00 for seniors, $3.00 for ages 5 to 18 and $1.00 for ages 3 to 4. For more information, call (601) 432-4500. To find out about events, call (601) 432-4501.

Whom Should We Fear?

Fear can be a paralyzing thing! Everyone of us has had a fear of something at some time in our lives.

What is bad is the fact that some people live in constant fear. People are afraid of what others think about them; they are afraid that poor health will thwart their plans; they fear that their jobs will fade away and they will have to live in poverty. Some people fear that thieves will break into their houses and rob them and perhaps injure or kill them. Although some fears may have some foundation, Scripture puts a different light on fear and teaches us not to fear men.

Luke 12:4-5 says, "And I say unto you My friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will forewarn you Whom ye shall fear: Fear Him, which after He hath killed the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will forewarn you Whom ye shall fear: Fear Him, which after He hath killed the body, and after that have no more that they can do." It seems to me that most people have little thought about the truths taught in these verses, at least they do not show it if they do. First, we notice that Jesus is warning men from the standpoint of a friend who warns those for whom he cares. It is always the desire of Christ that men come to Him for salvation, as well as for whatever else they need. He is willing to be our best friend if we will allow Him to do so. True friends warn of impending danger, as Jesus does here. He tells us that we need not fear men, because they can do no more than take our natural lives. Death of the physical body may seem to some people like the worst thing that could possibly ever happen, but Jesus says that it is not.

Jesus warns men to fear God, Who has the power to kill, as well as the power to cast into hell. By the way, hell is not the grave, as some religionists teach, for this verse would then be teaching us to fear the undertaker! Hell is more than natural death; it is a place of eternal punishment, with its final form being called the lake of fire. Our Lord is teaching men to fear God, as Ecclesiastes 12:13 teaches, and no one else, because God has the power of death and eternal punishment for those who never receive Christ in salvation! May I ask: do you fear God enough to cry to Him for salvation from your sins?
