Iuka's first Food Truck Festival is on its way to Jaybird Park June 3rd. The Food Truck Festival is a fundraiser led by Liz Cummings, benefiting a local organization that serves families.

The Food Truck Festival is a 21 and older event that begins at 6:30 p.m. and ends at 9 p.m. Tickets for this event are $50 and must be purchased in advance, because no tickets will be sold that night. Counce, Tenn., will host the Whataburger Bassmaster Elite at Pickwick Lake June 2-5, 2022.

91 Pros Compete in Bassmaster Elite Series Event at Pickwick this Weekend

COUNCE, Tenn. — Brock Mosley didn't grow up fishing Pickwick Lake, but it's where he learned how to fish, so to speak.

"When I was (at East Mississippi Community College) I was only an hour and a half away from Pickwick," the 33-year-old Elite Series pro from Collinsville, Miss., said. "It was my first chance to fish something other than a shallow mudhole. It's a special place for p.m. The field will be cut to the Top 47 Elites after Day 2 and to the Top 10 following the Day 3 weigh-in.

The winner will collect $100,000 and 100 points in the Progressive Insurance Bassmaster Angler of the Year standings.

Mosley came close to winning an Elite at Pickwick last March, finishing second to veteran angler Bill Lowen. The Tennessee Valley Authority had a hard current running throughout Pickwick in that derby, which was critical to Lowen, who grew up fishing similar conditions on the Ohio River. Day crowds the last few days," said Stegall. "Current could increase with the probability of TVA pulling water to generate more electricity as the days heat up."

Anglers will start on the Tennessee side of Pickwick, which Mosley said is the "partying" side of the impoundment. He said having practice days over Memorial Day weekend and on the holiday itself could shake things up a bit. "There's going to be some god-awful boat traffic," he said. "The good times happen on the partying end of Pickwick. There'll be houseboats, and party barges. It's usually a complete circus over there on Memorial Day and the Fourth of July."

Supt. Holly Stresses Student Safety is Priority

by Madelyne Pruitt News Intern

In light of the school shootings around the U.S. in the past weeks, Tishomingo County School District assures there is a plan for crisis situations as these, according to Superintendent Christie Holly.

"Safety is always our number one priority here," said Superintendent Holly. She explained how each school in Mississippi is required to have a crisis management plan that is updated each school year. It is a law that each school district has plans for intruders and severe weather. TCSD also has a SRO (school resource officer) at each campus within the county.

Mosley is one of 91 pros who will compete in the Whataburger Bassmaster Elite at Pickwick Lake, which will be held June 2-5 on the eastern edge of the 43,000acre impoundment of the Tennessee River. Anglers will take off from Pickwick Landing State Park in Counce, at 7 a.m. daily with weigh-ins scheduled for 3:10

Local professional fishing guide Roger Stegall agrees current could be a factor on Pickwick this year too.

"The lake is in good condition, despite the pressure put on it by a huge college tournament last week and Memorial Mosley said he hasn't fished Pickwick

Keep Pets Safe from the Dangers of Toxic Blue-Green Algae

by Jenni Tucker, DVM special to the News

Editor's Note: It's summer! There's nothing more fun than watching your dog jump in and play in the water, but pet owners need to be aware of the danger of toxic algae to keep their pets safe. We asked local veterinarian Jenni Tucker, DVM to tell us about risks in our area, and treatments recommended should your dog come in contact with contaminated water.

With the onset of warm temperatures and time off from school and work, many people are flocking to the water, whether that be rivers, lakes, or oceans. Exploring bodies of water is a great way of escaping the heat. However, nothing says the "dog days of summer" like the risk blue-green algae poses to your canine friends.

Blue-green algae refers to a family of bacteria, not plants like its name infers, found in all types of water that gets its name from the characteristic color it produces when it overgrows or "blooms." These blooms often occur in stagnant, foul-smelling water during summer or fall when the temperature is hot and rainfall is scant. Although not all blue-green algae is toxic, it is impossible to know just from looking.

Blue-green algae is toxic to humans, dogs, cats, and farm animals, but our canine friends are by far the most likely to be exposed due to their common behaviors. It's hard to deny that a body of oddly colored, stinky, stagnant water to roll in or drink is anything less than a dog's dream come true. Blue-green algae can cause an array of alarming signs such as vomiting, diarrhea, weakness, staggering, and seizures that typically have a very quick onset, possibly minutes after ingestion.

