Who will run for school board?

Qualifying Continues for Local Races on November Ballot

by Pamela McRae

No one has yet to pick up qualifying papers for the Second District School Board seat that is up for election on the November 8th general election ballot. Long time board member Dr. Debra Brewer is stepping down and not running for reelection.

Joey Price and incumbent Eric Booker have both qualified for the First District Supervisor race to fill the unexpired term of Brandon Grissom.

Price, whose father was supervisor for many years, has run for this position several times, but this will be Booker's first time on the ballot. He has been serving as supervisor after he was appointed by the Board of Supervisors after Brandon's death.

Qualifying will end on September 9, 2022 at 5:00 p.m. Registered Voters who are interested in seeking either of these offices may pick up the proper paperwork at the Circuit Clerk's Office.

If necessary, a run-off election will be held on November 29th to determine the winners. For more information about the requirements to qualify, or if you have any questions call Josh McNatt, Circuit Clerk, at 423-7026.

Union-backed candidates win in TCEPA runoff

Erik McDonald won the fifth district seat over incumbent Darrin Caldwell with 52 percent of the runoff vote.

With 59 percent of the vote, Colton Sims beat Randy Hickox for the Area at Large seat.

Two other candidates won their seats in the August 13th Tishomingo County Electric Power Board election. Incumbent Jeff Holt (4th District) had no opponent, and Josh Clark defeated incumbent

August 21, 2021 tornado: one year later

Historic devastation; amazing recovery

by Pamela McRae

A year after the tornado that directly hit Oak Grove Cemetery, Downtown Iuka, and neighborhoods north of downtown, reminders of the destruction still remain visible in many areas. Although a majority of the cleanup has occurred, there are still areas yet to be fully cleared or restored.

It was a calm Saturday evening August 21st 2021, when two tornados formed and caused historic destruction in Iuka.

In hindsight, it was surely not as bad as it could have been – both tornados were classified low on the power scale, and no people were seriously hurt - but it was the first time in Iuka's century and a half of existence that a tornado caused widespread destruction.

According to reports at the time there was no warning other than heavy clouds darkening the skies suddenly about 6:09 p.m.; the "train sound" we are all told accompanies a twister was not heard.

Sycamore Road resident Selina Pruitt confirmed the lack of warning or sound. Her area just northwest of town was one of the first hit by the storm.

"It was eerily quiet. I was watching out the window and the Bradford pear trees in the lower yard just suddenly fell over!" recalled Selina. Her husband Robin called for everyone to get into the basement, and as they were rushing there, Selina and her son saw out the window the back deck and everything on it just fly off the back of the house.

Some trees fell on the corners of their home, but none penetrated the roof, she said. "It seemed like nearly every tree that went down fell away from the house."

They are still cleaning up, but are thankful they did not have more damage.

Humble acts of heroism mark an historic day

by Pamela McRae

The day of the tornado in August 2021, there were countless acts of neighborly charity and heroism – more than probably will ever be known, like the story of Ms. Gerry Ann Thomas and her rescuer, Justin Austin.

Ms. Gerry Ann, 82 at the time, was sitting in her living room in her home on 2nd street watching television when the storm rolled in. She has difficulty hearing, explained daughter Barbara Thomas, so she had no idea what was happening when the walls of her living room literally started coming down around her.

Trees in her yard were uprooted and fell on the house, causing complete destruction. She was unable to escape!

Tornado damage - Decades-old trees snapped by tornado winds in historic Oak Grove Cemetery. Below, the shop window at Uncle Shirley's Antiques was just some of the damage to downtown Iuka buildings.

From the Sycamore Road area, the tornado moved southeast toward the neighborhoods surrounding Oak Grove Cemetery, doing massive damage to trees, power lines and homes near North Pearl Street before damaging roofs and breaking out windows and walls in historic downtown buildings.

Historic Oak Grove Cemetery, resting place of city founders and a Mississippi governor, and its old cedars was decimated. The cedars snapped like toothpicks, or simply uprooted. Many of the ancient monuments toppled from their plinths. Nearby, on Ash Street, many homes still have tarps a year after the storm.

