Authorities investigating local fentanyl-related death

by Pamela McRae

Another death attributed to fentanyl is under investigation after a suspected drug overdose death happened last week in Iuka.

According to Iuka Police Chief Randy Stringer, officers responded to a 5 a.m. 911 call November 12th at 1240 Ash Street. The 911 call was for a suspected drug overdose and an unresponsive white male found at the scene was pronounced dead by the coroner soon after.

In the resulting investigation, a juvenile suspect was taken into custody and suspected fentanyl was found at the location. The juvenile remains in custody, said Stringer on Friday afternoon.

Caleb Wayne Michael, 20, of Corinth, Mississippi was pronounced dead by the coroner. The Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics has made additional arrests as a result of the investigation. The source of the suspected fentanyl was arrested, said Stringer, but the investigation continues.

Stringer says this is the 7th or 8th fentanyl death in the area this year.

New campsite - One of the newly renovated campsites overlooks the scenic Haynes Lake at Tishomingo State Park. New electrical and sewer hookups, tables and grills and the leveled-off pads add to the already peaceful experience of camping at north Mississippi's most popular state park.

Tishomingo State Park RV campground completed

A $1.2 million project at Tishomingo State Park has been completed, including 25 newly improved RV campground sites, a refurbished road, and improvements to the sewer treatment system.

Originally the camper pads at the furthest end of the recreational vehicle (RV) campground had 30-foot-long pads, and much of the dirt around the pads had eroded away to the point of being treacherous. The new pads are 12 feet wide by 45 feet long and the surrounding areas have been filled for completely level campsites that are planted with sod, explained engineer Kirby McRae, of Dean McRae Engineering, who designed the improvements and managed the project for the

The project had its beginnings during the 2019 Mississippi legislative session, when now-retired state Senator J.P. Wilemon, of Belmont, got $500,000 in grants approved. The money was for general improvements, and the state decided to use the money for one of the Park's most used features - the RV campground, said McRae.

O'Claire's Boutique wins several categories in contest

The votes are counted, and the Tishomingo County News is proud to present our Best of Tishomingo County Readers' Choice awards over the next two weeks.

One of the first awards goes to a business that has worked hard to achieve its current success and is a huge favorite with local shoppers, as evidenced by the four awards it earned in this first-ever readers' choice contest. O'Claire's Boutique won Best Boutique, Best Retail Store, Best Apparel and Accessories and Best Women's Clothing based on the more than 500 ballots completed.

LeAnne Anglin, who owns the boutique with her husband Brian, was floored to have received so much support from local shoppers, but her sales clerk Madison Pruitt was not.

City of Iuka Christmas events next week

The City of Iuka holds its tree lighting and its parade next week to kick off the Christmas season.

Tree lighting Tuesday

Tuesday evening, November 29th, Iuka will hold their second annual tree lighting in Jaybird Park where crews from the city and Pine Mountain Tree Farm planted a live Arizona Blue Ice Christmas tree this week.

The city will spend the next week decorating the tree and the official lighting will happen during the 6:30 ceremony. Anna Reese Henderson, an Iuka Middle School 5th grader, will light the tree following an invocation by Mack Wilemon.

After the tree lighting there will be an outdoor movie (Jim Carrey's The Grinch) shown in front of O'Claire's, along with food trucks and shopping at the businesses that choose to stay open late.

Anna Reese, 12, is the youngest daughter of Daniel and Melissa Henderson. As a heart transplant recipient, she is delighted to be enjoying life outside the hospital this year. Liza and Audrey are her older sisters, and they like playing Monopoly or making crafts together. Her favorite thing about Christmas, besides the gifts, is the music—all the Christmas carols, the singing Christmas tree at First Baptist Church in Corinth, and the Christmas songs on the radio.

Mack Wilemon is a member of Iuka Baptist Church, husband to Nelda Wilemon and the Tishomingo County Coroner. In his years with Cutshall Funeral Home, Mack has become like part of the family to many families in Tishomingo County. He and Nelda have a daughter, Lydia, who is married to Collin Mills. They live in Oxford.

Parade Friday night

Friday night, the Iuka Christmas Parade will begin at 6:30 p.m.

This year's Grand Marshal for the Iuka Christmas Parade is Mrs. Wanda Evans. Wanda moved to Iuka in 1970 with her husband, Charles, and sons, Chris and John. She served as a 4th grade teacher and her husband served as principal of Iuka Elementary School until their retirement in 2000.

During those years she served in numerous civic and community groups.