Without treatment from a veterinarian, death from liver failure or neurological compromise can occur within hours. While prompt treatment is important for all poisonings, it is especially important for blue-green algae. Since bluegreen algae has the potential to make your pet ill so quickly, it is often impossible to remove the toxin, and there is no antidote. Rather, treatment is aggressive care that aims to control your pet's clinical signs.

If your pet has been in contact with suspicious water, rinse your pet (and yourself) with plenty of clean, fresh water and monitor your furry friend for signs of toxicity.

If you notice any symptoms from your dog, contact your veterinarian immediately. Organ failure from blue-green algae can be quick and fatal if left untreated.

Thankfully, cases of blue-green algae toxicity in dogs are relatively uncommon in our area and all pets treated have completely recovered thanks to a quick response by their owners. Most toxicities seen within Tishomingo County have been traced back to stagnant water at or near Bear Creek or at local farm ponds.

Summer is a great time to explore the outdoors, and getting outside with your pet is great exercise for both you and your dog. Take the time now to learn the dangers of stagnant water and the signs of bluegreen algae. As always, if you ever have concerns about your pet's health, consult your local veterinarian!

Tips to Avoid Blue-Green Algae Poisoning:

- Keep your dog leashed around bodies of water, especially if the water appears dirty, foamy, or has mats on the surface of the water.
- Don't let your dog drink out of ponds and lakes Harmful algae blooms, which can be blue,
- Harmful algae blooms, which can be blue, vibrant green, brown or red, are sometimes mistaken for paint floating on the water. Be aware the toxins aren't always visible.

 Toxic algae often stink, sometimes producing a downright nauseating smell, yet animals may be attracted to the smell and taste of them, according to the EPA.

The Big Not So Easy

A few weeks ago, I had a revelation that seemed unacceptable. It occurred to me that my eight-year-old daughter had no memory of any place further from home than Tupelo, Mississippi. She had never eaten the cuisine of another culture at its source. She had never seen people of every color, nationality, creed, and world view. She had never spoken to anyone face to face that didn't look like the people she had always seen. She had never been in a building taller than four floors. She had never, for goodness sake, eaten crawfish etouffee. By the time her older brother was her age he had eaten his way through most of the Southeast and swam in the warm waters of the Bahamas. I knew I had to make this right.

With this predicament hanging around in the back of my brain, I set out looking into places we could take her that were culturally-diverse, entertaining, and within one day's drive. Not long into the trip-planning process, I remembered that I was soon scheduled to attend the annual state funeral director's conference in New Orleans. The Big Easy. As in, "Laissez les bons temps rouler". I had it figured out. I could kill two birds with one stone. I would take the family to New Orleans and show them the sights, smells, tastes, and sounds of the French Quarter, and at the same time attend the conference where I could interact with my contemporaries and learn about new ideas, get a bunch of pens, and wear the same clothes I have to wear to work on vacation. What could possibly be livelier than an eightyear-old and a bunch of funeral directors in New Orleans?

Among the many things my little one had never experienced was a six-hour car ride. "How much longer" starts somewhere south of Tupelo and is a persistent theme throughout the trip. As with all fathers, I only need to know one response, "Ten minutes less than last time you asked". Since my vehicle was a bit under the weather, my ever-helpful and maternalistic mother suggested we take her much newer and safer car on our journey. If you haven't driven a new car in the past five years, let me tell you something. Things have changed. On the rare occasion that the car agreed I should drive, it yelled at me every time I approached anything, including lines on the road, other cars, and apparently anything else within 100 yards except for a gas station. It never wanted to stop there. I have learned that you can be told how to drive not only by two humans, but also the car itself, at the same time.

Upon arrival in the Old City, we hit the ground running and ate our way through the French

Life will go smoother for you when you accept the fact that people's brains work differently. Our brains process stimuli according to our unique experiences and brain paths. How vou experience everyday life may be totally different than how I live it. For example, you probably did not spend a decent amount of your Sunday morning feeling sorry for the Christian songwriter who wrote the hymn that ended up being number 666 in the hymnal.

Think about it, this guy

Town that was on Cryings the edge of Nate Clark the cut list.