Another, separate tornado touched down in the County Road 247 area about 6:20 that evening, said Tishomingo County Emergency Management Coordinator Peyton Berklite.

The best news about that time was the way the citizens of not only Iuka but surrounding Justin Austin, above, helped an elderly lady escape her 2nd Street home, right, when it was destroyed by the Saturday evening tornado.

Fortunately, Iuka native Justin Austin was home for a visit, staying in an AirBnB house just across from Ms. Thomas with a friend. They knew there was an older lady living there, and when they went to check on her, were able to get her free of the house.

Phones were out immediately all over town, but miraculously, Austin was able to contact Barbara and let communities came together to help with the aftermath.

“It was truly amazing at how well our entire community, county, and surrounding counties came together to help our city and our residents immediately following the destruction. On behalf of our city employees, the Board of Aldermen, and myself, we again say thank you to everyone who has helped during our time of need and we are blessed beyond measure to live in the greatest city on earth,” said Mayor Joel Robertson in a Tuesday interview.

Ironically, Iuka was one of the only places that experienced storms that day, so the monetary value of the damage to more than 90 structures did not reach the necessary threshold (more than $4 million) for an emergency declaration from the state or federal government, explained Berklite. The Mississippi Emergency Management Authority (MEMA) was instrumental in helping organize a recovery committee, and using their contacts to help find volunteers to help with cleanup.

Months afterward, Berklite and volunteers were able to identify and help four homeowners who did not have insurance. Four roofs were replaced or repaired through this local effort. Most people had some insurance help, said Berklite.

Local churches were crucial in aiding, feeding and housing volunteers who came to help with the cleanup. The Tishomingo Baptist Association and Bro. Robbie Crane fed several meals a day to hundreds of volunteers out of Iuka Baptist Church. Iuka United Methodist Church provided for housing at J. P. Coleman State Park of a group of Mennonite workers who came to help.

Where pets are family, too!

This week our Pet of the Week is Pip Degraw. He is the fur baby of Bobby & Laurie Degraw. Pip is a Cavalier King Charles Spaniel and he would like to tell you about himself. Hi my name is Pipster Banks Degraw, my family calls me Pip. I moved here from Georgia in February, and it is great to live in Mississippi. Let me tell you, that was a long ride to get here, my big dog brother Trevor made the trip with me and he’s great. He looks like me but has black fur instead of brown. I have an evil cat sister Lucy, (she’s scary) and a new cat sister Izzy (she’s weird). My big brother is teaching me all the things my Mom doesn’t want me to know. I love running in the yard and cuddling with whoever is sitting. I am a great lap dog. I have done so many things since moving here, like having a sleep over at Mimi and Pawpaw’s, riding in the truck with the wind blowing my ears, going camping (Dad said never again), taking trips to Memphis, Huntsville and Lineville Alabama. I have had so much fun. I love it here and I am very happy. I love my family and I can tell they adore me.

Many dogs like Pip love to go with their owners everywhere. It is important to always make sure your pet is wearing identification tags and are best kept on a leash for their own safety. It is easy to love your pet like family and want them to live life to the fullest. Just be sure they are healthy while doing so. Always make sure your pet is fully vaccinated before traveling. Dr. Jim Perkins is available to give your pet the best in veterinary care. If your furry friend is in need of a veterinarian don’t hesitate to call our office.

Life is a Curvy Slide

When I was a little girl, the Mineral Springs Park was the place with the big curvy slide on one side and the bumpy slide on the other. To get to the top of the slide, you had climb two sets of stairs. My short legs made the trip seem twice as long. Standing at the top, I could see forever. I could see the tennis courts. I could see the big goofy clown swing that went in wobbly circles. I could see the merry-go-round that made me sick each time I tried to play on it. I could see the monkey bars that made my arms burn when I hung limply from the first rung. I never could make it more than one or two spaces. I still can't. I can see Mr. Jim Walker in the old pioneer cabin serving up my favorite cherry-grape snow cones. My parents are in the gazebo stringing up balloons and crepe paper. "Come on, Brandy, it's time," my mother calls to me. The park is a madhouse of screaming kids, soft murmurs between mothers, people walking their dogs. At the top of the curvy slide, however, it's quiet. It's just me working up the courage to push myself forward. One quick move and I'll be on my way to grand adventure. I am secretly terrified. I feel the other kids banging their way up the stairs. Any time now, they will round the corner and line up behind me. In this moment, a huge train whistle sounds from across the road. I think I can, I say out loud to myself. I think I can. With one incredible burst of courage, I lunge forward, laughing all the way to the bottom.

