TCHS players stream onto the field to join the Mantachie team in praying for Mantachie's Josh Ingram, who was being moved to the ambulance. photos P. McRae

Opener Ends in Bittersweet 28-6 Victory for Braves

by Pamela McRae

The Tishomingo County Braves won their first game of the season last Friday night, but it ended early when a Mantachie player was knocked unconscious during the fourth quarter.

Mantachie's Josh Ingram collided head-on with one of his teammates as they attempted to tackle TC running back Tayvious Duckett around the 30 yard line near the home side stands.

Ingram was lying still on his stomach after the play was over, and players, then coaches and medical personnel went to check him out. After the examination, Dr. Chris Moss, who was on the TC sidelines and examined Ingram, said that the player was very weak and couldn't remember what had happened. He could move, but Moss and the trainer recommended he be moved on a back board into the waiting ambulance. He was later airlifted out for treatment.

"You have to take every precaution in a case like this,"

said Moss. "Sometimes you try to get them to sit up and shake it off, but we thought this was best. Better safe than sorry."

Ingram was treated and released Saturday morning with a concussion and a "stinger," and he won't be playing sports for 4-8 weeks, according to TCHS Athletic Director Malcolm Brown early Saturday.

Fans in the stands watched silently as an ambulance came on the field to transport the player. Then they watched as both teams, coaches, referees, cheerleaders and dancers prayed in a group for Ingram.

With Mantachie players actually in tears with fear for the health of their teammate, who at the time was not noticeably moving much, the game was called.

It wasn't clear at what point in the fourth quarter the game was called, because the game clock was inoperable much of the second half.

Seven Qualify for Water Board Election

By Pamela McRae

Seven men have qualified to run for the Tishomingo County Water Board election September 6th.

According to the Tishomingo County Election Commission, the men have met the requirements to run for the five-person board that will run the water system that serves 915 customers in the Eastport, Mill Creek and Pickwick Lake area of Tishomingo County.

Qualified candidates are: Donnie Cain, Wayne Underwood, Joshua Clingan, Shelby Cliff Daniel, Jim Hughes, Jeff Butler, and Bobby Riley.

In accordance with House Bill 1782, the Board of Commissioners for the Tishomingo County Water District will be elected September 6th by the meter holders of the District. The election will be held at the District office, 117 Eastport Street from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The paper ballot election will be an "at-large" election on Tuesday, September 6th, and the top five candidates receiving the highest number of votes will be elected for five-year terms. Winners will take office the first Monday of October following the September election. The election will be conducted by the Tishomingo County Election Commissioners, and votes will be counted and results of the election will be posted on the door of the District office.

Requirements for candidates were that they be a resident of the area served by the system, and be able to get a $50,000 fiduciary bond to be approved by the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, to be filed with the Clerk.

After years of controversy about repairs and quality of service on the aging system that serves 915 customers in the Mill Creek, Eastport, Oldham and Snowdown area, the 2016 state legislature approved local and private legislation that would allow the District to run more like a rural water association, with commissioners elected by the members. The board was previously appointed by the County Board of Supervisors, so when the customers who felt like they were not getting sufficient response from their board members appealed to the County Board, a plan was made to get the county out of the loop and put the responsibility on an elected board.

Caldwell, Sims Win in TCEPA Runoff

In the runoff election last Saturday for two Tishomingo County Electric Power Association Board of Directors positions, a challenger won in the Fifth District race, and an incumbent kept his At-Large position.

In the Fifth District, Darrin Caldwell won 53 percent of the votes over incumbent Kenneth "Chubby" Clingan.

In the At-Large runoff, incumbent Johnny Sims kept his seat with just 9 more votes than challenger Donald Berryman.

Civil Court Records Now Accessible Online

by Pamela McRae

Nearly all Tishomingo County civil court records are now searchable online, announced Chancery Clerk Peyton Cummings Tuesday.