After retirement, Wanda was involved in volunteer work including the Iuka Food Pantry and the Iuka Baptist Church Clothes Closet. Wanda is a member of Iuka Baptist Church and loves her church family.

Anna Reese and mom Melissa Henderson - Anna Reese will light the Iuka Christmas Tree Tuesday night.

Wanda Evans will be the Iuka Christmas Parade Grand Marshal for 2022.

Wanda is the mother of the late Christian (Chris) Evans and of John Evans, and his wife Jennie of Iuka. Of all her roles, being "Nene" to Jake, Annie, and Luke Evans is now her favorite role. Mrs. Evans is so thankful to the town of Iuka to be named this year's Grand Marshal and wishes everyone a Merry Christmas!

Sandra Foster's ornament to represent Iuka in Governor's Mansion

by Pamela McRae

The City of Iuka will send a colorful clay ornament designed and made by Sandra Foster to represent Iuka on the Christmas tree in the Governor's mansion in Jackson.

Foster's ornament was submitted as part of the Hometown Christmas competition held by the City, in cooperation with the Tishomingo Arts Council. The Mississippi Municipal League heads up the project to collect ornaments from all over the state.

"Iuka is a small town with a big heart," said Sandra of the inspiration for the shape of her clay ornament. She has recently started working with clay, a long-time dream of hers.

"Our love for our fellow citizens is shown in the kinds deeds we do, especially as our town rallied together after the 2021 tornado to help each other and restore our historic Oak Grove Cemetery," she said.

"Our Native American heritage is honored with our town and county name. We are blessed with two beautiful state parks, acres of tall pines and rolling hills. People are drawn to us because of the beauty of our surroundings and the Tennessee River that borders us. I feel truly blessed to live here."

"We are so pleased to have this beautiful ornament to represent our town," said Alderman Emily Bell, who helped organize the contest. "We have a growing artistic tradition in our county, and it's great that we have a new artist exploring her creativity to our benefit!"

Thanksgiving varmints are things memories are made of!

by Betty Compton

Today I am getting off a plane on the west coast, eager to spend Thanksgiving with my daughter's family. Although I visit often, it's been years since the whole family has been together.

We are in an alpine area, where snowcapped peaks rise above the evergreens. Everyone's wearing matching plaids for a family picture. At least one image will be on a Christmas card this year.

There are scrumptious smells coming from the kitchen. While we enjoy our holiday feast, furry bandits are busy raiding the garbage cans. All the pretty decorations and snacks are in shreds. There is a reason the sign says, DO NOT FEED THE WILDLIFE. Aggravated with chasing them away, my daughter said, "This place is full of varmints."

I thought, it's not the first holiday we had unwelcomed guests. This garbage just adds a little charm to the photo.

My life began in Iuka, Mississippi. On our front porch, I heard quite a few stories and they usually began with, "when I was a little girl..."

In 1950, the family of Paul Osborn gathered for Thanksgiving at Hubbard Salem. Aunt Annie was coming. She was more than a sister to Paul. Their mother had died of typhoid fever when he was just 18 months old. Annie took care of her brothers and sisters until they were grown. She did not marry until she was in her thirties.

All the kids were excited. They remembered egg custards, candied sweet potatoes, and butter rolls with nutmeg. She was a good cook. Aunt Eunice made the dressing that year because Annie was bringing something special.

A big table was set in the living room for adults; the children's table was in the kitchen. Most of the older kids stood in the yard and put their food on the back porch.

The boys cleaned and dressed three fat hens the day before. They had fried chicken, chicken and dumplings, chicken and dressing, and giblet gravy with chicken. Nothing was wasted. Aunt Eunice and the girls had been cooking for a week. They had all kinds of vegetables, jams, and pickles they had canned in the summer.

When Annie got there, her family brought in a Hickory Nut Cake, stacks of fried pies, and a big oval pot with a lid on it. At their house, company always got the first pick of the food, then adults. Nobody ever left the table hungry, but if the food was gone, the kids ate biscuits with sorghum molasses. They would not have molasses today.

You could have heard a pin drop when the lid was lifted off of that pot. There was a naked, skinned animal. Four legs and a tail were sprawled out in a bed of sweet potatoes. Its head had beady eyes and sharp teeth. An apple was holding the mouth open. It was a possum!!!

Nobody wanted anything to do with a possum. That animal was responsible for most of the chickens they lost. The kids sure did not want to eat it, but they knew better than refusing food. Each child took a sweet potato. They gently moved it from the platter to their plate. Trying not to touch the possum.

As soon as they cleaned their plates, all the kids excused themselves. They said their cousins were walking to the Anna falls, and they did not want to be late. They really just needed to leave, before they were offered seconds.