That's All She Wrote
Brandy Nunley

The very first time I brought my daughter to the park, she was too small to climb the steps alone. I walked her to the smallest slide. This was not what she had in mind however pointing up to the big curvy slide. I lifted her from stair to stair until we reached the top. We stood for a few quiet moments taking in the scenery. It had not changed much from the years I used to climb the steps alone. The clown swing was gone. The merry-go-round was gone. They had boarded up the climbing tunnel in the middle. No new options just the scariest ones removed. I sit her in my lap, "Here we go!" She laughs all the way down. My second daughter was born stubborn and independent. She does not want me to take her to the top to slide down with her. "I do it," she says, brushing blonde hair out of her eyes. "I do it myself." I wait at the bottom nervously. She climbs the steps slowly holding the handrails that she must stretch to reach. She gets to the top and smiles down at me. She's waving hysterically, "I did it!" This kid needs no time to gather her courage and instead comes tumbling down half-sideways to the bottom where I catch her seconds before she hits the dirt. She's out of my arms as soon as I catch her and up the stairs again, her laughter echoing all the way.

Decades from now, when I am old and gray, I like to think that the Park will cross my mind from time to time. I know it will smell of hot metal handrails, it will taste like cherry-grape ice in paper cones. I like to think that at the end of all things, leaving this earthly place will be like standing at the top of that slide. I'll look back over the years. I'll see my daughter's tiny hand holding mine as she climbs the steps. I'll see my brave girl standing by herself at the top of the slide while I wait to catch her at the bottom. I'll look back over time to a blonde-haired boy sitting next to a blonde-haired girl. He's leaning over to sneak a kiss while a million stars twinkle overhead. I'll see a thousand little moments that all took place in this magical park. And all around me are the thousands of little moments belonging to other people. Stretching as far back as a very sick Chickasaw chief who came here in search of a cure. A man who drank the waters from this land and was made whole again. For decades, we have come to the park to drink the waters, figuratively and literally. It belongs to us all. When I am old and gray, I will hear my mother call to me from the gazebo. It's time, she will say. And I'll go forward, smiling all the way.

The Mural of the Story

When I was in high school at TCHS, an Art IV class was introduced. I remember talking about it at the lunch table and questioned why we needed such an advanced class and was told it was because Brian Casabella and another student were so talented that the class was needed to get them into advanced college programs.

The Local Tourist
Mary Beard Grodsky

Last week, I had the opportunity to catch up with Brian. When I asked him if the high school rumor was accurate or lunchroom gossip, he simply laughed

Today, he works for Medtronic where his job didn't exist before he came on and was created specifically to fit his talents. It became clear to me that Brian continues to defy the norm when even a top medical device company had to create a job title to fit his skills.

Brian knew from a very young age that he was naturally interested in drawing and art, and Bob Ross was partially to blame. Living in rural Iuka, we only had 5 to 6 channels that could provide any sort of artistic inspiration growing up. Brian's art teacher, Ms. Allen, lead him down the path of creating a portfolio for college submission. When he told me some of the schools he was accepted into, I was impressed. He ultimately settled on Memphis College of Art and decided on a major after thumbing through one of their college catalogs. Unsure if art could even support a career, he landed on graphic design.

As his mural began at Eastport, I had several Memphians ask me if I knew what was going on. Not definitively, but I knew it was something Brian was designing. While the wall is structural in nature, Brian had seen murals in several areas he visited and knew this was an opportunity to create a landmark in Eastport while instilling a sense of pride for the place he grew up. As he began to design the map to fit the wall's 130 foot long x 13 feet tall shape, he realized accuracy was important. He explained that when you look at the map, it is positioned in context to the viewer.