In a world where nearly every bit of information is just a few keystrokes and a Google search away, Tishomingo County records have been out of reach, for the most part, unless you went to the courthouse. Since they are public records, all have always been available, but you had to physically go to the courthouse to get a copy or look through books of deeds, books of minutes of meetings, or court case reports.

The records are now available at www.crmpublic.com and they include nearly all civil court actions including land records, deeds, and chancery cases like divorces, custody cases, bankruptcies, powers of attorney and more, since 1998.

Criminal court proceedings circuit or justice courts, as well as youth court proceedings are still not online, those offices confirmed.

Three Rivers Planning &

Development District in conjunction with Mississippi State University's National Strategic Planning & Analysis Research Center (NSPARC) launched the County Records Management System (CRMS) online Tuesday for the Chancery Court of Tishomingo County, Mississippi.

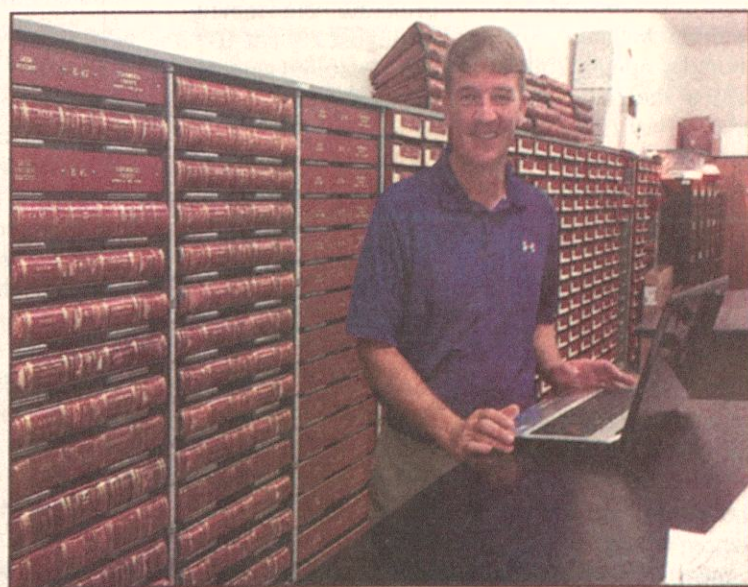

"We've been working with Three Rivers on CRMS for several years and cannot thank them enough for all the hard work and resources they have dedicated to this project," said Tishomingo County Chancery Clerk Peyton Cummings. "We have had good success with converting the records. Three Rivers and NSPARC have done a really good job for us. We're excited to now have the records online for the general public. We know that all of our users will find this very convenient."

All the records that have come through the Chancery Clerk's office since January 2008 have been scanned in and digitized as they occurred, and they have made some progress digitizing records prior to that, said Cummings. Back when they started, having a service come in and scan all the old records was cost prohibitive, explained Cummings. But such services have become less expensive in recent years, and the chancery clerk's office is in a $20,000 contract that, when complete, will place on line all records, back to 1974, by spring of 2017.

Other counties have shared the cost of the system with Tishomingo County for the online efforts.

CRMS is the computerized document filing system that the chancery clerks use to electronically file all land and court records that come into the county. It handles all land records such as deeds, deeds of trust, power of attorneys, etc., as well as court cases such as estates, probates and divorces on the chancery side. These records are uploaded into the system and indexed so they can be searched in the record rooms at the county courthouse. This system also allows the records to be backed up by the county to an additional server in case of hardware failure and is also replicated to Three Rivers Data Center in Tupelo in case of a disaster. CRMS leverages open source technologies that allows for conversion, support, training and maintenance at a fraction of the cost of applications built on proprietary technologies. Three Rivers and MSU have both made substantial investments in the CRMS project.

Criminal (neither justice nor circuit) court proceedings, youth court and other sealed court cases will not be available through the public access portal.

The general public can always come to the courthouse and get a copy of their record; however, for some this will be convenient and cheaper than driving to the courthouse. You will also notice other counties who Tishomingo County partnered with to reduce the cost for this service. The CRMS public access portal is available online at crmpublic.com.