Watts or Charles Wesley aren't getting dumped in the 666 hole, either. It's probably some guy whose career needed the boost. Like, in his mind he's thinking, "I know my song is better than stupid hymn number 472!. I mean, its lyrics are from a Psalm and you know he's not sharing any royalties with King David." I should acknowledge at this point that many churches have done away with hymnals. A lot of kids have grown up singing gospel music from handouts or an overhead projector. Some of you readers grew up without going to church at all, but I figure growing up in or around Tishomingo County that church was at least kind of like living in America when Game of Thrones was popular: even if you hadn't read the book you knew the basics because it's all everybody

I've heard things... Bo Murphy

Quarter like linebackers at a Sunday buffet. My little traveler broadened her culinary horizons tenfold in three days. Jambalaya, gumbo, redfish, beignets, and gelato...all were consumed with wonder and amazement at just how good food could be. The blistered feet, blistered faces, and resulting blistered attitudes were all worth it to see a child's face light up at the first taste of crawfish and cream sauce. The Princess of the Vieux Carre now wants Hollandaise sauce with her McDonald's chicken nuggets.

More than I desired to show the next generation the variety of food that is out there, I wanted to show her that there are equally as many different kinds of people, cultures, and lifestyles. As we strolled around a city that existed before the United States was even a country, my wideeyed voyager soaked it all in like a sponge. She had never seen the colors, heard the music, or engaged with different people in this way. Now she knows that the world is bigger, much bigger, than anything she had ever imagined tucked in her tiny corner of northeast Mississippi. We ate, we learned, we looked, we listened, we absorbed. And then, when we finally made it back home in that bossy new car, we laid down in her familiar, cozy bedroom, and she looked at her Daddy and said, "It's good to be back in my bed." I just smiled and looked at her and said, "Yes, Baby. Yes, it is."

talked about. So, for those of you who have no frame of reference, hymnals were these thick, heavy books you curled up to your face while you stood and sat, stood and sat repeatedly in a packed room with no air conditioning and I just realized that church in the rural South in the 1960s was basically Crossfit (you really don't even need to change the name!).

I would be remiss if, while I was on the subject, I didn't mention that my sainted wife has strong feelings about hymns. Specifically, she doesn't like any hymn written after 1870. Her worship music taste is basically the lifestyle taste of the Amish. She doesn't care for praise bands with drums and electric guitars she likes her hymns pre-electricity. When the congregation rises to sing a post-1900 hymn, she will scowl and point to the date in the hymnal. I don't mind, it's better than her usual scowling while pointing at me. I cannot stress enough how much of my Sunday was spent thinking about this subject. You probably did something different with your time. I am not saying one was a better use of the weekend than another. It's not our place to judge (which sounds like the name of a hymn bad enough to be considered for 666).

Deer Enjoyed the Garden... too Much!

Last week I was going to give you a report on the garden, but I decided to this week. I had just returned from visiting and it is so sad. The deer had visited my garden last night, after the rain and had eaten all sixteen hills of my Kentucky pole beans that I loved, fertilized, and were ready to be caged. There was not a single leaf or stem left.

All the work and anticipation, of not only enjoying seeing them but picking, freezing, and eating. All history. "Don't count your chickens before they hatch" and "Don't cry over spilled milk" are two old sayings that fit this situation.

If I was a younger lady I would have me a garden wire fence built. I should be like the old man in the poem who built the bridge – He built it not for himself but for those who would follow.

Sweet Memories Ruth Dawson

Last night I hung one of my Tishomingo yellow t-shirts on a peach tree. I sprayed it good but didn't use Estee Lauder "Beautiful," but the cheaper perfume. I may have to change the odor, but this has worked in the past for me. I guess I'm just a little slow in thinking and doing now.

I thank God they didn't touch the tomatoes, peppers, or squash. We are prone to look on the bad side of whatever happens to us instead of counting our blessings.

We got a much-needed rain, and I can still plant beans. I used all the J.E. Hudson Rattlesnake beans and Doc Champion's ones, too. Maybe just plant a few hills of pinto seeds.

Attending All the Graduation Activities

I have attended two award nights, graduation, and two receptions. My first great granddaughter, Carrigan, graduated from TCHS. She has made us all so proud. She loved school, her teachers, and the association and camaraderie with her classmates and school mates.

Food was enjoyed by family and friends, but the highlight of the evening was the pool. Us older ones just sat and enjoyed talking. There was lots of picture making but the one I will always cherish is seeing the honoree come sliding down the slide in her cap and gown into the pool! This was a picture of leaving a phase in her life and entering another. Sliding down was so easy, but swimming took lots of effort. That's life for us – The graduates have now entered the life of work. It is my prayer that whatever category they choose, they will give it their best and will be happy. Life is too short not to enjoy living. At 97, I find so many things to enjoy, and getting to participate in the success of all these fine young people is a joy!