In order to design and paint with accuracy, Brian measured seams in the concrete, which were vertical and horizontal to act like a grid. This gave him the ability to transfer his design on paper to the wall. He was able to paint most of the map in one week along with several weekends of hand lettering each and every cove to finish off the design. As the cherry on top, reflective paint is on the Eastport area so that it creates interactivity on the design and also spotlights the main area of the map.

With all of the accuracy of the maps and coves depicted, Brian was able to turn this into various merchandise pieces including pillows, t-shirts, towels, etc. that can be purchased at The Currated Cottage in downtown Iuka or Eastport Marina (now owned and operated by his family). With the building renovations going on downtown, he has also been contacted to create a mural on one of the walls, potentially the Vidette. While the discussion is just beginning, he hopes to create a landmark mural with the ultimate goal of creating a sense of pride for the community.

I Dream of Streaming

Three weeks into school and my children are starting to figure out this getting up in the morning is going to be an everyday thing. Here in beautiful, crime-free Iuka, Mississippi, we have just hit an annual milestone. It comes every August about this time. It's that day of the year where school catches up to them and I get home from work to find a scene straight out of Jonestown. Bodies laying all over my house. Not moving. Like there's been a tragic gas leak. It is the glorious day of the year where my children, so worn out from school, pass out around 3:30 p.m. and do not stir until about 6 a.m. the next morning.

Town Cryings
Nate Clark

If we were lucky, they went down without their faces submerged in their bowls of afterschool Cheetos. If not, the next morning it's going to basically take a sandblaster to get the orange off their faces. Because, friends, you do not disturb the bodies of children on the one night of the year when the adults can watch whatever they want on TV. There's a new Game of Thrones show on HBO Max! I can't even watch that show with the sound off when the kids are awake. Just the closed captioning is dirtier than early Eddie Murphy comedy. And though it's true the last season of Game of Thrones was more disappointing than later Eddie Murphy comedy, I'm still going to watch when I can. And if that means my oldest son is going to have to sleep on the floor of his bedroom with his Nikes on and his hand wrapped around a half-drunk twenty ounce Cherry Pepsi, so be it.

Let ye who do not binge streaming content cast the first stone. Going to sleep in the daylight and waking up in the daylight is disorienting, to say the least.

This morning, when I asked the autistic five year-old, "Are you awake, buddy?" He didn't move. He just replied, from under the covers, "No."

I don't think he was implying that no, he wasn't awake and was talking in his sleep. I think he was saying, "No, don't talk to me until I figure out how I fell asleep watching Thomas the Tank Engine and then I woke up with a full grown beard."

I get it, little man. What you did last night wasn't so much sleeping as it was hibernating in your school clothes. I've heard of comas lasting shorter times than my kids' snooze. Who needs melatonin and Ambien when you've got kindergarten and fifth grade?

Of course, kindergarten is exhausting enough, especially for the neurodivergent. The knockout punch for the fifth grader was "Sorting Day", where fifth graders are placed in various "houses" that will serve as social and mentoring circles for them throughout their middle school experience. These eight houses are made up of students from every grade and encourage social interaction and growth.

The day is kind of like a more inclusive college sorority pledge week mixed with field day. No matter which it's more like, you have to take a thorough shower the next morning. My appreciation for Sorting Day grew by leaps and bounds when my ten year old slept fourteen straight hours so, when he woke up, for the first time in three weeks he didn't tell me I was "ruining his life ... on purpose!" when I woke him up at 6:30.

He woke up with a smile on his face and a spring in his step - at least until we were out of Cherry Pop Tarts which, according to him, was a "conspiracy against me!"

Well, at least they still look sweet sleeping.

Walking after midnight... in 1940s Memphis

I peeped into the memory box today and out came a memory of some seventy-plus years that you might enjoy. The customs today are quite different from those of years ago.

Every fall after Chester and I married and World War II was over, we tried to go to Memphis to the Mid-South Fair. I had two sisters living in Memphis at the time; Nancy the fifth sibling and her husband, Kenneth, lived on Linden Street, downtown; and the other one, Flora Mae and husband, Richard, lived in south Memphis.

This happened before any of us three couples had any children.

Chester and I had only Memphis to visit and attend the fair. We were going to visit Flora and Richard and ride with them to the fair, and go home with Nancy and Kenneth for the night.