We had Thanksgiving Dinner at my mother's table for over sixty years. Rachel and James Welch raised their family of six in a three-bedroom ranch house with one bathroom and a single carport. In the sixties, that was considered pretty good living. Especially if you moved to town from a farm.

They added onto the house, but our family outgrew it. By the time great-grandkids came along our gathering grew to seventy guests. Picnic tables and campfires were outside with people sitting in lawn chairs. If you did not have a seat, you stood and put your food on the car hoods.

On this day, we put up Mom's Christmas tree. Some of the boys took it from the attic and set it in front of the fireplace. While everyone was getting the decorations out. A bee was buzzing around the light fixture. When they got back from hunting a fly swat, there were four bees. By the time they killed those, a swarm of bees was coming from the Christmas tree box. Two brave

I opened the door for it to go out. Casey got the broom. She was going to swish it toward the door. When the broom reached the squirrel, it ran down the broom, over her shoulder, down her back. That... chainsaw with fur... cleared the room. Everybody wenttotally berserk!! Casey did some kind of powwow dance.GET IT OFF!!!! GET IT OFF!!!!We were in the air, on the floor, and out the door.

Large family gatherings are a thing of the past for us. We have so many fond memories of those that sat at our Thanksgiving table. It is also time to make new memories with the ones that are here today. We are so thankful for the love we share. Even these varmints gave us some cherished memories!

campground area had long been in poor shape, and it has been completely resurfaced with asphalt. There are three fully accessible handicapped campsites, as well, with even larger pads. Each campsite has new picnic tables, grills, and electrical hookups with 50-, 30- and 20-amp connections to accommodate any size camper. Sewer hookups at each site mean campers don't have to use the dump station at the Park, explained McRae.

In addition to the campsites, the old sewer treatment plant was replaced with a new advanced treatment facility.

The new campsites are already being used, with great reviews by recent campers who appreciate their easy access and hook-up facilities. For information about reserving the campsites, call Tishomingo State Park at 438-6914.

She was of the Methodist faith, was a member of Rutledge-Salem United Methodist Church, and found peace in reading her Bible every day. For most of her life, she was a seamstress. She enjoyed it so much that she not only worked as a seamstress, but she also made her family’s clothing when she was able. In her free time, she liked to shop. One of her favorite things to do was go to yard sales. Even when she wasn’t quite able to get up and rummage through everything herself, she would have one of her kids walk around and bring the items back to the car to find what she wanted. O’Claire’s boutique, continued from front clothing and gifts boutique at the corner of Pearl and Front Street in downtown Iuka. O’Claire’s started on Fulton Street in June of 2019, and they bought the current store, which was once Iuka City Hall, in the summer of 2021. They were days from opening when the 2021 tornado tore through Iuka, damaging so many homes and buildings, including the new O’Claire’s. The tornadoes were followed by rains from hurricane Ida, which meant water coming straight into the building. There were 184 leaks in the roof, recalled LeAnne, describing how they stayed in a truck outside the store trying to keep up with the water removal before a new roof could be installed. “We would sleep for 15-30 minutes, and then go back in with the shop-vac, trying to keep up with the water pouring in, seeping in, from everywhere,” said LeAnne. You’d never know about the damp beginnings, with the glitzy neon sign, hand-painted awning, and all the displays of clothes and gifts in the store now. LeAnne says they are about half gifts, and half clothing now, and they have customers from Corinth to Cherokee, as well as all their local regulars. To achieve retail success in the boutique market in a small town, LeAnne has used several smart strategies including social media. She has a 3,000-member VIP Facebook group, as well as a Facebook page. And they ship merchandise from the shop daily. Next on the slate is a website. “It’s been a hard road, and we have worked hard for all this, but we humbled and so thankful for the public support,” said LeAnne. “We couldn’t have done it without the support of our great staff and my parents, Ron and D.J. Plymel.”