1944 vs. 2022 Graduations

There was quite a contrast between graduating in 1944 and 2022... seventy-eight years. Our awards and graduation were both the same night. Most had come in on a school bus, parents too. Tishomingo High School was up stairs in the old high school building. A beautiful painting of the building is on the side of the store at the only "stop" in Tishomingo on Hwy 25. Medals, probably labored his entire life to write that one hymn to spread the gospel, who excitedly received the call that it was to be published n a major denomination's hymnal, and then gets his advanced copy in the mail only to realize no one is ever going to request his number in a service. Methodist churches have gotten rid of preachers for being Auburn fans, can you imagine if, in a service, one called out, "My spirit needs to hear 666"? I bet people stay away from 665 and 667 just to avoid the awkward acknowledgement they should have just skipped the number like it was the 13th floor of a building or the prohibition against creatures of the sea without fins during Lobsterfest. And you know the folks putting these hymnals together wouldn't

World War II was taking its toll on the young men in Tishomingo as well as around the world. Coupon books were issued for gas, sugar, coffee, and just about all the fruit and vegetables that came from other countries were absent from the shelves. These books were issued to each member of a family. Those with large families fared much better than those with few or no children.

Mr. Dawson and Chester's dad had a couple of sawmills. Some of the workers has large families and I was the recipient of a coupon for shoes, they didn't use all their shoe coupons. I go to the Margerum Community Church for the special church services and reception with lunch in honor of carrying on. Bro. Rod sang a solo "O Hallelujah, What a Savior." Just that alone was worth visiting with the graduate and sisters and brothers. I hated to miss the reception given at the Tishomingo Baptist Church for our graduate. I don't drive long distances anymore. My son, Kim and Teresa, are good enough to take this great-grand to activities with them. If you live long enough, you will have to give up some of your greatest privileges by choice or on demand of your children for your protection on our highways.

We Need an Arena

The 2022 TCHS graduation was held at the Crossroads Arena, Corinth, on the 21st of May. We thought we were going early but the traffic was in miles ahead and behind our vehicle. We did get there in plenty of time, but some of the family had held us a seat. It would have been difficult for me to have sat down close to the floor where the action took place, too many steps.

I hope our supervisors will put on their agenda the building of a stadium that is big enough for the mothers and dads of all the graduating young men and women to be able to attend activities like this one and others without so much trouble, expense, and hardships on all involved.

To use a building like this cost Tishomingo County several thousand dollars, I'm sure. It was also expensive for the parents of the graduates to pay the gas for the practice as well as the actual ceremony of graduation.

Again, congratulations to all your 2022 graduates, I know you will make your parents, teachers, relatives, and friends proud. The price you have paid for an education has hopefully prepared you for the ability to meet the demands of a changing world. Not only does Tishomingo County need you, but Mississippi and the world needs your expertise. I pray for your happiness and success. A good motto is Psalm 19:14 and Proverbs 3:5-6. I am so proud of all of you, God Bless.

An MCOPS Grant (Mississippi Community Oriented Policing Services in Schools) is applicable to all Mississippi local education agencies who wish to maintain or build and develop a campus police department.

"We have been very fortunate to receive this grant in the past years and now," said Superintendent Holly. "We use this to upgrade and ensure safety at all schools in the district."

TCSD in the past has used this grant to purchase new cameras at campuses, purchase new door locks, build an enclosed walkway space at IMS, purchase bolted doors at IES to ensure safety before entering the front office, and updated equipment for SRO's at each campus. After receiving the MCOPS Grant, the grant received must be matched by TCSD.

since placing 88th in the Bassmaster Open there in late spring 2021, but he has enough knowledge of the place to have a good idea of what the Elites will find under the heat of a June sun.

"Most of the fish should already be out on the ledges, and that's where everybody will fish in this one," he said. "Guys like Justin Atkins should do well. Joseph Webster is a really good hammer on Pickwick."

Mosley likes his chances too, but he said home-water advantage isn't as potent when offshore fishing reigns, as he expects it will.

"Guys have electronics and can find anything," he said. "The difference is going to be who finds the right quality of fish. Some schools will have 2-pounders and some schools will have 4-pounders. That'll make all the difference."

As for a winning weight?

"I think it'll take 20 pounds a day, maybe more, to take it," Mosley said. This will be the sixth event on the nine-tournament Elite Series schedule. After five tournaments, Idaho followed by John Cox of DeBary, Fla., with 422, David Mullins of Mt. Carmel, Tenn., with 401, Drew Benton of Blakely, Ga., with 381 and Brandon Lester of Fayetteville, Tenn., with 377.