Now, back in the 40s and 50s, ladies dressed quite differently from our dress today. When you went to town, you wore the best clothes you had. On this particular day, I had on a dress-suit, black suede high heel pumps and of course carried a purse whether there was anything important in it or not. The weather, as I recall, was a beautiful fall day, and we took in the rides, displays and ate Pronto Pups and cotton candy. My husband never liked to ride the various rides, and I loved them.

The Pippin was the fastest ride and my brother-in-law slipped away and got tickets for him and me. He dared me to ride with him. I rode, scared to death, but never let him know!

The side shows were very tempting. We didn't have much money, but I remember one that was a "hit." Everyone came out laughing. We got in line for "The World's Greatest Miracle." Tempting? In we went! On a stool sat a 300+ pound woman with a knife and a stick. She said, "Always whittle away from yourself and you'll never cut yourself!"

Then a big laugh and out we went. How funny and silly! Cheated out of our money; with that quarter, we could have had our lunch: a Coke, hamburger and probably pink cotton candy. Everyone came out laughing and no one told what was so funny, so there was always a line to keep her busy!

We had parked a long way away in a parking lot and Kenneth and Nancy had caught a city bus and that's how we were to go home.

We got separated from Flora and Richard, it was midnight; everything was closing and we went to catch a bus back home. The buses had quit running. We walked back to the parking lot and Richard and Flora had already left. There we were. It was a long way back to their house. It was different back then. No phones to call anyone, and nothing to do but start walking and walk we did.

Remember I said you wore the best clothes and shoes you had, even to go to the Fair or the grocery store. For the first few blocks it was laborious. Then we began to get tired. No traffic on Linden. Everyone was in bed already. Finally, I could stand it no longer. Off my high heels and hose came and I walked barefooted the rest of the way. My feet hurt! What we had done, even 75 years ago, was crazy and dangerous. It was 4 a.m. when we hit the bed and it had never felt so good.

The moral to the story is: know how you are going to get home for certain!

Iuka Heritage Committee announces hometown fun for 2022 Heritage Day Festival

Iuka will come alive September 3rd, when visitors and the community come to town to celebrate the 34th annual Heritage Day Festival.

Bringing deeper meaning to "heritage," the festival's theme is "Back to our Roots," and special guests from the Eastern Band of Cherokee Nation's Deer Clan Productions will be featured performers.

"We are so thrilled to visit with these Native Americans, and to have them share their culture with everyone," said Rodney Windham, of the Festival Committee. "I encourage everyone to come out, bring your kids and family to see and learn from them. It's a magnificent show."

The group will perform cultural dances twice that day; times will be announced later.

There will be activities for kids, food trucks, tons of craft vendors, and singing in Mineral Springs Park all day.

Car show in Jaybird Park

And up in Jaybird Park, the Wheels of Northeast Mississippi Car Club will have their annual car show, with hundreds of classic cars and trucks on display, competing for thousands of dollars in prizes.

There will be shuttles between the parks all day, and of course, all the downtown businesses will welcome visitors, too.

Visitors will get a good look at all the new renovations, additions and improvements in Downtown.

Coming back from 2020, still

Members of the Iuka Heritage Committee have been working for months planning and fund-raising for the 2022 Heritage Day Festival. In 2021, the festival was put together in just a few weeks, after having been cancelled by Covid in 2020, so festival organizers are excited to present a bigger and better festival than ever.

Saturday night concert

New this year will be a concert event in Jaybird Park Saturday evening from 7-11 featuring live bands and several food trucks. Tickets ($35) are available in advance for that fund-raising event. Proceeds will go toward the expenses of producing Heritage Day 2022, and future events.

Fire at former Trax facility Wednesday morning

A fire broke out at an industrial facility on Paul Edmondson Drive Wednesday morning around 10 a.m. No one was hurt, though Elizabeth Barnes was inside at the time. She said, "It was normal one minute and filled with smoke the next minute." Several fire crews were on the scene. Mario and Elizabeth Barnes occupy the facility now, according to reports. The

Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over Campaign

During the Labor Day holiday period, we typically see an increase in drunk-driving deaths — and that's why you'll likely see more law enforcement on the roads as part of Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over.