Here's the Dirt...

Plan Now for Pots of Color through Fall

August heat...wow! Let's talk about Fall when it's cooler. Now is a great time to think about plants and pots for fall decorating. Whether you are planning seasonal containers or holiday decorative containers there are some basic guidelines to follow. For the best development you should build from the bottom to top of the container; the soil, the plants or decorative additions. Following those steps look at the location and the maintenance.

Does this sound like a lot? Well, it can be simpler if taken in logical steps. First, do you want or need to do this type of gardening? It's good to have your heart in the activity. If so, decide the purpose, color scheme, and placement. These general thoughts will get you started and set your mind in a good direction. Then we can cover step by step basics.

Tom Patterson

Should you consider the container or the plants first? Both require color, shape, size, durability, and compatibility consideration. The theme will bring a lot of this together so choose to create an arrangement that will 'zing'. If considering a Halloween or Thanksgiving planting, think about a pumpkin hollowed out. Make the opening large and deep enough to hold a plastic container for the plants. This can vary based on pumpkin size and number of plants. A suggested grouping would be kale red (2), kale white

(1), pansies (7) and Cape daisy (4). Adjusting the group to suit your personal likes is fine because it is your container. Using a plastic pot will allow the pumpkin to last longer. Remember to take the pot from the pumpkin when watering and allow it to drain.

A couple of thoughts to consider about the container are to include depth allowing room for the roots as well as the plants to grow. Also coordinate the color outside with the plants inside which can be single or mixed color shades. The nursery pots can be used inside the larger container which will save on potting soil and fertilizer. Staggering the height can be accomplished with the actual varying growth heights of each plant or using mulmultiple sized containers in a grouping. One recipe for potting soil is two parts potting material and 1 part compost. If you fertilize use a time-release fertilizer.

Garden centers and nurseries will soon be stocking a multitude of cool weather and fall flowers. This can serve as stimulation to your senses in forming arrangements. Select from varieties of potatoes, vines, pansies or violets, marigolds, ferns, grasses, chrysanthemums, kale or cabbage, and begonias. Remember that house plants can move outside as the weather cools, like crotons and kalanchoes. Varieties are endless in both live and dried material.

Once your planting is designed and placed, don't forget to take care of its needs. It is always beneficial to group by similar needs such as water, sunlight, and fertilizer so you don't have to fuss as much. As the plants grow their needs will increase so you should consider self-watering pots for low care. Watch daily for problems that are specific to container gardening.

Enjoy your fall task and don't forget a bale of hay can be a decoration.

Plan to Tour the Demonstration Garden at the Extension Service

The public is invited to tour the Master Gardeners Demonstration Garden which is located in front of the Mississippi State Extension Service in Iuka. Over the last several years, the gardens have been planned, constructed, planted, labeled and tended by local Master Gardeners. During the months of September and October, groups can schedule special tours of the demonstration garden where the Master Gardeners will be on hand to highlight the different features of the six gardening beds and composting area. Master Gardeners is a Mississippi State University program that educates volunteers in science-based gardening and landscape practices and helps them effectively extend research based information to the public as Master Gardeners. The Master Gardeners primary role is that of "educator" and the demonstration garden is one example of how they are committed to planting seeds of knowledge about gardening in Tishomingo County. For more information or to schedule a guided tour for your school gardening in Tishomingo County. Shoals Praise and Worship Choir to Visit Iuka Baptist Church

The Shoals Praise and Worship Choir will be singing Sunday, August 28th, at Iuka Baptist Church. The service will begin at 6:30 PM with a repertoire spanning many different musical genres from Southern Gospel to Black Gospel, from Traditional and Inspirational to Contemporary and Worship... But no matter what style of music we sing, our music is not our message, but only the language through which we convey our true message: the passion of Jesus Christ for a lost and lonely world.