Old Courthouse Museum Brings Courtroom Drama to Life

by Brent Bonds, TAC

With "The Case of Humanity vs. Pontius Pilate" on Saturday June 11th, the Old Courthouse Museum in Iuka, Mississippi, revives its series of courtroom plays set within its own historic courtroom.

The series of plays aims to kick the fourth wall out the door, allowing the historic courtroom itself to become the biggest star and draw on a seeming universal love for courtroom drama.

"To me, this is the coolest thing," says Brent Bonds, chair of Tishomingo

Arts Council and producer of the play series. "It's as real as a play can feel -- the action isn't happening on a stage -- it's all around you. Whether you're in the audience or even selected for the jury, you're more than just an observer, you're living what's going on. If you've been following the Depp-Heard business, this is the thing for you."

Following up on pre-COVID productions of "Twelve Angry Men" and "Witness for the Prosecution," the upcoming show sees Pontius Pilate stand trial for ordering the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. The verdict is up to a jury selected at random from willing audience members. Events are reexamined as if "ripped from the headlines." Faith, greed, and hope unravel through exposed truths, halftruths, and lies.

"It's less like a show you're going to see, and more like an actual trial that you're going to witness and possibly participate in with the jury. You will actually get the chance to sit in the jury box and decide the fate of Pontius Pilate at the end of the night. Having it set at the Old Courthouse Museum only adds to the experience," says director William Freeman.

The production itself is unique in other ways, being a three-part collaboration between the Old Courthouse Museum, Tishomingo Arts Council, and Freeman's theatre group, who first brought the show to life at the Shoals Community Theatre. Freeman was excited for the chance to collaborate with others for a reprisal:

"I am all about cooperation. Helping other theater communities beyond mine here in the Shoals. It's not a competition. The more theatre we get out into the world, the more chances people have of getting that escape from real life for a few hours. A chance to just not think and have some fun. We need more of that. Then there is the uniqueness of this event. Doing the show in an actual courthouse - this show was made for that. You can't beat it! I think more theatre groups/companies should work together like this, as it only increases the amount of theatre communities can go and see. This show could spark an interest in someone who may have never thought about being involved, and had we not come together like this, that wouldn't have had the chance to happen. I haven't seen a lot of this in the past, but I'm glad to see it now." "It's a thing that's been at our core since our beginning," adds Bonds, "building community across community.

JESUS BEFORE PILATE

The goal is to break down lines and see a greater working together -- for everyone's benefit. It's very cool to have theatre groups and others working together to create new opportunities. We hope to see a lot more of this. We're indebted to William and his group and to Sherron Belk and Beth Dickerson at the Old Courthouse Museum for bringing this event to life." Sponsored by Iuka Piggly Wiggly & Ace Hardware and Heavener's Lawn Service, "The Case of Humanity vs. Pontius Pilate" is a one-time show presented Saturday, June 11th, at 7 p.m., at the Old Courthouse Museum in Iuka.

To book seats ahead of time, call or visit the Old Courthouse Museum in Iuka, Mississippi, Wednesday-Friday, 9-4.

Lemon Berry Cake Perfect for Summer

by Pamela McRae

I was looking for something summery to make this weekend and this cake turned out to be the perfect choice!

Lemon cake is one of my favorites, and blueberries, and all the things they go with is right up there with it! Put them together and their fresh taste just puts me right there on a lovely summer Sunday dinner on the porch.

The soft and almost creamy-tasting cake is great, and after trying it before chilling and after, I see why the recipe calls for it to be chilled. I thought this recipe would be moist because of the yogurt, and it is, and though it has all the sweet ingredients, it is not overly sweet.

There's no complicated decorating, and you don't even have to grease AND flour the pan - just a spray of non-stick baking spray, and allowing it to cool in the pan a while allowed it to come out perfectly.

And since it's fruity, you can have it for breakfast. I grant you permission!

You will not regret making this one! Let me know what you think.

Lemon Berry Yogurt Cake

3 cups (354g) cake flour* (spoon & leveled)

1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1 teaspoon salt

1 cup (240g) plain Greek yogurt, at room temperature*

2 teaspoons lemon zest

1/3 cup (80ml) fresh lemon juice

1 cup (230g; 2 sticks) unsalted butter, softened to room temperature

2 cups (400g) granulated sugar

1 1/2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract

3 large eggs, at room temperature

2 cups (325g) mixed berries, fresh or frozen (do not thaw)*

Lemon Glaze

1 cup (120g) confectioner's sugar

3 Tablespoons (45ml) fresh lemon juice

1/4 teaspoon pure vanilla extract

Instructions

Make the cake: Preheat oven to 350°F (177°C). Generously grease a 10-12 cup Bundt pan with butter or nonstick spray.