The campaign, which runs from August 18 - September 6, aims to educate people about the dangers and consequences of driving drunk.

Be Responsible

As we've seen since the public health emergency began, drivers are making riskier decisions when they're behind the wheel — including drinking and driving. This Labor Day holiday, and every day, make it a point to drive sober.

The Tishomingo County Sheriff's Department would like to share the following tips from the NHTSA:

- Before drinking, plan a safe and sober ride home.
- Designate a sober driver.
- Don't let someone get behind the wheel if they've been drinking.
- If you're hosting a gathering, make sure all your guests have a sober ride home.
- Do not consume alcohol if you're under 21 years

- of age.
- NEVER get behind the wheel if you have been drinking.
- If you see an impaired driver, call 911. And always wear your seat belt — it's your best defense against impaired drivers.

The historic Iuka arrow sign has been returned!

According to Harold Lomenick, the black, arrow-shaped sign recently discovered missing from the city maintenance yard has been returned, and the reward paid.

Lomenick said it had been in Crump, Tennessee, and the person who had it reported it to a local law enforcement officer who facilitated the return. There was no more damage than the sign had already suffered and from just being left out in the weather.

Now the sign can go back into repair and refurbishment mode, said Lomenick. He said any donations are welcome, and authorities hope to restore it completely, and replace the neon outline on the sign.

Agent receives award for role in Afghanistan evacuation

Star Hy, who is the daughter of Iuka residents Ronald and Star Hy, recently received a prestigious award for her role in evacuated the U.S. Embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan, in August of 2021.

Diplomatic Security Service (DSS) Special Agent Star Hy received the 2022 Women in Federal Law Enforcement (WIFLE) Julie Y. Cross Award for her role in the August 2021 drawdown of the U.S. Embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan, and for assisting with subsequent humanitarian operations in the country. Hy is the third DSS special agent to receive this honor.

WIFLE presented the award to Hy on August 10 in Phoenix, Arizona, at a ceremony, that recognized the outstanding accomplishments of women in federal law enforcement. Hy was joined at the ceremony by Supervisory Special Agent and WIFLE vice president, Jessica McTigue.

DSS Supervisory Special Agent Benjamin Sides, who was the deputy regional security officer in Kabul during the time of the evacuation, nominated Hy for the award. Sides praised Hy for her "heroism and exceptional courage, risking her life on the front lines of incredible danger amid an unpredictable security situation as the Taliban overtook strategic locations through Kabul."

According to the citation, Hy worked with her fellow DSS agents to secure the U.S. embassy and safely evacuate more than 1,400 U.S. government personnel, family members, contractors, and third-country nationals to the Hamid Karzai International Airport (HKIA), where she and other State Department personnel worked around the clock to evacuate hundreds of thousands of Americans, foreign allies, and at-risk Afghans. With the Taliban nearing the embassy's gates, Hy helped destroy thousands of sensitive and classified documents, computer equipment, and armored vehicles to prevent them from falling into the Taliban's control. She also secured hundreds of weapons and other sensitive materials for the move from the embassy to HKIA.

Upon arriving at the airport, Hy "heroically provided security amid flash grenades, tear gas, and machine-gun fire while U.S. and Afghan military forces struggled to control volatile crowds at the gates." She also used her expertise in reviewing and verifying U.S. and Afghan travel and identity documents to assist her consular colleagues in processing the hundreds of thousands of people fleeing Afghanistan.

The United States continued diplomatic operations in Afghanistan until Aug. 30, 2021. DSS was the only federal law enforcement agency operating in Afghanistan following the evacuation of the U.S. embassy; Hy was the sole female U.S. law enforcement officer supporting the evacuation and humanitarian operations.

All full-time sworn women federal law enforcement officers are eligible for the Julie Y. Cross Award. The award is given to the nominee who best displays an unusual degree of courage, stamina, and willingness to go above and beyond the call of duty, resulting in an exceptional heroic achievement in law enforcement.