Frankie Crowell

William Franklin “Frankie” Crowell, 52, of Cherokee, AL, died on Sunday, November 20, 2022, at his residence. Frankie enjoyed spending time with his family and friends, watching Alabama Crimson Tide football, and any type of auto racing. He is survived by his wife, Leah Lyles Crowell; his sons, Coltan Crowell (Jessica), Cacey Crowell (Cortney), and Paul Lyles (Jennalee); his Papa, Perry Murphy; his sister, Rita Crowell; his brothers, Lane “Bubba” Crowell (Jennice), Zane “Cricket” Crowell, and Shon Crowell (Lisa); his grandchildren, Breken, Riley, Silas, and Ashley; and a host of nieces, nephews, friends, and other family members. He was preceded in death by his father, Argene Crowell, his mother, Jane Doyle; his step-father, Gene Doyle; his grandson, Sikes Lyles; and his grandparents, Martha Murphy, Fred and Artie Crowell. Cutshall Funeral Home of Iuka, MS is entrusted with the arrangements. Visitation is scheduled for Tuesday, November 22, 2022, from 5:00 P.M. until 8:00 P.M. at Cutshall Funeral Home in Glen, MS. Services are scheduled from Wednesday, November 23, 2022, at 2:00 P.M. at Cutshall Funeral Home Chapel in Glen, officiated by Bro. Franky Smith. Burial will follow in Morris Hill Cemetery. Pallbearers will be Brandon King, Tyler Crowell, Caleb Crowell, Zane Crowell, Burt Miller, and Lee Carmack.

Choosing a funeral home is something many of us avoid until the need arises because it touches on a subject with which we're not entirely comfortable. Becoming better informed now will make decision-making easier when the time comes.

Is the funeral home you are considering fully licensed for both at-need arrangements and also pre-arrangements?

Does it have a good long-term standing in the community?

Time for pecans

Reach past the pie recipes for something new with the South's favorite nut

by Pamela McRae

Thanksgiving! The meal of time-honored, tried and true favorites that we all look forward to, and expect each November... just makes your mouth water thinking about it all!

I would never change anything about Thanksgiving dishes and recipes, and be happy in that comfortable rut... but my dear husband is always making me expand my boundaries with new recipes.

This year he's talking oyster dressing, deviled eggs without olives in them, and no one has mentioned green bean casserole. Though, that's probably because my daughter always has made the green bean casserole since she was about 10... and they are not able to travel this year. It will be our first year where three of the four kids are doing their own thing for Thanksgiving... but don't worry about me... I have Hopewell Counseling on speed-dial. Just ignore the howls of sadness if you drive by.

Anywho... the pecans are in and you can get them from Midway Volunteer Fire Department or the 20th Century Club ladies. We have the 20th Century ones for sale here at the downtown News office!

Try these recipes to shake up the usual Thanksgiving fare and you won't regret "going nuts!"

Maple Pecan Scones

Scones:

- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 5 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 pound (2 sticks) unsalted butter, chilled
- 1/4 cup pecans, chopped finely, plus more for sprinkling if desired
- 1 large egg
- 3/4 cup heavy cream

Maple icing:

More icing! You'll love this maple icing, and the recipe makes a lot. I freeze it to use on my next batch of cinnamon rolls.

- 1 pound powdered sugar
 - 1/4 cup whole milk
 - 4 tbs. (1/2 stick) butter, melted
 - Splash of strongly brewed coffee
 - Dash of salt
 - 2 tsp. maple flavoring, or maple extract
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

In a large bowl, stir together the flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut the cold butter into small pieces and cut it into the flour mixture with a pastry blender, until the mixture resembles crumbs. Stir in the chopped pecans.

Mix the egg and cream together. Add it to the flour mixture. Stir together until just combined (I have added a bit more cream to get this dry mixture together).

Turn the mixture out onto a cutting board. The dough is very crumbly, but just push it together the best you can without kneading it. With a rolling pin, gently roll the dough out into a large rectangle. With a sharp knife, cut it into serving size pieces – I usually do diamond shapes, but you can do what ever shape you like. Transfer the pieces to a baking sheet lined with parchment, or a silicon baking mat, or sprayed with non-stick spray.

Bake the scones for about 22-26 minutes until they are barely starting to brown. Allow to cool before icing.

For the icing, mix the ingredients in a medium bowl. Pour generously over the scones. Sprinkle pecan pieces, if desired, before the icing sets.

Pecan Pralines

Darryl and Sheila Hazelwood make these pralines for family, and I can't wait to try the recipe since Darryl's sister Tammy Reeves gave it to me. Let me know if you make some!

- 3 cups sugar
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 3/4 cup light corn syrup
- 1 tbs. butter
- 2 cups pecan halves

In a large Dutch oven, combine sugar, soda, and salt. Stir in buttermilk and syrup. Bring to boiling over medium heat, stirring constantly. Cook to soft-ball stage (234 degrees F.) Remove from heat and add butter. Stir in pecans. Beat until thick enough to drop from a spoon, 5-6 minutes. Quickly drop from tablespoon onto waxed paper. If the candy becomes too stiff, add 1 tsp. hot water.