Whisk the cake flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt together in a large bowl. Set aside.

Whisk the yogurt, lemon zest, and lemon juice together in a medium bowl. Set aside.

Using a handheld or stand mixer fitted with a paddle or whisk attachment, beat the butter and sugar together on high speed until smooth and creamy, about 2-3 minutes. Scrape down the sides and up the bottom of the bowl with a rubber spatula. On medium speed, beat in the vanilla extract. On low speed, beat the eggs in 1 at a time allowing each to fully mix in before adding the next. After the 3rd egg is added, be careful not to over-mix. Stop the mixer photo P. McRae Not overly sweet, nor fussy, this lemon berry cake ticks all the boxes for a great summer dessert!

National Pollinator Week June 20-26

The next time you snack on almonds, add blueberries to your smoothie, or eat pumpkin pie, thank a pollinator and thank farmers, ranchers, and private forestland owners who work hard to create and maintain their habitat.

Pollinators, such as honeybees, bumblebees, butterflies, birds, bats, flies, and many others, play a critical role in crop production. Without pollinators, we wouldn't have many crops.

During the week of June 20-26, the nation will celebrate these iconic and crucial pollinators during National Pollinator Week. The U.S. Senate designated the third week in June as National Pollinator Week to increase awareness about the importance of pollinators and the challenges many of them face, including serious population declines and habitat losses, often due to land use changes and excessive or improper pesticide use. Nearly 200 species of pollinators are considered threatened or extinct.

within a single flower by wind or insects and animals. Successful pollination results in healthy fruit and fertile seeds, allowing the plants to reproduce.

The extensive and critical world of crop pollinators is a $20 billion a year industry. About 75% of crop plants are pollinated by billions of animals and insects every year

Many federal, state, and local government agencies, non-government organizations, and universities have launched extensive efforts to protect pollinators, especially honeybees and the monarch butterfly. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) works closely with farmers, forest landowners, and other private landowners to increase pollinator habitat in targeted areas nationwide. The Environmental Quality Incentives Program, through USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service, offers financial incentives to agricultural producers and private forest landowners who enhance pollinator habitat by voluntarily implementing conservation practices such as cover crops, wildflower and native plantings in buffers, and areas not in production.

The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) can also be used to enhance habitat to protect pollinators. Administered by USDA's Farm Service Agency, the CRP is a land conservation program in which enrolled landowners remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production and plant species that will improve once all eggs are incorporated.

Pour the dry ingredients into the butter/eggs. Pour the yogurt mixture on top. Turn the mixer onto medium speed and beat everything together just until combined. Do not over-mix. Using a rubber spatula, fold in the berries. The batter will be a little thick and very creamy.

Pour/spoon batter evenly into prepared pan. Bake for 55-70 minutes. Loosely tent the baking cake with aluminum foil halfway through bake time to ensure the surface does not over-brown. Use a toothpick to test for doneness and begin checking at 55 minutes. Once the toothpick comes out completely clean, the cake is done. This is a large cake so don't be alarmed if it takes longer in your oven.

Remove cake from the oven and allow to cool for 1 hour inside the pan. Then invert the slightly cooled cake onto a wire rack or serving dish. Allow to cool completely before glazing, slicing, and serving.

Make the glaze: Whisk the glaze ingredients together. If desired, add more confectioners' sugar to thicken or more lemon juice to thin out. Drizzle on top of cooled cake. Icing will set after a few hours, making this cake convenient for storing and/or transporting.

Cover leftover cake tightly and store in the refrigerator for up to 5 days.

Notes

Cake Flour: For the best results, I strongly recommend cake flour. You can find it in the baking aisle and I have many more recipes using it. If you cannot get your hands on cake flour, you can make a DIY cake flour substitute - spoon and level one cup of all-purpose flour, then remove 2 tablespoons of flour, and add 2 tablespoons of cornstarch. Sift together twice, and then remeasure for your cake.

Yogurt: You can use plain Greek yogurt, plain yogurt, or even sour cream. I recommend low-fat, non-fat, or full fat yogurt. If using sour cream, use full fat.

Lemons: 2 medium/large lemons will be enough for the cake and glaze. If you're looking for a plain yogurt cake (no lemon flavor), simply leave out the lemon zest and replace the lemon juice with milk (dairy or nondairy) in both the cake and glaze.