The Shoals Praise and Worship Choir (SPWC) is a unique group of believers whom God has brought together to share His message of grace through music. We all share two common bonds: faith in Jesus Christ as our Savior and love for music as an expression of that faith. We are a non-profit organization, and our proceeds support local area charities.

Over the years SPWC has recorded several albums, and has shared the stage with many Gospel, Southern Gospel and Contemporary Christian artists, such as Sandy Patti, Charles Billingsley, Mike Speck and Ivan Parker.

God continues to bless SPWC, and we continue to be amazed and humbled.

Missing Odle Davis, the Man, the Myth, the Legend

I saw the picture of Donnie Williams and the big snake, actually I killed it on Eastport road, but was in a hurry to get to a meeting with Mark Segars, so I left it there with plans to come back later.

I'm not sure where Odle learned so much, I have always suspected it was when he was down in Louisiana. He said that was a strange place with a lot of strange people, especially some of the women.

My first knowledge of him was from a "letter to the editor" he had written some 20 years ago to this paper. He was replying to several people that were concerned about him and his family living without electricity. He went into great detail about why he didn't need it, and that they were very happy with just a piano to entertain them. He went on to tell the readers that he was enjoying life, but would be glad to lend a hand if anyone out there was in need. He was living "off the grid" and loving it.

I sure miss Odle Davis, "the man, the myth, the legend".

Donnie was curious about how I killed it, since there was only a wound on its tail. I had hoped this would never come out, but now it has and I need to explain. I killed that snake with a unique "tail twist" that Odle Davis taught me. It leaves only a small mark near the tail of the snake. I haven't had many opportunities to use it and this was my biggest attempt. The technique was shared with me in an almost ceremonial way, and I have taken it to be a closely guarded and well kept secret, I have never revealed it, and I cannot now. I owe Mr. Williams the courtesy of an explanation and will do so at a

Southern Living is the Best

by Brenda Burcham

Last week I was loaned a copy of Rick Bragg's latest book My Southern Journey. Many of the chapters in the book are articles published previously in the monthly magazine Southern Living. I receive Southern Living and know that this month you must stand on your head to read the article. I feel about my birth-place about like Rick does his: It is the best place on earth. I also have a few friends and neighbor who are "a half bubble off plumb."

I lived in Tishomingo County for the first 18 years of my life then left to find my fortune in the frozen tundra of the North, only returning to make Tish County home again in 2007. There are lots of differences between living "up North" and here.

Up North I seldom knew my neighbors except to wave when leaving each morning for work, or ask, "How are you?" when we were outside shoveling snow in our respective driveways. My neighbors there did not visit, neither did our family. When my girls were preschool age they called a neighbor about 80 who walked outside every day

"Our little old man."

They made it a daily must to talk to him. Both loved these little visits.

Now that I am retired and back here "at home," I have daily visits from my neighbors. I love them all and hope they feel the same. We share cakes, soup, cookies, fruit and gossip about everything and everybody. If we do not see each other out we call or knock on doors to make sure they are still here. We don't always get the story right but if you hear the same story at least three times, there is bound to be some truth in it.

This summer has shown that Mississippi people are amazingly generous. I planted one cherry tomato plant and one Jalapeño pepper in large pots on my back patio.

But family and friends have provided corn, peas, cantaloupes, watermelons, green beans, and tomatoes of all sizes and shapes. When the harvest is too big for one person we divide up the bounty. We are blessed. One neighbor had so many melons one week that she threatened to start her own Farmer's Market.

We also share books - eventually they are returned to the original lender. This summer I did not read a lot of books. The September Bookclub selection is War & Peace. All 1369 pages of it. That book was written long before television and other electronic venues. I put it aside and read another book or two.

Also we share catalogs. Most of the ones I get have items for sale that are far beyond my retirement income. Never would I pay $350 for a wastebasket that required $14 for shipping. Even the $14 is more than I want to spend for a container to hold waste. Where would I wear a dress that sells for $500?

Even our time is shared. One neighbor picks up the mail from mailboxes and distributes it to each front door. That person will be around for a few days water plants and so on. front porches for other.