Hy joined DSS in 2009. Prior to her posting in Kabul, she served at U.S. diplomatic posts in Mexico City and Sarajevo, and in the Washington, D.C., area. Hy is the daughter of Ronald and Star Hy of Iuka, Mississippi. She is a graduate of Mount Saint Mary Academy in Little Rock, Arkansas, and graduated from West Point with a bachelor's degree in Systems Engineering and holds Masters' degrees from Johns Hopkins University, the National Intelligence University, and Troy University. Hy is a military intelligence officer in the U.S. Army Reserve.

WIFLE is a non-profit organization established in 1999. It is the only organization offering awards to promote and recognize exceptional courage, outstanding accomplishment, and significant contribution that have advanced the recruitment, retention, and promotion of women in federal law enforcement.

DSS is the law enforcement and security arm of the U.S. Department of State. With the largest global footprint of any U.S. law enforcement agency, DSS special agents, engineers, security technicians, and diplomatic couriers are located at 275 locations around the world in more than 170 countries. DSS special agents provide a safe environment for the conduct of

Getting Sorted

IMS 5th graders sorted into Houses Monday

by Noah Sheffield/IMS News

Monday, August 22nd was a very important day at Iuka Middle School. It was no ordinary day. You could feel the enthusiasm as soon as you drove onto the campus as Mrs. Middleton and Mrs. Pazlee helped you out of the vehicle and as you walked under the balloon arch filled with the “house” colors. Students, 6th through 8th grade, were wearing their house colors while 5th graders were dressed in tie dye or neon colors. It was the annual “House Sorting Day” at Iuka Middle School.

Schools around the world have implemented the House System, but of course we feel IMS does it best. Iuka Middle School is divided into eight houses, and on House Sorting Day the 5th graders are welcomed into their new houses.

Students met in the activity building Monday morning. The enthusiasm was palpable as students entered the loud, energetic building. Fifth graders circled in the center. One by one, students walked to the stage and received an envelope.

They carried the envelope to Mrs. Lambert who announced what house they would be in. Results were typically met with lots of jumping and cheering as students walked over to their new houses where they were greeted by house parents and house prefects.

I had the opportunity to interview our school librarian, Mrs. Lambert. When she was asked what “house sorting day” meant to her she responded, “House sorting is a pretty big day to me. It is when all the new students are placed in their houses, and I get to help with that. I guess I’m the unofficial “Effie Trinket”, which I love doing. I get to help each new student join their IMS family! The older house members celebrate the new members, and it is just a fun day with all of us together. That ties right into IMS, a House United. Although the houses compete all year for the Cup, we are all brought together with the house system”.

The House System is a dynamic, exciting way to create a positive school climate, build camaraderie and school spirit, and to provide leadership opportunities for students. Since each house includes students from each grade, it fosters a sense of community throughout the school. Students can earn points throughout the school year for going above expectations in their behavior, citizenship, school spirit, and academic performance. The house with the most points at the end will be crowned as House Cup winner. Students with the most points in each house will be named house point leaders.

The current 8th grade class is the first class to enjoy the house system all four years of middle school. The day was amazing and memorable. House Days were our fellow classmate, Michael Walker’s, favorite days. His school spirit was unmatched but yet contagious. House Parents and Prefects went all out this year, and it felt as if Michael was there. I think we made him proud. #lovelikemike

VB and football games exciting campus and fans

by Caleb Castile/TC Sports

Two volleyball games and a football scrimmage had the campus buzzing at TC. The student body was very excited; they showed up and showed out at all of the games this week.

Volleyball opened their week Tuesday against heated rival and 2A State Champions Belmont. TC students made the drive south and showed out, building a student section that rivaled the Cardinal's on their home court. The game did not go like they would have wanted it, though. Belmont took a hard fought first set and after that it seemed like the ball kept on bouncing Belmont's way. Belmont won the game 3-0, and TC dropped to 1-4.

However, later in the week, volleyball had a chance to redeem themselves with their home opener vs. South Pontotoc. This was no ordinary home game, as the Lady Braves debuted their new court. It was a sight to see the bright, beautiful TC logo at midcourt in all its splendor. Additionally, South Pontotoc is coached by TC volleyball alum Bailey Reece!

The Lady Braves defeated the Lady Cougars 3-0. Reese Moore highlighted the game with 18 kills, as she took home the coveted "Player of the Game" shades, presented by the TCPR team who livestreamed the game. Zareli Ozuna also had a huge contribution with 14 assists.