Berries: I recommend sticking with mostly blueberries and chopped strawberries. Some raspberries and/or blackberries are OK, but they become a little wet and mushy and can impact the color and consistency of the baked cake. I use 3/4 cup blueberries, 3/4 cup chopped strawberries, and 1/4 cup each raspberries and blackberries. You can use frozen berries if needed. Do not thaw. Pollination occurs when pollen grains are moved between two flowers of the same species, or environmental health and quality.

When we protect pollinators, we protect our ability to grow food. We thank our farmers, ranchers, and private forest landowners who offer a safe haven for pollinators and grow the products we enjoy.

Whether you are a large commodity producer, a small and diverse organic producer, or even a suburban homeowner, you can have an important role in saving pollinators in Mississippi.

James L. Cummins is executive director of Wildlife Mississippi, a non-profit, conservation organization founded to conserve, restore, and enhance fish, wildlife, and plant resources throughout Mississippi. Their web site is www. wildlifemiss.org.

Tishomingo Co. Career & Technical Center FFA Attends the 89th Mississippi FFA State Convention

TCCTC FFA Team Members: Anna Jane Burcham, Destiny Carpenter, Avery Hall, Jacob Kiddy, Ali Monroe, Maddie Potts, Maggie Clare Pruitt, Katelyn Stanford. Not Pictured: Cela-Cathryn Taylor, and Claire-Mann Taylor

Nine Tishomingo County FFA Members traveled to Starkville, May 24th-26th to represent their chapter at the 89th Mississippi State FFA Convention. During the convention the chapter and several of the members were recognized for their outstanding achievements from the 2021-2022 school year as they attended sessions, workshops, and listened to motivational speakers.

To start convention off, the TCCTC FFA Chapter was recognized for their program of activities which is developed and instituted by the members and chapter officers. As one of only twenty-three chapters receiving the award in the state, TCCTC FFA has certainly excelled as a chapter.

The Farm Business Management team consisting of Ali Monroe, Maddie Potts, Jacob Kiddy and Destiny Carpenter competed in late April and demonstrated their ability to apply business and economic principles and analyze agricultural business management information to evaluate scenarios and work cooperatively to make management decisions. The team was recognized during convention for their third place finish in the state.

The Agriculture sales team of AnnaJane Burcham, Avery Hall, Maggie Clare Pruitt and Katelyn Stanford also competed in late April. The Ag sales teams are provided an example product, product information, and customer profiles at the start of the event from which they collaboratively develop a sales plan. Judges then evaluate the collaboration process and the team's final sales plan. Individuals also complete a written exam that tests sales concept knowledge. The TCCTC team was recognized as State Runners-Up for their efforts.

Senior Prepared Public Speaking requires students to create and present a 5-7 minute speech that is related to a current event topic in agriculture. TCHS senior Claire-Mann Taylor represented TCCTC FFA during the 21-22 school year placing first at federation and district to qualify for state competition. Claire-Mann delivered her speech on "The Use of Aerial Drones in Agriculture" to a panel of judges and was rewarded for her efforts with a State Runner-Up finish.

Claire-Mann Taylor was also recognized as a State Star Farmer Finalist during convention. State star finalists are chosen based on the culmination of their supervised agricultural experience program (SAE) which spans the life of the student's FFA membership. In Claire-Mann's case, this encompasses eight years of beef cattle and produce production. The event requires the member to keep meticulous records while documenting her learning experience and SAE growth. To be eligible, members must also achieve the highest honor the MS FFA bestows on members, the State FFA Degree. Claire-Mann applied for her degree after receiving the Greenhand and Chapter degrees and was

Homemaker's Program: Membership Recruitment & Retention

The Midway Homemaker's Club and County Council met Tuesday, May 17th at 9 am at the Fairgrounds building. Those present were club members, their agent, and one visitor/speaker.

Leadership training today was on "Membership Recruitment and Retention," which was presented by Michael Vestal, PhD. The presentation and handout entitled "Guide to Engaging Volunteers across Generations" were very interesting. The data will be useful in recruiting and retaining Homemaker Volunteer members.

Tishomingo County Council President Linda Hester called the meeting to order and led the members in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. She read the "Thought-for-the-Month: "Try not to become a man of success. Rather become, a man of value," by Albert Einstein. Linda gave the devotion entitled, "Five-Finger Prayer" to use as a guide when praying for others:

When you fold your hands, the thumb is nearest you; so, begin by praying for those closest to you-your loved ones. (Philippians 1:3-5).

The index finger is the pointer. Pray for those who teach-Bible teachers and preachers, and those who teach children. (I Thessalonians 5:25).