Family members and neighbors also drive to doctor visits. Some just shop for us.

Never in my entire life have I had so many people provide so much of themselves.

A blessing that I am thankful for.

Braves Open Season with Victory Over Mantachie

Braves football kicked the season Friday with victory against Mantachie with a final score of 26 to 8. Near the end of the game, a player from Mantachie was injured, and the stadium watched the two football teams as well as cheerleaders and dancers came together on the field to pray for Mantachie football player. After the game, the player was airlifted from TC practice field. He was released Saturday and is recovering from a concussion for the next four to eight weeks.

The second game of the season will be at Alcorn Central Friday night; kickoff will be at 7 pm as usual. The spirit for Friday is tacky tourist day.

Letter To The Editor

Sportsmanship is Alive

Last Friday night, I attended the Tishomingo County vs. Mantachie football game. It was an extremely hard fought game. Midway through the 4th quarter, a Mantachie player was hit and knocked unconscious. The trainers and paramedics attended to him for an extended period of time. All players from both teams were kneeling on their respective sidelines. A short time later the Mantachie players and cheerleaders formed a circle group to pray for their fallen teammate. It was at that time that all the TC football players, cheerleaders and dance team ran across the field to pray with them. This shows that sportsmanship is alive. Thanks to our players, cheerleaders and dance team for the sportsmanship you exhibited. You made our school and community proud. "GO BRAVES"

Guild Starts Quilt Block Trail in Tishomingo County

The Needle Chasers Guild is developing a quilt block trail for Tishomingo County, Mississippi. Simply put a quilt block trail is a series of boards painted with quilt blocks placed on barns, businesses, and public buildings throughout the county. Adams County, Ohio was the scene of the first quilt block trail, and one of the founders, Donna Sue Graves, placed a quilt block on the family barn to honor her mother, Maxine, who was a well-known quilter. Since that time organizers have established quilt block trails in forty-three states, and they have become a source of eco-tourism as visitors view the quilt blocks and spend time and money in the various counties.

Twelve counties in Mississippi have quilt block trails. In northeast Mississippi these include Union, Oktibbeha, Clay, and Lowndes counties. The Quilt Trail Committee of the Needle Chasers Guild has been busy readying a series of blocks to be hung on various structures in the County. In order to be included on the trail an individual needs to fill out an application, choose a block they would like to have displayed and pay $20.00 to the Guild. The block can be a traditional quilt block, or it can be taken from an heirloom quilt that is part of your family history. Once the block is hung it will appear on a quilt block trail map being developed by the Guild. Corporate sponsorships are available for $100.00, and sponsors will appear on the brochure/map for the trail.

The Guild members are donating their labor in the drawing and painting of the blocks. While the labor is donated the costs for the materials for the various sized blocks are as follows: 2' x 2'--$35.00, 4' x 4'--$70.00, and 8' x 8'--$280.00. The Guild members are currently working on nine trail blocks which will be on display soon at the Harvest of Quilts 2016 quilt show, and welcome individuals, businesses, or groups to apply to join the trail. Members will draw and paint the block for you or will help you do your own. For more information contact Chairman, Vickie Shackelford at 901-335-8057 or co-chair, Cherrell Norton at 662-821-6993 or check out our facebook page at Tishomingo County Quilt Trail.

The first block will be unveiled by the Guild at Lambert's Building Supply at 11:00 on Tuesday, September 6th at 11:00 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

Quilts In Windows

The Needle Chasers Guild is getting ready for its biennial Harvest of Quilts Show on September 16th and 17th, 2016. As was the custom in 2014 we are requesting that merchants who would like to display quilts in their businesses do so by the Labor Day weekend. Choose a quilt that is a family heirloom, or if you don't have a quilt and would like to display one members of the Guild will provide one for you. Please contact either Chairperson, Poly Burkeen at 901-413-3898 or co-chair, Adrienne Phillips at 662-279-2418.