TC 39,ACHS 0

Last, but not least, the TC football team unofficially opened their season vs. Alcorn Central on last Friday. The offense and the defense showed great strength, as the Braves out-powered the Bears on both sides of the ball. The scoreboard read 39-0 at the end of the first half, which was intended for both side's varsity players. However, the JV half would never happen. At the request of the other team, the JV half was cut from the schedule. This led to a 12-minute, intrasquad scrimmage for the JV players. The student section was donned with camouflage and cheered loudly as the Braves rolled over Alcorn Central.

It was a great way to kick off football season, as the Braves will travel to take on Mantachie for the official start to the season this Friday.

Renovation Underway at the old Davis Farm Supply

If you are over 60, you might remember the Elmo D. Davis Farm Supply on Eastport Street in Iuka. Today the building is being renovated, following years of neglect, as are many of the old buildings in downtown Iuka. The building was recently purchased by John Enlow, a native of Iuka, who went away to college and worked some 30 years in the timber business before returning to his hometown three years ago. He says he is so excited about investing in the wonderful old buildings in Iuka. He has bought the old feed store, along with the Gaines building on Front Street and the small strip mall beside the Catholic Church. He is proud to be bringing the buildings back to their glory days and revitalizing downtown Iuka.

Charlotte's Attic
Charlotte Biggs McVay

Elmo Davis, owner of the Farm Supply, was born in 1894 in Iuka, moved to Texas at a young age, but in 1918 moved back to Iuka to settle and become a prominent merchant and civic leader. He operated the E. D. Davis Farm Supply Company and Scrap Metal Businesses for 40 years before his death in 1962. The location of the Elmo Davis Feed Store building is located next to Attorney Joey Cobb's office (old Post Office), and has been used for other businesses over the years. Recently it served as a thrift shop.

The Feed Store was a busy establishment in Iuka. Mr. Davis' granddaughter, Charlotte Gonce of Carlos, Texas is sharing these wonderful photos of how the store once looked and the fond memories she has of the store and her grandparents.

Charlotte remembers feed sacks stacked high in the store; she climbed and played on the sacks and the old feed scales. (She would love to locate those scales if anyone knows of their whereabouts). She also remembers the beautiful feed sacks that were used to make dresses for her and her sister, Becky, to wear. They were proud of their beautiful dresses. Many kids during that era wore dresses made from feed sacks. The colorful sacks were also used to make aprons for the farmer's wives. Mr. Davis' store also sold live poultry, Purina feeds, and he bought hides and scrap metal from the public. Anything a farmer needed, the Davis store had it in stock.

Elmo Davis was married to Roxie Bonds and they had three children, Elaine Davis Long, Dorothy Davis Forrest, and Garvin Davis. Mr. Elmo died at the age of 66 in 1962 while visiting his sister and family in Texaco, New Mexico. His son, Garvin, kept the store open a number of years after his death.

Mr. Davis was a Mason, a Shriner, a Navy Veteran of World War I, and Commander of the American Legion Post 15. He served on the Iuka Board of Aldermen for 7 years; was a member of the Iuka Rotary Club; served on the finance committee for the Boy Scouts; and was president of the newly organized Tri-State Savings and Loan Assoc. which was located across the street from the Davis business. He was a well respected member of the community.

Writer's note: I remember visiting the feed store when I was little. My daddy worked for Mr. Davis delivering feed throughout the area. I remember the wonderful smell, that only a feed store can have, and also the baby chickens you could play with. I was very small, but you don't forget these wonderful old businesses. I also remember that my daddy's uncle, Herbert Biggs and his wife Byrd, had H & B Cleaners, two doors down from the feed store. We spent many hours visiting the cleaners and you don't forget those wonderful smells either. The fire department was also located in this same block of buildings. I remember wrecked vehicles were parked behind the buildings. Anytime there was a bad accident, people gathered in the lot to view the wrecked car (excitement in a small town).

Thank you to Charlotte for all her photos and information and to John Enlow, who like Mr. Davis, has moved back to his hometown of Iuka to enjoy small town living and promote this special place we call home!