The next finger is the tallest. It reminds you to pray for those in authority over you-national and local leaders, and your supervisor at work. (I Timothy 2:1-2).

The fourth finger is usually the weakest. Pray for those who are in trouble or who are suffering. (James 5:13-16).

Then last, your little finger. It reminds you of your smallest in relation to God's greatness. Ask Him to supply your needs. (Philippians 4:6, 19). Whatever method you use, just talk with your Father. He wants to hear what's on your heart. It's not the words we pray that matter. It's the condition of our heart. Good idea, using the fingers to stay focused in prayer. Linda also led the prayer.

Council Secretary, Betty Hickey, read the minutes of the last meeting. They were approved as read. She also gave the Treasurer's Report.

Old Business

Barbara Pardue, Council Vice-President, gave a report on the Spring Area Meeting which was hosted by Pontotoc County. Three members from the Midway Homemaker's Club attended. They were Bonita Roberts, Barbara Pardue, and Linda Hester.

MHV State Council meeting will be held at Mississippi State University, May 23-25. One member, Linda Hester-our voting delegate, and Extension Agent Emily Vestal, will be attending from Tishomingo County.

New Business

President Linda Hester encouraged each member to participate in the upcoming Dairy Foods Contest, which has been rescheduled for Tuesday, June 14th, at the Fairgrounds building, beginning at 6:00 PM. She also mentioned the County Council Picnic which will be held July 22nd at 11:30 AM. Plans for the picnic will be finalized at the June meeting.

With no further business, the meeting was adjourned at 11:30 AM.

If you would like to use your free time to help with the club's community projects, please contact the Extension Office at 662-423-7016 and become a Homemaker Volunteer.

UDC Studies Confederate Calvary in April Program

The John Marshall Stone, 394 did their April Program by phone due to sickness. Reports were given and approved.

The April Program was about the "Confederate Cavalry."

The Confederate Cavalry quickly gained a reputation for valor, gallantry, horsemanship, bold tactics, and esprit de corps that persisted throughout the Civil War. The bold successes of Confederate cavalry exploits had an electrifying effect on Southern morale early in the war and were causes for hope late in the war.

In 1861, three combat branches of the military were formed. By May of 1861, four Colonels from the Union had resigned and joined the Confederate forces. These were Thomas Fauntleroy, Robert E. Lee, and Albert Sidney Johnston.

Later they were joined by May, Crittenden, Emory, Hardee, Van Dorn, Smith, and Sibley. Also, they were joined by Stand Watie the Cherokee Confederate from the seceded Cherokee Nation in Oklahoma, and William Quantrill, the Missouri Partisan Ranger.

Most of the Confederate scouts were Native Americans. They rode by night and hid in the daytime. Five Indian nations--the Cherokee, Choctaw, Seminole, Chickasaw, and Creeks—seceded from the United States in 1861 and allied with the Southern Confederacy, demonized by the Northern press and later by Hollywood.

Who was the best Confederate cavalry leader? Opinions among Civil War students vary. Robert E. Lee had never met Nathan Bedford Forrest, but he called him "probably the best soldier of the war." He was also the Confederate officer most feared by Union generals.

In the first half of the war, the Confederates enjoyed the advantage in cavalry, as Southern men were more accustomed to the riding and shooting life, and most of the experienced cavalry officers from the regular army had chosen to side with the Confederacy.

Each cavalry regiment had a blacksmith who shod horses and cared for the animals in camp. On an active campaign, a trooper had to look out for his own animal and care for it. Confederate soldiers owned their horses and were compensated on a monthly basis. If a soldier's horse was sick, injured, or killed, the soldier was responsible for returning home and replacing the horse at his own expense. The general rule was that the soldier had 60 days to return with a new horse or he was forced to become an infantryman, which was considered to be an ignominious fate.

It sometimes meant the trooper became a foot soldier until another horse could be obtained.

Confederate cavalrymen traveled lighter than their Union counterparts and were not usually armed with the more modern carbines. Short, muzzleloading carbines were more common in Southern regiments. The Southern cavalryman also carried a saber, revolver, and carbine, though some carried a rifle or a muzzle-loading shotgun. The Sharps carbine was often preferred due to its advantage of firing a linen cartridge, whereas others required metallic cartridges. It wasn't uncommon to find a cavalryman sporting two revolvers.

The Confederate Cavalry had to battle long hours in the saddle, fighting while fatigued, and always having to look over their shoulders for danger. There were other problems such as food and clean water for the soldiers as well as for the horses.

Traditionally, cavalry was considered the "eyes" of the army, keeping their commander informed of the enemy's movements.
